

Rally 'Round the Frogs, Boys . . .

An estimated 400 loyal backers attended the torchlight parade and pep rally last Friday night. They cheered lustily, and evidently, effectively, for the following afternoon the Horned Frogs trounced the University of Texas Longhorns, 22-8.

Another spirited crowd at last night's pep rally set the pace for Saturday's encounter with the Rice Owls. But tomorrow the Frogs face a more formidable foe and deserve even more intense support.

An impressive contingent to Houston would go a long way towards boosting team morale.

Tickets can still be purchased for the Santa Fe special streamliner at the Student Center, reports Wade Simpson, student body trip chairman.

Round-trip tickets cost only $9.40, a $6.11 reduction from the regular fare. Tickets include transportation on chartered buses to and from the Fort Worth and Houston depots. Buses leave TCU at 6 a.m. tomorrow.

The train leaves the Santa Fe depot at 6:30 a.m. and arrives in Houston at 11:59 a.m. After the game, the train is scheduled to leave Houston at 6:30 p.m. and to arrive in Fort Worth at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The student body trip is traditionally a highlight of the year's activities.

Sandwiches, coffee and cold drinks will be sold in the club car by Walter Jetton's.

The Cotton Bowl route is through Houston—let's take it with our team.

It would be great to become host team the third time in four years. Remember, we were in 1956 and 1957.

Miss Paula Hottle, Florida sophomore, represents the traditional Thanksgiving spirit. The early settlers stalked their turkeys in meadows near their homes. Miss King did her stalking in Forest Park, but didn't find a single turkey. She did locate a number of ducks, but the park officials frowned on her hunting, with or without a license.—Skiff Staff Photo.

Student Pilgrimage Officially Begins at 10 P.M. Wednesday

That mass student exodus, known as Thanksgiving holiday, won't begin officially until 10 p.m., but the campus is expected to be virtually deserted by mid-afternoon Wednesday.

Only a small group, who either live too far from Fort Worth to make a trip home practical or find themselves overloaded with book work, will remain at the dormitories.

For the book-burdened, the Library will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. next Friday, and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday. It will be closed both Thanksgiving Day and the following Sunday.

The traditional Thanksgiving meal will be served in the Cafeteria Tuesday evening. The menu will include turkey and dressing, or baked ham and candied yams with all the trimmings.

An invocation, sponsored by the United Religious Council, will precede the meal, and students will eat by candlelight.

Weekend hours will be observed by the Cafeteria during the holiday, except on Friday, when the Student Center will be open as usual.

The University Store and Snack Bar will be closed Thursday, but will be open Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and 8 a.m. to 12 noon Saturday.

Band members won't have much time to digest the Thanksgiving turkey. They will report back to the campus at 10 a.m. Friday to prepare for a morning parade, an afternoon practice and another practice session Saturday morning.

It will be a short break for the Horned Frog football team, too, since they will be on the practice field for regular Thursday and Friday afternoon workouts.

Officials said some students are expected back on campus late Friday, but most will drive directly from home to Dallas for the TCU-SMU game.

Both Day and Evening College classes will resume Monday.

Lawrence Bash to Speak At Tuesday Convocation

The annual Thanksgiving Convocation message will be delivered in Robert Carr Chapel on Tuesday by Dr. Lawrence C. Bash, minister of the University Christian Church of Austin.

Dr. Bash became the pastor of the University Christian Church in April, 1949. Previous to that, he was pastor of the Wyatt Park Christian Church in St. Joseph, Mo., for six years.

He received his B.A. degree from Drake University and his B.D. from the Drake Divinity School. The honorary Doctor of Divinity degree was conferred by Texas Christian University in 1954, followed by the presentation of the Drake University Distinguished Award.

He has served as state convention preacher in Oregon, Washington, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas and North Carolina, as well as serving on the Texas Board of Religious Education Commission on Campus Christian Life. He presently is serving as president of the Texas Convention of Christian Churches.

He was active for 15 years in the Christian Endeavor Movement and was vice president and later associate president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor.

The TCU Chorus, under the direction of Dean Robert Hull, will sing.

Committee to Picnic

After planning many activities this fall, the Howdy Week committee will wind up its season with a picnic for all members.

The event will be held from 3 until 7:30 p.m. this afternoon at the home of Miss Marion Wiley, Fort Worth junior, near Azle.

Parents' Day Big Success; 1,290 Attend

Parents' Day has disappeared for another year, but many went home with exciting memories.

