

Thanksgiving Day for Thanks, Too

There is a three-day stretch of holidays which comes late in the football season and which students joyfully refer to as Thanksgiving.

It is a breathing spell or a trip home or great party-time to various students, involving, rather incidentally, a turkey dinner and a church service or two. It is a time of rest, too, although many persons are prone to jam so much playing into the short space that they come back for the final pre-Christmas rat-race a little the worse for wear.

But Thanksgiving should be a little more than those things. It all started a long time ago, true, and its significance has faded slightly over the year, what with F. D. R.

changing the date a while back to accommodate Christmas shoppers, and other diverting influences such as grudge football games, etc.

Still the season should be one of Thanksgiving. The fact that we in America are so oblivious of what it means to be hungry or unclothed or sick in our souls that we rush over the holiday's real significance is illustration enough that we have plenty for which to be thankful.

Our fore-fathers started Thanksgiving in humble appreciation of a bountiful harvest against terrific odds. Just because we don't have to face those odds is no reason for forgetting.

Function, You All!

The president of the Student Congress says his committees aren't functioning.

He appoints 'em, but they just don't do anything, according to him.

So he asks The Skiff to blast.

Now, just when it became The Skiff's responsibility to see that the congress committees work, we don't know. We always resumed it was the president's business.

However, just to show that we're good ports, we've decided to make a deal with the president. We'll give his congressmen push if he'll take the responsibility for seeing that our reporters work. In other words, we'll do his work if he'll do ours.

What could be fairer? In the last meeting of congress, the president stated that "Although the semester half gone, the congress has done nothing concrete."

To this, we say "Amen." We don't know how fault it is, the president's or the committee's.

But, if it'll do any good, we'll cry out against all this.

Committees, consider yourselves blasted!

The Wheels Turned

Well, we made it through Homecoming again.

It was an ordeal for some, but nearly everyone had a good time over the weekend. Of course there were some who weren't affected one way or the other.

One thing safely can be said: All the events went off on schedule. The Homecoming committee stuck to its time-tabled things happened, ready or not. The jama parade and bonfire Friday night started the chain reaction with a minimum hitch. There was a good crowd and a fire and a lot of spirit. And it suffices say that the Flying Frogs put on a show the T. C. U. Theater shortly afterwards. The Homecoming parade rolled at 10:30 turday morning, and while there were some pretty floats, there weren't enough. The parade as a whole didn't reflect any great amount of credit to T. C. U. It seemed as though everyone ran out of time right at the last minute.

And that went double for the football game.

But it was a good time, all in all. Maybe the wheels can start turning a little sooner next year. An extra week to prepare for this Homecoming would have made a lot of difference.

On the other hand, too much advance notice for a thing like this can be pretty detrimental. This fact is evidenced by the enormous crowd of students who jammed the Casino Saturday night. The Casino earlier had been chosen as site of the Homecoming Dance, but the Student Congress had changed it last week to the Basketball Gymnasium. But everyone took off for the north shore of Lake Worth anyhow, and there was a comparatively meager attendance at the "barn" dance.

Reckon all those other students just forgot?

Now Is the Hour

Has it occurred to you? Did you know there are almost as many shopping days till Christmas as there are school days till final exam week?

Don't be alarmed—final exams are still scheduled to begin Jan. 23. But with two big holidays, Thanksgiving and Christmas, coming during the interim period, 36 school days seem few enough indeed compared with 26 shopping days until Christmas.

It has become the custom with countless students to quit studying at Thanksgiving and coast through until after the Christmas holidays. However much fun this may be, it is folly which is paid for in grade points.

Don't let the holiday spirit over-rule your better judgment. Get those books read and those term papers written—or you'll be celebrating New Year's alone under a reading lamp.

Westerns Are Okay, But...

BY LARRY DENTON

Talking to a couple of students and a faculty member the other day, we made a remark to the effect that our campus is intellectually dead end.

We were taken a little aback by the reaction. "Right," said the faculty member immediately. "Right," said the students.

All of which leads us to believe that the lack of mental stimulus around here is pretty obvious everybody concerned.

There are small groups on the campus who make a valiant effort to encourage thought and reaction of the "Y" the World Federalists, the Rational Relations Club and other clubs do a d job, but they reach only a small percentage of the student body.

Either more—a lot more—of the small groups, some well-organized large ones, are desperately needed.

Of course, there are those students who find the comparatively light mental strain of 15 lecture hours almost more than they can bear. Or classes, they seem to think anything stronger than a Western movie would drive them off their feet.

"Why should I want to go hear a lecture?"

