THE CLARKS.

The Clarks are in line,
 They are never behind;
 They've brought up the past
 That has made such contrast
 With others who have fallen behind.

To victory they've climbed,
 The ways found sublime
 In all problems of life
 By choosing the good that's free
 From all strife,
 They have made for themselves
 "Much Ado."

THE ADD-RANS.

The Add-Rans, you know,
 Have never been slow,
 But are all that one may desire.
 Ey their valorous deeds they daily inspire
 The one who is seeking the life that counts most.

Throughout the past the Add-Rans have grown In ranks, in service—but in these not alone;
 'Tis for honor they stand
 In this our wide land,
 So on these they have built all their plans.

AUSTIN COLLEGE GAMES

"Just Lovely Games" as The Clark Reporter Saw Them.

T. C. U.'s baseball team won two games from Austin College this week, the scores being 5 to 2 and 3 to 2.
 The first day Mr. Campbell, the handsome Medic with the cute little mustache, pitched for T. C. U., and he was just perfectly grand! A nice-looking little boy named Parks, who is a cousin of "Bingo," our first base player, and who probably has some of the same uncles and aunts, performed in the same position for the visitors. He was mighty good-looking and seemed to want to play just as politely as he could, but our boys were just horrid, for every time he would throw the ball close to them they would hit it so-o-o hard, and then the poor fellows who stand away out so far—the "outfielders," aren't they?
 —would have to run until they were out of breath to get it, and by the time they did get it all our boys would be back sitting down right in front of us, so close that we could see the wind blow caressingly

THE RELATIONS OF ADD-RANS AND CLARKS.

When the Add-Ran Society was first organized there was no such thing as a Clark Society. They were generous enough to permit girls to work with them; several worked faithfully and well in this society. Later when they discovered that girls were a necessary evil, a separate society was organized, known as the Clarks, having for their nearest relatives the Add-Rans to support them in their infancy.

After having worked with them for some time there arose in the hearts of the early Clark members a tender feeling that has grown as the years passed, as has the society. The Clarks feel that they could not well and satisfactorily exist were it not for the inspiration they receive from their brother society. It is true that not on all occasions have the Add-Rans rendered their most hearty support, and perhaps their sisters have felt somewhat provoked with them at times, but it is then that they realize how much the society really does need them and of how much value they are. Add-Ran interests are Clark interests. When in contests the societies "stick together," rejoicing with each other in victory, and are ready with a word of encouragement in defeat. Even though defeat has been their lot in many instances, the to the sum of our knowledge concerning him. He has so often been held up as a model teacher, preacher, husband, father, citizen, in fact, a model of Christian manhood in the broadest sense of this term, that the student who enters this institution and leaves it without acquiring a con-

Possibly not so much has been said concerning him as a specimen of

THE CLARK ISSUE.

For some time the Clarks have been planning to issue their annual Skiff, and for some time we have been delayed. This week, however, we have succeeded in getting out a paper which, though it may not be considered worthy, has been made possible through the efforts of the Clark girls. This issue is not devoted entirely to Clark news, in fact it contains only a small portion of our happenings, but knowing that most of you are familiar with our past history, our present record and our future prospects, we have here given news in general and this we hope will meet your hearty approval.

LEND A HAND.

A few loyal, hard working, optimistic students are working day and night on the Horned Frog. They are going to put out a god annual. It is meet that you should lend a helping hand wherever and whenever you can. An encouraging word will be better than nothing.

WHAT ABOUT A HOME-COMING FOR T. C. U.?

Commencement is draying near, and this always means much to every T. C. U. student. Some have the idea that there is "nothing doin'" at this time and rush home without seeing the many excellent programs that are rendered and without hearing the many good things that are said. There are visitors, too, who are present; alumni come back and always expect to see T. C. U. at her best. We cannot keep up the good record and the standard of our University if we do not support her. This year we would like to have a real "Home-Coming" of all old T. C. U. students; some have already suggested this and are very anxious that plans for the same be laid at once. This would be a great thing; and as this is the first commencement in our new buildings it would be quite a pleasure for those old students to meet in our new home. Let's talk this matter up and see what can be done.

Oscar Wise is in Dallas on business. O. R. reports the Horned Frog to be running smoothly.

