C. O. B. 14, FRESHMEN 0.

First Class Game of Season—Ethusiasm Evidenced.

In acceptance of the Freshman Class challenge to contest any school organization in a game of baseball, the College of Business team met the Freshies Monday afternoon and defeated them in the one-sided score of 14 to 0. The occasion was the scene of much class spirit and rivalry. Both organizations were represented in the bleachers. Well organized bands of rooters kept the air ringing with class yells and cheers for their respective teams. Withal it was a fitting climax for the day which was spent in evincing class rivalry in large quantities.

It was apparent at once that the Freshmen were outmatched by the "Cobs," who had the Varsity battery and two more first team men. But this did not affect the Freshies who displayed an indomitable spirit throughout the game. Several of the second team men were lined-up with them and they did good work as individual players as well as keeping the team together. Burnett's ability in the box, supported by a fast infield, did not allow the opposing team much of a chance.

This contest was the first of a series of three games between these organizations. The dates for the subsequent matches have not been settled. We can look forward to a better article of ball as the Freshman are preparing to seek revenge.

Monday's line-up was as follows:

Gallaher	ss	Carson
Kinnard	2b	Rodgers
Herder	3b	Baldwin-Keller
Moulden (Capt)	c	Tyson
Kerr	1b	Knight
Morton	lf	Perkins (Capt)
Nabors	rf	Collins
Mewhinney	cf	Frizzell
Burnett	p	Wallace-Baldwin

Innings 7. Strike-outs by Burnett

9; Baldwin 3, Wallace 1. Hits, off Burnett 1, off Baldwin 1, off Wallace 7; base on balls, off Burnett, 1; off Wallace, 4; off Baldwin, 1. Homeruns—Burnett, 1; Morton, 1; Kerr, 1. Time of game, one hour and twenty-five minutes. Score—"Cobs" 14 to Freshmen 0. Umpire, Hall.

College Spirit in T. C. U.

Considerable college spirit was manifested on last Monday, when the Freshman class flew their flag from the college flagpole. The spirit, however, failed to develop into activity on the part of any of the upper-classmen except the Sophomores, who seemed to be directly challenged by the Freshies.

At eleven o'clock, amid the cheers of a large class, the Freshman flag was slowly hoisted to the top of the staff and left to flutter defiance to the upper classmen. It had not waved long when one of the least suspicious Sophomores came down the walk that leads across the campus near the pole. Evidently his purpose was not suspected, for he was climbing the pole before the Freshies came to the defense of their flag. The Soph. had reached the rope and was about to bring the colors down when some of the enemy, lifted up by their classmates, seized him by the feet and tried to pull him down. Grabbing the flag-rope the Soph. gripped it with all his might until the weight of the Freshman brought him down upon their heads. By this time other Sophomores arrived on the scene of excitement. The scuffling was something unseen before on our campus. Dust, grass, grass-burrs, and gravel filled the air; lawyers, preachers, Sophs. and Freshies rolled upon the ground. But the battle didn't last. The Sophomores, being outnumbered about five to one, were soon bound hand and foot and put in a pile. Then the Freshmen proceeded to have a war-dance, and ridicule, and taunt their conquered foes; while the other upper-classmen stood around with their mouths open wondering what it meant and let the Freshman flag wave out its two hours to their shame.

The only available excuse for the inactivity of the Juniors and Seniors is their ignorance of the fact that at no college, in which there is college spirit and class-rivalry, is the Freshman class allowed to proclaim itself the flag on the staff from which is supposed to float the emblem representing the sentiment of the entire school. Freshmen are sometimes allowed to side with Juniors against Sophs and Seniors in minor affairs, but, in no college-spirited school, are they allowed to "lord it" over all other classes by floating their colors for the space of two hours from the college flagstaff.