Sleeping Late Over Thanksgiving?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Got the Spirit

To the Editor: When are people going to quit griping about T. C. U.'s school spirit? Ever since I came here as a freshman I've been hearing people complaining about "Nobody comes to the pep rallies," "We aren't backing our team," "We just haven't got any school spirit." Now some loud-mouthed woman newspaper reporter who sits over on the shady side of the field at the game in a comfortable pressbox, wearing her most expensive suit with a purple and white "mum" comes out with the perfectly insane statement that T. C. U. students don't yell unless their team is winning. Such trivial poppycock could be overlooked, but now it seems that our own school paper is backing such statements. I think it's about time some people shut their mouths and opened their ears for a change.

In the first place, it is a known fact that the majority of the students here are town students. Therefore it is impossible to compare the number of people attending the pep rallies with the number enrolled. In the second place, even the dorm students have definite schedules to follow—assignment deadlines, other campus meetings, etc. When a pep rally is suddenly inserted at 9:30 on such and such a night, it is quite difficult to drop a term paper, dismiss an important meeting, or something of that sort to attend a pep rally. For this reason I think our pep rallies have been pretty good. At least those who are there yell their heads off, and those hearing out of the dorms get a thrill. I don't think the team is that dead.

Now for the games. I wonder if this certain woman reporter attended the Mississippi game when the band played the entire second half and the stands roared while we were several points behind. I wonder if she happened to be listening to the Baylor game over the radio when all that could be heard in the background was the T. C. U. crowd yelling their heads off even though we were being stomped all over the field. Evidently she wasn't very attentive at that Texas game either, or maybe the T. C. U. student body should buy her a hearing aid for Christmas. Frankly, I've never seen such spirit in all my life. First of all, the train going down was jammed full of enthusiastic kids, cowbells, pom-poms, AND spirit. When the game first started, I don't think any of us around in our vicinity expected much, but we sure yelled for all we were worth and knocked ourselves out waving pom-poms and banging cowbells. OK, so we did yell extra special when we charged ahead. Who wouldn't? But don't forget that Texas made the first touchdown, and it seems to me that it was during this period I noticed our one section of kids was out-yelling that entire stadium Texas fans—WITH their band playing. Also, people don't break down and cry when their star player gets hurt if they haven't got spirit.

Take a look at our Homecoming plans last week. Rice was unbeaten and our team was pretty well banged up. Still, anybody who questioned would pipe up, "Sure, we're going to win." Other schools have donations of hundreds of dollars for their floats, but all we've got are a few savings, a little talent, plenty of enthusiastic workers, and LOADS of spirit. Nobody was able to complain about our parade. Go ahead and write your editorials and articles and I'll still say our little school has a better, more wholesome, and sincere school spirit than you'll find on any large, financially-backed university.

DALE MAYBRIER

Editor's Note: Incidentally, the writer of the Star-Telegram story was, and still is, we presume, of the male specie, Miss Maybrier. If we hadn't known you were of the feminine gender, we would have assumed this was another outburst of some exasperated guy against women journalists.

Utterly Sophomoric?

Like Song, Fans Keep Coming Back

BY FRANK BURKETT

The outlook wasn't brilliant for the Horned Frog team that day:

"The score was 20 to 14 with second left to play. "And so when two scores got called back, and Lindy heaved a pass

"And it got intercepted—'twas time to turn on the gas."

Or that's the way we felt about it, anyhow. Haven't been so bright down since the Baylor game last year. Makes one wonder if maybe football isn't emphasized beyond the bounds of reason sometimes.

The feeling a fan gets when a close one is dropped comes very near scraping the rock-bottom of human emotion. When the other side is staging a scoring marathon, tromping the old team to bits, there is despair, anguish and generally low feelings, but the realization of the loss comes on gradually. People start saying, "Oh, well, it's just a game," along about the first of the last quarter, and the nervous system adjusts itself accordingly.

But these final-second, do-or-die, make-or-break affairs are nothing but killers of rational equilibrium. The fan hangs in a vacuum of frenzied expectation, squeezing out hope and ruining his vocal cords. He knows not what to expect, and whatever does happen sends him to one or the other ends of his emotional elevator shaft.

And no amount of saying, "Forget it," or "That's the breaks," or anything else can arouse him from the fog of disappointment into which he plunges when watching the other team's quarterback sitting down with the ball as the clock runs out.

So we wonder, why all this depression over a contest of skill that just didn't happen to go our way? Seems utterly sophomoric to attach so much significance, to lay oneself open to so much heartbreak over a three-hour performance which has so little to do with the price of eggs.

