Campus Carnival
Tonight

THE SKIFF

Student Election
Thursday

Official Student Body Publication of Texas Christian University
FORT WORTH, TEXAS, FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1946

Candidates Will Be Presented at Noon

Opponents to Speak, Band to Play For Political Rally In Auditorium

T. C. U. MILESTONES, from 1873 to 1946, are pictured with a "to come" version of the campus, after the $3,000,000 building program is completed. The photographs include: 1873, original building at Thorp Spring; 1875, second building at Thorp Spring; 1895, the main building at Waco; 1946, air view of present campus; architect's drawing of the campus after building program has been completed.

Science Club Carnival Doors Open Tonight

All-Campus Affair to Have Side Show, Nylons, Dance, Fortune Teller, Hot Dogs

The Natural Science Club Carnival, rain or shine, will open its doors at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Basketball Gymnasium.

Admission is free at the door. According to Charlotte Childress, committee member, nothing has been left out of the show, which extends from a faculty grave yard to a "men and women only" sideshow. Incidentally, an added attraction at the adult only booth will be a drawing for four pairs of nylon hose.

There will be a taxi-dance, a Gypsy fortune teller, snow cones, hot dogs, cokes, popcorn, kewpie dolls and a weighing machine, Charlotte says, to mention only a few other attractions. "This is the carnival to end all carnivals! Don't miss it," adds Hal Cohn, club president.

School Musicians Play Off-Campus As Professionals

If you see a familiar face among the musicians of an orchestra or dance band, it probably is a person you have seen on the campus, for more than 20 players in the Horned Frog Band are playing professionally.

Leading the play for money musicians is saxophonist Harvey Anderson, who has his own dance orchestra in a local night spot. A featured player with his group is schoolmate Bob Peck. Many other members of the band have permanent jobs with local organizations, while some fill in whenever an opening occurs. Four play regularly with the swing band of Leon Breeden, band director.

Seven students are playing with the First Baptist Church Orchestra. They are violinists Juanita Dean and Doris Jones; Jackie Clardy, oboe; Erleyne Hardy, clarinet; Paul Morgan, flute; Travers Osborn, saxophone; Tommy Gwin, drums.

"My outside playing is paying my way through school," says Ted Pass, trumpet man. "If I were not playing, I would be out doing something else, and that money certainly is needed." Elden Dyer reports that he is using his earnings to augment his veteran's subsistence pay. "I have just that much more money," he says. "Some of the fellows are married, and they have to work to make both ends meet."

"Like many other students, members of my band are aiding their way through school by working," says Breeden, "but the musician's trade is a highly skilled one that has many years of practice and work behind it."

Students, Parents Start Fund Drive

The student-parent part of the $3,000,000 building fund drive began officially at an assembly in the Auditorium Wednesday, at which time Miss Nel Epperson, chairman of the parents' division, spoke to the student body with regard to taking home campaign pledge cards.

They should be returned to the student leaders of the drive by Monday, if possible, she states.

Chairman of the freshman division is Charles Matthews, class president. Sophomore leader is President Doris Knight. Miss Kathryn Light is junior president and class campaign sponsor, and Miss Janet Kroll is senior division chairman and class president.

Speakers at the campus building fund inauguration assembly included B. A. Crouch, chairman of the alumni division; Dr. C. H. Richards, faculty vice-chairman of the parents' division; Norman Hoffman, student vice-chairman of the parents' division; President Sadler and the four presidents.

All students who do not have pledge cards may get them by seeing their various class officers, and seniors may obtain pledge cards at the Book Store, according to Miss Kroll.

Tickets on Sale For June 8 Hop

Final plans for the all-campus dance, sponsored by the Frog Vets and the American Legion, to be given Saturday night, June 8, at the Hotel Texas, are complete, according to Bob Matthews and Jimmy Mussetter.

The entire 14th floor of the hotel has been reserved for the dance. Leon Breeden's orchestra will play.

Tickets, selling for $2.50 a couple, are on sale at the Drug and in the booth in the main hall.

Plans for Picnic, June 15, Discussed by Freshmen

Plans for a freshman class picnic to be held Saturday, June 15, were discussed at a class meeting Wednesday, according to Charles Matthews, president.

Pledge cards for the building fund drive were also passed out at the meeting.

Homiletic Guild to Hear Joe Frederick Wednesday

"Practical Answers in Counseling" will be the topic of the address to be given by the Rev. Joe Frederick, pastor of the First Christian Church, Grand Prairie, at the Homiletic Guild luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Faculty Room of the Cafeteria.