If our Freshman class cannot be charged with the same ignorance, they undoubtedly have more gall to the square inch than any other class of the same calibre known to the history of the world. They not only advertised themselves from the flag-pole, but, when the C. O. B.'s met to discuss the flag affair, a couple of Freshmen went to the meeting and convinced the C. O. B.'s that it did not concern them at all.

We are glad to see the development of college spirit and class rivalry, and are free in our congratulations to the Freshmen for their move in this direction. We congratulate the Sophs., too, for their gallantry in doing all they could with their numbers. And, though we cannot congratulate the other upper-classmen, we will show our fair-mindedness by doing the next best thing—wishing that we could.

Some lively scenes were presented around the flag-pole Monday where the Freshmen challenged the Sophomores to battle. The occasion was fraught with pure and wholesome class spirit, the abundance of which has scarcely been in evidence at T. C. U. for several sessions. No criticism can justly be made concerning the principle of the episode, but one feature was altogether unsportsmanlike. The use of ammonia is referred to. Perhaps it was introduced by some thoughtless student who was at the time unaware of its attendant dangers, but such practices should not be tolerated in any class fight; deliberation should be made over the method of warfare. If we are to have these contests, let us have a fair, open and healthy tussle. Class loyalty should be the dominant spirit; that, and only that. We sincerely believe in class spirit, because it fosters college spirit, and what would our college life be without its characteristic enthusiasm. While these class "mix-ups" we think, should be encouraged, there is a limit, —an extreme to guard against. Do not overstep the bounds. Act manly, do not take advantage of anyone and give every fellow a chance.

As the baseball season is near at hand a movement is now in order to prepare for the organization of a rooter's club. T. C. U. has never been able to put out a first-class rootatorial gang. We always have the loyalty and proper spirit but a deficiency in the organization is marked. There is no need to wait for until the afternoon of a contest to assemble and practice yells. The best results can not be obtained by this method. Now is the time to begin. Can we not have mass meetings now and have the necessary practice. Above all, we must have organization. Varsity is working hard to get into shape to take everything that steps on the diamond this season. Will we not lend these valiant fellows our encouragement and support. Nothing can so stimulate them in a contest as volumes of cheers from their fellow-students. Get together.

At present no definite solution has been reached in regard to the football problem. The committee, which has already framed a partial set of rules governing the different points in the game, will meet to vote upon a completed list to-day in New York. The committee unanimously agree in the matter of changing the rule governing the downs to ten yards in three downs. In addition to this change they will probably agree on the following rules:

"Every player on kicking shall be on the side when kicked ball touches the ground.

"One forward pass shall be allowed on a play, provided the ball does not touch the ground before being touched by a player of either side. Such a pass to be made by any man who was behind the line of scrimmage when the ball was put in play. If the ball touches the ground before being touched by the player of either side it shall go to the opponents on the spot from which the pass was made. The pass shall not be received by a man who was on the line of scrimmage when the ball was put in play; except for two men playing on the ends of the line when the ball is put in play. A direct lob over the line within a space of five yards on each side of the center shall be unlawful."

A rule allowing a collegiate to participate in athletics for a term of four years instead of five will probably be voted upon.

According to a custom which is instituted in many universities of good ranking the classes publish one issue of the weekly paper in turn. In this method exceptionally good editions are published, a more lively interest taken in the paper and more than all, a healthy class rivalry is stimulated. This spirit is much needed here as it is conducive to college enthusiasm and loyalty. No one can deny we lack the right quality of college spirit.

A submission of this proposition readily met with favor from the classes and immediate steps were taken to inaugurate this custom in Texas Christian University. The Freshman class were allowed to publish the issue of next week. The members have elected a staff and we predict a creditable edition from their hands. As a matter of fact, these issues will be more or less prejudicial and perhaps in the form of boast to the class who has it in charge. We therefore relinquish any of the rights in the management of the Skiff and turn the paper completely into the care of the classes, being then responsible, for no matter inserted. We hope this plan will meet with the approval of our readers. We now give way to the Freshies to break the monotony.

