

Combined Rush, Howdy Weeks Proposed by Greek Committee

Sorority Group Suggests Revision of Rush Program

By GAIL ROGSTAD

A proposal to partially combine Rush and Howdy weeks was to have been submitted by the Rush Evaluation Committee yesterday.

Under the proposed plans, part of Howdy Week, often termed "America's Greatest Collegiate Welcome," would be eliminated.

To be adopted, the tentative plans will need the approval of Panhellenic Council, Congress, IFC as well as the Administration.

Under the revised schedule, rush would be held from Wednesday, September 8, through Tuesday, Sept. 14. Howdy Week events would run from Wednesday through Saturday, Sept. 15-18. Registration and orientation would continue during the second week.

Possible changes in the rush program followed for the past two seasons have been under consideration because "under our present system, many girls are terribly disappointed early in their first week of college," Miss Youngblood, social director said.

In fall formal rush, 97 rushees dropped out of the round of parties before the end of the week.

"Also, with the two weeks of parties following one another, rushees get a distorted view of college life," Miss Youngblood added.

Rush Evaluation committee is composed of the presidents and rush captains of the 10 Greek groups, their alumnae advisors, and Misses Ann Rapp and Mary Ruth Taylor, Panhellenic president and vice-president, respectively.

Administration representatives at the first two meetings of the series have been Dean of Women Miss Elizabeth Shelburne, Social Director Miss Youngblood, director of Religious Activities the Rev. James Farrar, and Dean of Students Laurence Smith.

In other business, the group elected to advance the deadline for rush registration. Next fall, applications postmarked after September 1 will not be accepted.

During the 5-day rush silence period, rushees will not be allowed to accept dates or phone calls.

Of the 403 rushees who qualified by attending orientation in this fall's rush, 91 dropped out of rush before the end of the week. In all, 303 coeds were pledged in formal rush, and an additional eight were placed in open rush immediately after the parties.

There are 1,486 undergraduate women at TCU, and 594, or 40 per cent, belong to one of the 10 Greek groups. Of the 565 freshman coeds, 256, or 45.3 per cent were pledged this year.

Students Offered Graduate Grants

A number of scholarships are available for work beyond the bachelor degree, Dr James Moudy, dean of the Graduate School, reports.

"The largest number of these grants are to found where the need is felt to be the greatest—for those training for college teaching, as well as in science and mathematics."

Dean Moudy is chairman of a central committee recently formed concerning graduate school scholarships.

Other members are Amos Melton, director of Information Services, and Dr. Comer Clay, professor of government.

"There are two rules in obtaining a graduate scholarship," Dean Moudy said. "First, having a good undergraduate record and second, applying early and carefully."

The two main types of scholarships are those made possible by the state and by the university.

Worker 'Fair' After Explosion

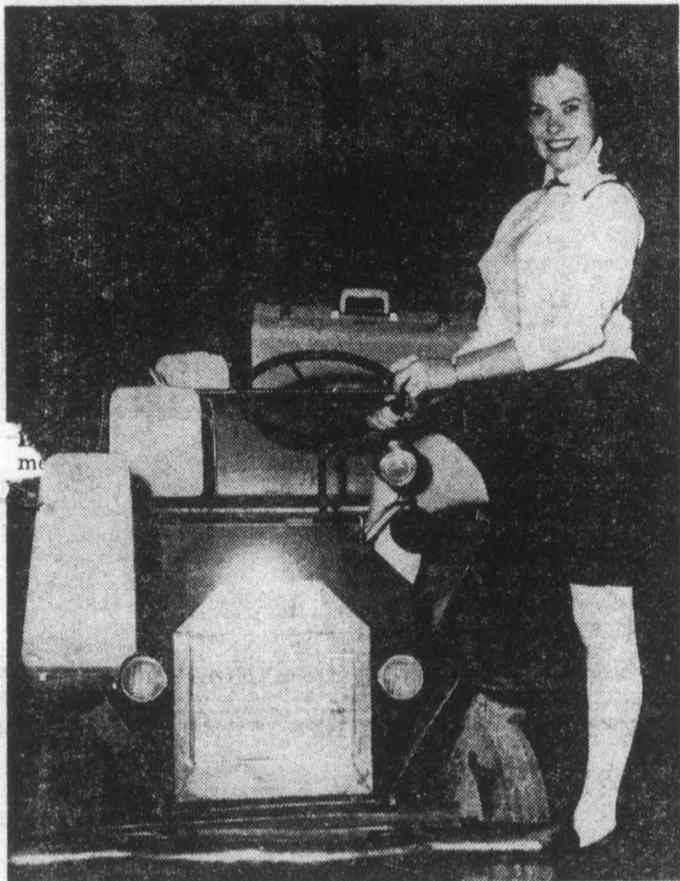

Manley C. Montgomery, maintenance worker, is in fair condition at Harris hospital after being injured Saturday when a fire box on a boiler exploded in the Science Building basement.

He suffered first and second degree burns on his face, arms and hands, and a gash on the back of his head when he was knocked into a concrete slab by the explosion.

The explosion occurred when Montgomery attempted to light the boiler. Gas accumulation was believed the cause of the explosion.

Before he was taken to the hospital, Montgomery said, "Yesterday I had a suspicion there was a gas leak — today I found out."

The explosion caused an estimated $1,000 in damage, scattered debris over the boiler room, and broke a plate glass window that separates Chief Engineer I. L. Dees' office from the boiler room. Dees was in the room at the time of the mishap, and barely escaped injury. Most of the damage was to the boiler which will be reconditioned. The other two boilers in the room were not damaged.

