Watchman to Do Slack-Wire Act as Dance Feature

As a special intermission feature of next Friday night's dance, G. L. Burns, nightwatchman who was with circuses for some 30 years, will do a slack-wire act.

Mr. Burns performed as a tight-rope walker and trapeze artist with such famous circus outfits as Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey.

Harvey Anderson and his 12-piece band, from Cleburne, will play for the dance, which will be held from 8 to 11 p. m. in the Basketball Gymnasium. Admission will be 75 cents, couple or stag.

The dance is semiformal, says Dance Manager Dick Geib. "We want the girls to dress up, but not in evening dresses," he explains.

Matinee dances will continue on Mondays, says Geib, but if there are no posters up in the Administration Building, there will be no afternoon dance. The juke box has been repaired and is in good condition for next week's dance, he says.

Rabies Puts Fido In Doghouse—Pet Him at Own Risk

Leading a dog's life is said to be an unattractive proposition. It's downright dangerous in these days of rabies.

Time was when it was considered an act of kindness to toss a bone to a hungry pooch. Now such action only encourages him to stick around—and you definitely do not want him to stick around. Fido, Rover, Sport and all the others are in the dog house.

If you pat that hound on the head, he may take a bite out of your hand. And wouldn't that make you mad! Unfortunately it might—literally.

Moral: It's a doggone good idea to let the dogs strictly alone.

Tea Will Honor Transfer Girls

Approximately 50 girls have been invited to the tea which Ampers and will have for transfer girls from 3 to 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the home of the sponsor, Mrs. Gayle Scott, 2916 Princeton Street.

Miss Katheryne Waldron, president, and Miss Joan Gardner, secretary, will serve at the refreshment table. Other officers, who will receive at the door, are: Vice-president, Miss Ann Barham; treasurer, Miss Bonnie Hall; project chairman, Miss June Dameron; and publicity chairman, Miss Doris Mahon.

Three members of the board of advisors of the senior women's honor group will help receive the guests, along with all the Ampers and members. They are Mrs. Colby D. Hall, Miss Eula Lee Carter and Dean Elizabeth Shelburne.

The committee on arrangements for the tea is headed by Miss Dameron and includes Misses Barbara Bancock, Mary Helen McClendon and Waldron. Members will dress formal, says Miss Waldron.

Rev. Walker to Speak On "Religion" Sunday

"Religion: Illusion or Adaptations" will be the subject of Rev. Granville Walker's sermon at the University Christian Church Sunday morning.

Mrs. Q'Zella Oliver Jeffus will play "Communion," by Batiste, and "Cradle Song," by Gretchaninoff.

The choir will sing the anthem, "Unfold, Ye Portals," by Gonoud.

Albert Bristol will speak at Evensong. Nancy Shackelford will sing "When Jesus Walked on Galilee," by Edwards.

Light, Quintet Cop 'Capers' Honors

The warning light-blanks, "College Capers of '44" is on the air.

That's how it will happen. When it does there will be a few familiar campus names coming out of your radio.

Two acts were chosen to represent T. C. U. on the "College Capers" show at auditions Wednesday afternoon. They are a quintet, composed of Miss Doris Jean Bridges, Clyde Foltz, Stanley Hovatter, John Kivlin and Roger Larimer, and Miss Katherine Light, soprano.

The audition winners will receive

$50 for appearing on College Capers the Sunday T. C. U. is to be represented. After all the eligible Texas colleges are represented, two acts will be chosen from all of the performances. They will receive a four-week contract for appearances. The top winner will receive $100 per performance, the runner-up, $50.

Running the quintet close competition was a trio composed of Misses Dorothy Forrester, Max Helen Pickens and Mona Moore.

Charles J. Freeman, representative of Interstate Theaters, remarked to Miss Light after he had announced her as one of the winners. "Young lady, I don't know your name, but you have a remarkable voice," Katherine, in return, just beamed.