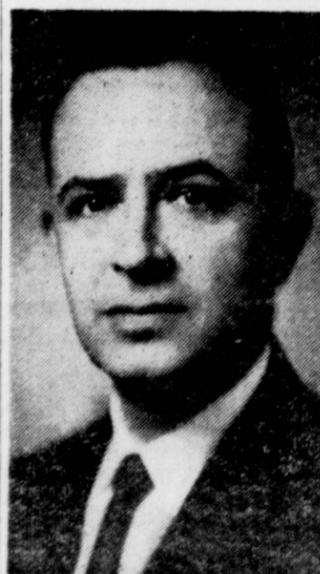

The third appearance of this event on the TCU campus has seen its biggest success, according to Miss Elizabeth Youngblood, social director.

A total of 1,290 parents registered Saturday with more than a dozen states represented.

Mrs. C. H. Wilson, of Havana, Cuba, was presented the award for coming the greatest distance.

The Wilsons' daughter, Carol, represents the family here at TCU. She originally is from Cleveland, Ohio, but has lived most of her life in Miami, Fla. From there, her father, who is with National Air Lines, was transferred to Havana.

Miss Wilson, a freshman, is majoring in nursing, and is a member of DSF and the hospitality committee of the Activities Council.

Dr. Lawrence Bash, Austin, will be the Thanksgiving Convocation speaker Tuesday in Robert Carr Chapel.

Got a Yen to Write a Song?

School Song Contest Offers Fame and Fortune ($300)

Think you might be another Cole Porter? Here's your chance to prove it you are.

A contest for new school songs is being sponsored by the University for undergraduates, exes, faculty and professional musicians.

Not only fame and glory await the winner of the contest. There's a $300 prize for the song the judges consider best.

To be eligible for the award, the song must have a lyric set to music appropriate for TCU. The winning songs, together with the Alma Mater and fight song, will be recorded on a special long-playing disc to be released next year.

Manuscripts should be signed by the composer or composers, and must be accompanied by a brief identifying sketch to justify the category in which the song is entered.

There is no limit to the number of compositions that may be entered by an individual. If two or more persons co-operate on a winning song, the prize money will be divided among them according to their own agreement.

Manuscripts should be sent to Dr. Michael Winesanker, chairman of the music department, before Feb. 28, 1959.

Entrants are urged to keep copies of their manuscripts, since the ones submitted will not be returned.

Administering Salk vaccine and giving shots to ward off influenza are just part of Mrs. Lucille Steers' job as supervisor of the Infirmary here. She and the staff of nurses and two "visiting" doctors care for students and faculty alike.

Vaccine Cuts Illness, Some Still Treated by Infirmary

The infirmary treats more patients than many people realize. In October, it had almost 1,300 outpatients and 71 bed patients. This is a comparatively small number of bed patients, because the flu vaccine has prevented many respiratory illnesses this year.

Most of the patients have minor injuries, colds or headaches, but there are a few emergency cases of fractures and appendicitis.

Mrs. Lucille Steers is the supervisor of the Infirmary, and there are two full-time nurses and two part-time nurses. Dr. Charles Harris II visits the Infirmary every weekday evening, except Mondays, when Dr. C. B. Westfall takes over on visitation.

The Infirmary has 15 beds, and averages about five bed patients at a time.

The $7.50 medical fee, which is paid at registration, covers any care given in the Infirmary, but the students must pay for X-rays, laboratory work and hospital care.

Students are not the only patients of the Infirmary. Miss Elizabeth Shelburne, dean of women, Miss James, assistant dean of women, and a dormitory mother were patients in October.

Mrs. Steers expressed her appreciation for the co-operation of the students in getting their flu shots. She also advises anyone who has not taken all three polio shots to do so immediately.

You don't hear so much about the man in the street since automobiles have become so numerous.

TCU Gets $92,000

The National Science Foundation of Washington, D.C., has named TCU as the recipient of a $92,000 grant for the purpose of conducting a summer institute for senior high school teachers of science and mathematics.

Dr. Joseph Morgan, chairman of the TCU physics department, will be the director of the session, which will be held on this campus for six weeks starting June 8, 1959.

Heuer Gives Talk

Dr. Edward Heuer, associate professor of geology, will make a 30-minute talk on the economic aspects of geology over KPJZ-TV at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow.

He will discuss the exploration for mineral resources, and their exploitation.

Representatives Will Interview Science Seniors

Representatives from two scientific laboratories will be on campus today to interview seniors of the science department for future employment.

A Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory representative will interview physics, chemistry and math majors.

Students interested in being research assistants or staff members for work in research and development in the firm are to be considered.

Ross Laboratories will interview men interested in medical sales opportunities.

