T. C. U. QUOTA WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

That T. C. U. will send her full quota of delegates to the Quadrennial Convention of Student Volunteers, which will assemble at Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 31, and continue through Jan. 4, was assured in a meeting of a group of students in the main auditorium Sunday, following a stirring address delivered by J. R. Wilson, traveling secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement. The school is entitled to a representation of one student for every hundred enrolled in the university proper, one delegate for every ten students enrolled in Brite College of the Bible, two members of the faculty and one Y. M. C. A. official, making a total of sixteen delegates which T. C. U. may send to the convention.

It required considerably less than five minutes to raise the amount necessary to register that number of delegates, and before Mr. Wilson left the campus the $80 was placed in his hands. The secretary expressed his gratification at the ready response with which the student body had met his proposal, and ventured the prediction that T. C. U. would be asking for additional reservations for delegates before the date for the convention arrives.

"It affords me a great deal of pleasure," he said, "to see the students of T. C. U. respond so heartily to my message. I don't believe I have ever seen a more unanimous or more enthusiastic response, and I promise that any student who attends the convention will be bubbling over with it for the next three years. It is one of those things which you may get over but you never look the same."

John H. Luck, vice president of the North Texas Student Volunteer Band, was unanimously elected chairman of a committee which will have complete charge of the arrangements incident to sending the delegation to Des Moines. That body will consist of the chairman and four members, one each to be selected from the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Brite College Student body, and the Student Volunteer Band. Mr. Luck is well posted on all matters pertaining to the Student Volunteer movement, being himself a volunteer for missionary service in South America.

Mr. Wilson, the speaker of Sunday morning, is a Texas product, in fact he spent the greater part of his life in Fort Worth, and following his graduation from the Panther City High school, he went to the University of Texas, from which institution he also graduated. He, too, is planning to go to the foreign fields as a missionary.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Theresa Holt's mother is visiting her from Vernon.

Miss Ravia Walker, who was accompanist for Mrs. Cahoon before last has returned and will again be in the institution. It is a distinct pleasure to have Miss Walker with us again.

Miss Beulah Bell spent last week-end with Mrs. Edward Brooke, nee Miss Anne McLendon, in Dallas. Misses Ethel Biggerstaff and Lena Gilbert of Carr Burdette, Sherman, were also Mrs. Brooke's guests.

Y.M.C.A. STUNT NIGHT GREAT SUCCESS

Tuesday night it rained—even more, it poured rain! The fair damsels donned their most serviceable "evening" dresses and raincoats and anxiously awaited their escorts that they might "swim" together to the Y. M. C. A.-Y. W. C. A. stunt party and reception.

The stunt party was held in the Administration building at 8 o'clock and even though everyone did nearly drown getting there it was well worth the drenching.

A welcome address was given by Mr. Elliot, our Y. M. C. A. secretary. The Messrs. "Colored Gentleman" Doolin and "Tony, the Wop" Fogelson entertained royally and realistically in a snappy dialogue replete with puns and quips of sarcasm.

The Waddell Sisters, more alike than two peas, put on a clever musical and dancing act, wherein we learned that Baylor ("may" have) won a football game in 1492.

This ended the stunts and everybody struggled into raincoats or fussed with umbrellas in order to reach the Y. M. C. A. room for the promised social hour.

The jazz orchestra was a most important factor in the evening's fun for after playing during the program they furnished music throughout the evening.

Hot tamales were served cafeteria style and hot tamales, easy to eat at any time, are extremely easy to eat to the tune of jazz.

Quite needless to say the evening was a great success. The crowd was unwilling to disperse and repeated winking of the lights was necessary.

Y. W. C. A. WORKING ACTIVELY

October 16, 1919.

Thursday night should always be remembered in T. C. U. circles as Y. W. night, for every week on that night at 7:30 in the parlors of Jarvis Hall programs of exceeding interest and benefit are given.

The program for Thursday, October 16, follows:
Song, Day is Dying in the West.

Scripture Reading, Ephesians 4:25-32, Merle Holsapple.