Does it Pay?

Is money put into a collegiate training a good investment? This is a perfectly legitimate question, and one that every earnest boy and girl may be expected to ask, and a definite answer is demanded.

In answer to this question I unhesitatingly say, yes, it pays better to attend college than to engage in any work whatsoever that is open to a young person of school age, and the value of the work increases in geometric ratio with each succeeding year, up to the completion of the full college course. Having answered the question in this categorical way, I wish to assign some reasons for the answer given, which I trust will carry conviction to all earnest minds.

It pays to put time and money into collegiate training:

(1) Because it doubles the earning capacity of the individual. Five hundred dollars a year is much above the average amount earned by the uneducated or slightly educated man. A thousand dollars a year is certainly not above the average amount received by the educated worker. If these figures be taken as the average earning capacity in both cases, it is seen that this capacity is doubled by collegiate training. Allowing forty years as the working life of the individual after he has secured his education, we would have twenty thousand dollars as the average value of a collegiate course. On the supposition that four years is the average amount of time expended in securing such a course after the public high school has been passed, it will be seen that the average money value of each year the student is in college is five thousand dollars. It is not evident, therefore, that time spent in college is more valuable, from a money standpoint, than any other like period in life. These are conservative figures. The real facts would probably be much above what is here stated. Viewing the matter, then, from a financial side, which is the lowest point of view, can a young person afford to miss a collegiate training?

(2) Because education at the present time is the cheapest article in the market. One of the leading educators of this country says, that the amount paid by the student in tuition on an average amounts to about one-fifth of the actual cost of the collegiate instruction. There is no college of good standing that can maintain itself on tuition fees. In Texas Christian University the student pays in tuition about one-third of the actual expense incident to his education. It will be seen, therefore, that the higher institutions of learning must have large endowments, or a large income from sources other than from tuition. It consequently follows, that when a student attends college he buys the most valuable thing on the market today at a price ranging from one-third to one-fifth of its actual cost. This is a chance that comes but once in life. Can young people afford to miss it?

(3) Because education multiplies the effective power of life many fold. Statistics show that college men are in the forefront in all forms of legitimate activity. In business, in the professions and in political life, trained mind counts for more today than at any previous time in the world's history. The ability to manage great enterprises depends, not so much upon native ability, as upon the training acquired. All the great religious reformers of the past, with scarcely an exception, have been educated men and at the present time the foremost men in the pulpit, in medicine, at the bar, and in the halls of congress are college and university trained men. Is it not evident, therefore, that it pays immensely to attend college?

(4) Because education greatly enhances the individual's chances of success. Statistics show that, for every one that reaches a considerable measure of success without collegiate training, there are forty college men that reach a large degree of success. This means that a college course multiplies the individual's chances of success by forty; that is, he will be forty times as likely to succeed with a college training as without one. Can a young person, therefore, afford to take the risk incurred by missing a collegiate training?

(5) Because it enables the individual to more nearly attain the true end of existence. Life is a most precious inheritance because of its wonderful possibilities.

"There's a race to be run,
And a goal to be won."

How shall I attain unto the true object in life? The answer is, by the full and harmonious development of all my powers, physical, intellectual and spiritual; in other words, by education. As has been truly and forcibly said, "We must educate; we must educate, or we must perish." Does it not pay to make the most out of life, and if so does it not pay to secure the best education possible to the individual?

(6) Because education secures the true development of the individual. Man is a physical, intellectual and spiritual being, and the Christian college of the present day takes particular pains to see that this complex individual is developed and trained in all his powers. It tries to develop the body and thus make it a worthy and efficient instrument of the soul. It develops and cultivates the intellectual powers, teaching the individual to think accurately and readily, to reason unerringly, and to execute certainly. It seeks also to cultivate the heart powers, which are the main-springs of action and the guarantee of highest usefulness. Does it pay to become a symmetrical individual with each faculty trained for highest efficiency? Is not the whole better than a part?

