Baseball Schedule.

Manager Barnard at last has his baseball schedule into almost definite shape, it including games with all leading colleges in the state. The complete schedule, including games played, is:

- March 9—T. C. U. vs. New York Giants, 1-11.
  - March 15-16—T. C. U. vs. Add-Ran-Jarvis, 7-3, 1-0.
  - March 18-19—T. C. U. vs. Waco League, 5-7, 2-1.
  - March 26-27—T. C. U. vs. Baylor, 2-0, 1-1.
  - March 31-April 1—Waco League.
  - April 5-6—Baylor.
  - April 9-10—University of Texas, at April 12-13—Southwestern University, at Georgetown.
  - April 16-17—Austin College, at Waco.
  - April 19-20—University of Texas, at Waco.
  - April 21—Baylor.
  - April 26—Trinity, at Waxahachie.
  - April 27-28—Austin College, at Sherman.
  - April 30-May 1—University of Arkansas, at Fayetteville.
  - May 3—Trinity, at Waxahachie.
- The closing games of the season will be the final two with Baylor. At present the dates are May 16-17, but since the league team is here on those days it is probable that the date will be changed to later in the month.

Waco League 7, T. C. U. 3.

T. C. U. met the Waco League for the third time this season and for the second time they persuaded us to take the little end of the score, and we obeyed stubbornly. Threatening weather kept the crowd away and the game was played in a drizzling rain, oftentimes the field very smoky, and it was nearly dark before nine innings were dragged through. The game should be styled a "Comedy of Errors" for both teams had a total of 11—and in the error column T. C. U. led, having seven to their credit. In fact, T. C. U. put up the punkest exhibition of the season; bare-headed plays, poor stick work and juicy errors together with a hit or so by the league contributed seven runs to our opponents. Mr.
Lloyd of the Waco pitching staff, undertook to umpire the game, and in whatever esteem he is held as a twirler he can certainly do better in the pitching department than the umps of a ball game.

Coach Hardy sent Big Louie to the firing line to start the game and he was touched pretty lively, but not to the extent of seven runs. He yielded six hits, three of which were triples, gotten by Mayard, Shelton and Powell.
Drucke was replaced by Tyson in the seventh and altho Ty was wild, he never allowed a hit and he prevented further run-getting. Little Johnny Jones worked for Shelton's Skippers and he proved an enigma to the T. C.
U. stick wielders. He had his curve balls working nicely and struck out six of the collegians in five innings.

FACULTY "TAKE-OFF"

Scores Tremendous Success Thursday Night.

Minstrel shows and the like have oftentimes aroused the risibilities of the University assembly. The delightful little comedies staged by Miss Reeves have justly deserved the enthusiastic reception tendered them.
But for "hilarious hilarity" nothing will probably ever excel the bunch of actualities presented at the Faculty Take-off last night. The skillful handling and twisting of little touches of comedy known to all of us could not fail to provoke mirth. And this all the more because this time we were able to "see with the Dear Faculty's eyes."

Considering that the program was served on short notice the characterizations were life-like in the extreme.
In fact, it is safe to say that even without the printed cast nobody would have failed to detect the one impersonated. Especially was this the case when the faculty appeared for the chapel hour. Their characteristic strides and poses if one did not look too closely actually made the session seem real.

First to appear was Dan Rogers, as Dr. Lockhart, with his "pre-chapel" touches to the chairs and books. Then in rapid succession appeared "Drs." Graves, Faris, Eskridge, Anderson, Long and others, with "Dr." Cruzan quietly slipping in by the side door after the exercises had commenced.

Then regulation "activities" of the chapel hour were then carried out in order, the material being gleaned from various happenings of the past year.
The first song safely concluded, the students assembled were given a "scripture reading" from "Childhood's Encyclopedia" together with a masterful dissertation upon the literary value and the facts to be deduced from same by "Dr. Eskridge."

