FROGS SET FOR RAZORBACK TILTS

THE Razorbacks arrive Friday after a two-game series with S. M. U. That they have a great team can-not be denied. The Frogs won from them twice last year by lone point margin. There has been no changes in the club whatever.

AS THEY play the Mustarg quintet on the two nights previous, some comparison may be drawn between the Frog and Methodist fives.

It has been adduced that many students in colleges and universities appeared personally before the editor the House of David. throughout the land have failed to pass their work this scholastic year on of this column and requested that account of the predominance of the so-called "Jazz Age" type of student. he publish the astounding news that It may be that the youngsters in the plastic stage of development have they had dates Saturday night. It been somewhat molded by the aftermath of the war, perhaps their naive is the opinion of Sterling Cottage day, and a reception committee, comenjoyment of syncopated music and its appendages has been engrained too deep in yet unhardened minds, and any number of reasonable conjectures might be offered to ascertain the genesis of the incapabilities of the younger generation—if such incapabilities actually existed. But the archaic individuals who from the press and pulpit lament our "inferiority" and "depravity" are merely building for themselves defense-mechanisms, transparent alibis for fossilized mental faculties. I am sick and tired of hearing this blather about "I wonder what the world's a-coming to?" The English (found on a Goode Hall willing shoulders of Alkali Bowser university men and women of today are compositely a sound depository for mirror): the truths of the ages and a rotten depository for traditional myths which can't stand the light of investigation, and it is this fact that harasses our accusers and incites them to hurl non-explosive verbal bombs in our midst.

The lower strata of contemporary collegiate society has offered a fertile field which has been plowed deeply by moral uplifters, writers of "best-sellers," and the indiscreet news sheets. Every age has its extremes, Shun not the struggle, face it; 'tis Fox-Trot is known to the underworld its inevitable excesses. On its upper level, this same society, although rides in a fast car with a rationalist motor, is biologically sound, morally and ethically normal, and mentally shrewd. If we were to believe some of the statements of our Kruelly Kind Kriticizers we would prophecy that a few years hence this terrestial globe will be wrenched from its equilibrium by the lop-sided activities of a chaotic civilization composed of Jazzcrazed-idio-Nietzscheanic ex-collegians. Ostensibly we are a suave and lighthearted group of people, fundamentally we are as sober-minded, as wasn't such a benefactor to humanity Claude Hight and Patricia Vaughn. genuinely sincere, as great lovers of the true, noble, the beautiful things after all)" I myself am of a deeply in life, as the youths of other ages, our progenitors. OPEN THE "Y" POOL ROOM

T. C. U. is noted for its home and family like atmosphere and yet at ing. this particular time of the year when we take inventory and check up on our shortcomings we find one thing lacking that is vital in maintaining that home like spirit-that is, a gathering place for male students for social and recreational purposes. What has become of the "Y" Recreation Hall at one time the famous hang-out for all the boys? Only those who formerly enjoyed the pleasures and hospitalities of the Hall can realize the big gap there is, now that the Hall isn't functioning and know the need for one. The opportunities of such a place are countless. A properly conducted recreation room would mean more to the men students of T. C. U. right now than any other thing. Social life around the University is noticeably and woefully on the wane and a well-equipped recreation room would mean a great deal. There the students would have a chance for companionship and association not offered them elsewhere.

It would mean an afternoon or evening of play and recreation that could not but be beneficial. Man is so constituted that he must have entertainment and if he does not find in his home that which satisfies his innate desire for pleasure he seeks elsewhere for it. How much better would it be if the students could find right here on the campus the answer to the age old desire for play. Every afternoon many rush to town to this or that show seeking entertainment, coming home more often than not with a feeling of dissatisfaction. Think what it would mean to the school for those students to remain here on the hill for their recreation. It would go far towards developing a more interesting school life and a greater school spirit.

The building of such a place would after all require only a little time and energy for the foundation is already here. The equipment and apparatus of earlier days is still in tact and it would require only a little renovation and a competent and energetic manager to make the old Hall as congenial and pleasant a gathering place as formerly.

Let's open the "Y" pool room at the gym.

Team of Veterans Compose Girls' Team

The Girls' Basket ball team in T. C. U. this year is a real machine like organization and promises, with a little more practice, to be the equal of any such team in the Southwest. The team is composed for the most part of veterans of three and four years' experience. Katherine Hayden, Mabel Mills, Katherine Ellington, Jessie Bell McCall, Peggy Horton, Edith Funkhouser, Emma Mae Phillips and several others of less experience form the personnel of this capable group of feminine loopers.

Several games have already been played this year, the team accounting for themselves creditably in each contest. This will be the initial scason that the T. C. U. girls have played in the City League and a very successful season is in all probability in store for them.

All City League games will be played on down-town courts. Mabel Mills captains this year's sextet.

Frogs Break Even On First Trip

Opening the official cage season with a dash into the South, the Horned Frog loopers returned to their lair Thursday with their flag flying at half mast, having copped a con test from the Baylor Bears, and dropped one to the Texas Steers by a close margin.

The Bell Boys exhibited great form to trounce the rapidly improving Baylorites. Their passing game completely baffled the Bears at times, and great floor work drew the guards out of position repeatedly.