A combined election assembly and band concert will be held from noon until 1 p. m. today in the Auditorium, according to Miss Mary Claude Scott, chairman of the Student Council election committee.

Campaign speeches will be made by the candidates who have competition for office, and students who will take office by virtue of being sole petitioners will be introduced.

Leon Breeden will conduct the Horned Frog Band in its first spring concert at the same time.

Four students do not have competition for their positions in the June election for student body and August graduating class officers, Miss Scott says.

Raley Dunn will be editor of the 1946-47 Skiff. Miss Edith Dubois will be editor of the 1947 Horned Frog.

Miss Phala Davis will take office as vice-president of the August senior class, and Miss Paddy Jones will be secretary-treasurer.

The election for other offices will be held from 9 a. m. until noon Thursday in the main hall of the Administration Building. Students must present their activity cards before they will be allowed to vote. Those who have not received their cards may get them at the election booth, Miss Scott adds. Students who have lost them may have new ones for 25 cents.

Candidates for president of the student body are Dave Randall, present junior class Council representative and president of the Radio Workshop and the Fort Worth Collegiate, and David Bunn, former V-12er on the campus and past president of the "Y" and the I. R. C.

Miss Kay Sims, sophomore class favorite, and Miss Mary Crites, Jarvis Hall councilman, are running for student body vice-president.

Filing for student secretary are Miss Charlotte Childress, sophomore class Council representative and chairman of the constitution committee, and Miss Beth James, president of the "Y."

Miss Christine Rotton and Miss Laddell Roberson, both of whom have had courses in accounting, are petitioning for student body treasurer.

Filing for president of the August graduating class are Miss Libby Duncan, Foster Hall councilman, and Miss Louise Armstrong.

Vets Office Asks GI's to Conference

All veterans enrolled for courses in T. C. U. under "Part VIII," full-time or part-time, are requested to report to Room 125, Clark Hall, between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., according to John N. Watson, training officer, according to the following schedule:

- June 3—A through F
- June 4—G through K
- June 5—L through P
- June 6—Q through U
- June 7—V through Z

A brief conference with all Part VIII veterans is necessary in order to compile a supervisory report which will be made twice each semester after June 1, Watson says. Dependency claims, caliber of academic work, number of absences, transfers and future plans for attending school will be discussed with the veteran.

He points out that attending the conferences punctually will save the Veterans Administration the expense of sending a training officer to local addresses.

The conference will not apply to veterans in training under Part VII—that is, veterans with disabilities.

Any veteran who has not received subsistence checks or a letter of eligibility also has been requested by Mr. Watson to report to his office today.

'What to Do With Labor' Is I. R. C. Debate Topic

Another general discussion program will be held at the I. R. C. meeting Monday. Topic for debate will be "What to Do With Labor."

"This type of club meeting, where members actively participate, aroused so much interest last week that the meeting ran over the scheduled time," says William C. Roosa, Jr., club president.

'Twelfth Night' Will Be Staged Wednesday & Thursday Nights

A Shakespearian play will be on the theater menu for campus audiences Wednesday and Thursday nights, when the Fallis Players present "Twelfth Night."

"It is one of the most difficult tasks a young group of actors can take on," comments Dr. Walthar Volbach, director. "We are staging the classical Shakespearian drama in a modern stylized setting," he adds.

Eighteen scenes will be presented, although there will be no set changing. Most of the staging will be effected without raising or lowering the curtain. Two "pages," Amy Buschab and Betty Benton, will shift the few benches, tables, and even the back-ground of bushes, as the audience looks on.

The cast from the comedy scenes of "Twelfth Night," will include Jimmy Tinkle, Lawrence Bridges, Bob Matheny, Arthur Arney, Ann Barham and Robert Durrett.

Leading characters of the sentimental scenes are Hannah Groginski, Pat Perkins, Clinton Henderson, Marty Knutson, Melvin Dacus, Franklin Adkins, Leonard Greenwood, Tommy Hanna and George Stephens.

Music for "Twelfth Night" was composed by Dr. John Lewis, and Dr. Paul Dinkins simplified many of the lines of the play for the T. C. U. twentieth century audience.

Morton Walker is assisting Dr. Volbach in directing "Twelfth Night." Jeanne Russell is stage manager, Perle Cahoon is in charge of the set, Alice Runghee is costume manager, Franklin Adkins will direct the lighting, Roy Joe Cates is in charge of the music and Grada Lindsay, the make-up.