What's that? Since we seem so down on the game, could you borrow our activity book for a friend who would like to see the game Saturday?

Whatsamatta, you got rocks in your head? We picked up our ticket for the game at 8:30 Monday morning. Miss the S.M.U. game? Why, we'll murder 'em! . . . maybe.

Berry, Walker to Tangle Last Time Here Saturday

Two of the finest football players in the history of the Southwest Conference will meet Saturday in their final conference duel as T. C. U.'s Lindy Berry and the S. M. U. Mustangs' Donk Walker lead 35 seniors into their final conference game.

For two years the Frogs and the Ponies have played to a draw. Both times Walker and Gil Johnson led the Mustangs from behind to get a tie for the out-played Mustangs. This year the Donker won't have Johnson to toss those touchdown passes to him. The Pony backfield isn't exactly weak, however, with Kyle Rote, Dick McKissick, Frank Payne, Johnny Champion and a host of others to back up Walker.

The Pony line is not what it was, and two defeats and a tie mar the S. M. U. record where last year only one upset was chalked up against the Ponies before Berry and Company came along.

Ponies Seek Revenge

S. M. U. may be looking ahead to Notre Dame, but it is likely that the Ponies will put everything they have into getting some measure of revenge for the past two T. C. U. "victories." Most of the Southwest Conference partisans may be rooting for the Mustangs against the Irish, but it is almost inconceivable that Coach Frank Leahy's six-deep team would wilt this late in the year.

Therefore it would seem that T. C. U. is the team S. M. U. must beat to keep from finishing the season with three straight defeats.

And the Ponies have a habit of coming back. Rice whipped the Mustangs, 41-27, and look what happened to previously undefeated Kentucky the next week. S. M. U. played what was probably its best game so far to win, 20-7.

A. & M. tied the Mustangs, 27-27, and the following game Arkansas was slaughtered by the Ponies, 34-6.

Baylor outscored S. M. U. Saturday, 35-26.

Eligibility Ends

It will be the last game against the Purple for 17 other Mustangs

In addition to Walker, Old Frogs Dick McKissick, Frank Payne, John Milam, Raleigh Blakely, Carl Wallace, Bobby Folsom, Fred Goodwin, Jack Halliday, Walter Roberts, John Cheney, Kenneth Blackburn, Billy Weatherford, Eric Lipke, Herbie Wales, Charles Rus-ley Jackson, Morelle ("Bull") Hicks, Roger McAuley, Shankle Bloxom, Doyle Malone, Roy Bassinger and Joe Urbis in their final game for the Purple.

Both teams need a victory in the worst way. A loss would dump T. C. U. into a tie with Arkansas just above the cellar-dwelling Aggies. A Pony loss would knock S. M. U. out of third place.

Another tie—the fans might not live through.

'Pony' to Meet 'Death' at Half

The Horned Frog Band will present "The Fable of the Pony and the Frog" during half-time Saturday. The S. M. U. "mustang" will cavort gaily across the gridiron to the tune of "Peruna" until attacked by the Horned Frog.

Premeditated murder is confessed by Drum Major Frank Kasko, Trenton, N. J., senior. The "pony" is to be blown to smithereens by a well-placed "bomb" after which the bandmen will place caps over hearts as they form a tombstone in silent respect to the deceased.

Also on the bill of fare is a swing version of "Horned Frogs on Parade."

Magazine Will Feature Department of Religion

T. C. U.'s department of religion will be featured in the December issue of World Call, international magazine for the disciples of Christ. The magazine is to publish a round-up of church school religion departments.

Pictures of faculty members and ministerial and Christian service students, plus a short article about the department, will be printed.

Giving An Owl the Bird

T. C. U.'s Big John Morton (with ball) gives the brush-off to a would-be Rice kicker in the third quarter of Saturday's thriller between the Frogs and Owls.

Frogs' Comeback Fails; Owls Score 20-14 Victory

BY JOE SHOSID

badly battered, slightly ruffled, Berry counted his few remaining feathers today, thankful for a 20-14 victory over a T. C. U. team which out-played, out-toughed and even out-scored Rice in a game which was a real test of the Frogs' ability to come back.

Three Scores Called Back

L. R. ("Dutch") Meyer's attack kids almost did the trick after the Owls romped to a 14-0 lead in the first 30 minutes of the game.

For the next 19 minutes the Frogs ran at will up and down the field, but never across the Rice goal. The Owls hung on like a punch-drunk boxer fighting gamely to protect an early lead. And everyone on the club from Coach Jess Neely to Gertrude, the stuffed owl, greeted the final gun with relieved anxiety.