This year's events will honor the class of 1937.

The first event of the festivities unreels at 6:30 p.m. Thursday with a pep rally in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The Homecoming Queen will be announced at the rally, and The Skiff, carrying a story on the queen, will be distributed afterwards.

Exes will begin registration in the SC Friday morning, and will continue through Saturday.

The Ex-Letterman's Association will honor all athletes who have earned the Purple T during their college days with a banquet at the Hotel Texas at 6 p.m. Friday.

Journalism exes will be honored with a banquet at the same time in the press room of Dan D. Rogers Hall.

The Homecoming Queen and Coming Home Queen will be introduced at a pep rally and bon fire at the Stadium grounds at 8 p.m. Friday. Both of the queens will light the bonfire.

Mrs. W. P. Higgins, the former Miss Ruth Connor who was the first TCU Homecoming Queen, has been selected to represent the class of '37 as Coming Home Queen.

The honored class will hold a reunion coffee in Room 300 of the SC at 9 a.m. Saturday.

The 1932 exes will also hold a reunion at the same hour in Room 210 of the SC.

At 10 a.m. Saturday, approximately 25 floats representing various campus organizations will be judged in the Homecoming parade in downtown Fort Worth.

Both the Army and Air Force ROTC units will march in the parade along with some 30 high school bands. The bands will be in the city for the annual band day ceremonies and will play during the football game Saturday afternoon.

Awards will be presented to the hardest working ex and the most valuable alumnus by the Ex-Students Association at a luncheon in the Ballroom at 11 a.m. Saturday.

At 2 p.m., exes will get to see Abe Martin's 1957 version of the Horned Frogs tangled with the Rice Owls down in "Dutch's Wind Tunnel."

After the game, a special get-together for exes and students will be held in a tent

Committees Suffer Budget Slash In Aggie Compensation Payment

Student Congress agencies accepted budget slashes of $569.50 Tuesday to pay Texas A&M Cadets for the losses they suffered here during their Corps trip Oct. 19.

Hardest hit by the cut was the hospitality committee, where $200 was slashed from the original allotment of $700.

Other committee slashes included art and decorations, $50; dance, $75; United Religious Council, $50; sportsmanship conference, $50; student directory fund, $25; and student award fund, $50.

The remaining $69.50 was cut from the unappropriated fund.

Bob Roch, Congress vice-president, explained that the $25 deducted from the student directory fund would have no bearing on the salary of John Morehart, who is compiling the directory.

Morehart had agreed to compile the directory for $75. A total of $100 had previously been allotted to the directory fund.

The budget cut was worked out by Roch and Treasurer Tom Lyles so as to have as little bearing as possible on student activities the remainder of the year.

Industrial Relations Meeting To Study Strike Arbitration

By DAVE SMITH

Some of the nation's leading authorities on labor-management affairs will participate in a conference on arbitration and industrial relations here Tuesday and Wednesday.

The event is being presented by TCU and the American Arbitration Association in conjunction with other organizations interested in labor-management affairs on local, state, and national levels.

"If men use arbitration as a means of settling labor disputes, instances such as the Lone Star Steel strike may be avoided," Dr. Murray M. Rohman, associate professor of industrial relations, and chairman of the planning committee for the conference, stated.

Among speakers and moderators will be Joseph A. Jenkins, Washington, D. C.; member of the National Labor Relations Board; Joseph S. Murphy, New York City, vice-president of the American Arbitration Association, and Elmer E. Walker, Washington, D. C., general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists.

Highlight in the conference will be a demonstration of an actual arbitration case. "The case will involve a man promoted out of line of seniority," Dr. Rohman explained.

Presenting labor's case will be William E. Sewell, Atlanta, Ga., grand lodge representative, International Association of Machinists; Roy Evans, Grand Prairie, president, United Auto Workers Local 893, and J. W. Sifford, Hurst, member, Transport Workers Union Local 509.

Management representatives for the mock case will be Frank W. Newmann, regional manager, labor relations, American Airlines; Leon H. Brachman, secretary-treasurer, Marco Chemical Co. and Kenneth W. Ebert, office manager, Container Corp., all of Fort Worth.

One of three arbitrators (judges) presiding will be Dr. Rohman.

Opening addresses at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday will be given by President M. E. Sadler and Dean Ike H. Harrison of the School of Business. Panel discussions and lectures are planned.

A luncheon is scheduled at 12:30 noon, with more lectures to follow.

Question periods, panel discussions and talks are slated for Wednesday morning. A talk on "Faith in Labor-Management Relations" is scheduled for the luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

Wednesday afternoon the mock arbitration case will be held.

Admission to the conference is $17.50 for two days and $10 for one.

Students to Visit Flat Top Ranch, Study Soil, Water Conservation

The geography department will take the last of four field trips to Flat Top Ranch Sunday, Nov. 24.

The cattle ranch, 100 miles south of Fort Worth near Walnut Springs, is regarded as an ideal place for the students to study soil and water conservation because it is reclaimed land once considered useless.

"Most of the area between Fort Worth and Flat Top is abandoned farm land," Dr. Martine Emert, geography professor, said.

"On the trip down we can see what happens to land that is not cared for," she said. "At the ranch we see how proper soil and water conservation can make a place productive again."

Flat Top is now considered one of the most beautiful ranches in Texas. In 1955 a group of Soviet farmers touring the country asked to see a ranch and were taken to Flat Top, one of the few ranches not hurt by the drought.

The students will take a lunch and spend the whole day on the ranch studying the irrigation methods and other ranch facets.