Seven Little Devils:

(1) Selfishness, Mary Strange.

(2) Anger, Odessa Hensley.

(3) Laziness, Beatrix Gibson.

(4) Jealousy, Mary Lee Pinkerton.

(5) Untruthfulness, Erin Jones.

(6) Discourtesy, Ruth Myer.

(7) Untidiness, Vivian Yoder.

Song, Sweet Hour of Prayer.

Mizpah.

October 23, 1919.

Thursday evening, the regular Y. W. C. A. meeting was held in Jarvis Hall. Miss Nan Carter was leader and a very instructive and pleasing "Hollister" program was given. The services were opened by a song, "I Love to Tell the Story." Mrs. Douthit led in prayer, Miss Carter read the 19th Psalm, and then Miss Lorraine Shirley and Miss Leona Crain each told something of their trip to the Y. W. C. A. con-

JUDGE SMALL ADDRESSES LAW SCHOOL

County Judge Small in his talk to the Elementary Law Class and members of the Bar Association Tuesday morning gave his experience as justice of the peace. He began his talk by giving Dr. Cockrell much credit for his success in the night school. He showed in a clear concise way the duties of such a court dwelling at length on the impression most people have in regard to the smallness of Justice court. He explained this by the fact of the organization in the small town.

The Justice Court alike not only in name but principal with the Supreme Court of the United States recognizes no discrimination between law and equity. The latter principal lately has been formally adopted by the American Bar Association. He showed that the election for this office should not be of a trivial nature but the man chosen should be one of personal feeling and consideration of humanity.

A discussion of the jurisdiction of the court was given with the fines assessed. Judge Small is a true friend of Dr. Cockrell and the T. C. U. law school and his lecture was based on his own experience. In evidence of his interest he tendered his courtroom for the trial which is to be held between the down town class and the University class which is to be given in the near future.

EDUCATIONAL AMENDMENT SHOULD BE ADOPTED.

Austin, Texas, Oct. 23.—Miss Annie Webb Blanton, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, is deeply interested in seeing the proposed Educational Amendment to the Constitution adopted. She has just issued the following statement:
To the Voters of Texas:

Among the measures upon which the people of our state are to pass judgment on the fourth of November is one to which no reasonable objection can be offered. The resolution seeking to amend the Constitution by a provision separating the University and the Agricultural and Mechanical College and fixing the status of state institutions for higher education and vocational instruction should have the support of every citizen of Texas. Progress of these state institutions means opportunity for Texas boys and girls.

"It was the hope of our forefathers who fought for the Independence of Texas, that our state should found educational institutions second to none in the land. When we force our boys and girls to seek in other states training which our own cannot offer, not only are we doing them an injustice, but we are showing ourselves lacking in patriotism and state pride.

"Our public school system, from the kindergarten to the University, is one system. The welfare of each part of it is more or less dependent upon the progress of all parts. This measure will be of inestimable value in the future development of these institutions in which every loyal Texas should feel a pride. I earnestly request that you vote for this measure on the fourth of next November."

Respectfully,
"ANNIE WEBB BLANTON,

SOUTHWIC WILL VISIT T.C.U. SOON

The Oratorical Association promises one of the treats of the year in the person of Henry Lawrence Southwick, head of the Emerson school of oratory at Boston. Arrangements have already been made with Mr. Southwick so that it is assured that he will be here next month. He is to appear under the auspices of the Oratorical Association. Mr. Southwick is one of the foremost lecturers and entertainers in the United States and great pleasure and benefit is anticipated from his visit. Arrangements have been made with him to appear in both afternoon and evening performance. Tickets for the performance will be put on sale immediately.

At a meeting of the Oratorical Association Friday morning after chapel it was decided that all contests in debating and oratory during the year should be full dress occasions. This decision was made after full deliberation and is regarded as a forward step in the oratorical progress of T. C. U. The Oratorical Association this year is a live organization and it is doing good work. After Mr. Southwick it is hoped that other speakers of national renown will be induced to visit T. C. U.