Flees Gestapo to Freedom

Volbach Flees Germany, Starts Career in America

Gestapo! The scene is a German border station. Time: 1937. Cast: Dr. Walter Volbach and German secret police.

Dr. Volbach even today can remember his nervousness as he stood before the guards. Before him was the freedom of America—behind him, the terrors of Hitler's concentration camps.

He was allowed to leave. That was 21 years ago—the end of one life and the start of another.

When he arrived in this country he was unknown and had a vocabulary of 10 English words. In Germany and Austria he was well known as a stage and motion picture actor, as the former assistant to Germany's most famous director, Max Reinhardt, and then as a director on his own.

In New York he found employment as a German language radio announcer temporarily until he accepted a position in Milwaukee's Marquette University. He also was to conduct the local WPA symphony orchestra, until it became generally known that he was a foreigner. The war cost him his job at Marquette. The theater department was closed for the duration.

In Europe, he had been the stage director at theaters in Zurich, Kiel, Danzig, Vienna, Stuttgart and Berlin—the last two cities having German state theaters. But now he was in a different country, one that was at war with his fatherland.

Cleveland, Ohio, had a German language paper. He was a reporter there until the end of 1945.

Volbach received a phone call from Fort Worth. The voice on the line was that of the late Dean T. Smith McCorkle of the School of Fine Arts. The dean offered Volbach a professorship and the latter accepted.

Since coming to TCU, Dr. Volbach has taken the combined duties of the Theater Department, director of theater and opera, as well as professor of drama.

Besides his school activities, he has helped form the Texas Educational Theater Association, served as president of the Southwest Theater Conference, and has served on three committees for the American Educational Theater.

Volbach now is directing the second play of the school year, "The Marriage Wheel." He still likes to act, but can't find time for it. He sympathizes with his actors' stage fright. Once, in a play, he forgot his lines on stage and fainted from fright.

Dr. Walter Volbach, chairman of the department of theater arts, is director of "The Marriage Wheel," second of this season's Little Theatre productions, which will open on Saturday, Dec. 6. The play is a comedy on Quaker customs.

The Illinois State Senate voted to eliminate its Committee on Efficiency and Economy for reasons of "efficiency and economy."

$1,285 Scholarships Offered

The Katherine Gibbs School is offering two national scholarships to college senior women for 1958-1960.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition of $785 for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500, totaling $1,285.

The winners are chosen by the scholarship committee on the basis of college academic record, personal and character qualifications, financial need and potentialities for success in business.

Each college or university may recommend two candidates, and each candidate must have this official endorsement. The winners may elect to receive their training in Boston, New York, Montclair or Providence.

Students who are interested in competing for one of these Katherine Gibbs awards may obtain full information from the Placement Bureau.

Jazz Group Plays Dec. 1

The TCU Jazz Quartet will present an hour-long concert in Ed Landreth Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Dec. 1.

This is the first time the University has sponsored a jazz group designed to give the students a chance to play their own arrangements.

Members of the group are John Giordanno, Fort Worth junior, alto sax, flute, clarinet; Charley Pearson, Fort Worth sophomore, guitar; Harold Dean, Fort Worth junior, drums, and Ernest Re-pass, bass violin.

No admission will be charged.

Mealtime is when the kids sit down to continue their eating.

Cadet M/Sgt. Robert Treadaway of the Air Force and Cadet M/Sgt. Ray Leuty of the Army, both Fort Worth juniors, inspect recent repairs to the ROTC Flying Club plane. Treadaway is president of the group and Leuty is vice president.

ROTC Flying Club Members Pilot Group-Owned Airplane

If you've seen a purple and white obect streak through the air over Fort Wogth recently, it might have been the 1946 Taylor-craift airplane belonging to the ROTC Flying Club.

Recent repairs to the craft include an overhaul and a white paint job with purple trim. The club has owned the plane, representing a $1,500 investment, for a year.

The group is composed of 21 cadets, both of Army and Air Force units here.

Home base for the plane is Russell Field, south of Fort Worth.

"Some of the officials at the field have nicknamed us 'bronco busters' because of the way we dip and dive the plane in the air," Robert Treadaway, Fort Worth junior, president of the club, said.

Members receive individual instruction in flying at the field from instructors approved by the CAA, including Dr. Philip Roos, associate professor of psychology.

Two of the 21 members already have their private licenses. They are Jim Packer, Fort Worth senior, and Lonnie Holliday, Cleburne senior.

"Approximately 10 people have soloed already; the other nine are taking instructions to solo," Treadaway said.

