Debaters Reach Peak In Waco Tournament

The Frog forensic forces won six certificates at the Southern Speech Tournament in Waco last week to climax their most successful team effort of the season.

Both the junior and senior men's debate squad finished second in the tourney, each winning five matches while losing one. The senior team of Jerry Heltzel, San Antonio junior, and Austin Denny, Houston senior, dropped a decision to Pacific University of Oregon, while the junior team of Jim Cunningham and Jim Keen, Fort Worth sophomores, suffered their defeat at the hands of N. T. S. C. Wake Forest won the senior division and Louisiana Tech took the junior honors.

No Decision By E. C. Body

Evening College News To Continue One Issue

The Evening College Council reached no real decision as to the proposed discontinuance of the Evening College News when it met Friday. Publication of one more issue of the News, however, was approved by the members.

That issue will be released either Thursday or early next week, says Editor Ray Stokes, Fort Worth sophomore.

The council decided also, reports Vice-president John Adams, Ancon, C. Z., senior, to ask a representative from each of the night classes to report, at the April 22 council meeting, the feelings of the students on the publication of the News.

Adams says some members of the council had questioned that expenditure of $186 last semester for two issues of the News had been worthwhile.

'Wild Gunplay' Termmed Only Ranch Week Blot

Casualties as a result of careless handling of guns and firecrackers were the only blot on the record of 10th annual Ranch Week which otherwise was proclaimed a success by the Administration, faculty members and students.

Home-made blank cartridges where wax or soap replaced the lead slug were apparently the cause of a number of injuries. In other instances firecrackers either burned or broke the skin of victims.

During Friday's parade a downtown department store employee was shot by one of the blank cartridges fired by a T. C. U. student. On the campus, Miss Adele Eades, Brownwood senior, was also shot in the face. Several stitches were required to close a lip and face wound.

R. E. ("Hub") McQuillan, chief scout, received an elbow wound when a rifle he was carrying exploded. He was hit in the coat sleeve, and a bullet went through his shirt. He was taken to the hospital.

A Glance Backward

Generally speaking, Ranch Week was a success.

The idea of having the event in April paid off, for with the exception of the Saturday showers, the weather was nearly perfect.

As is always the case when a large group gets together to have a good time, a few persons have a distorted conception of what constitutes a good time.

Several incidents happened during the parade and on the campus which were nothing less than marks of immaturity on the part of the individuals involved. Each of these "mishaps" involved use of real guns loaded with blanks, soap and other matter.

In commenting on students' misuse of the guns, Dean Jerome Moore made it plain that such "carrying on" was an unfortunate development—one which the Administration did not approve or sanction. The Skiff feels the same way.

For future Ranch Weeks, guns should be limited strictly to the water or pop variety.

With the "week" extended to four days this year, more students took part in the activities and more persons enjoyed themselves.

Ranch Week was a success. But one reminder for next year—leave those real pistols at home! Someone could easily get hurt.

Speak Out

Someone once said, "To be great is to be misunderstood."

If this is an accurate assumption, T. C. U. is filled with great men and women.

Despite their exposure to higher education, many students and some teachers still find it difficult to express themselves coherently.

Complaints are often voiced concerning misuse of the King's English, but little is ever said about those who mutter and indulge in other disconcerting speech traits.

Perhaps their problem might be solved by requiring at least one course in public speaking before a student graduates. The annual Gough oratorical contest at T. C. U. shows the value placed on good speaking.

A college graduate who cannot express himself clearly may find it difficult to succeed "out in the world" where a man's worth is often judged by his ability to sell himself orally.

Few Will Forget

Easter—the Sunday of joy.

While churches throughout the city are sweet with white lilies and echoing with heavenly music, and hearts are throbbing with new hope and the celebration of the holy resurrection of Christ, few students will forget.

Easter means many things—new hats with delicate spring flowers, and the end of Lent, with its 40 days of penitence. And to many students, it means a chance to rest and think about their worthiness as children of God.

There will be colored eggs and the laughter of youngsters, bright sunshine and solemn worship.

With all this happiness, the heart and mind of every student should be filled with the remembrance of Jesus, who, 1949 years ago, rose from the tomb after having borne OUR cross up the Hill of Sorrows at Golgotha.

Few will forget.

The Lighter Side

One Deaf, Another 'Dead,' Constitution Has No Head, Is Dr. Nunn Turning Red?

By JUNE WELCH

Since Friday the Lighter Side office has been deluged with rumors of various misdemeanors on the part of Ranch Week celebrants, but most have found to be false. One such was that a certain Main Street pawn shop was the victim of a fake robbery. Oh boy, we thought, what a juicy bit of news. It too, was without truth.

Fort Worth freshman Gordon Boswell isn't hearing very well this week. He was one of the jokers who went around shooting blanks in their six-shooters during the western activities. Sometime over the weekend, in one of the more boisterous moments, he held his gun alongside his ear and pulled the trigger.