FROGS AND TIGERS MIX SATURDAY

Saturday the Horned Frogs will journey again to Waxahachie to play the Tigers on their own hunting grounds. It is understood that Trinity has a strong team, having been defeated by Rice by only a small margin and having defeated the Simmons Cowboys. It is therefore expected that they will give the visitors a tough battle but Frog rooters are expecting the team to bring back the bacon. The Frogs have not yet broken into the victory column and a complete reversal of form for the better is expected of them. Strengthened by several changes in the lineup the Frog machine is destined to play real football Saturday against the Tigers.

Rain prevented the last contest between the two teams but with the hope of more favorable weather conditions it is expected that this game will not be prevented and that it will be a splendid gridiron contest.

VARDAMAN COCKRELL MUCH BETTER.

The entire student body and faculty have been much concerned over the relapse of little Vardaman Cockrell, son of Dr. and Mrs. Cockrell. For several days last week his chances for recovery seemed ever so slight. By the most careful and devoted attention aided by the little fellow's own plucky spirit, he is much better.

Rice Institute.

On October 10 the Owls defeated the Baylor Bears 8-0 on Baylor soil. Also on the 18th they gave the Southwestern Pirates their second defeat 22-0.

Southwestern Trims Toads By 10-0 Score

Game Listless; Characterized By Much Loose Playing

Ogan's Work Features Contest

Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. Park, the Southwestern pigskin performers administered the third drubbing to the Hackney hopefuls. A comparatively small crowd witnessed the game. The entire contest was distinguished by its loose playing, the lack of pep manifested, and the large number of fumbles. The Hackney-men showed a complete reversal of the form which they displayed against the Oklahoma Aggies last week, by virtue of which dope favored them. Quite a find was unearthed in Ogan, the Purple and White star of the contest. His vicious tackling and general aggressiveness featured the game.

Southwestern kicked off and Rubenstein returned to the forty-yard line. Fowler made four yards through the line. A fumble followed and Southwestern took the offensive. The Frog line held and the ball went over. Fowler made two yards and Newman one, after which Fowler punted thirty yards. The remainder of the quarter was a see-saw affair in which Southwestern tried several passes all of which failed with the exception of one pass which barely crossed the line of scrimmage. Neither side scored in this quarter. Hooser was forced to leave the game on account of a sprained ankle and "Cowboy" Ogan took his place, thereafter assuming the star role for the Christians. The quarter ended with the ball in the possession of the visitors on the Frog's forty yard line.

The visitors opened up aggressively in the second quarter. A line plunge carried the ball five yards. Again a buck was attempted but the Frog line held firmly. Whereupon Sessions, right end for the visitors, dropped back and booted a neat drop kick between the uprights.

On the kick-off Rubenstein returned to the thirty-five yard line. Two ineffectual efforts were made through the line and these were followed by a six-yard gain by Fowler. A punting duel ensued. Fowler punted thirty-five yards. Southwestern punted on its first down. T. C. U. was penalized fifteen yards and again punted. Ogan's vicious tackle downed the Black and Gold back on the forty-five yard line. Following this the visitors failed to gain being thrown for a loss and penalized and on their return punt out of bounds the ball was given to T. C. U. on the eighteen yard line.

Then the Frogs showed their first real flash of good form. Again and again the Purple and White team made first down owing to the vicious smashes of Rubenstein, Newman and Fowler. It seemed for the moment that the Hackeymen with a belated start had at last hit their stride and that they were coming into their own. The Black and Gold aggregation seemed powerless to stop the battering progress of the Frog backs. Fowler executed a beautiful pass to Rutherford for twenty-five yards and it seemed that the Pirate flag was rapidly approaching half mast. With twenty yards to go Wilson made a long pass to Rutherford, which the latter caught. The touchdown was declared illegal since the ball was caught outside the ten yard line back of the goal posts and the ball was awarded to the Pirates on the twenty-yard line. A moment later the half ended, leaving the score 3-0 in favor of the visitors.