Forced to pull out of a top-heavy defense in the first quarter, the Frogs worked an 8-2-1 defense to perfection with a minimum of variations in the final 30 minutes. Harold Kilman, Max Eubanks, minutes in the third quarter. A 43-yard drive culminated with Berry firing a spot pass into the pay-dirt region where Johnny Dunn collected the ball and six points. The play originated from the four and Homer ("Golden Toe") Ludiker kicked goal. Five plays later Rex Alford blocked Wyatt's punt on the Rice 12 and Wayne ("Booby") Rogers picked up the frisky ball and stumbled across the three chalk stripes into the end zone. Ludiker again converted.

DICKEY'S NOTE BOOK

By CHARLES DICKEY

FROG FANS will bid farewell Saturday to the 1949 T. C. U. football season. It hasn't been the kind of season everyone wanted, especially, most especially the coaches and players.

But it has had its rewards along with its disappointments. The "Cherry jinx" has been broken, and the conference leading Rice Owls were given their worst score so far.

The Frogs can't finish worse than a tie with Arkansas, which helps. T. C. U. and A. & M. victories would give the Frogs undisputed third place.

LINDY AND mates have a worthy foe in the Mustangs of S. M. U. Both teams have had disappointing seasons, far from what their fans expected, but both have shown the capacity to beat anybody when they were "right."

Conference and season records are about the same. T. C. U. has won two and lost three while the Ponies have two victories, two defeats and a tie in conference play. For the year, each has won five and tied one so far. The Frogs have lost three while the Ponies have dropped two.

WHICH ADDS up to a good season if not a perfect one for T. C. U. Berry has turned in a great performance in his final year to help make it the best season in seven years except for the record of the war-time 1944 championship team.

The "Man in the Iron Mask" has given much to T. C. U. All his time, energy and hopes largely went into his efforts to bring victory to his team. Broken teeth and cracked bones were only outward indications of the hammering the little tailback took from opponents who knew they had to slow up Berry to stop the Frogs.

He played his heart out in every game. We can be certain that he will do the same Saturday. That's the only way Lindy knows how to play.

Fried Mustang, Mebbe?

That could be what Captains Lindy Berry (left) and Don Narrell of the Horned Frogs are thinking about as they look at the Skillet Trophy. However, the purpose of the frying pan is cementing friendly relations between T. C. U. and its arch foe, S. M. U. It will be presented to the winning school after Saturday's game.

Trophy Dinner To Be Saturday

The annual Skillet Trophy dinner will be held Saturday night to award to the winner of the Frog-Mustang tilt the aluminum skillet which is a token of friendship between the two schools according to Bill Hamilton, San Antonio senior, president of the Student Association.

In case the teams tie, the visiting school is awarded the trophy. S. M. U. has won it twice and T. C. U. once. This is the fourth year the two student governments have met to exchange or keep the skillet.

This year's dinner will be held at 7 p. m., at Charles of New Orleans restaurant.

Other congress business to be conducted Tuesday night included:

1. A recommendation that the Student Congress finance a student directory.
2. Recommending to President M. E. Sadler that congress be allowed to solicit funds for a student union building, and that no campus group or organization be allowed to compete with the Student Lounge during its hours of operation.

3. Asking the board of trustees to raise the student activity fee to $2.50 instead of $1 in effect now. The additional money would be placed in a fund for a student union building.

4. Requesting that profits from all coke machines on the campus be consolidated into one fund toward construction of a student union building.

5. Recommending that a student book exchange be set up.

Dr. William C. Nunn, associate professor of history, was awarded a research grant at a meeting of the faculty research committee Nov. 17, Dean Jerome Moore, committee chairman, has announced.

Dr. Nunn will further his work on "A Study of the Flight of the Confederates into Mexico with Special Reference to the Carlotta Colony."

Contract Let For Lighting

The contract has been let for installation of a "white way" on the front campus and work will begin this week, M. A. Doss, superintendent of grounds, announces.

Empire Electric Co. was chosen to install the 15 lights that will be spaced from the Gymnasium to the north side of Jarvis Hall and between Waits and Foster Halls.

The lights will be duplicates of those on University Dr. Completion date will be in about three weeks if there is no hold up on materials, a spokesman for the electric company states.

For Cheering Comfort

Take An Auto Robe To The Game
Even a touchdown's no fun if you're freezing! But with a snug auto robe around you, you'll cheer warmly from kick-off to finish. The plaids are as spirited as a drum-major's strut... 60% virgin wool... 32% re-processed wool. Not just for football games, take it along for every outdoor outing... or curl up under it at home to read or nap.