Then various announcements concerning anthropology, biology and geology and that track team with an "I can't do it all" side statement and the like. "Dr." Cockrell (Collins) rose to announce the speaker for the morning who (it developed after a whispered conversation with Dr. Lockhart) was Dean Kesler of Baylor. Unfortunately, however, the Dean did not appear, so Mrs.

Cockrell (Nell Miller) addressed the assembly upon "art in clothes" or at least with a title of similar meaning.
A reminiscence of a certain large-checked suit, with socks and tie "to match" was spoken of and the boys were most earnestly advised as to what kind of clothes to wear to catch the girls.

More announcements and it was learned that the University was also to be favored with a musical program that morning. Miss Hackney failed to appear, however, and after Mrs. Parks' apology for the dereliction of her pupil "Dr. Wimberly" in accents of most proper indignation denounced the culprit and bade her report to him "muy pronto."

"Dr. Hamner's" desire to entertain the chapel monitors, "Dr. Faris'" determination to keep order and "Marse Jim's" various twitches all formed an excellent background for the proceedings.

Following the chapel exercises the Faculty went into regular meeting.
The "apology" of Mr. Greene was taken up and disposed of. The Junior petition for social privileges was taken up and after consultation with "Miss Watson" and "Mrs. Wimberly" the matter was side-tracked onto a committee of three.

The dining room fare was brought up for discussion. "Dr. Anderson" insisted that "it's better than they have at home." Those of the faculty who "board in" held a contrary view, however, and Mrs. Ford's "novel reading" was interrupted long enough to elicit the information that she couldn't cook for all that bunch. On a vote those

BAYLOR KALSOMINED

In the Opening Game—Second Goes Twelve Innings.

Strenuous conflict has long been spoken of as "when Greek meets Greek." But more symbolic yet, as those who know will readily agree, would be "when Baylor meets T. C.
U."

The years past have educated every denizen of Waco to the fact that in abandonment of self for the attainment of victory, in never give up spirit and in everything that love of Alma Mater can inspire a man to, these games excel, and their "Master of Beliefs" degree was conferred on all who witnessed the 1908 series for the possession of the Rawlings cup; a series which went seven games before T. C. U. could win the coveted trophy.

With such a history of baseball excellence as voucher for the present season it is no wonder that Katy Park was crowded to its capacity at both contests, and the '09 teams in battle arrayed performed just as valorously as in days of yore. And while it was impossible each day for all the crowd to go away happy—Baylor Friday because they lost; T. C. U. Saturday because they didn't win—all were obliged to leave with a feeling of pride for the team that they supported.

Friday's Game.

Big Louie against Little Potts was the story of the opening day. For each twirler was the "big tent" portion of the circus. And what helped call attention to them was the almost entire absence of side shows. For with but three men up in most of the innings and these "coming into" the main attractions there was really nothing for them to do but shut up shop.

From all of which one is not to understand that the pitcher did all the work while the rest of the team loafed in the shade. Not at all. While the pitchers held opposing batsmen at their mercy—two hits and one hit—the infield, especially in the third base districts was kept exceedingly busy.

While critical situations were few, the closeness of the score and sharp, accurate fielding and throwing kept interest at the highest pitch. Mosely and Witt as stated above, both had an unusually heavy assignment and both "delivered the goods" without mishap.
In fact, perfection in fielding was broken by only a few errors—and these caused all the rumpus for each team.
"Sure-shot" Belew drew two miscues—both on Witt—but nothing came of them. On the other hand Leazer's inefficient stab at a rather wild throw "lost the game for Baylor" (which it didn't as one run would have been scored regardless) and brought down dire maledictions on his head.

Varsity's two falls from grace were both in separate innings, and both brought shivers to the nervous rooter.
In the second inning politely presented Walker with first base by dropping his easy fly. Then while Mosely was watching three swift ones cross the plate the ungrateful Baylorite stole second. Punchard's hit advanced him a notch. Leazer hit into "Star" and the ambitious base-runner was killed at the plate. Even that didn't teach Baylor that the fourth corner was dangerous, however, as when Drucke let McKay's third strike get past him Punch tried to score, and a return throw from Fuzz caught him by a narrow margin. That was the only change Baylor had to register. Three men drew passes in the remaining innings, but their team-mates couldn't make connections with the "car-fare" home.