Gill Hunter is one more boy who deserves applause. After presenting his act, which was playing on the piano everything from Strauss to boogie woogie, he went back and forth to the stage to accompany practically everyone who auditioned.

Music Hath Charms
Cosmopolitan Group
Presidents Practice

"Music hath charms"—but not at 11 o'clock Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. That's when Dr. T. Smith McCorkle's class in "Instrumental Technic" takes over the Auditorium. Seems the course is required of all music majors, who must learn to be jacks (or jills) of all trades rather than concentrate on just one instrument (or voice, as the case may be.) If you poke your head in the Auditorium at this hour some day (only please don't, Dr. McCorkle has his hands full already,) you might see Pianist Mary Louise Harwood scraping away at a violin, Clarinet Leon Breedon on the cello, and Jack Gipson, voice student, also with a violin under his chin. Patty Ann Patterson, pianist, might be struggling with an oboe ("I never know when it's going to give!" she says), and Erylene Hardy, already master of the oboe, exploring an alto sax. It's pretty tough, on the whole, and even downright humiliating to the coeds, who must remove their lipstick before tackling the wind instruments.

We don't guarantee this story; we only heard. But it seems that a V-12er, coming in late one night, decided to use the fire escape instead of the front door. He took off his shoes, climbed to the third floor, raised the window and tip-toed down the hall—only to find that he was in Goode Hall.

Once upon a time (not too long ago) there was a group of distinguished psychologists who listened to the case history of 3-year-old Millicent Cobb. Then they prepared a series of tests designed to determine the true Millicent, what she was good for and what made her tick. When it was all over, the psychologists were in a super-difter. Millicent not only did herself honors, she actually tied a bow knot. Technically, that means she qualified as a genius. Moral: Some people are born that way; others have to take class notes.

The "American History" class of Prof. Ralph Garrett contains a cosmopolitan group. There are 23 students in the class, and 12 of them come from states other than Texas. When a problem is discussed, members get views that represent a cross section of the country. The race problem, for example, met with some rather deep and heated arguments this week.

Someone wants to know why T. C. U. doesn't have a ghost. "Here the Ad Building is 34 years old and not a sign of a ghost!" this individual complains. All right, let's have a ghost. Think how much livelier Evening College classes would be with the addition of some clanking chains and ghostly moans. And who'll volunteer to haunt Foster Hall?

Braz Pryor, former V-12 trainee and president of the Junior class last trimester, is continuing his political career. He was recently elected president of his midshipmen's class at Harvard University Supply School.

An unofficial investigator for this department happened to pass by Brite College early the other evening and heard voices singing hymns. He stopped to listen; others stopped to listen. "Hm-m," one listener observed, "not good, and not bad!" The Skiff investigator decided to live up to his name, and investigate. He found that the hymn-singers were Ed Cornelius and Neil McFarland. These two presidents (student body and junior class) assured the investigator they were merely practicing. The investigator assured the presidents they needed it.

Jose Iturbi almost played for T. C. U. music students last week. He had promised Dean McCorkle that he would, and he would have kept the promise except that he (Iturbi, in case you are a bit confused) got put off two planes trying to get to Fort Worth. He (Iturbi again) just barely made it in time for his concert at Will Rogers Memorial Auditorium. Oh well, a train would probably have been late!

He held a fellowship for one year at Union Theological Seminary in New York and studied at the University of London. For 17 years he was minister of the First Christian Church at Wilson, N. C. In 1937 he was director of the Seven-County Public Forum in North Carolina under the Office of Education in Washington. In 1939, he traveled and studied in Russia, returning home the day before the war began.

Served in World War I.

Dr. Barclay was an infantry captain in the first World War and served 11 months overseas. He has coached in both high schools and colleges, and in 1922 the high school basketball team of which he was coach won the national championship.

More recently, Dr. Barclay was a delegate to the Drake Conference in February, a post-war planning conference which President M. E. Sadler also attended as a delegate. Dr. Barclay is president of the Austin Ministerial Association and is on the Board of Directors of the Austin Children's Bureau. He also is a member of the advisory committee of the Austin Post-War Planning Commission.