Admission price is 60 cents and curtain time both nights of the production is 8 p. m.

15 Are Certified In 'Who's Who'

Fifteen students were presented with certificates in the general assembly Wednesday, at T. C. U.'s representatives in the 1946 "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

Introduced by President M. E. Sadler, the students include Misses Gwendolyn Barrow, Millicent Cobb, Phala Davis, Nina John Elliott, Hannah Groginski, Alice Inskip, Jeanette John, Bobby Rheinlander, Betty Jean Schmuck, and Dave Hibbard, Norman Hoffman, Jo Hopson, Fran Moor, C. B. Oranhood and Bill Willis.

Date With Dude Ranch

Geology Students to 'Rough It' on Field Trip

When 17 advanced geology students meet their summer class July 1, the bell isn't going to ring for six weeks.

The 10 boys and 7 girls will leave on that date for Marathon, on a field trip. They will live at the Butterfill Dude Ranch until Aug. 10.

Dr. Gayle Scott, in charge of the trip, says that Marathon is ideally located for the purpose, since it is near the Davis Mountains and in the Big Bend country.

"Most common geological phenomena are represented in the area," he reports.

Dr. Scott has told his field-trippers to get out and start walking in preparation for the days of tramping that lie ahead. He also has pointed out that good heavy shoes will be a necessity and suggested to the students that they get a pair now and start wearing them at least enough to break them in.

The class—after it is broken in—will walk from 5 to 10 miles a day. Dr. Scott says. Riding horses were offered as a possible substitute, but Dr. Scott vetoed the idea. It seems, to be a geologist, a person must know how to walk.

The last field trip of this nature was made in 1939.

This time the school bus will be used for transportation, and "There will be no week-end trips back," Dr. Scott says.

Students will pay their own expenses and will receive six semester hours credit for successful completion of the course.

Add Corrections, Please

New T. C. U. Catalog Is on Registrar's Counter

The new T. C. U. Catalog with announcements of courses and faculty for 1946-47 is on the registrar's counter waiting for your asking.

The cover of white with purple typography surrounds the most informative and inclusive wealth of university lore ever pounded into 168 pages.

It starts out with a list of the faculty members and their B. A.'s, M. A.'s, B. D.'s, Ph. D.'s, D. D.'s, LL. D.'s, etc. (the "etc." is not a degree.) Historical data, scholarships, organizations are given on following pages.

But, as with all great works, it has its errors. Page 21—regarding the location of T. C. U., "It is less than 20 minutes' ride by bus from the heart of the city." Corrected, this would read: "It takes 20 minutes to get out of the heart of the city, head-toward T. C. U., on a bus."

Page 29, under grading and point system. The definition of grades begins, "A—Reserved for exceptional work." Obviously the work of a voluminous pen. Written correctly this would read, "A—Reserved."

Skip over to page 41 and wipe away the tears. The tuition fee has been raised from $7 to $9 a semester hour.

The wound is not too deep, for many of the cumulative fees have been abolished.

Next comes the actual outline of courses of instruction, all the way from "Invertebrate Zoology" and "Micro-paleontology" through "Determinants," "Applied Mechanics—Statics," down to "Synoptic Meteorology."

If you don't understand the title you read the simple explanation beneath a course such as "Radio and Electronics." The Catalog says it deals with amplifiers, oscillators, modulators, demodulators, diodes, triodes, multigrad tubes, etc. Then you know what it's all about.

Quarterback Politicians

Election time draws nearer, and, although there has been an assembly featuring music, speeches and introduction of candidates, plus a bulletin board laden with pictures of candidates, a campus poll would probably reveal that less than one-third of the students will cast a ballot Thursday.

The numerous "Quarterback Politicians" around the campus would bristle with righteous indignation if anyone mentioned abolishing student government. But try to get one of them to apply for an office.

Next fall, when the newly elected—and by that time forgotten—officers attempt to carry out the student government program, these same Q. P.'s will begin to sound off through the columns of The Skiff and in dormitory "bull sessions."

They'll yelp about "the clique that runs the campus," forgetting that anyone interested and willing to work can easily get a job "running the campus."

They'll yelp, "The guy was elected only because he was the only one who applied for the job" forgetting that 2999 other Q. P.'s could have applied—but didn't. In fact, seven out of every 10 Q. P.'s probably forgot their student activity cards, forgot to vote, or just didn't care.