The S. W. U. Glee Club Concert.

The concert given by the Southwestern University Glee Club at the Fifth Street Methodist church in the city last evening was a delightful entertainment in every particular. An enjoyable occasion was anticipated and no one went away disappointed. The club rendered catchy, glee songs, the members impersonating their parts to such advantage that the audience was kept in a continuous roar of laughter.

The club was ably assisted by Miss Seabury, vocalist, and Miss Van Aaken, pianist, each rendering appreciated numbers which added much to the success of the entertainment. Hearty encores were responded to by both of these artists. The well drilled and trained Glee Club owes its proficiency to Miss Newey, its directress. One enjoyable number was a well-selected reading given by one of the members of the club.

Altogether the evening's entertainment was a delightful one; especially so to the T. C. U. students who were in attendance. They all make praiseworthy comments on the program as a whole and congratulate the S. W. U. boys on their excellent performance.

be swept from the rooms into the hallways. Students who do not comply with this regulation shall be subjected to a fine of not less than twenty-five cents or more than two dollars.

Art. 3. Young ladies must never do any cooking in their rooms, unless by permission of the Lady Principal. Any young lady violating this regulation shall be restricted to the campus not less than two weeks, nor more than four weeks.

Title VI—Quiet Hour.

Art. 1. Quiet Hour on Sunday shall be observed from 2:00 to 4:00 p. m. During this time there must be no visiting whatsoever, nor entertaining of company in the parlor. Any young lady violating this regulation shall be restricted from one soiree for each offence.

Title VII—Social Regulations.

Art. 1. Young ladies may not stop for conversation with young gentlemen in the hallways or upon the steps of any of the buildings, or on any part of the campus before eight o'clock in the morning, during class periods, or after five o'clock in the afternoon. Any young lady violating this regulation in any of its parts shall be restricted to the campus for a period of not less than two nor more than four weeks for the first offence. For the second offence, the penalty shall be doubled; and for the third offence, the young lady shall be turned over to the Discipline Committee of the College for punishment.

Art. 2. Young ladies shall pass out of the dining room at the tap of the first bell, and shall go immediately to the Girls' Home or to the campus in front of the Girls' Home. They shall not linger on the grounds between the Girl's Home and the Main Building. If anyone is not through her meal when the first bell taps, she must remain at the table until after the gentlemen pass out, and until the special signal is given for such persons to leave the room. Any young lady violating this rule will be restricted from one soiree for each offence.

Art. 3. Young ladies may receive gentlemen callers in the parlor from 4:00 to 6:00 o'clock on Mondays and Saturdays, and after church on Sunday nights until ten o'clock. Any young lady receiving a caller at any other hour will be restricted from one soiree for each offence.

Art. 4. Ladies may allow gentlemen to call and take them to literary societies and all public gatherings in the chapel, other than the regular church services, but they must not stop on the way going or coming, nor linger after the exercises are over, nor allow gentlemen to linger at the door of the Girls' Home after returning, and they must never invite gentlemen into the parlor on such occasions. Any young lady violating this rule will be restricted from one soiree.

Art. 5. Any young lady attending a literary society or public gathering in company with a gentleman must never leave the room in which the society or public meeting is held until the close of the exercises, or if she does she must go at once to the Girls' Home. If there is a recess period during the society performances, young ladies may promenade in the hallway during this period. Any young lady violating any of the provisions of this article shall be restricted from one soiree for each offence.

Art. 6. Young ladies may receive their brothers or relatives at any time, by permission of the Lady Principal. Any young lady receiving such visit without permission shall be restricted to the campus for a period of not less than one week, nor more than two weeks.

Art. 7. Ladies of Junior and Senior ranking in the literary courses may be permitted to go to town without a chaperon, but must always inform the Lady Principal of this intention. All others must have special permission of the Lady Principal; at such times ladies must not allow the company of young gentlemen. Any young lady violating this rule will be restricted to the campus for a period of not less than two weeks, nor more than four.