It was about 7:30 p. m. The sun was down and as the shadows of evening were approaching a gray twilight wrapped the whole T. C. U. campus and all around as far as one could see across the prairies.

The girls (and boys) were strolling up and down the roads and by-paths in order to breathe the fresh air after the sumptuous evening meal, when Mrs. McKinney was seen on the porch of the Girls' Dormitory ringing the curfew bell.

"Girls, you must come right in when this bell rings. You know my regulations. Gordon, Mr. Parker, Mr. Murray, Mr. Parks, don't let me have to speak to you the second time about going. My regulations must be obeyed."

"Yes, Mrs. McKinney, but can we come back tomorrow after supper?"

"If you leave this instant, you may."

After some minutes the porch and even the campus in front of the dormitory was cleared. Mrs. McKinney turned with a sigh of relief to go to her room, when looking out toward the front she espied a young lady and a young gentleman walking down by the car track.

"Now, I do wonder who that is? I'll just ring my bell so they will have no excuse."

So she goes to the steps and rings the bell toward the couple, but the couple walk along undisturbed. Mrs. McKinney, impatiently: "Now, I wonder what they mean? I'm determined that they SHALL obey my summons," and she hastily walks toward the undiscerning couple ringing her bell with a vengeance. "Hold on there! Don't you hear me? Who is that?"

The bewildered man, looking up: "Yes, Madam. I beg your pardon. Is this Mrs. McKinney? We are your neighbors. Meet my wife, Mrs. Rogers."

(Editor's Note.—Mothers, if you wish your girls to be in safe keeping, just send them to T. C. U.)

Tennis is now the popular game with the girls. The court has been cleared and everything is in running order. Many of the girls (as well as the boys) are "trying out." Soon we hope to have some good players, and then—for some matched college games.

The Wodrow Wilson Club is progressing nicely. Pins and literature have been obtained for members of the club. Work is being pushed to the front. The organization is planning something good for the students. This is to be announced at a later date.

Mrs. Hackney of Wortham visited her daughter, Miss Grace, this week.

We want the T. C. U. student trade and are your friends. Try us and see.

THE BRUSHES ENTERTAIN.

The art students have been improving the appearance of the art rooms since they have gotten the much needed locks and picture molding.

Saturday night the art rooms were the scene of a chafing dish party given by the Brushes. Misses Browne, Anderson, Cannon and Webb presided at the chafing dishes, assisted by Messrs. Parker, Stiles and Lavender, while the others entertained them with songs and music. When the cooking was finished the guests seated themselves at a table loaded with everything delicious. It was a late hour when they bade each other good night, and all declared that the party was quite a success.

The following were present: Misses Bohan, Browne, Cannon, Anderson, Bandy, Martin, Laird and Webb; Mrs. Anderson; Messrs. Hall, Camp, Anderson, Massey, Murray, Graves, Stiles, Parks, Lavender and Parker.

The Walton Society will give a program next Monday on "The Needs of T. C. U.—(an Eye-Opener.)" You are invited to come and hear this program.

Springtime has come—so the Freshmen, as well as the Seniors, seem to be enjoying the privilege.

Why not go on some picnics—the sun is still shining?

REV. J. C. MASON WILL PREACH SUNDAY.

Rev. J. C. Mason of Dallas will be here next Sunday and will occupy the University pulpit Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Mason is a prominent minister in this State, having been for several years connected with the Courier and with the mission work in Texas. We are very fortunate in securing his services, and we expect much advantage from his being with us.

AT CHURCH SERVICES.

We were glad to have Bro. McPherson preach last Sunday evening at our regular church service. His subject had to do with our answer to the roll call, and his treatment of it was both impressive and helpful. We were especially grateful to Miss Ellen Parker for singing at this meeting.

Y. W. C. A.

Miss Helen Knox, the secretary of the student Y. W. C. A., was in our midst last week. Her talks with the association gave it much strength and many helpful points.

We always feel greatly benefitted by Miss Knox's visits, and we earnestly desire that the association may profit by her work.

HACKNEY-EASLEY.