Spanish Classes Report Increase

"Enrollment in the foreign language department has increased 21.2 per cent over last year," Dr. Jerome A. Moore, dean of the AddRan College of Arts and Sciences said.

"This renewed interest in the study of languages is a part of the public's realization that their world is becoming more international every day," he added.

The largest gain is in the Spanish department with 506 students, an increase of 109. French, German and Latin also experienced a similar growth.

The total enrollment for the foreign language department is 1,066, a rise of 185.

Honor System Plans to Be Made Available to Faculty and Students

Student Association President George Depée Tuesday accepted a volunteer committee of Student Congress members to adopt a statement of purpose for a proposed honor system at TCU.

The committee will meet today at 2 p.m. and draw up the statement of purpose, which will be distributed to all campus organizations and clubs.

Congress members volunteering for the committee were Max Rightmeyer, John Tyson, Miss Suzy Sawyer, Bill Steele, John Moore, Jerry Johnson, Miss June Pence, Howard Grant and Tom Lyles.

Depée stated his view in his campaign platform published in the April 5 edition of The Skiff:

"Several students have expressed their desire for the legislation of an academic 'honor system', the details of which must be worked out by Student Congress."

Depée told Congress that he had made a study of the other universities throughout the country that successfully employ honor systems.

He defined an honor system as including academic honesty and dishonesty, parking courtesy, general campus courtesy and respect for campus property.

"The student body is primarily responsible for the success of an honor system," Depée said.

If approved, the honor system would be governed by a student honor court or council, which would be composed entirely of students or a combination of students and faculty members.

The primary function of the court would be to accept the charges brought against students in academic dishonesty cases.

Depée said that the purpose of the court should be to bring about an awareness of the moral and ethical responsibilities of students rather than punish them for infraction of the honor system rules.

If the adoption of an honor system is favored by students and the Administration, details will be worked out later by Congress.

Depée said that one of the main problems in any honor system would be having students bring charges of academic cheating against fellow students.

Vice President Bob Roch said that he felt there was an awareness of cheating at TCU, and Grant said he believed that an honor system would be conducive in combating dishonesty, since it would be a student body project.

Aw Rats!

4 Research Rodents Reside in New Home

The TCU expansion program marches on. For the first time in the school's history there are authorized rats on the campus.

Please don't send for the exterminators because the four rats in question are white and valuable.

Dr. Ernest S. Barratt, professor of psychology, serves as warden of rat farm, and takes loving care of his charges.

The four rats, Betty, Judy, Gail and Hercules, reside in comfortable wire homes, with running water, plenty of food and other modern conveniences.

They don't have to worry about the steam heat going off either, as they have their own thermostatically controlled electric heater.

And of course, they have to work for a living just like humans. They made their debut Wednesday, performing for four sections of General Psychology 321 classes. They were tested on their ability to run through a maze.

The department expects to buy more rats as soon as cages can be built. Betty, Judy, Gail and Hercules won't have any additions to their family, though, because they are all males.

Holy Land Viewed By Bible Teacher

By HARVEY FORT

"This is the spring where Elisha threw salt to make the water wholesome, and it is still a water supply for an area 9 by 15 miles," explained Dr. Paul Wassenich, associate professor of religion, showing slide films to his survey of the Bible class.

In the picture was a spring and a clear stream of water, women in ancient holy-land garb, and a United Nations' water supply truck.

This picture was one of 600 taken by Dr. Wassenich during his travels in the summer of 1954.

His trip took him to Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Turkey, Greece, Italy, Switzerland, France, England and Scotland.

"I felt if I had the information first hand, I could teach the subject with more realism," said Dr. Wassenich.

Dr. Wassenich, following the footsteps of the Apostle Paul, traveled by airplane, train, taxi, jeep and camel to see the desired places.

On one train, Dr. Wassenich was befriended by two Moslem soldiers who shared with him the last of their food supply.

During his travels, he found many artifacts including spear and arrow tips used in the Bronze Age, lamps dating as far back as 500 B. C., a doll made by Jericho refugees, and other articles dating back to Christ and before.

He visited such biblical and historical locations as the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane, Calvary and the birthplace of Christ.

"When I saw these places, the feeling I had was so profound that it could not be expressed in print," Dr. Wassenich said.

"Coming back to New York after seeing these monuments and ruins, I wondered what a city like New York will be like in 2,000 years." "The cultures that will continue to exist are those whose people acknowledge the sovereignty of God, and commit their lives to his way. The ruins of cultures are those of people who have said no to God."

Dr. Wassenich received a B. A. degree from TCU in 1934, an M. A. in sociology from the University of Texas, an M.A. in religion and B. D. degrees from the University of Chicago. He also has done one year of post graduate work there. He received an honorary LL.D. degree from TCU in 1954.

Before he returned to teach at TCU this fall, Dr. Wassenich held pastorates in Hicksville, Ohio, and Detroit, Mich. For 11 years he served as director of the Texas Bible chair at The University of Texas. He is now serving on two national committees, theology and social action and association of disciples for theological discussion.

Dr. Wassenich's wife, Ruth works in the Library. They have three children, Mark, 15, Thomas, 11, and James, 7.

"Hey, Joe, how did you like Homecoming this year?"
 "Cool, man, cool. Our frat's float won a trophy, my girl's dorm won the decorations award and my sister was Homecoming Queen. This was a swingin' Homecoming."
Too Little, Too Late "Joe, wonder how the exes liked Homecoming?"
 "Migosh, y' know, I forgot they were even here!"