Art. 8. The campus shall be divided by a line running from the south side of the Main Building directly to the front street. The campus on the south side of this line shall belong to the ladies. This part of the campus shall be held for the exclusive use of young ladies, except at such times as may have been provided for by other rules and regulations of the city government. Any young lady passing beyond this limit, except as may be provided for by other regulations, shall be restricted from not less than one nor more than two soirees.

Art. 9. Young ladies must not enter the Main Building after five o'clock in the afternoon, except to attend regular meetings in the chapel or society halls, and they must never attend committee meetings in the Main Building without permission of the Lady Principal. Any young lady violating any part of this regulation shall be restricted from one soiree.

Art. 10. During soirees, young ladies must confine themselves to the first floor of the Girls' Home, but not enter the private rooms of young ladies on the floor. They must not enter Townsend Hall or the Main Building, nor walk upon the grounds except within such limits as may be imposed by the Lady Principal. Any young lady violating this regulation will be restricted from not less than one, nor more than three soirees.

Title VIII—Social Privileges Enumerated.

1. Young ladies may always speak to young gentlemen when meeting them, and pass the time of day, or even pause long enough, when time permits, to speak a few words in friendly conversation, provided they never linger longer than one or two minutes.

2. Young ladies may occupy places at the tables in the dining room with young gentlemen, and may indulge freely in conversation with young gentlemen during meals.

3. Young ladies are allowed to converse with young gentlemen in the class room during the recitation periods, whenever such conversation does not impair the integrity of the class room work, or violate the class room regulations.

4. Young ladies may pass to and fro in the hallways with young gentlemen during the five-minute intervals between classes, but they must never linger after the second bell rings; that is, after the class begins.

5. Young ladies may accompany young gentlemen to society entertainments and public gatherings in the chapel, other than the regular meetings of the church.

6. Young ladies may have the privilege of association with young gentlemen in the Girls' Home between the hours of 4:00 and 6:00 o'clock on Mondays and Saturdays, and after church on Sunday nights until ten o'clock.

7. Young ladies may pass through the hallways to and from the library in company with young gentlemen, provided they do not linger for the purpose of extending their conversation.

8. Young ladies may pass through the hallways to the College store whenever it is open, in company with young gentlemen, provided they do not stop in the book store longer than is necessary to transact the necessary business.

9. Young ladies may indulge freely in conversation with young gentlemen during the regular soirees, which will be given at the Girls' Home once each month, provided weather will permit, and conditions are favorable.

For social privileges not mentioned in these regulations, special permission must be obtained of the Lady Principal.

Any student refusing to be arrested by an officer of this government, or to submit to any punishment that may be inflicted upon her by the court of this School City, shall be sent to the Faculty with the earnest request that a heavy penalty be inflicted, and for the second offence, the Council recommends that the student be sent home. Amendment.—Juniors and Seniors

Texas Christian University

is the largest and most thoroughly equipped school belonging to the brotherhood in all the Southwest. More than 30 professors, teachers and officers are in charge of the various features of the school work. Last year there were enrolled as follows: College of Arts and Sciences, 102; College of the Bible, 37; College of Business, 110; College of Music, 127; College of Oratory, 39; College of Art, 108; Preparatory College 188.

The leading Universities and Conservatories of America and Europe are represented in the Faculty. Well equipped libraries, laboratories and studios are at the disposal of the students. A large number of the new upright pianos, three grand pianos, a pipe organ and a full set of band instruments constitute the musical equipment. No school has better pianos for practice purposes. We use largely the Starr and Knabe, which are supplemented by the Emerson, Ivers and Pond, and Chickering. Graduating pupils practice on Chickering and Knabe full concert grand pianos.

The Church Parson system of Kindergarten music is taught by a graduate of the system.