Thursday night, April 17, Miss Nell Andrews entertained with a real feast in honor of Grace Hackney's and Edith Easley's birthdays. The spread was decorated with a large birthday cake on which there were six lighted candles. Edith succeeded in "blowing out" all, from which it may be inferred that her wedding day is in the very distant future. Grace only blew out three, and Katharine Riter, luckiest of all, was unable to extinguish even one. Ellen Parker, Vista Wood and Lela Odell were given places of honor, as their birthdays were also during the same week. After the feast was over Miss Nell presented to each of the five birthday girls a beautiful linen handkerchief.

Those present were Grace Hackney, Edith Easley, Ellen Parker, Vista Wood, Lela Odell, May Hulsey, Katharine Riter, Kathleen Gibson, Ellie Gibson, Willie Walker and Johnnie Agnew.

Mr. and Mrs. Owers have just returned from a visit to different portions of the State. They report a pleasant trip.

PERSONALS

J. Lindley Wod's sister, Mrs. Carson, spent Sunday at the University

Miss Kathleen Gibson has returned from a visit home.

Jack Baldwin and Catherine Dodd spent the week end with Margaret Gibson at her home in Waxahachie.

Miss Helen Knox was a guest of the Y. W. C. A. this week.

Mabel Baldwin spent Saturday night in the city with Miss Aileen Geiger.

Miss Fronnie Clausell's father made her a visit this week. Fronnie has been quite sick, but is now on the convalescent list.

Miss Katie Mae Chilton spent Saturday night and Sunday in the city with Edith Durrett.

The students are all glad to see Miss Odessa Allison out this week.

Harriette—They pulled off two many squeeze plays in the game this afternoon.

Bess—I didn't mind that. I rather like these "squeeze plays."

Annie D. Livsey has returned to her home in Longview. We regret very much to lose here from school.

Time—Sunday, 8 p. m.

Place—Chapel Church.

The two had been attentively listening to the sermon. But the lights winked and then suddenly disappeared.

Darkness reigned supreme. A slight noise was heard, and then:

"S—m—e—c—t—i—v—e!"

Young Williams (who was sitting close by)—"Gee, I heard something good!"

He—"What's that?"

She—"I told you—now take that—"

But the lights were on and the youthful listener, recognized his confused audience as Myrtis and J. Jim Jr.

Relations of Add-Rans and Clarks.

Clarks think too much of their brothers to lose confidence in their ability to add new victories to their list in the future.

Very few regular programs have been rendered in the Clark Society on Monday mornings that some few faithful Add-Rans were not present to give an encouraging word and urge the society on to higher and better things. This makes the Clarks feel that they are vitally interested in their welfare and are expecting the best from the society, which in a degree causes each one to do her best to make each appearance on program better than the previous one.

It will not be easy for the Clarks to forget the pleasant evening made possible for them by their brothers this year in the parlors of the Girls' Home, which was a success in every respect. It was just like a family reunion. This was not the first occasion, but has been a practice for a number of years.

The Clarks are interested in their brother society and appreciate their support and ties that bind the two together. They hope that there will be established a closer union.

through their hair, so those outfielders might as well have let the balls go.

The trouble with ball games is that they keep going all the time. It seems to me that if they would have an intermission between acts, or something like that, they would be very much nicer, for we could talk to the boys then, or go over to the store;

but the boys will not talk nor go to the store while they are playing. If the baseball managers would only allow these intermissions I think ball games would be much more popular with the girls.

But to return to my theme. Our boys looked so strong and manly that I sure was proud of them. Mr. Campbell, Mr. Graves and all the boys batted just splendidly, but sometimes the umpire wouldn't let them stay on first base, and I was so sorry for them; they looked so disappointed. But we won anyway, so everything was just lovely.

Second Game.

The second day was just like the first, except that the girls wore veils this time instead of hats, and Bert went over to the store and got some chewing gum for a few.

Mr. Daniel pitched for T. C. U. and he threw just the crookedest balls, so that Austin College couldn't hardly hit them at all. Mr. Campbell played shortstop, and when he came to bat he knocked one to the pitcher, who threw the ball to second to catch Mr. Shoemaker, whom the umpire had let go to first without hitting the ball. Mr. Shoemaker hadn't done a thing to be put out for, and the pitcher was awfully impolite in not catching Mr. Campbell. But anyway, Mr. Campbell stopped on first, and then Mr. Daniel came to the bat and hit the ball right through everybody, and Mr. Campbell scored.