The failure to score the touchdown at the culmination of their great march of sixty yards down the field disheartened the Christians and the team slacked up noticeably. It still played a good defensive game but it seemed to have lost its snappy aggressiveness. With the exception of one or two belated rallies it appeared that the fangs of the Frog offensive had been drawn. The Christians kicked off and the ball was returned to the thirty yard line. The Pirates made first down twice. A fumble followed and both Rutherford and Acker fell on the ball. A moment later T. C. U. also fumbled and the visitors regained possession. A wicked punt out of bounds followed and the ball went to T. C. U. on her twenty-yard line. Fowler and Newman each made four yards and with two yards to go for first down the Pirate line held and the ball went over. A cleverly executed play without signals made twelve yards for the Black and Gold. Bond supplanted Cunningham at left guard with the Pirates within ten yards of the goal line but a fake cross buck enabled Wilson to cross the goal line. Goal was kicked.

Ogan took the ensuing kick-off and returned to the thirty yard line. Harris, who had in the meantime substituted for Newman was thrown for a considerable loss when a costly fumble was made. The Pirates intercepted a pass but the advancing back again received a sample of Ogan's vicious tackling. After a punt Wilson returned to the twenty yard line. This play ended the third period.

In the last quarter the dormant Christian machine awoke and made desperate but fruitless efforts to hit their old stride. Pass after pass was attempted but only a few were successful. Fowler opened up with a seven yard gain. Wilson executed a pass to Ogan for twenty yards. At this point three consecutive passes were attempted, all of them failing. Smith substituted for Harris and as the Christian rally came to an end, Ogan once more leaped into prominence by virtue of his smashing tackles behind the line. The Pirates failed to gain and punted. After the ball was fumbled three times a Black and Gold jersey finally covered the ball. The ball was awarded to T. C. U., however, on account of the fact that the Pirates delayed the game. The Hackney-men failed to gain and

WHY NOT AN HONOR COUNCIL?

The students of Texas Christian University are men and women and the time has come when they should be given some voice in the administration of their own affairs. In nearly every university of the country the Honor system has been adopted with great success. Why should not Texas Christian University, emerging as it is into a position as one of the leading universities of the state, follow the precedent set by its contemporaries? In the University of Texas, Rice, and countless other schools of the state and nation the Honor system has arrived and it has come to stay. If T. C. U. would make its place in the sun even larger, she must follow in the footsteps of other great universities by adopting the progressive self-government.

The student goes to the university for a variety of purposes. The age-old conception of the paramount value of book knowledge at the expense of other things has been thrown to the scrap heap. There are bigger things than the learning to be derived from books. One of the big things about university life is the acquisition of self-control and self-reliance. The American nation is a "government of and by the people" as well as "for the people." But the art of government must be learned and it comes only at the forge of experience. The University seeks to prepare the student for the greater things of after life. Then should it not see to impart to him some knowledge of the art of self-government? The experiment of self-government has been tried in some Junior Colleges and academies and has proven a failure for the reason that the students were too young. As stated at the beginning of this article the students of Texas Christian University are men and women and they are fully capable of at least taking some part in the regulation of activities of the campus.

We are not asking for any sudden or radical changes but we do ask for some recognition of student authority and influence. We want the Honor Council revived and we want it so empowered that it will be able to do its work efficiently and well. A strong Honor Council, as the basis of at least partial student self-government, will mean a forward step in the progress of T. C. U.

REFLECTIONS.

Cram! Cram! Cram! Mid-term examinations are upon us and midnight oil is being purchased in large quantities. Worry is the order of the day. Even the most courageous and care-free pause and stand appalled before the specter, ghastly, ghostly, and ominous of mein, which blocks our onward progress, that dread cross between a python, a dragon, and a giant which raises its sinister physiognomy and utters its dread predictions which cause the bravest spirit to quake. The fact that some textbooks arrived on the scene just a week prior to the advent of this inexorable monster, does not assure failing spirits that the battle will be less stern or that this Apollyon will be more facily defeated.