Until recently this sort of editorial would have brought forth the horrified question, "Why worry about such trifles when there is a war on?" Now many will say, "Why worry about such trifles when famine faces the world?"

It so happens that such "trifles" as properly conducted student government on college campuses is one means of eliminating future wars and famines. If a student ignores government while educating himself, who expects him to take an interest in government after graduation?

Yep, the Q. P.'s are asleep again, and there's little hope they will "wake up" by ballot-casting time Thursday morning.

Freedom of the College Press—

Both the editor and assistant editor of the Daily Texan resigned this week after a turbulent career of politics and posies.

They gave up their positions because of the suppression of an editorial written by the Texan staff regarding the merits and demerits of the appointment of Dr. Painter as president of the university. The editorial also spanked the Board of Regents for telling city newsmen that all was "calm and serene" on the campus concerning the appointment, although it was obvious that the students and professors at the university were, to understate a fact, quite perturbed at the state of affairs.

The right or wrongness of the appointment is not this editorial's concern. But it is the concern of every college newspaper when the freedom of the press is impaired.

Press freedom is an inalienable right, given alike to all papers. It should not be allowed to be violated by any faculty committee or board of regents, who are afraid of criticism even by a student publication.

Furthermore, the right of expression through the paper belongs to every newspaper editor, whether he edits the Daily Texan, The Skiff or the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. When this right is taken away, the paper can no longer serve its readers fairly. It becomes a tool in the hand of politics. It loses its intrinsic ability to fight for what it believes to be the truth, in spite of party affiliations or disagreeing policies.

When the Texan editor, Horace Busby, resigned this week he was protesting this point. He, and every other editor, has the right to expect to have complete control of his paper's editorial policy, and the readers have the right to accept or reject the opinions. But—first of all—they have the right to read it.

"A Rotten Situation" . . .

The following editorial was printed in the Lubbock Avalanche April 20 and carried the heading, "A Rotten Situation." Since it is about the college and The Toreador has the same views about the situation, it is reprinted:

"An utterly asinine bit of 'sneak legislation,' rushed through during the closing hours of the last regular session of the legislature, has struck Texas Tech another blow—this time in the loss of Dr. W. B. Gates, head professor of English at the state institution here.

"Personally, the same muddle-headed legislation, which prohibits more than one member of a family from simultaneous employment by the same state institution, took from Tech's faculty Mrs. Gates. Like her husband, she is an extremely able teacher, Spanish and Portuguese being her specialties. An author of textbooks, Mrs. Gates admittedly is the state's No. 1 teacher of the Portuguese language so essential to persons planning residence in some South American areas.

"Mr. and Mrs. Gates—both with doctor's degrees—join the faculty of T. C. U. on July 1, T. C. U., not a state institution, being able to employ its professors on a basis of what they can do in a classroom, regardless of to whom they are married. Because of bad judgment, peanut politics and by reprehensible tactics, Texas Tech loses two more good teachers and Lubbock loses two fine, intelligent, forward-looking citizens of 21 years residence.

"We are happy, of course, that both Doctors Gates are getting more remunerative posts and we wish them well, along with T. C. U. But we think the first thing that State Sen. Sterling Parish and State Rep. Preston Smith should do when next the legislature opens is to spearhead a drive to repeal the 'sneak legislation' whose very authors have hidden behind legislative secrecy to keep the public from knowing who they are. To permit the law to remain on the books means a continuation of loss not only to Tech, but to other institutions, as well."—The Toreador, Texas Tech.

Behind This Week's Headlines —

Raley Dunn

It isn't often that one editor gets to "tell all" about another one, but the time has finally come. Editor Rheinlander talks about Editor Dunn.

Raley Dunn, who'll take over as skipper of the 1946-47 Skiff come September, will also inherit a seat on the reconverted Student Council. He'll be the "reporter-at-large" for the President's, the dean's and the registrar's offices, and he'll be the one to check the mail for the "Letter-go" column, or whatever he plans to call it.

A former captain in the Army, Raley can "parley vous francais" along with the best of 'em, and he also learned a smattering of Italian during his tour of duty.

Language isn't the only thing he brought back to the States after his overseas "trip." His wife, a former Army nurse, whom he married in Marseilles, came along with him.

A senior journalism major from Terrell, Raley edited the Cleburne Times-Review several weeks ago when the Skiff staff put out the paper there, and he was sports editor of the Gainesville Record during a field trip there Monday.

According to Raley, who'll be presented to the student body as noon today at a general assembly by the handstand, being editor of the paper is going to have one major drawback — "I'll have to work." But don't let him fool you, he likes it — a lot, that is.