Wakefield livened up the fourth inning by hitting a clean two-bagger to left. Fact is, Wake could have turned hand-springs all the way, but—not that he is a snob at all—he "cut" first and so it didn't count.

That act of his team-mate evidently made Daniels mad, and since he had had five innings in which to fondle his rabbit-foot and cross his fingers and do other things conducive to luck and

"ORATORY"

Professor Cockrell Makes An Interesting Chapel Talk.

Tuesday morning at the chapel hour Professor Cockrell spoke to the students on oratory. He commented on the rapid growth of the spirit of oratory in T. C. U., and launching further into his subject, briefly contrasted the mode of speaking of some of the world's greatest orators, but called attention to the fact that some general principles underlie all true oratory in spite of numerous differences due to the orator's individuality. His presentation of these principles was clear, graphic, forceful.

"Oratory is a large conversation." A good voice, flexible, melodious, clear, is one of the first requisites for a successful speaker. An expressive voice tells many things. Professor Cockrell spoke of several of the great orators the secret of whose power was largely in the voice.

"Live with the best thoughts." Study the masters. Memorize much from the treasures of literature and hold the noble ideas and sentences in mind until the thought becomes your own and is a part of your life. It adds largely to the purity, the strength, the beauty of the speaker's diction and to his flow of language.

"The perfect gesture is not seen." It is a part of the thought. It completes, it emphasizes, it gives color and grace, but it does not call attention to itself.

Professor Cockrell spoke of the power that orators have had in moulding the destiny of nations in every age.

Demosthenes, Cicero, Pitt, Burke, Patrick Henry—ran the list. They were leaders of their time.

"The day of the orator has not passed." Nearly every leader in our nation today is an orator. Many of them have won their places by the very force of their own eloquence. The orator commands the people. The press broadens his fame and brings him throngs of hearers. So long as men are moved by burning words and lofty thoughts the orator will hold his place among the great leaders of the world.

From first to last the address was highly entertaining and instructive. The talk—although not extraordinary in itself—almost marks an epoch in T. C. U. It gauges the increasing interest of faculty as well as student body in things oratorical. The sentiment is growing, and if the sweep continues it bids fair to bring T. C. U. and its oratory to the forefront among the colleges and universities of Texas and the Southwest.

living out refused to consider the students' petition, while those on the inside favored it.

"Little Walter's" hammer being a source of grievance to "Dr. Wimberly" "Mrs. Cruzan gave an inspired address concerning her child's pleasures and the necessity for same and as peroration remarked that if the Music department objected to the noise it could leave Townsend Hall.

The strong drink evil next claimed the faculty's consideration and despite "Dr. Graves'" masterful argument as to the saloon's standing at the University of Chicago, the august body put a ban upon the traffic.

"Mrs. Wirtz" was allowed to give in a complaint concerning the night hawks washing dishes in the bath tub and also about the third floor girls conduct.

Lastly, the faculty discussed the matter of allowing the students to give a faculty take-off and had decided adversely, when the meeting abruptly terminated upon learning that said "take-off" was already being given on the campus.

HIGH SCHOOL 7, T. C. U. SECOND 6

Captain Graves' Team Loses in the Last Inning.

At the start it looked as if Waco High School would be "soft-soaped" as easily as were the Douglas ball tossers on the preceding Monday. High School had failed to reach first in the opening round, but Second circled twice. J. Edmonds hit to right for a clean three-base drive in the second round, but the "squeeze" failed to squeeze and Brown nailed him at the plate. Waco put two men across the plate in the fourth round by meeting "Cherry's" benders for a quartette of safe ones. But meanwhile Varsity had totaled four runs and in the next inning added another, giving a lead of three. This was the score when the supper bell rang, but when the dear girls left it seemed to take all the "pep" out of the University boys. Three hits—one a drive to the gym, which only fast fielding by Turner kept from being a home run, gave High School four runs and the lead. Then with two down Rathell bounced a hot one on Parks' shins, scoring Harris, the Three-Bagger Beauty, and putting the score 7 to 5 in favor of the Waco boys.