"The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" will be hurled at us from every direction. In the meantime the defense is sharpening the sword of preparation. The battle is on and there is to be no quarter. The monster must be fought single-handed and his motto is "the devil take the hindmost."

How many times in the past have we faced this very monster in his various guises. How many times the battle has seemed hopeless and yet many times we have inflicted what we hoped would be a mortal wound. How many times we have escaped from the very jaws of defeat and from being hurled into the chasm of failure and oblivion by a hairsbreadth! We are groping in the darkness and the dismal void of worry and dread. The consciousness of tasks neglected or poorly done rises like a nocturnal phantom to send a shiver of fear to the very marrow of our bones.

How long, oh how long must we conform to the capricious dictates of this hated despot? How long must he arbitrarily rule our wills and send a shiver of dread to our anxious hearts? The cheerless answer comes that his dominion is life-long and that after the school examinations must come the equally exacting examinations of after life. One ray of hope is held out to us and that is that these very mid-terms are preparing us to meet the sterner issues of tomorrow and that the battle will carry less dread with it when we are armed with the darts of experience.

Dear Ethyle:

Well, Im "educated, by gosh!" Now, Ethyle. Yes, I'm all that an educated woman should be—grand opera and everything. I ushered at the Grand Opera, and lemme tell you, Ethyle, I certainly was deluded about all this highbrow stuff. I expected it to be almost like the "invisible choir" you've read about—in Revelations. I reckon it is,—and I'm frank with you, I wouldn't a minded very much if it had a been invisible after the first few minutes.

Honey, the cutest thing in the whole show, and about the only thing I do remember, was four little negroes, all dressed up and dancing. They looked like Gold Dust Twins for fair, except that their dresses weren't quit as perky as the G. D.'s. Anyhow, I'm glad I've been exposed. After this I can always look nonchalant (that means careless, care-free, and slightly bored, Ethyle, I looked it up. It floored me the other day, too) whenever anybody mentions "opera." In fact I may get all nonchalant and mention it myself first.

Some other kids and I left the "Show"—the little niggers—early and came on to town, and "patted" our money and fed our corporeal spirits instead of our corporosity and if I may dare, the feed was more to my taste.

All of which may sound as if I didn't appreciate the "opery" at all, but I really did, though, Ethyle. I'm just feeling facetious tonight after it's all over.

But Honey, I won't be facetious long! I just wish you could hear this mouse concert we're having. I bet you there's "gray rats, brown rats, lean rats, fat rats, long rats, lanky rats, papa rats, mama rats, little boy rats, and even aunt rats and uncle rats" in my closet, and after I've gone to bed at night, they sound like they think they are a colony of beavers trying to fell my door. And I bet you they get it "felled" too, some of these days. And speaking of choice, I've baited the traps with everything from a sample of Whitman's Sampler on to Wedding cake, and they never even so much as deign to sniff.

Oh, yes, about that Faculty scandal I was to tell you this week! Well, honey, it seems that the time isn't quite right for a complete exposure. I kinda have to watch my step, but the secret's mine, don't you worry, don't you fret, and you shall know it, too.

It may not be much longer that I'll write to you. Honest, Ethyle, I may be home just any day now. These are stirring times—and you know "there comes a time in the affairs of men"—And I was up before the Dean of Women, and assistant deannesses of women the other day and take it from me, Ethyle, take it from me, I there found out that Sophomore privileges are not all they are popularly represented to be and so as I say, if you want to correspond with me, you'd better shake a wiggle, for I soon may be conspicuous by my absence.

I did mean to get some clothes this week, (have been so meaning to do for several weeks) but all I have succeeded in getting so far is a new minute hand for my Radio Light Ingersoll, which will prove, as you can readily see, Ethyle, of very little protection against the chilly, shrilly north winds we get on this hill.

I don't recall any more vivid news items. I might add that I heard that the pretty boy I wrote you about uses vaseline on his eyebrows and lashes. It may be vaseline, but I'll bet you it's "Lash-Brow-ine". It always has pretty advertisements. You would know this boy if you ever saw him, he has such a "mark"-ed appearance.