Will that happen next week?
 In recent years organizations have emphasized the student side of this fine tradition.
 Float and dormitory contests have neglected the focal point of all Homecoming activities: the ex.
 Floats are here to stay. The Skiff does not deny this fact. It does, however, deplore the complete exclusion of the ex from the float theme.
 About 30 beautiful floats will be in the parade Nov. 23, but probably none will be dedicated to the class of '37. Not one will say "Welcome, exes. Glad to have you back!"

This is a shame.
 Float themes should be adjusted to include the ex, to highlight the honored class and to present, via the floats, high points of the honored year.

The same should hold true for the dormitory decorations.
 Spirit-raising decorations are fine and necessary, but without too much trouble, the interior of the dorms could be arranged to include the ex, the most important person at Homecoming.

A few coeds, acting as greeters and dressed in the styles worn by the honored class in its college career could conduct tours through the dorms.

It would be a small thing, but it would be appreciated.

Let's put the "Home" back into Homecoming, and let the ex assume his rightful place of honor in our floats and decorations.

It's his day; let him have it and savor it.

A Healthy Sign

The pink cheeks and radiant vigor of TCU are beginning to show.

Goode Hall is going to be torn down.

Much sentiment can be attached to what is old, but let there be no regrets, for the old must give way to the new.

For many an alumnus, the act probably will border on infidelity.

Goode Hall was built in 1911 at a cost of $34,000. For a while it served as a dormitory for ministerial students, and a dining hall and club boarding house was operated in its basement. In recent years it has been the scene of many water fights and even more firecracker explosions.

That it should go conforms with the nature of things and is a sign of health.

For continual health calls for the replacement of worn-out parts. It is impossible to survive with an accumulation of the old.

The steady expansion of the campus is gratifying and indicative of strength and purpose.

The University has reached the point of displaying its vigorous state. It is tearing down, tearing down to grow and make room for the new.

Onward and Upward

The number of "superior students" entering TCU has increased steadily for the last two years, according to Dr. Thomas F. Richardson, dean of admissions.

This increase is emphasized by the fact that all freshmen granted scholarships in AddRan College of Arts and Science this fall had a high school grade average of A, Dean Richardson said. A total of 120 scholarships have been given to valedictorians and salutatorians in the last two years, he added.

Besides the "superior students" now coming to TCU, the ones already on campus have given two fraternities a grade average of 1.5 for last spring and three sororities an average of 2.00.

This increase in academic level will attract more such students to the University, bringing the day nearer when TCU will be as well known for scholastic standing as for sports.

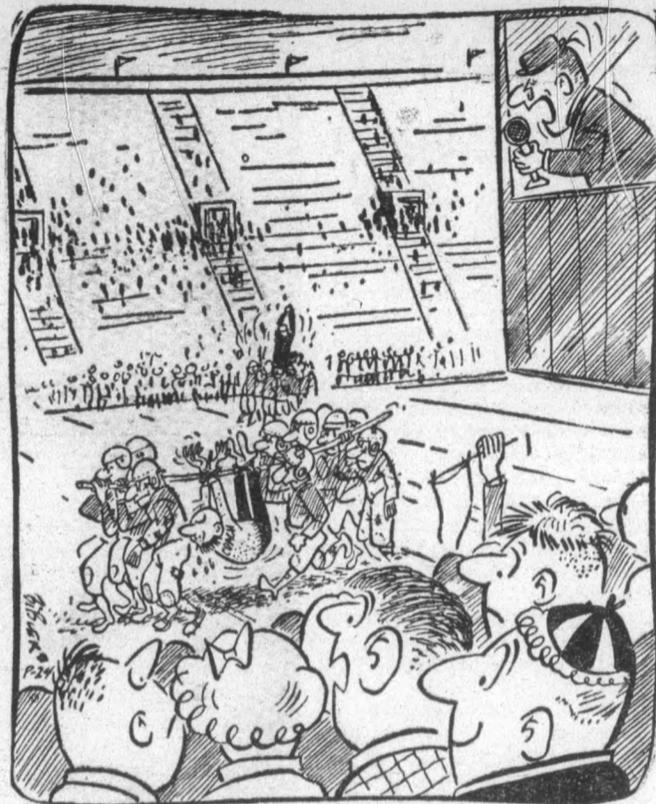

Guests on Campus

Leading authorities in the labor-management field will convene at TCU Tuesday and Wednesday for an arbitration conference in Dan D. Rogers Hall.

With the stigma of the Lone Star Steel strike still fresh in the minds of Texans, many eyes will be focused on TCU and the arbitrators.

The event is being sponsored by the University and the American Arbitration Association. Speakers will include dignitaries from local, state and national levels.

The conference will bring added prestige to TCU as the University makes a diligent effort to breach the gap between labor and management.

The Pharisee

The Lost Dauphin

By FRANK PERKINS

Once upon a time, in the land of Never-Never, there was a king whose name was Ex.

Now this Ex was in reality a peasant, and a peasant he remained until the one day in the year when Ex and other of his kind were made kings.

This happy time was known as "Homecoming" and the peasant-kings journeyed to their Alma Mater, and ruled happily for a day, being feted, wined, dined and greeted warmly by admiring student-subjects, and spending happy hours talking with their classmates and reliving the "good ol' days."

But, alas, one sad day, Ex journeyed to his Alma Mater, and found to his dismay that he was no longer feted and wined and greeted warmly by admiring student-subjects.

Instead, the subjects rushed about gaily building floats, and decorating dorms, and having happy games and joyous frivolities which did not include him, nor others of his kind.