McFarland Is Chairman. Neill McFarland is chairman of the religious activities committee which is in charge of Religious Emphasis Week. Others on the committee include: Miss June Dameron, representative of the "Y"; Miss Elliott, representing the student congregation of the University Christian Church, which includes the Meliorist Club; Clyde Foltz, representing the senior class; Bob Blackwell, for the juniors; Bob Maxey, sophomores; Miss Peggy Shambarger, freshmen; Bob Matheny; and Student Body President Ed Cornelius, ex officio member.

Miss Dameron, Foltz and Matheny are in charge of arrangements, including music, for the worship services and the assembly. The Brushes Club is making a setting for the Auditorium stage, to be used for the services there. The School of Fine Arts will present the music.

"These Are the Times . . ." ———"United We Stand"

"These are the times that try men's souls . . ."

Those words were written by Tom Paine in the bloody days of America's first struggle for freedom, when war was in the back yard and everyone knew the privation which comes from it.

But these times—our times—also try men's souls, even though the soldiers' battlegrounds are thousands of miles from their homeland. Men's souls are still tried by war. And, in the midst of sorrow and anxiety, men still turn in their hungering souls to the only Being they know whose power is truly supreme.

Religious Emphasis Week is not a wartime measure. It has been held before, will be held again—in times of peace as well as war. But in these days it takes on deeper value. In time of war, no one doubts the worth or efficacy of religion.

Religious Emphasis Week is not a special occasion planned only for Brite College students. It is planned for everyone, and especially for those who feel the need of emphasizing religion in their own pattern of life. It is not to be made up of cold, formalized services and lectures. It is a week of guidance for the student who has problems to meet—and a chance, if he desires, to discuss them with a man who is more than a preacher, a man of broad experience and knowledge. It is a chance for the student to meet with other students in the finest fellowship he can ever know.

These are the times for renewed realization of what even Tom Paine—"athies" Tom Paine—knew—that "God governs the world."

A B-24 just doesn't function correctly with one wing—it's not balanced. All those on the assembly line contribute their part—resulting in one complete fighting machine.

The invasion of Guadalcanal was done by one special group. It took the Marines to do the ground fighting, the Navy to transport the Marines, the pilots to fly overhead and bomb the island.

A university is not as it should be when it has a group distinction—dorm students, town students.

Groups are old stuff in America today. Unity is the fashion, and it is that fashion which is going to add those three dots and a dash to our stars and stripes.

Is there any reason why T. C. U. can't have two wings—dorm students, town students? Not two wings functioning separately, but together as one fighting machine—for unity, for the "American way."

Joe's Jibbers

By Joe Shosid

But say we didn't tell you, but for the University of Texas Longhorns to make a clean sweep all spring sports this season, including baseball, track, tennis, football.

The Longhorns are overwhelming leaders in track, having won every meet thus far this season boasting of victories in the Olympics, the Texas Relays, and Stock Show Meet, and numerous others.

While the other conference schools started track a few weeks ago—especially those in the northern part of the state—the Longhorns, together with Texas A. & M. and Rice, have been working out for several months.

Texas has a well-balanced club, with a full quota of men entering in all events. The Aggies have several men who specialize in certain events. The Owls manage to gather in several areas also.

T. C. U. probably will be the only other team in the meet at Austin, May 13 and 14, as M. U. and Baylor have not yet paid their bills. Webs identified any intention to participate.

Captain Ralph Ellsworth of the Aggies' club seems the probable winner in the 100 and 220-yard dash and games, but should be pushed all the way by his teammate, Leo Culpepper, who has nosed out Ellsworth several times this spring. So definite favorite has been established in the 440-yard dash. It's just the place the Frogs can spring a surprise and produce new points. The times for the latter have been slow to date.

It looks like the Longhorns' 16-year-old Bob Umstated all the way to the 880 and mile. Umstated has to be defeated but you can count on the Frog's Charlie Robinson to give him a good battle all the way.