I'll also tell you that if you want pure Romance, in the bud, (and blooming, too) I wish you could just look out of my window. A young oRmeo comes and whistles all wooingly and then Juliet pokes her head out of the window overhead, and I listen, too, lemme tell you, Ethyle! Dog-gone, its better to "listen" to love, Ethyle, than never to hear love at all. And the arbor's there and the porch, and it seems just like the balcony scene, 'never-thing. I may be writing "Romeo and Juliets," "Othello's" etc. soon. If I go to many more operas and hear much more love, I know I will.

Well, I've gotta go to bed. It wouldn't make me permanently mad to get a letter or a box from you, Ethyle. In fact I believe it would be rather an interesting experiment. Let's try it, sh, Ethyle.

Good night, sweet dreams, (and pleasant serenades, from the little mice")

Thyne,
ANNIBEL.

P. S. One thing I forgot to tell you, Ethyle. This was part of the opera that was just like I'd read about in books. Lots of the men got up and went out during the acts, and come back smelling as if they had had several samples of Hill & Hill—even if Fort Worth did go dry last year, Ethyle.

amount figures have been based showing just what the tax on property will amount to in event such a bond issue materializes. Galveston property has increased from $17,000,000 to the present figure since 1901 and at least a proportionate increase is expected for the future. A further reduction in taxation would come with increasing reality values.

Galveston property owners alone will bear increased taxation, nothing being asked of the state at large but permission to vote the bonds. Stress is being laid by advocates of the measure that opinion in Galveston is almost unanimous in favor of the amendment and that there should be no hesitancy on the part of voters at large to vote for the amendment to the constitution giving citizens here a chance to afford further protection.

“Following the 1900 visitation the assessed valuation was only about $17,000,000 and yet bonds to the extent of 20 per cent of the assessed valuation were issued,” said J. H. Langben, prominent Galvestonian. “The city and county can well take care of the proposed issue of $5,000,000 if the people of Texas will give us that constitutional right. It is to be borne in mind that the original protective measures here required seven years for completion, from 1904 to 1911. The proposed new work probably would require a period of five years and it would not be necessary to dispose of all the bonds at the very time the contract for actual work was made, though it would be necessary to have an arrangement made by which bonds could be disposed of from time to time as the work progressed. As the work progressed the property values would increase and cost to taxpayers would accordingly decrease.”

Editors:

I aimed not to write fer the guy what haz charge uv this here papir, but he kinda slufed offen the job tonite, and haz the nerve to come round bout sundown and gently slips me the word that I iz to work while he is havin' a good time and fill up th' space in hiz papir that wud be as vacant az the upper story uv a dome on th' shoulders uv a editor that'll trust to some one else to fill up hiz vacant space Nohow in th' fust place I oughten tu do the guy the favor cauz he jist give me one nite's notiz, and in th' second, third, and last place I—well you all don't kno that editor like I do. Anyhow sumbody called him up and sed they had two tickets to a big shenanigan that iz tu paint the town red tonite. I thot he wuz awful anxious about a phone call bout that time, and uv coarse I don't hev any idee who she, it, her, they, them, he or she, which ever the case migh be, iz. But when a feller refuses to tell a friend, yep! flatly refuses tu tell ya the why, who, and what for az tu where he iz goin' it peers to me from good jedgment uv human nacher and psychological reasonin' that—well all I can think uv is blond hair and a Cadillac 8. Course az I wuz sayin' I don't kno', but if you say so, stop me first time I see you, and we'll frame up and investigate th' rapid movement uv this feller an if you think he is perfectly honorable of sich, I'll have him run out into the hall and holler Skat at a poor little innocent fly on the wall so he'll have a excuse to pack up an'—well I ain't knockin' on him but he'll have to learn that goin' to college on a one cylinder brain don't mean that it'll develop into a six cylinder education, so if he wants me to deliver my best masterpiece, it-

William R. Snow, Jr., who received his commission as Second Lieutenant in the Infantry August 15, 1917, married Mae Cagle of Baylor University May 21, 1918, left for overseas with the 90th Division May 29, 1918. After the armistice Mr. Snow took some medical work in the University of Edinburg, and arrived in the United States July 20, 1919. He is now attending Texas Medical College in Galveston.