Henry Meadows, Temple senior, was shot and left for dead at the corner of Eighth and Main Streets as the Ranch Week parade was getting under way. After a large and curious crowd had gathered and an ambulance had been summoned, Meadows arose, dusted off his pants and walked away.

His assailant had used a blank in his .45.

Word reached Dr. A. O. Spain of the government department that one of the compromise constitutional committee members had stated that the present constitution was not journalistically correct.

Dr. Spain, who was one of the authors of the document, retorted: "What did he want us to do, put headlines all through it?"

Last week Dee Kelly, Bonham junior, vice-president of the Student Association and a male, received a letter from a cosmetics company enclosing a complimentary lipstick-mirror combination. The letter expressed the hope that, "the shade of lipstick will suit you."

We Oughta Be Shot For Repeating 'Em Department:

Word has reached the Lighter Side office that a man has invented a glass eight-ball so that a fellow can look ahead . . . In the spring the weaker sex is often stronger than the stronger sex because of the weakness of the stronger sex for the weaker sex . . . Dr. W. C. Nunn, of the history department, says that he would like to be a capitalist, but he lacks the necessary funds. Therefore, he is an ardent supporter of labor.

Rancheros Intoxicated?

Dear Editor:

Although it may be argued by some as to whether or not moderation in drinking is right or wrong, I think you would find few, if any, who maintain that there is any virtue at all in excessive drinking. I for one believe it is a damaging factor, both to the individual and to society.

Moreover, I feel the behavior of some members of our student body, especially during Ranch Week, displayed not only lack of self-control, but also lack of common sense. Definitely, it demonstrates lack of school spirit and a sense of community responsibility, since the unbridled appetites of these few may affect not alone the reputation of our school, but also the future observance of Ranch Week, which was only reinstated on trial in 1947, after the disastrous observance of the preceding year.

Without desiring to be unkind to any individual, I do feel that the exercise of self-control and common sense in regard to the problem of drinking would contribute toward making future school dances and observances more enjoyable occasions for all concerned.

Rhodes Thompson.

Skiff Misquotes Kilgore

Dear Editor:

The statement in the April 1 Skiff alleged to have been made by me that all persons not wearing cowboy outfits would be thrown in the fish pond was untrue.

When Skiff reporter Ot Hampton interviewed me in the lounge about Ranch Week the conversation went like this:

Hampton: "Do you think boys who do not wear western clothes should be thrown in the fish pond?"

Myself: "I guess so."

In the Skiff I was quoted as threatening those persons who did not dress as cowboys. Several students took issue with the statement and they wrote a letter to The Skiff in reply. June Welch

Letter Writers Apologize

Dear Editor:

We have just found that the quotation in the Skiff upon which we based our attack on Al Kilgore was untrue. For that reason our letter criticizing Al was unfair.

We are sorry we hurt Al. It was not our intention to harm any innocent person. If he or anyone else had made the statement he is alleged to have made he would have been open to criticism in our estimation. The fault lies with us for not investigating the statement before we spoke out concerning it. We assumed the story in the Skiff was correct.

We regret that we dealt unfairly with Al, and we are sincerely sorry.

Student Workers in Cafeteria Request Equal Easter Holidays

Complaints that student employees in the Cafeteria do not receive holidays equal to those of other student employees will be referred to the student welfare committee, the Student Congress decided Monday night.

Joe Hodgkins, Fort Worth junior, reported that several Cafeteria employees had asked him to see if they could have Easter holidays as dormitory monitors do.

Hodgkins said the complaints were caused because few people would be eating in the Cafeteria to require their being on duty. The boys are working for their board, they said, and if they were not on

'Christmas Gift' Sent to Replace Stolen Clarinet

Though it's a long time until Christmas, one faculty member is convinced that the spirit of the season extends into April.

He is Leon Breeden, band director, who was saddened March 30 by the theft of his two expensive clarinets. As his insurance on the instruments had lapsed two months previously, he saw no hope of replacing them without an extensive cash outlay. As he has corresponded for several years with Vito Pascucci of Kenosha, Wis., president of the company which made his favorite instrument, Breeden wrote to his friend informing him of his plight. He asked the possibility of obtaining an identical instrument and what the price might be.

Pascucci answered by sending the band director the firm's finest clarinet with the compliments of the president "because I feel your loss so greatly."

Fort Worth Man Donates 32 Books to TCU Library

The Library has been 32 volumes richer since Mr. W. H. Denman of Fort Worth divided his library between T. C. U. and T. W. C.

The books are fiction, covering several books of the Bible, children's stories and fiction for older readers. Each book is richly bound and illustrated.

The donation is being catalogued and will be out on the shelves in a few weeks, says Mrs. Bertie Mothershead, Librarian.

It was reported that dormitory monitors work for their room and board but get holidays off on the theory that they are not rooming and boarding if they leave the campus.

The congress agreed to take the matter up with the student welfare committee for future holidays. Prof. Charles R. Sherer, mathematics professor, is chairman of the committee. Miss Katherine Turano, Brooklyn sophomore, and Dick Brickley, Fort Worth senior, are student members of the committee.