Probably not more than three four will enter the two-mile race, one of endurance and physical fitness rather than speed.

Andy Crow of Texas and Jack Warren of A. & M. should battle it out in both the 120-yard hurdles and the 220 lows. In the meets between the two schools, Warren has come out with victories; guess is Warren in the highs. Crow in the longer hurdle.

Texas looks like a cinch in the relay event, with Ellsworth, Theobald, Edward Klein, and others already having been set at 42.4 and 42.5 for the meet.

However, the mile relay looks a wide open affair, with every entered having a good chance winning the event, as the crop of 30 men has fallen considerably.

George B. Eagle, Naval aviation cadet, is a battalician commander at the Navy Pre-Flight School in Athens, Ga., where he was transferred from the CAA-WTS at T. C. U.

ing from this duo is John Hickman, who should win the singles handily, while his teammates should combine to carry them on their undefeated route.

Texas' golf and swimming teams should have stiffer competition. Some experts are giving the Aggies the nod in the water event.

The Aggies and Longhorns are presently tied for the conference lead in baseball, but the Longhorns, superior reserve and pitching staff should give them the percentage at the end.

Frogs to Play Oklahoma, Kansas

Schedule Has 8 Games, With 1 to Be Added

T. C. U.'s Horned Frogs have eight football games booked for the 1944 season and are looking for a ninth, Coach Dutch Meyer reports.

The University of Kansas Jayhawks, University of Oklahoma Sooners and Texas Tech Raiders are the non-conference teams on the Frogs' schedule.

"We'd like to add to that a good game—probably with a service team—for Sept. 30," Meyer says.

Competition opens Sept. 23 and does not end until Dec. 2, but in addition to the open date that will be filled if possible, there are two other open dates that will be kept open for rest periods.

The complete schedule:

Sept. 23 U. of Kansas, Kansas City, Mo. (Night)
Sept. 30 Open (To be filled)
Oct. 7 University of Arkansas, Fort Worth
Oct. 14 Open
Oct. 21 Texas A. & M., College Station
Oct. 28 University of Oklahoma, Norman
Nov. 4 Open
Nov. 11 Texas Tech, Fort Worth
Nov. 18 University of Texas, Fort Worth
Nov. 25 Rice Institute, Houston
Dec. 2 S. M. U., Dallas

Strong Men Get Special Liberty

Strength tests are over again for the V-12ers, and most of them are heaving sighs of relief. The average score for the maintenance men was 61.9, as compared with a mark of 59 compiled at the end of last trimester. C. R. Woods walked off with individual honors, with a top score of 76. Other high men were Billy Neale, with a 71, and A. G. Slaydon, with a 70.

Navy standards require a grade of 50, and the T. C. U. V-12 unit has consistently made grades over that mark on all strength tests. Those men who ranked in the top 20 per cent will be granted special liberty, says Chief Specialist Wayne Weare.

The physical fitness exams are given twice each semester. A grade of 50 is required for entrance into the maintenance class.

The strength exam consists of five events: Squat-thrusts, sit-ups, push ups, squat jumps and pull-ups. Chief Weare says that the best way to describe the events is that they test the V-12ers' strength, endurance, stamina and agility.

Track Squad Needs Help—Now!

Horton Pitches No-Hit Ball Game

F. S. Horton hurled a no-hit ball game for the Dewey Bluejackets in their 5-to-0 triumph over the Nimitz Seadogs in Wednesday's intramural softball games. Horton kept the Seadog batters baffled throughout the game and sent 19 Nimitz men down via the strike-out route.

The King Hellcats were still perched on the top rung of the intramural ladder after a wild 13-to-11 victory over the Goode Hall Frogs. The game was marred by the frequent number of miscues by both teams. Cat pitcher J. W. Pitt kept his record of four straight victories clean, as he managed to scatter the Frog hits throughout the game. Bryan Taylor, converted football player, pitched for Goode Hall.