Ex was jostled and pushed and bumped into and stared at and generally made to feel unwelcome.

He was ignored by a majority of the subjects, and when a few, whose job it was to greet him, greeted him, they rushed him from a tea to a coffee to a buffet luncheon to another coffee to a tea and back to a buffet luncheon.

He had no time to talk with his brother kings.

He was then shoved into an automobile and whisked downtown to stand in a press of people and stare at a long, involved and incompetent parade, complete with floats which he did not like, nor comprehend, noisy crowds, off-key bands and snarled traffic.

After the parade, Ex was pushed into the car and driven willy nilly back to the campus to push, fight and stagger his way through a crowd of brothers, student-subjects and outsiders to watch an endless football game.

At the end of the endless football game, Ex was double-timed over to the Student Center to eat a cold supper, surrounded by strangers, and feeling quite alone and friendless.

Ex arrived with his queen at the Homecoming dance and was once more disappointed.

No one was there but the young student-subjects, and the orchestra played rock-'n-roll endlessly, forcing Ex and his queen to sit idly and watch the wild gyrations of the "bop."

Ex, you see, could only waltz and two-step.

Finally, as a sop to Ex, and others of his ilk, the band limped through "Now is the Hour," and Ex and his queen did a tired two-step and left.

Once safely home, Ex took off his shoes and soaked his aching feet and vowed "never again."

And so, Ex remained a peasant, and never once more became a king and lived out his life pleasantly.

MORAL 1): A rushed Ex gathers no moss, nor does he enjoy Homecoming.

MORAL 2): The best laid Homecoming plans often fail to include the Ex.

Editor, The Skiff,

It was with great interest that I stepped into the "bookstore" today, for I had heard that it had made another step toward actually becoming a bookstore. And it was true. There before my eyes were standing new racks containing the Modern Library books. Congratulations to the store.

Congratulations should also be given to John Moore since he was instrumental in convincing the "bookstore" that this series would fulfill a need on campus. Oh, for more students like him who would do more than just gripe!

Richard L. Gorsuch

Editor, The Skiff,

In the Frog Horn there is a very clear and concise statement concerning hazing at TCU... "Hazing of any kind is forbidden." It is also clearly defined on Page 20 "as making any student commit any embarrassing, ridiculous or abusive act, physical or mental, willingly or unwillingly." Page 49 in the General Information Bulletin also states, "Any acts directed against a TCU student by another student, or by a group of students, will be considered hazing, if the intent or the effect of such acts would intimidate the student or submit him to indignity or humiliation."

Because of this policy, a certain fraternity was put on social probation for infraction of this rules. Yet the Administration not only condones, but encourages Leti and the Frogettes to break the very same rule.

Is there anything dignified or lady-like about the exhibition put on Thursday night when freshman girls were initiated into Leti? What girl wouldn't feel ridiculous and embarrassed having to appear in ludicrous garb, and having to do the things the Frogettes did? All of this takes place under the eyes of the Administration in the Student Center. Would a group of men be granted the same privilege?

Parents send their sons and daughters to a university, expecting them to be treated as college men and women—on an adult level. What a rude awakening it must be when they visit the campus on the famed Parents' Day to find them dressed like babies, riding tricycles and emulating kiddies in every conceivable way! If this treatment is considered conducive to the development of mature adults,

Beans and Bach Clash in Cafeteria

By BOB BRUTON

Now even your usual drab cafeteria meals are no longer safe from the inroads of progressive education.

Although I am a confirmed town student through necessity, I sometimes find myself "enjoying" a meal in the cafeteria.

Such was the case earlier this week. The usual serenity of the noon meal was suddenly shattered by what could only be described as a deluge of classical music being poured into the cafeteria through the P. A. system.

To myself, I quietly decided someone had changed the radio from one of the local stations to one of the "good music" stations.

At first, my reaction was rather passive, but as time wore on and selection followed selection with crescendo cascading on crescendo, I suddenly realized I was caught in the death grip of the most dreaded of all monsters: "Muzak" or its counterfeit half brother—continuous music.

Let me hasten to point out "Muzak" or continuous music both can be very pleasing to the ear and restful to both mind and body when administered in proper amounts of the right music blended together.

However, a full program of the heavier classics during the noon meal is not only in poor taste but does not do justice to really great music.

Music of this caliber should be listened to and enjoyed in the proper mood. Music of this type is not conducive to conversation nor is it compatible with the surroundings in which it must be endured.

Further investigation brought out the facts that the tape recorder and the blank tape had been purchased by Student Congress, and that obviously little thought had been given to the programming of music and little if any attempt was being made to improve the overall presentation.

I don't believe anyone, not even "Elvis," listens to rock and roll all the time nor do I believe anyone listens to the London Philharmonic all the time.

Somewhere, somehow, there must be someone who must hold enough power and know enough about music to achieve an even balance in the musical fare offered over the "piped" system.

Reflecting back, spending that much money for tape recorder and tape seems a bit foolish. There are some twenty-odd stations in the area offering music of every type. From these stations can be gleaned music to suit every taste.

In addition some students depend on the newscasts heard throughout the day to keep them informed of what is happening in the "outside" world.

To say there are too many commercials or too much Rock and Roll is just plain nonsense.

I dare say an FM tuner and antenna could have been installed in the system for less than half the cost of the recorder.

If we must be subjected to taped music with cafeteria meals let's at least make the music as palatable as the food if not more so.

MISS SANDRA TERRY... Freshman Prom Queen

Frosh Pick Miss Terry As Queen

Miss Sandra Terry, Freshman Prom Queen, is no newcomer to honor-winning.