Second team made a desperate try for victory in the last half. Brown walked, stole second and scored on Riter's hit to center. Riter went to third on a wild throw by pitcher, but over-eagerness to score killed him at the plate when Massie hit to Moore. Massie went to third on a poor throw by Lindsey, but loafed off the base and was caught just a moment before Anderson got the hit that would have tied the score.

Dumb base running cut second team out of several runs. Parks hit a three-bagger to left, bringing in a man ahead of him, but he cut first and so the run didn't count. Various things of this kind might be mentioned.

To the spectator it looked as if second had the best of the conflict, although High School grew stronger as the game progressed and hit well all thru.

The line-up: High School—Harris, cf; Rathell, 2b, lf; Lindsey, c; J. Edmond, 3b; N. Edmond, rf; Moore, p; Austermuhle, 1b; Hotchkiss, cf; Stogsec, ss; Jones, ss, 2b.

T. C. U. Second—Anderson, cf; Graves, 3b; London, p; Sowell, 2b; Turner, ss, lf; Parks, 1b; Brown, c; Buck, lf; Riter, ss; Massie, rf.

The regular meeting last week was not held owing to a misunderstanding in the appointment of a leader. Yesterday evening's meeting was led by Miss Swann, who talked on Bible Study.

All-Americans Win.

Tuesday afternoon being an ideal baseball time, Manager Collins called his players together. Every man reported on time, that is, the regulars were there. "Father" Graves is expected to report for Monday's game. He has spent six weeks in Florida "working out," and we feel confident of victory with the renowned twirler in the box. Under the able coaching of Captain Long, along with suggestions from Herr Hunter, there can be no doubt but what the All-Americans will put forth a winning team.

Tuesday's game serves but an example of what Manager Collins' men can do. They had practiced but a few moments, when a challenge came from the Independents over behind the well-house. Over the wire fence they swarmed—eager to put shame on those insignificant, wild-minded, over-desirous, baseball fanatics, and beat them on home grounds, too. There was no discussion as to which side should have "ins"—the All-Americans were visitors.

First man up, Manager Collins, was hit. Hunter, the famous short stop, whose range is from first to third, came up and bunted a nice one, but stumbled on the cigar box home plate, failing to reach first. Frizzell, the old left-handed swinger, was hit by the pitcher. Rogers, that noted first baseman, hit one thru third, advancing two runners, filling bases. Greene, the catcher, who gets them all, pounded one by short for one base, scoring two men. Welch, the third baseman, who misses them all, struck three wild ones. Two outs! Scott up and singles over first. Bases full again. Braus strings one by pitcher, scoring Rogers. Bases still full! Then the grandstand went wild when Captain Long came up and slammed out a two-bagger. Braus failed to score. He was practicing the fall away slide at third, and didn't regain his stride in time. Collins laid an easy one down first base line, perhaps. Belew was domiciled on third ing third out.

The Independents scored two in their round, both runs due to errors on part of third baseman Welch. Long worked steady in the box. They never hit one out of the diamond. His contrast is simply marvelous!

Second inning passed with only five hits for the visitors, scoring two more. For the Independents, nothing of note. They scored one man on error of umpire. Collins was playing a man between third and home, and in the music ran over the umpire, threw wild and let the man score. Game was interrupted at this point, by ringing of supper bell. Final score 7 to 3 for the All-Americans.

JUST "DOPE."

