October 5, 1943.

Major General James H. Doolittle,
Commanding Northwest African Strategic Air Force,
Allied Headquarters in North Africa.

Dear Jimmie:

Colonel Elliott Roosevelt spent a few days at home and I understand may be back in your part of the country sometime soon. I am taking the liberty of sending you a little Christmas remembrance which I hope arrives safely and that you will accept with my best wishes.

We have all been following your remarkable achievements with the greatest enthusiasm and admiration; and, I cannot keep from recalling the pleasant day that you, Frank Hawk, Wiley Post and I spent with sweet old Will Rogers in his home in Santa Monica. It is too bad that Will cannot be here with us now as his prognostications and daily comments would be a great morale builder for our boys who are helping you do the job.

Dont forget, when you have finished up the Jerries and come back to God's country, that we in Texas and Fort Worth especially will be delighted to receive you with open arms. So, good luck and happy landings and a bull's eye on every shot!

Sincerely,

AGC.KD
