TCU THIS WEEK

EVENTS AND INFORMATION FOR THE TCU COMMUNITY

VOL. 4, NO. 25 MARCH 8, 1999

Chancellor presents first draft of mission statement

THE FIRST VERSION OF A CAREFULLY-crafted mission statement for TCU, which Chancellor Ferrari called for during his remarks at Fall Convocation on Sept. 17, has been completed. It reads as follows:

Texas Christian University - a vibrant community of learners embracing an inclusive and self-reliant heritage - advances scholarship and develops ethical and responsible leaders for the complex global society of the 21st century.

The mission statement was first on the list of 10 goals which the Chancellor outlined for this academic year. To that end, he appointed a representative group of faculty, staff and students to write a succinct and compelling mission statement that has meaning to every member of the academic community.

Those on the task force drafting the statement include: Sherrie Reynolds (education), Mike McCracken (dean, AddRan), Bob Seal (librarian), Richard Enos (English), Susan Adams (dean, campus life), Jill Laster (business services), Emmitt Belcha (facility services), Delia Pitts (international education), Larry Lauer (associate vice chancellor, communications and public affairs), Shana Lawlor, former student body president, and Ann Crassons, president of the honors program.

According to Sherrie, the Chancellor had asked the task force to ponder the question, "Would you drink from a coffee mug that had this printed on it?"

"That's the best way I know to approach it," Sherrie adds. "We're not looking for the perfect mission statement because we would need infinite time to do that. We just want something that captures what we believe we are trying to do in a way that we can all live with on our coffee mugs."

In the last two weeks, Chancellor Ferrari has presented the mission statement to the Parents Council, to a group of TCU administrators and to the Faculty Senate during its regular meeting last Thursday.

The mission statement will lead to the formulation of a vision statement which will address TCU's distinct standing in American private and independent higher education and our aspirations for the future.

The vision statement will then lead to the formulation of strategies which describe the means by which TCU will fulfill both its mission and its vision. ◆

Staff members asked to attend one of this week's discussions on diversity

CAMPUS-WIDE STAFF DISCUSSION groups, sponsored by the Chancellor's Council on Diversity, begin tomorrow. The gatherings mark the initiation of a plan to eventually survey all faculty, staff and students about attitudes toward diversity on campus.

Rm. 207-209
noon - 1 p.m.

Beverages will be served. For more information or to RSVP, contact the Office of Communications at ext. 7810. ◆

Argentinean businessmen spending April on campus

TCU WILL HOST A MONTH-LONG seminar on U.S. business for a group of 25 business leaders from Argentina. Dates are April 4-30, with on-campus sessions held in the Dee J. Kelly Alumni & Visitors Center.

The $100,000 seminar, funded by the government of Argentina, will bring businessmen primarily from the State of San Luis with whom TCU has a formal agreement for academic and cultural exchanges. (In August, the State of San Luis will send 30 graduate students to complete their education at TCU).

Daily sessions for the April seminar will include lectures by faculty from the Neeley School and international education, as well as business leaders from throughout the Metroplex. There will also be site visits to a number of businesses in the area, including Lockheed Martin, Bell Textron, Burlington-Northern and small companies which build parts for them.

Adolpho Rodriguez Saa, governor of San Luis, will join the group for a special closing event on April 30.

"These people had several options as far as choosing American colleges at which to hold this seminar, but they chose TCU," says Larry Adams (associate vice chancellor, academic affairs). ◆