Picked-Up Passing By
Teachin' and Fishin'
Bridge-Wacky

Roy Joe Cates is something of a superman these days. Besides going to school and taking part in dramatic productions, he holds two jobs, one as student assistant in the English office, and the other at a downtown flower shop.

Melvin Dacus is still feeling the effects of last week's production of "Green Pastures"—on his feet, that is. It seems that the prop crew forgot to furnish him with the necessary chair and he was forced to stand throughout the entire play, which lasted over two hours.

There's a new student on the campus these days. He's a blond variation of a cocker spaniel, and his "beat" is conveying coeds from the biology lab to the steps of the Administration Building.

Prof. Sherer has already made his plans for the summer. It's going to be filled with two things—quote: "Teachin' an' fishin'" unquote.

Be careful before plunking aimlessly into the registrar's office. Where you formerly turned left after entering, now you just enter—period. The counter has been moved to allow more office space.

Clark Hall has gone bridge wacky. This is proof: After one foursome had played all afternoon, an onlooker asked who was winning. One of the quartet replied, "That's hard to say. None of us knows how to keep score."

Frank Gremlin, who helped referee the Don Budge-Bobby Riggs tennis match last week, believes in "calling 'em like he sees 'em." Frank called a particularly close one in Budge's favor and Riggs didn't agree with the decision, but Frank stood his ground. After the contest, Riggs said (to Frank) the ruling had cost him $5000.

In a tree in front of Clark Hall a family of squirrels has built a nest. Some of the students are glancing that way with a hungry look in their eyes. "If mama and papa squirrel know about mass production, we might have a squirrel supper soon," says one.

An ambition of several years was fulfilled last week by Ellen King when she took her first flying lesson. "It was the greatest thrill of my life," she says. "If the weather will clear up, I may be able to solo by tomorrow."

Who said it's a man's world? Seeing a blue-jeaned acquaintance standing back-to-back in the drugstore last week, a burly footballer went over affectionately cursed him and clapped him on the back. To his horror, the "acquaintance" turned around to reveal herself as a lady blue-jeaned—and a pretty mad one at that!

Spanish classes on the campus are becoming very enthusiastic about the New Marine Theatre (theater to the uninitiated) which shows Spanish films daily. Many Spanish scholars of Mrs. Olive M. Dickie's classes have been recent movie goers there, and are urging lagging classmates to attend the forthcoming showing of the new Cantifillas movie.

"Classification of Enrollment in Detail," on pages 164 and 165 of the new general University catalog, covers the period of "July 1, 1945 to June 31, 1946." That's what is said. The catalog says it! One of those modern, revised calendars, no doubt!

The Parabola Club will have a dinner at the Blackstone Hotel at 7:30 p. m. next Friday. Don Cowan will speak, and Prof. C. R. Sherer will show colored slides made while he was in France. Musical numbers will be presented by members of the club.

Richard Sherer, ex '44, landed in Oakland, Calif., last week and expects to be home in a few days. Richard, son of Prof. and Mrs. C. R. Sherer, plans to re-enter T. C. U. when he receives his discharge from the Navy.

The Texas University Longhorns ran off with the Southwest Conference baseball title undefeated, finishing off the race with a 3-to-2 victory over S. M. U. Saturday in Dallas. The Steers finished their 14-game schedule a full five and one half games ahead of Baylor. The fact that Hurler Bobby Layne finished up with nine victories and no losses (including a no-hitter against A. & M.) pretty well establishes him as the toast of conference pitching.

From the Daily Texan, in a pre-game write-up of the Steers' game with the Frogs last week: "Monroe Harrelson possesses a fine arm and covers plenty of ground, but... can't hit." "Would be interesting indeed to know what the Longhorn bench was thinking when Moe poked that one over the leftfielder's head his first time at bat—and touched all the bases.

A high-handed gremlin sneaked into The Skiff's columns last week and changed the baseball score of the Frog-Texas game to "10 to 1." That worthy is to be thanked for knocking three runs off the total Longhorn score, but leave us face it, men—the score was 13 to 1.

Most of the visitors who attended Coach Hub McQuillan's basketball clinic were impressed by the way it was organized. Hub had his cagers demonstrate so many offensive and defensive tactics in so short a time that one visiting coach commented, "I don't see how he did it, yet."

If Hub has any hot high school prospects coming to the Hill next year, he won't breathe it to a soul. The coach knows the basketball ropes too well to give other schools a chance to lure prospective cagers away because of advance publicity.