Her coronation at the recent prom was the second of her distinctions during her short college career here, as the Dallas freshman was chosen lowerclass representative in the fall elections.

"Sandy," a 1957 graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School, is a commercial art major.

She chose her field early, and holds first and second places for two consecutive years in the Texas Industrial Arts Fair held annually in Dallas.

Both prize-winning exhibits were tapestries.

"I feel that the best practical experience in art I've had was in the advertising department at Sanger's department store this summer," she said.

At Woodrow, Sandra was chosen as senior favorite and cheerleader. She is a former Dallas All-City Basketball Queen.

The versatile brown-eyed coed also models, and is a member of A. Harris' & Co. College Board in Dallas.

Versatile Winter Coats Are New Fashion Look

By GAIL ROGSTAD

Strong north winds forecast a long winter for TCU, but coeds find they have an exceptionally wide range of colors, materials and styles in coats to keep them warm.

Coeds and fashion experts alike cast a majority vote for the full length coat. Warmth, versatility, line and a luxury look may be accountable.

The distinctive newness which marks these coats are in the fuller back, larger collar, and greater detailing. Designers have produced in these coats a combination which gives maximum flattery and style to be found even in a coat in the minimum price range.

Fur, always a favorite, seems to have reached an all time peak as fabric of the year. The starring pelts appear both solo and in supporting roles, as trim.

The raccoon coat of mother's day is re-appearing on college campuses throughout the country.

As in all fashion areas including formal wear, tweed with velvet trim is new, distinctive and in demand. Other fabric choices include cashmere, its synthetics and wool.

For casual warm attire, the new durable leather jacket leads the field in colors as warm as the jacket itself.

This year's coats have received a promotion—they may be termed beautiful as well as functional. That's a bonus any woman might welcome.

Float Chairman To Meet Today

A meeting of all campus organization float chairmen will be held today at 3 p.m. in the basement of Clark Hall.

John Moore, co-chairman of homecoming activities, requested that the float chairman of all groups entering floats in the Homecoming parade be present.

Evening College Will Hold Mixer

The Evening College will hold its first social mixer of the semester at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Center.

All refreshments and most of the recreational facilities will be free to Evening College students and their guests. The jukebox will provide music for dancing in the Snack Bar area.

At 6:15 p.m. today the Evening College Council will meet in Room 205 of the Student Center to make plans for the annual Christmas party.

The evening students will have a float for the Homecoming parade, but plans are not yet complete.

Last Friday the council appointed John Hopkins as editor of the Evening College News, and the reporting and photography staff was selected. Mrs. Alberta Craugh is executive director of the paper.

then the students should have stayed in high school where such antics might be more appropriate.

It has been said by a member of the Administration that TCU girls should always be dainty and feminine, and for this reason Bermuda shorts and treader pants are forbidden. How inconsistent can rules be when these same girls are told to appear in kiddy attire?

The freshman beanies are paid for by the Howdy Week Committee and were originally intended to be worn to all H. W. activities. However, Leti has taken complete charge of the lowly beanie and prolonged and regulated the how, where and when of its wearing. All this in spite of the fact that this organization does not contribute one cent for its cost.

In fact, just what is Leti's contribution to TCU?

If hazing by fraternities is not representative of TCU, then certainly freshman girls should be treated in a more adult manner and a more significant method of de-capping freshman boys, as well as girls, should be inaugurated before next year.

In the light of having TCU appear as a mature university, let's abandon Kid Stuff on all occasions.

New Series Committee Plan Put Before Administration

Under a new plan devised earlier this week, Select Series committee members for next year will be selected from all university departments.

The policy will be subject to approval by the Administration.

The current 25-man committee, headed by co-chairmen John Moore, Gladewater senior and Dr. Marguerite Potter, associate professor of history, was appointed by Drs. M. E. Sadler and Dr. Ray Lindley.

The new committee will consist of 30 members—12 students, 12 faculty members, and 6 ex-officio members. Retiring co-chairmen, student body president, Activities Council director, social director and a representative from Information Services will fill these six posts.

Recommendations for the 12 student positions will originate with the heads of each of the university departments, and from members of the committee.

Final selection of these students will be made by the Administration from the list compiled by the department heads and committee members.

New members will be appointed in January and will serve for one full year from the time of their appointment.

Ticket sales for this year's Series were announced as $5,279 at the Friday meeting.

"The unencumbered balance of the six-event series is $1,290, which secures its financial success," Elizabeth Youngblood, social director said.

Frog Cagers Ram Rams With Four Hitting 20's

The Frog basketball team got its first game type-competition last Tuesday in a two-hour scrimmage against the TWC Rams in the Practice Gym.

The Frogs scored at will over the smaller Rams with Kenneth King, Ronny Stevenson, Ken Brunson and Don Williams getting more than 20 points each.

Coach Byron (Buster) Brannon said after the contest he was well pleased with the way the team operated.

"This was our first scrimmage and we did real well. We Play TWC this time every year and we looked better today than this time last year.

"King and Williams were real standouts.

"We still need work on defense and we are committing too many fouls."

Another scrimmage with TWC is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Practice Gym.

Jimmy Walker was the big gun in that game as he kicked the three extra points and passed to Ray Reid and Willard Reynolds for two touchdowns. Sandy Sanderson ran for the other TD.

Thursday league games were rained out last week.

Ranch Training Program Includes 2 From East

The second ranch training program at TCU has 10 students enrolled from four states.