In the other game, the Halsey Cougars defeated the Farragut Crows, 5 to 1. The game was a pitchers' duel between Al Barker of the Cougars and Bob Crow of the Crows up till the sixth inning, when the Cougars exploded with four runs.

A revamped Seadog club showed defensive improvement while dropping the 5-to-0 decision to the Bluejackets. The "Jackets" pushed across one run in the first, touched Pitcher A. G. Slaydon for three in the fourth and one marker in the fifth frame.

The Bluejackets sounded a warning to the other teams in the league after Horton's fine no-hit pitching performance Wednesday. The Cougars are in second place in the intramural race, the Bluejackets follow in third, the Crows hold down fourth place and Goode Hall and the Seadogs occupy cellar positions in the league standings.

Then he stopped, looked at his audience seriously and said, "Now I ask you, who cares about seeing and hearing two silly people drink tea?"

Miss Gloria Sheinberg had not intended to try out, but some of the students present urged her to sing and play her own composition, "Lilac." Miss Margie Mae Luxa also sang.

Miss June Dameron came in the Auditorium after the auditions had been completed. Prof. John Woldt went up to her and asked if she wanted to audition. June turned pale pink, smiled and blurted, "Oh heavens no, not me!"

Miss Verna Berrong, A. M. '38, will report Thursday to Smith College, Mass., for officer's training in the WAVES. Miss Berrong has been employed as a teacher at Arlington Heights High School.

Coach Hub Doing All Right With Few Boys He Has Out For Conference Competition

The Horned Frog track team continued to improve this week as the second week of practice came to an end. But with only about 10 boys out each day, Track Coach Hub McQuillan will be handicapped in trying to put a top-ranking team on the cinder path.

This week's drills were concentrated on calisthenics and generally getting in shape, but for next week Coach McQuillan plans to let his charges loose and run against time in order to separate them into the various events.

Up to the present, only seven events will be entered when the conference meet comes around May 13 and 14 in Austin at the University of Texas' Memorial Stadium. These are the 100, 220, 440, and 880-yard dashes, and the mile run in the track events; and the discus and javelin on the field.

Continuing to loom as the cream of the crop, as far as possible points are concerned, is Freshman Charles Robinson. Robinson began training earlier than the rest this spring and already has two medals this season—these for the 880 and mile in the Stock Show Meet.

Robinson will likely run both these events at Austin, and would be valuable also on the mile relay team if one is formed.

His heart sinking, the student replied feebly, "Petit."

From here the conversation went at a rapid pace on the part of the superman and the Horned Frog, though the student was more or less confined to "Je ne sais pas" and "Huh?"

However, the venture was successful because the student caught the phrase "tout les deux"—which meant that the two prisoners were not in a group of five that had escaped earlier in the day from Camp Howze.

As for the rest of the world, "Woosevent stunken," "Hitler nein Nazi, goot soldat," and "Churchill iss old man." As for Mussolini, he rated an indifferent "Iss o. k." Hirohito rated a frow and thumbs down—as did a newspaper headline displaying the letters R. A. F. in bold type. Comment on Stalin wasn't forthcoming.

Probable quote of Dr. Combs, "Mon Dieu!"

Clifford Taylor and Earl Bissex will speak at Timothy Club meeting Monday. Robert Routh will lead the devotional.

Exams 8-Week Curse To Sleepless Students

Exams—the bane of existence to student and teacher alike, the low point in any eight-week period, the dullest sleep-chaser in existence. But, they're a necessary evil—or do you think so?

Now some students never let it bother them. They just know what's coming and they're ready to face it. BILLIE RUTH GREGORY says she's all set to lose sleep when exams come around and MILDRED JACKSON heads straight for the Library. ALICE INSKEEP and MARY BENA SELLARS have learned the value of review, and Mary Bena points out that campusology doesn't help much at a time like this.