Mr. Snow writes that Fred Harrold, a former T. C. U. student, is a senior, and Howard Walker, '17, a junior in the college where he was a “fish.”

The faces of “Froggie” Hawes, “Shorty” Vaughn, and Mr. and Mrs. Gish Martin (and baby), have been welcome sights around T. C. U. these last few days.

THE GREATEST APPEAL FOR CLEAN LIVING EVER PRESENTED IN ANY FORM.

New Handling of Sex Theme Seen in the End of the Road.

No young man or woman can see "The End of the Road" and not pause and consider their conduct. The picture contrasts fine samples of living with those of the opposite stamp.

"The photoplay, "The End of the Road," is a proof, if any were wanting, that a subject which has for generations been surrounded by mystery and prejudice, may be treated in such a way to disarm criticism, while educating an ignorant public to facts which should be known in their scientific and moral aspects if society is to rid itself of its greatest evil.

"The play should rattle the idea that innocence is synonymous with ignorance; should awaken parents to their responsibility for seeing

Loose Playing.

Ogan's Work Features Contest.

Fowler made a long forty yard punt. Ogan downed the safety in his tracks. Vicious tackles by Ogan and Bradford forced the visitors to punt in their turn and the home team made its last ineffectual attempt to rally when Smith made a beautiful twenty-five yard broken field run. The rally failed to materialize and after a series of long incomplete passes the game ended just after Southwestern had intercepted one of these passes and had been downed on their own forty yard line.

The stars for Southwestern were Wilson, Kennedy and Sessions. The shining luminary for the Frogs was Ogan, Acker, Rutherford and Newman also played a strong game.

ference in Hollister, Missouri, last year. Miss Shirley represented Kidd Key College of Sherman and Miss Crain represented T. C. U.

Miss Shirley gave an account of the trip there, of the numerous Texas girls who went and of the wonderful recreative possibilities of Hollister. Her enthusiasm was so contagious that every one lived over her experiences with her.

Miss Crain told of a Day in Hollister. It seems that there, too, the rising bell rings before daylight. But one must have an early start to enjoy such full days of work as well as play as she spent there.

Miss Sybil Black, president of the Association in the university made a short talk urging all the young ladies of both dormitories to attend all of the meetings. She also reminded them that next June there will be another conference that should have a live representation from T. C. U.

The meeting was dismissed by Mizpah.

After the meeting a short cabinet meeting was held in which many plans for programs and entertainments were hinted at, although their discussion was set for a later date.

CLARK LITERARY SOCIETY
NOTES.

An "All Texas" program rendered by the Clark Literary Society last Monday evening proved to be a very unique affair. Clark girls are scattered throughout the state and each portion of the Lone Star State was well represented.

The following girls took part in the program: Dorine Gee of Greenville, Mary Francis McQuillen of Galveston, Erin and Mozelle Jones of Eastland, Ruth Myers of Wichita Falls, Elizabeth Oberthier of Hereford and Bertha Hensley of Gainesville.

All of the Clark programs have been very successful and entertaining and we intend to continue throughout the year just as we have begun—full of pep and with every girl ready and willing to do her share so that we may make this year the greatest of all.

developed some very new and distinctive double and single-breasted belted ideas for us—without a doubt some of the finest looking suits we've ever seen.

You'll like the double-breaster, especially. They're a great deal different than the double-breasted suits of past seasons—the coats have a higher waist effect, more flare to the skirt, new ideas in cuffs, lapels, paints and pockets; buttons are set differently, too.

We haven't forgotten the man who prefers a single breasted suit, either. Many smart ones here—all-around belt, half belt, or no belt; one, two, or three button; ultra stylish, in-between or conservative.

The same old Kuppenheimer quality—dependable all-wool fabrics, and tailoring that expresses refinement in every detail.