Enrolled from the East are Robert Wagner of Garden City, N. Y., and Lamar LeBron of Hockessin, Del.

Wagner is a graduate of Staunton Academy in Virginia.

His mother plans to sell their property in New York and set up ranching operations in Mississippi.

LeBron plans to help his father on their farm near Hockessin.

Under the unique program, ranches and related installations are the "class rooms" for the students as they learn by doing and observing actual operations.

The group just finished a week's field trip to the SMS Ranch near Spur and the Flat Top Ranch near Walnut Springs. Next week will be spent at the Wichita Wildlife Area in Cache, Okla.

So far, the class has been studying soil and water conservation, grassland management and beef cattle production, Director of the Ranch Program Arthur Courtade said.

During the next few months, the class will study forage crops, sheep and swine production, ranch jobs and management feeds and feeding, records and finance, marketing and processing plus others areas of ranch operation.

At all the ranches visited, the students actually take part in the work, building fences, handling stock, keeping records and planting crops.

Varsity, Wog Cagers Draw Coaches' Praise

If pre-season impressions by coaches are any indication, TCU basketball followers can look forward to an exciting season.

Last week, varsity coach Byron (Buster) Brannon reported his team has looked exceptionally good during the first weeks of practice and he expects the Frogs to give a good account in the Southwest Conference race.

Tuesday, Wog basketball coach Johnny Swaim said his charges are "developing into a good club" and predicts a winning season for the fledgling Frogs.

Swaim, however, has his troubles. Billy Simmons, 6-4 all-stater from Pecos, has three dislocated vertebra and will not see much action this season.

Swaim said Simmons was to be on the starting unit.

"He will continue to work out but is not able to participate fully in practice, and I doubt if he will be able to play much this season," Swaim related.

The Wog mentor named three players who have made good showings in the first month of practice.

They are: Jerry Cobb, 6-3, Dallas; Perry McMichaels, 6-5, Naples, and Jerry Pope, 6-2, Pampa. All three made last season's all-state team and Cobb was named to a high school All-America team.

TCU Will Be Site Of '58 Meeting

The Texas Recreation Federation for College Women will be held on the TCU campus next fall, according to Women's Sports Association publicity chairman, Barbara Tyler.

TWC's women's sports group will help the TCU group sponsor the Federation, in hopes that it will be a success and help the women's sports program at TCU and TWC.

THE SCORE

Question: To Bowl Or Not To Bowl?

B/ TONY CLARK

OK, you greedy little Frog fans, here it is . . . another chance to get something for nothing. The response to our weekly football contest has been so great that we figured no one would resent another opportunity to gain free loot.

The contest may sound a trifle complicated at first, but after all, we DO tell the home folks we're getting a college education, so here goes:

TCU has been mentioned as the possible recipient of a bowl bid. Of course, much depends on the Frogs' showing in three more conference tilts, but let's play the optimist.

The first contest question is, "Will TCU play in a bowl game?" (That one's not so hard; you have a 50-50-chance—no "maybe's" accepted.) For those in whom the Purple runs deep enough for them to answer "yes," the next query is: What bowl?" followed by "Who will they play?" and "What will be the final score?"

For those unimaginative few who see no hope for the home eleven and answer an emphatic "NO!" to question No. 1, the next interrogative is "Who will play in each of the major bowls (Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Gator)?" To break any ties that might result, the total Cotton Bowl score must be predicted—predicted AT, that is.

The winner will receive four passes to the Worth Theater (a suggestion was made that the winner receive only two passes if he answered the initial question "No," but we have to be fair about this).

One more thing: each student is allowed only one entry, and can take only one point of view—in other words, you can't pick it both ways; pick either "yes" or "no" and then stick to your guns, men!

Here 'tis.

- (1) Will TCU play in a bowl? YES.....NO.....
If answered yes, answer 2, 3, 4, then clip the form, sign it, and deposit it in Skiff box at Student Center Candy Counter. If answered no, skip to 5, answer the rest, clip it, etc.
- (2) What bowl?.....(3) Opponent?.....
- (4) Final score? TCU.....Opponent.....
- (5) Who will play in the
(a) Cotton Bowl?.....
(b) Sugar Bowl?.....
(c) Rose Bowl?.....
(d) Gator Bowl?.....
- (6) Final Cotton Bowl total score?.....

Christians Face Revenge-Minded Longhorns

TCU, Texas Freshmen Collide at 2 p.m. Today

By GALYN WILKINS

The conference-leading freshman football team gets what Coach Fred Taylor terms its sternest test today against the potent Texas Shorthorns.

Kickoff time is 2 p.m. at TCU Amon Carter Stadium.

Texas, like the Wogs, brings an unbeaten record into the clash. The Shorthorns opened their schedule with a 13-6 victory over Baylor, were tied by Rice 13-13 and two weeks ago dumped SMU 9-0.

The Wogs also have three victories to their credit. They trounced the A&M fish 20-6 in the season's opener then beat the NTSC Eaglets 27-7 and two weeks ago edged by the Baylor Cubs 7-0.

The Baylor game offers the only comparative score. The Wogs beat the Cubs by seven points, the same margin as the Shorthorn decision.

Texas is expected to be at full strength for the tilt but the Wogs have three key players injured. End Milton Ham, guard Roy Lee Rambo and halfback Harry Moreland, all crippled in the Baylor clash two weeks ago at most will see limited action.

Aubrey Linne, Dan Zunker and Randall Wylie will start in place of the injured Wogs.

Donald George, the 185-pound quarterback who engineered the Wogs winning touchdown against Baylor, may start in place of Larry Dawson.