Late hours are the worst part of it all. MARILYN ELLIS says she has drunk enough coffee to start a plantation. SAM RATCLIFFE and JOE TAYLOR are looking forward to plenty of sleep after it's all over. ROBERT ROUTH said on Monday—"If I have to stay up as late as I have been, I won't last very long." Anyone seen him lately?

AVIS HADDEN doesn't have any trouble—she has insomnia already. And DOROTHY NIES gets the job done by thumbing through the book. HELEN ZIEGLER and VIDA BEVIL never let it worry them, either. "We just tear out and go to town or read a book," they say. JOE WICK just doesn't pay any attention to exams.

BOB LANDEY thinks exams are a delight, and he wouldn't miss them for the world. It says here,

NORMA STILLEY has the right attitude, too. Says she, "Exams just don't mean much when someone is home on furlough."

Some people frankly don't like the things. RUTH TUCKER and BETTY JANE GILBERT think they're pretty terrible, and "TRICK" McDANIEL says it would be a much better world without them. BARBARA NELSON thinks there are too many, and BONNIE WIECH says, "When I build my college I intend to do away with them."

EMILY LAMAR didn't even know it was exam week. Where has that girl been?

If you ask BETTY JO BILLINGTON or BETTY JEAN DAVIS about their exams, all you get is a shriek. EMILY STEDMAN finished two in one day and came out feeling "numb." "What I'm thinking isn't printable," she muttered.

MARY ELIZABETH ROUTLEDGE sees one bright side to it. She doesn't think exams are as hard now as they were when she was a freshman. And CLINTON HENDERSON supposes they are a "necessary evil." Says JOLEEN HANRAHAN, "They get the students so upset that they don't know what they're doing!"

Somebody else who must be kidding—DORIS MAHON, who says she's perfectly happy about every one of her exams.

GLEN THORNTON comes right out and admits he's worried about chemistry, physics and French. NELL EPPERSON just flipped a coin for true or false on two exams she took. VIRGINIA MASON used to dread exams something fierce, but now that she's in love, she says they're just an incident that must be tolerated while she's waiting for Harry.

Says CLEO BOAZ, with a sigh, "I just finished mine. Now I wish I had studied more. But next time . . ." It seems we've heard that song before!

Practice Teaching Brings Out Red Faces, Quick Thinking, Pint-Sized Wolves As Coeds Play New Classroom Role

There has been many an upset classroom in the Fort Worth Public Schools during the last few weeks as T. C. U. coed education majors took over to do their practice teaching.

The girls have had their problems, too, and not the least among them have been those of the two "shorties" in the bunch—Miss Patty Ann Patterson and Miss Mary Ray White. Patty measures 5 feet, 1 inch, and Ray tops her by half an inch—and both have been mistaken for pupils in the public schools.

Patty was taken for a student in the ninth grade at Arlington Heights High School, and even at Stripling Junior High School, where she also taught music, one little boy accosted her with "You aren't tall enough to teach music!"

Patty's latest accomplishment is learning to play the piano standing up. She had to—to keep an eye on her wary pupils. And she has found that playing the "Star-Spangled Banner" is the quickest way to bring a class to order.

Even the teacher thought she was a new student when Ray started in at McLean. Ray really got off to a big start with the pupils, too. It was her first day,

"Aussie" Slang, Texas-Style Host, Impress Wimpy

"Aussie" hospitality is surpassed only by that of Texans, says A. W. ("Wimpy") Robertson, sailor in the V-12 unit. Wimpy, who has been in the Navy 23 months, has been in every theater of war.

Although he liked Australia, he had a hard time understanding the slang and dialect. One day Robertson and his chaplain were invited to lunch in an Australian home. After serving them a fine meal, the hostess suggested that they go out to "the bush and boil the billy." The chaplain, says Wimpy, being a conservative man, was a little reluctant about "boiling the billy," until he found out they were going to the woods to have tea.

While in the North African campaign, Wimpy visited Casablanca several times. In India, he saw the starving Indians work for a year for the wages that the average American sailor gets in one month.