If Paul Shodal's softball entry had been willing to gamble Tuesday, they would have won the intramural softball championship. John Cook's squad challenged Shodal's team to a game, but Manager Shodal would not agree to anything but a practice contest because some of his regulars were missing from the line-up. The practice game was played and Shodal's entry won 2 to 0.

Lettermen Subdue Squadmen In Cage Clinic Demonstration For Visiting Coaches, Players

The lettermen cagers nosed out the newcomers to the squad 51 to 42 in an intrasquad game Friday night, climaxing Coach Hub McQuillan's basketball clinic.

Although the veteran cagers were in the lead throughout the contest, fans were pleased with the hustle and all-around ability of both squads. Letterman Bob Hendricks' consistent tip-in ability was one of the highlights of the tilt. Letterman Bob Young, with 15 points, was high scorer.

Bruce Craig turned in the outstanding performance for the newcomers, with 14 points to his credit. About 50 high school coaches and players attended the clinic, which started at 3 p. m. and ended at 9:30 p. m.

During the afternoon, Purple cagers demonstrated fundamentals for the visitors. After the demonstration, a round-table discussion was held.

The clinic then convened in the Auditorium and saw a motion picture of the national N. C. A. A. championship game between Oklahoma A. & M. and North Carolina.

Lt. Hall expects to be discharged from the Marine Corps within the next two weeks, and plans to re-enter T. C. U. for the Summer Session.

He and his wife, the former Miss Geraldine Schmidt, also ex '43, will reside in Fort Worth.

JOHN L. ASHE One of the Nation's Finest Shops for Men

Step-Sittin' Favorite Pastime For Campus Day-Dreamers

"Aw, the Drug's too crowded. Besides, it's spring. Let's go sit on the steps." That seems to be the latest pastime of students as the weather grows balmy, and the rain never rains, it just drizzles, period.

"Step-sittin'" in front of the Administration Building is a necessity for PAT STAUDI, who says it's the only place she can think of when she's telling a person where to meet her.

Chronic step-sitter, and favorite of campus coeds, is Business Manager L. A. DUNAGAN, but since he refuses to talk for publication, it's anyone's guess as to why he took up the "habit."

Successful loafing is an art as far as JOE TILLEY is concerned. "A true loafer doesn't loaf," he yawns, "but only uses it to cover up the fact that he's thinking seriously."

For JOHN COOKE, Goode Hall steps furnish his only refuge for a pull or two at his six-cent cigars. Friends and neighbors won't let him fire up within walls.

FORREST BLACK uses dorm steps as a rest station for between classes. "I live halfway to Dallas," he moans, "and can't quite go that drugstore crowd—so there's nothing left but the steps."

NORMAN MORRILL and HARRY MULLINS are two of the numerous "football sitters" whose main purpose on the steps is to exchange predictions and odds on the "1947 champions."

Part-time sitter, JACK GOWIN has recently forfeited his title to more capable men since his purchase of a motor scooter. But when Jack sits he isn't particular where, as long as he can "watch the blondes go by!"

FRANK BEACH sits on the steps of Clark Hall in the evenings to "watch the Texas moon come up," while RAY BRISTOL and ROY TOMLINSON think the steps are a good vantage point to watch "interesting people."

Sitting on the steps of Clark is the way JAMES McCALEB gets his daily dozen. "I watch the people rushing about on all kinds of business, and sometimes there's a ball game going on—and it all makes me so tired I can go to bed and sleep like a log."

"Where do you think Skiff reporters get all their items for 'Picked-Up'?" asks LYNN FLEMING. "It's surprising how much gossip—that is, news—one can learn just a-sittin' and a-listenin' on the steps."

The ping-pong room in Clark Hall is a favorite sittin' place for many boys during the morning. There are so many waiting to play that they have to sit for hours before it's their turn.

CHRIS and JACK FARMER find the side entrance of the Administration Building a good meeting place between their class periods while CHESTER SMITH thinks stair-sitting is more profitable because he can usually find someone who can help him out with his lessons.

LIBBY DUNCAN and ERNEST BOSTICK think the benches on the campus are perfect because, after all "it's spring."

LUCY LINCOLN and JIMMY COOPER are among the many who want to read their mail in a hurry, and the south steps of the Administration Building is as far as they get before opening their letters.

Favorite spot to spend an hour between classes for PAUL LaGRAVE and CARL PARKER is the south steps. "It's a convenient place to get in a word to passing friends," says Paul, "and one never knows when he might make a new acquaintance—if she'll stop when we whistle."