The Shorthorns also have two players vying for the quarterback position. Larry Cooper and Tommy Newman, both all-stars, have shared signal-calling duties. Cooper will probably get the starting call today.

Ray Barton, 180-pounder from Sugarland and Fred Hedges, 175, of Phillips at halfbacks and Deene Gott, 185, from San Angelo at fullback will round out the Texas backfield.

In the line, the Shorthorns will have Stuart Peake, 180, Abilene, and Armour McManus, 200, at ends, Tillman O'Brien, 225, and Arved White, 235, at tackles, Dan Petty, 205, and Johnny Branson, 220, at guards, and Bill Laughlin, 215, at center.

Rounding out the Wog backfield will be Larry Terrell at halfback and R. E. Dodson at fullback.

The TCU line will consist of Linne and Crenweldge at ends, Robert Lilly and Clarence Young at tackles, Hobart Buxton and Zunker at guards and Verner at center.

Frog Runners Aim for Title

Coach J. Eddie Weems' Horned Frog cross-country team will be looking for TCU's first conference championship in the sport at the Southwest Conference meet Monday at Waco.

The University of Texas, Arkansas and TCU are picked for the first three places, with no particular order, in the meet, beginning at 3 p.m. in Cameron Park.

Texas, sporting national champion, Walter McNew, and Joe Villareal, who has beaten McNew consistently, gets the nod from most quarters, but last year's champion Arkansas Razorbacks are strong contenders again.

"We probably have the best cross-country team in the history of TCU," Weems ventured, "and they are capable of beating either or both of the favorites."

Jerry Hutson, Ted Williams,

James Livergood, Robert Flores, Joe Douglas and Max Stewart are the Frog runners who have taken first place in two of three quadrangular meets this year against SMU, North Texas and Baylor. SMU edged the over-confident Purple in the initial meet of the abbreviated season.

"We know Texas and Arkansas will be at the meet in force, and Baylor, SMU and A&M will be there. Rice and Texas Tech are both question marks," Weems concluded.

Miss Prince Tops Contest; Previous Winner Fumbles

Miss Atelia Prince is the hero of last week's Skiff football contest, and Joe Reade, a previous winner, is the goat.

Miss Prince was the only guesser who missed only two games, and Reade, who won the year's third contest with a perfect card, was the only guesser who missed all seven games.

Miss Prince receives four tickets to the Worth Theater for her efforts. All Joe gets is a big laugh and his crystal ball shined.

Two tie games, Baylor-Texas and Navy-Duke, knocked down the percentage of every picker, and those were the only misses on the winner's card.

This week's contest, open to all TCU students, except members of The Skiff staff, is on page 11. Entries must be in the football contest box in the Student Center by 6 p.m. Friday, and each entrant is limited to one try.

Steers Recall Swink, Past Purple Upsets

By PAT BECKHAM

"No team has embarrassed Texas more than the Jim Swink-led Horned Frogs of 1955 and 1956, and the memory of the 47-20 and 46-0 defeats serves as extra incentive Saturday when the Longhorns face the Christians at Memorial Stadium."

Those are the words of a University of Texas Sports News Release issued this week in conjunction with the TCU-Texas battle at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Our friends, the Longhorns, are laying for us, and this year they have the artillery, obviously missing during the past two years.

Rene Ramirez, Mike Dowdle, Walter Fondren, Bobby Lackey, Max Alvis, Joe Clements, Mickey Smith, George Blanch, Don Allen and Fred Bednarski are just a few of the fine Longhorn backs.

On the line the 'Horns boast Wes and Will Wyman, J. T. Seaholm, Garland Kennon, Sonny Baumgarten, Bob Bryant, Maurice Doke, Don Wilson, James Shillingburg, J. B. Padgett, Louis Del Homme, Robert E. Lee, Joe Williams and other standout head-knocking hole-openers.

The Austin news service continues to elaborate on the Frog-Longhorn capabilities:

"Although Swink has departed, the Horned Frogs have fashioned a new menace this season—halfback Jimmy Shofner, who ranks as the league's leading ball carrier with a 5.3 average on 98 carries. As part of the supporting cast, Coach Abe Martin has battle-tested Buddy Dike and sophomore terrors Marvin Lasater and Jack Spikes."

The Orange plunger also strikes a few blows for the home team:

"The Longhorns are better equipped to challenge TCU's recent supremacy in this series, for their defense has been bolstered and the offense is more stable."

"The leading figures in the improved offense are fullback Mike Dowdle and halfback Rene Ramirez (both sophomores). The former is the fourth-ranking ground gainer in the conference, while the latter's 6.5 average per carry is even better than Shofner's."

"Texas is accustomed to the 'revenge' role against TCU, for the Horned Frogs have proven a rigid hurdle in the past. They upset the Longhorn teams of 1941, '42, '44, '46 and '49, and three of those setbacks cost Texas championships or a title share."

"The Longhorns, however, hold a wide edge in this series which dates its beginning in 1897. They have captured 27 of the 42 previous battles while TCU owns but 14 triumphs. Only one game has been tied."

And here's another interesting note: either the University of Texas or TCU has won or shared, defeated or tied the champion or co-champion of the Southwest Conference in 26 of the 33 seasons since the Horned Frogs became members of the league in 1923.

With the Texas Aggies the odds-on favorites to win the conference, it looks like TCU will be pulling for the 'Horns when they meet the Farmers—to keep our record going.

Tomorrow? We'll be pulling for the Longhorns to duplicate the feats of their predecessors of the past two seasons.