Appropos of nothing, it might be remarked that the healing of Kerr's hand and his consequent return to the diamond will somewhat complicate matters. In the first place it can be said that Kerr is too valuable a man not to have a place on the team. To say nothing of the record which he brought with him, during the short time that he appeared on the local diamond "Lucky" made for himself such a reputation for being a "phenom" at both the hitting and fielding ends of the game as has seldom, if ever, been attained among those who battled for the Purple and White.

But on the other hand, the men now composing the team are all too good to lose out—which leaves us where we started. Witt at third is playing a most sensational game. He is making all sorts of stops and his throwing is good hitting, he led off with a hit over second in the very next round. Lamonica hit into Mosely and both were safe on Leazer's error. Baldwin's timely two-bagger to left put the first dent in the tally-stick. Witt sacrificed nicely to center and Dague beat the throw home. That was all.

Saturday.

The game of the preceding day was exciting. But it resembled Rufus against John Pyburn compared with Saturday's exhibition. The opening engagement had in a large measure been a pitcher's battle. A like condition greeted the spectators Saturday. But hits figured in this game also, and errors, and the whole combined to make a game stocked with sensation from end to end. Holes pulled out of, brilliant plays, and combined hits and errors which threatened catastrophe made the game—while not a perfect exhibition—one full of baseball all the way thru.

Morton's one-hit game against the league had aroused speculation as to what he would do against the south-town people. Wille also had pitched an excellent game against the professionals.

And those who expected to see a high class twirling performance were not disappointed. In the opening round Baylor filled the bases with two down, but Punchard couldn't draw the necessary bingle.

In the same round Varsity put two men on bases with only one man in cold storage, but Master Swatters Wakefield and Daniels couldn't connect safely and thus it went thruout the game. Hitting was the rule, but safe drives the exception. Errors too, joined in keeping the "three up, three down" system from becoming monotonous.

And yet despite hits and misplays the teams might have been playing yet had it not been for bad throws by the boxmen. In the third inning Grissom beat out a hit to Witt, Belew tapped one to Morton and the diminutive southpaw threw the ball into center field, where Lamonica fumbled and Grissom scored on the Dan D. Rogers column. Graves hit into Perkins and "shorty" nailed "shorty" at the plate. Graves' dishonesty proved his downfall, Drucke's perfect throw beating him to second by a good margin. Walker let three good ones get by him and the agony was over.

It was not until the seventh that the scoreboard's "equilibrium" was restored. Potts (successor to "Game Losing, Error-Making Leazer") dropped Dague's pop-up. Baldwin sacrificed. Wille contributed his bad throw, which moved Lamonica up to the third station. Witt hit a sacrifice fly to left and the score was tied.

That was in the seventh and for five innings more the game rocked along with Baylor reaching first once and T. C. U. going to second once. At the end of the twelfth round darkness forced a halt with each team seeming to grow stronger and steadier with each succeeding inning.

Blakeley finished the game for the leaguers and T. C. U. gave him a warm reception on the start-getting two-hits and as many runs. He came back strong, however, in the seventh and struck out three men. The final score was 7 to 3.

T. C. U. played another practice game with Shelton's leaguers Thursday and we were defeated by a score of four to one. Morton who pitched a one-hit game against the Skippers on last week was on the slab and tho he was touched for eight safeties, they were well scattered, save in the seventh, when with a hit batter and three straight bingles the Waco team pushed three men over the plate and cinched the game. Their other run was scored in the preceding inning on a hit, sacrifice, and two errors, though Perkins undoubtedly had the third man out at first but the umps didn't see it that way, so a sunner scored from third.

It was not until the ninth after two were down that Varsity scored her only run of the game. Wakefield drew a pass, went to third on Fuzz's two-bagger and scored a minute later on a pass ball. Fuzz was caught between third and home trying to score on the same play.

Rodebaugh and Hurbert worked for the Leaguers and allowed one hit each. The St. Paul recruit is recorded with four strike-outs in five innings while Hurbert got eight in four innings. Morton who pitched the whole game for T. C. U. got eight leaguers by the big three route.