Then a little later Mr. Graves got to the third base some way or other, and Mr. Daniel came to bat again. I thought sure that he would make another long hit, but he just knocked the ball three or four feet. However, Mr. Graves some way or other seemed to know that he was going to do that, for he came running in home before Mr. Daniel hit the ball. Mr. McFarland also got a score, and he looked so proud of himself.

McPherson and others lent all possible encouragement.

It was good to be among the Troy brethren and be entertained in the homes of such men as Leslie Elliott, who are constant givers to T. C. U. Bro. A. H. Curtis gives so liberally and cheerfully.

The only contribution at Temple came from that splendid farmer and stockman, Bob Willis. Others had given on our former trip.

That big hearted Christian of Holland, F. B. Lewis, added $200.00 to the subscription already made and paid for Clark Hall.

At the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Easley on their San Gabriel ranch the secretary got some much needed rest and was sent on his way rejoicing with a check for $100.00 and all good wishes for the work.

Though Taylor has done much for the school in general and Clark Hall in particular, we received $75.00 more in equal amounts from the following persons: Miss Myrtle Stearns, H. C. Stearns and J. B. Pumphrey.

W. F. Douthitt of Holland is a great admirer of Addison Clark, and in addition to the amount already paid, expects to give more for this hall.

Sister Bloor of Manor is known far and wide for her liberality to all departments of the church work. She has just paid $500.00 on the Goode Hall, and now she gives double that amount for the Clark Hall. And others at Manor are making great sacrifices for the work. Indeed, this is true everywhere. We wish there was space to mention the names of them all, but our Heavenly Father who counts our gifts, not in dollars and cents, but in sacrifice, will reward every one. Brother and Sister J. H. Empie, recently from Kansas, entertained the secretary with a hospitality that is not to be excelled anywhere. The next week is to be spent in the San Antonio country.

Old Woman (the morning after the Roberts open session)—No, I never go out in society except when occasions demands. She demanded last night.

ADDISON CLARK — SPECIMEN OF PHYSICAL MANHOOD.

heavy hair, once black, but tinged with gray from the time the writer knew him. He impressed one at sight as being "every inch a man."

His health was practically perfect until a short time before his death. I have heard him say many times that he never missed an appointment to preach on account of ill health. And why may we not regard his robust health as a great asset in helping him to lead the stalwart, vigorous, positive, Christian life that he lived? I think we may. Good health, if not an essential, makes right living much easier.

Bro. Addison, as he was familiarly called by every student in the institution, could walk further, run faster, and probably throw in a wrestling match, the majority of the young men of the school. I have walked with him the greater part of a day on more than one occasion. He showed no more sign of fatigue than I at the end of our fifteen or twenty mile tramp. He was close around the three score mark, and I yet in my twenties. He enjoyed hunting and fishing also; was a splendid marksman. I have seen him bring down a quail on the wing at a good, long range. He could row a boat against a strong current, and was an expert swimmer. And, incidentally, I might mention that he swam in the winter as well as summer. He took his early morning plunge in the swimming hole of "Blue Branch" regularly through the winter unless the water was extremely cold.

So long as Bro. Addison was associated with the school, the athletic department had no more staunch supporter. I have never heard more enthusiastic talks made from the chapel stage than those he used to make just preceding or following an important game. And he never failed to drive home a practical lesson drawn from the athletic contest. At one time he would emphasize the importance of fair play, at another he would stress the value of athletics from the standpoint of the development of the muscles of the body, or even as a mental discipline. In fact, he never talked on any subject without saying something that could be given a practical application to daily living.

Since this is the Clark issue of the Skiff, I shall not close this article without saying a word with reference to the manner in which the man whose name the society proudly wears emphasized the importance of the literary society and its relation to the school work. I deem it sufficient to state, however, that every student in the institution, regardless of the department in which he entered for work, was absolutely required to become an active member of a literary society not later than two weeks after matriculation, and remain a member until the day he severed his connection with the school. He frequently visited the societies, not in the capacity of a spy, but entered heartily into the spirit of the program and enjoyed every number which represented worthy effort.

Only the surface of this subject has been touched, but if this small glimpse of the daily life of one of the founders of our beloved institution, and the one who ruled over its destinies for so many years, shall give a little information not already in the possession of the reader regarding so noble a character, I shall feel amply repaid for this small effort.