In New Zealand, Wimpy visited the home of a banker. On the wall, he had a map of the United States, on which he marked the home town of all the service men who visited his home. Wimpy found that he was the second man to visit there from Fort Worth. The "Yanks" are always welcome in these homes, he says. The banker's house overlooked the city of Wellington, New Zealand, which has a picturesque skyline, he adds.

Before the war, Robertson was a ministerial student at Baylor. On board ship, he was assistant to the ship's chaplain.

Dr. Paul Dinkins will give a book review at Meliorist Sunday night. After the review, there will be games and other entertainment.

and the teacher had just explained to the class who she was and what she was doing there. Everybody was looking at Ray, and she was just getting ready to go to the front of the room to take over, when a little boy sitting in front of her turned completely around in his chair, looked at her with longing eyes and started panting like a dog—Hollywood-and-Vine wolf style.

But Ray wasn't the only one who had trouble with the young men. Miss Mary Virginia Orn was teaching at Alice Carlson Elementary when a youngster in her class took a shine to her. He asked if he could come to see her, and Virginia told him he could.

"Can I come up to your apartment?" the little boy asked. Virginia explained to him that he couldn't do that but that she would meet him in the parlor.

"What will we do when I get there?" he asked.

"Well, I'll bring my roommate down to meet you," she replied.

"Okay," said the little fellow. "I'll bring a friend."

A 13-year-old at Stripling Junior High tried to "pin" Miss Helen Anderson with his "commando" button, an award which is made to the students for their good work.

Mrs. Lane Enjoys Being Temporary Librarian

Mrs. Sherman Lane, former librarian of Texas Dental College at Houston, has taken over the duties of Mrs. Bertie Mothershead during the latter's absence on a visit of several weeks to her sister in Indiana.

"I am enjoying the work here very much," says Mrs. Lane, "and feel thoroughly at home. I think that the Mary Couts Burnett Library is one of T. C. U.'s greatest assets."

Home Ec Club Presents First in Lecture Series

"Care and Styling of the Hair" was the title of a lecture, given last night in the Mexican Lounge of Foster Hall under the sponsorship of the Home Ec Club.

Vernon Isbell and Ralph Barrow, hair stylists, were the speakers. This was the first of a series of programs on personal care which the club will sponsor.

Helen wiggled out of that one with a story about not being worthy wearing it since she hadn't earned one.

That first day was hardest for most of the coeds. Just as Mrs. Katherine Waldron made her entrance into her first practice teaching class, she slipped—her entrance was none to dignified, though erect. "I had to start off with a red face," she moaned. Miss Jeanne Curry also had trouble with her entrances. One day, she came in with a pair of sheer stockings, and just as she started to sit down, was greeted with a loud whistle and a feminine cry "Look! Nylons!"

Miss Curry and Miss Myra Jean Tompkins agree that you have to be a quiz kid to do practice teaching. The youngsters take delight in trying to stump their young teachers. Myra Jean climbed out of one predicament nicely, as had assigned some diacritical marks for an English class. A student asked her how to spell "diacritical." Well, that stamped her just couldn't remember.

"This is a good chance for you to start your work," said quizzing Myra. "Go to the dictionary and look it up." And pupil did.

'Eileen' Gives Out SOS for Swede, Drunk, 8 Sailors

The Dramatic Club still has some left-over business to straighten out before it can really settle into rehearsals for "My Sister, Eileen."

Clyde Flowers has placed Lester Mason as the "Wreck" and George Moore as the "Swede." All senior members will play the parts of Miss Bronson Johnson and Mr. Feltz. Ordinarily, the cast will be chosen at the end of the week.

There is still an SOS going for another drunk and a tall Swede who looks the part of a Swede handyman.

"Need we say again, Navy, are calling upon eight of you to come around and see how size it will be to just stand on the stage and give the play that nautical flavor," says Miss Ann Barham.

Rev. Walker to Lecture To English 24a Students

"Other University students and faculty members are invited to attend," reports Miss Mabel May.