CLYDE SMITH and FLOYD CASTEVENS can be found at least three days of the week using the steps as an open forum for their discussion of the merits—or, in their case, the demerits—of golf. "Somebody passing is always willing to give us 'the dope' on how it shouldn't be done," says Clyde.

Three Student Recitals Set for Next Week

Two individual recitals and a general student recital are scheduled for next week in the Recital Hall.

Miss Franceline Boone, also a pupil of Miss Tillet, will be presented in a junior piano recital at 5 p. m. Sunday.

There will be a general student recital at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday.

Graduate Fellowships Call For Student-Teacher Mixture

It is quality minus quantity when speaking of the quintet who hold graduate fellowships. Although there are only five of these rare specimens, they are as active as any group on the campus.

Jack Rollow was a senior on the Hill in 1942, but he entered the service at this time and did not receive his Bachelor's degree in English until he returned in 1945. He regards most of his military service as an educational blank, but he did take advantage of a short course at Cite Universitaire in Paris, France.

Rollow is now working on his Master's and also is teaching two sections of freshman English. He doesn't plan to do full time teaching until he has completed his work on a Ph.D.

Mrs. Mary Belle Hood Waddill entered Evening College in 1939, with 47 undergraduate hours to her credit. During the next four years she received two scholarships from the Fort Worth B. & P.W. Club. She received her Bachelor's degree in English in 1943 and began work on a Master's degree the same year. At this time she was given her first graduate fellowship.

In the fall of 1943 she dropped out of school to take a position as instructor in the Fort Worth public schools. She now has a leave of absence from the schools to complete her work on the Master's degree in English.

'Skiff Business Is Pleasure,' Says Paper's Manager

"There's nothing like it—absolutely nothing," says Mary Frances Potter as she prepares to finish up a year of being business manager of The Skiff.

During her "term" as head advertising agent and what-have-you, she has alternately asked for and refused ads from most of the business men in town.

She has also written copy for stores that don't have time to make up their own before the Wednesday deadline. Her most "profitable" papers, as far as the ads are concerned, are the football issues. "Everybody wants to advertise in the 'Homecoming Editions,'" she says. And one time she had over 250 inches of copy in The Skiff in a single issue.

The blonde (it's natural, too!) business manager says she averages some 15 miles a week just walking to pick up copy for the paper. And she insists that she wears out a pair of shoes a month.

A history major, Mary Frances will graduate in August. Her sister, Marzaurite, is usually called "Miss Potter" by students on the Hill, because she's a history professor, under whose influence Mary Frances acquired her liking for the subject. "I've only had one course under her, though," she says, "and that was a non-credit one in the Evening College."

Right now, Mary Frances is busy training another "manager" to take her place come September. The new trainee is Lynn Fleming, a journalism major whose interest vies between advertising and reporting. She's a "cub" on the Fort Worth Press at the present time.

Considering her whole year of managing The Skiff, Mary Frances has one comment to make. "Even if I did have to average all the bills each week, I still haven't learned to add. I have to use the business office's adding machine every time."

Mrs. Volbach, Former European Actress, Loves Texas Customs, Beautiful Women

"I was living in 'A Thousand and One Nights' the first morning I saw the sun rise over America," reminisced a small, dark-haired woman, Claire Volbach, born in Vienna, and wife of Dr. Walthar Volbach, T. C. U.'s newest professor of dramatics.

Her life story reads like the pages of a colorful romance, interrupted only by the dark chapters when Hitler's reign began to cast its shadows over Europe. "My husband and I knew then not much good could come out of the Hitler regime. It wasn't long before we decided to leave our home lands forever."

Claire had never thought that "home" would be an ocean away before then. She had attended the University of Vienna, and had studied to be an actress, but that was before she met Dr. Volbach. She had played in Vienna, Berlin and Stuttgart, when she was scheduled for her first big role of "Titania," in "Midsummer Night's Dream," in Bamberg, Bavaria.

Working at the same theater was a young stage director, Walthar Volbach, a native of Mainz, Germany. His father was a well-known composer, conductor, author and professor, while Walthar had become an actor. "Titania" and her actor were married a short time later in Bamberg, "and I gave up my theater career in order to be a housewife," Claire smiles.

Director Volbach's stage work took them to Danzig, Kiel, Stuttgart, Zurich, Berlin and Vienna. Wherever they went, Claire made it her hobby to learn the language of the country. She spent her time at the universities, and now speaks four languages—French, German, English and Italian—as a result of those days.

"We learned English early in school, however," she says. "We had less trouble writing it than American boys and girls, and concentrated much more on spelling."

When Hitler came into power in 1933 and made a decree that the border between Austria and Germany would be closed in two days for Germans who did not pay 1000 marks, or who were not on business, the Volbachs decided that one of them, at least, must get into the free country. Claire hurriedly packed and caught the last train to cross the border before the deadline. The couple carried on a coded correspondence, until Volbach could reach Vienna four months later.

From there they moved on to London, "always just one jump ahead of Hitler," as Claire puts it. Then in 1937, they both had their first glimpse of America, when their ship pulled into the New York harbor.

"I had the same impression as when I entered the harbor at Venice," Claire says. "It was something so unreal, like a marvelous dream."

Claire found life in America very different than in Europe. Her duties as a housewife were lightened because of the many electrical appliances.

"Only the wealthy can afford ice boxes and refrigerators over there," she says. "And I still envy American women whose husbands wash the dishes for them! My husband will never consent to that custom."

She found cooking in America so much different than in Vienna, too. "We are brought up on complicated rich desserts while American housewives are used to serving fruits and ice creams." And this is one custom Claire was ready to accept.

"And the women!" she sighs. "Especially in Fort Worth, I have never seen so many beautiful women. Even if the men do spoil them more over here, they are so interesting and friendly! And they are more independent, too. In Europe, it is not common for girls to work after marriage. The men do not marry until they are much older, and until they can support a wife."

As for American styles, Claire looks thoroughly Texan in her red and white striped sun dress.

"And I am simply crazy about cowboy clothes," she says. "The girls in America are what we call more 'chic,' while in Europe they can't afford to be well dressed. They make their own clothes, even their hats, and most of them have poor taste. However, they always dress formally when going to concerts and evening entertainment, while American girls go in suits and hats." Claire spends her spare time teaching German, at the same time maintaining an interest in dramatics. At one time she was active in sports, participating in Vienna tennis tournaments, mountain climbing and skating. She was third-place winner in the National Skiing Tournament of Austria.

"I am looking forward to the T. C. U. Fine Arts Building, hoping that some day we will have a professional theater here," she says.

The small, dark haired woman is still very much an actress at heart, as she lives in her America of "A Thousand and One Nights," but her memories of another day in a European city are not so fresh.

All in Day's Work!

Dean's Secretary's Problem Is "People With Problems"

The sign on the door reads, "Offices of President and Dean," but another important person on the other side of the door is Mrs. C. B. Orahood, secretary to Dean Jerome Moore.

Mrs. Orahood's job is to help keep things running smoothly for one of the busiest individuals on the campus, and it isn't a small job.

For one thing she must keep track of his appointments. "Occasionally we get things balled up, and two people show up to see Dean Moore at the same time," says Mrs. Orahood. "I take care of routine matters, but a surprisingly large number of people have problems that only Dean Moore can solve, and we have difficulty in finding a time to fit them in to his full schedule."

Even in the dean's office, things happen to break the monotony of appointments and routine office work, however. All kinds of people come in to ask all kinds of questions about all kinds of things. Then there was the embarrassing time when Paul Baganz, of the Veterans Administration office, came in to get some information on some veterans.

"The people in the Vets office are supposed to know that," said one of the student secretaries, "but I'm not sure they know what they are doing up there."

"I'm from the Vets office," replied Paul—and the entire office force wore red faces for some time after that.

"One of my most embarrassing moments was when the filing cabinet tipped over on me during registration."

My Achin' Arm!

"Which Is Worse?" Ponder Students---Typhoid or Shots?

"Will my arm swell up?"

"Is the needle sharp?"

"Will it keep me from going swimming at P. E. period? If so, I'll take it!"

Miss Nita Sager and Mrs. Vera Phillips, nurses, have to answer these and dozens more questions on the same order, as they go to work with their needles to protect T. C. U. students against typhoid fever.

"The questions don't end with the first shot, either," says Miss Sager. "The students come back with their arms stiff at their sides, certain that they are going to fall off any minute, wanting to know if the second shot will be worse than the first."

But so far, the nurses have had no emergency calls in the middle of the night because of the typhoid shots. The worst the injections can do is cause headaches and nausea—and they can be quite painful. Miss Sager and Mrs. Phillips are urging all students to take advantage of this service, or "some little bug is going to get you some day!"