Capt. T. F. Schloeman, assistant professor of air science, is sponsor of the club, which meets at 6 p.m. on alternate Thursdays in the basement of Clark Hall.

After buying a share of the aircraft, the only other cost to a member to fly the plane is for gasoline. He may fly whenever he pleases after he has soloed.

"Maximum membership is 30, so we have openings for an additional nine members," Treadaway added.

The club formerly was called the TCU Flying Frogs, and has been in existence since after World War II. They have had their present name for about four years.

Cafeteria Blues

Ever gripe about the crowded Cafeteria? Most students have, yet students daily increase crowded conditions by making Cafeteria tables into storage tables.

Seldom are the eight tables along the west wall used at noon because of the mounds of textbooks and coats covering them.

Cafeteria seating efficiency is reduced eight per cent by the loss of the seating capacity of these tables. They provide 32 of the Cafeteria's 400 seats.

Storage shouldn't be a problem; seven racks in the lobby and Cafeteria contain 420 clothing hooks and 140 separate spaces for books.

Almost intentionally aggravating the problem are those who "reserve" their tables with a stack of books, as they pass to the serving line.

During rush hours, this practice is a nuisance, especially to the person who arrives early only to find the desirable seats reserved by people still standing in line.

Crux of the seating problem is courtesy, and a little of it will go a long way towards making better use of the Cafeteria facilities we have.

Pass the Culture, Please

One phase of college life being neglected by many of us is the one known as culture. It is one of our most vital learning experiences if we are to broaden our minds and achieve a liberal education.

Various opportunities are offered to students both on campus and off. An outstanding example of the campus activities is the Select Series program, which is responsible for bringing to us great talent and intellect on a national as well as international scope.

Off campus, there also are many sources of cultural benefits, one of the most prominent being the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra. Another place of interest is the Art Museum where displays are arranged periodically for the public.

Let's take advantage of some of these opportunities this year, along with our studies and social life, for it will be well worth the time spent.

After all, our primary purpose for being here is to make the most of college in gaining a liberal education.

The Real Thanksgiving

In the early 1600's, the Puritans were being so severely persecuted in their native land of England, that to preserve their beliefs they fled to Holland. But Holland, like England, wanted no part of them, so they set out for newly discovered America. After they had reached their destination, they gave thanks for their bountiful crops and deliverance from persecution.

Through the years, many have forgotten what Thanksgiving means. Several would agree that when the holidays arrive, people think not of giving thanks but merely of having a holiday.

In this country of ours, there are freedoms and rights which men have died and lived for in war and peace and in happiness and sorrow.

We have a wonderful university for which to be thankful. It offers an education that will be priceless in years to come. We have the privilege to worship, to speak and to exercise the rights provided by God and country.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

BETTER LEAVE HIM ALONE — HE'S LOOKING FOR THREE MORE WORDS TO FINISH A 10,000 WORD THEME.

SW Campus Confidential

By RICHARD TIPTON

TEXAS—

The scene had more double takes than an Abbott and Costello movie.

An elderly man somehow had managed to slip by the house mother and was wandering down the hall of a dorm fourth floor. He seemed to be looking for something, much to the alarm of several coeds who weren't exactly dressed for male callers.

"Pardon me, miss," he called to one of the women, who was nervously peeping through her door. "Can you tell me where they're keeping my daughter?"

"I don't know," she replied, "but men aren't allowed on this floor."

"But I have to see her," the man said excitedly. "She just had a baby and I was told to come to the fourth floor of Seton Hospital."

Hit the road, buddy. This ain't no fraternity ward.

SMU—

Be careful who you take any lip from.

According to the Campus, a Kansas University health director has announced that it's all right for students to kiss, but they should be careful who they're buzzing, due to the possible presence of Asian flu.

The smooch researcher didn't put any damper on Greek kissing lines and pinning parties, however. "An unprotected cough or sneeze is more dangerous than any kissing line," he said. "The only thing students should do is to be careful who they're kissing. You can't outlaw nature, you know."

The item pointed out that a more unfortunate college, Kansas State, had recently outlawed "smooch lines" on the grounds they spread colds.

We don't blame them. Those Kansas grounds do get damp.

TWU—

Speaking of osculating (and we'd rather osculate than speak), word comes from the Tessies that an Aggie cadet colonel has broken the Sweetheart presentation kissing record.

After presenting the TWU Aggie Sweetheart to the A&M and SMU fans in the Cotton Bowl, the band broke into the strains of "You Belong to Me," and the endurance contest began.

Armed with only a saber and a pair of hot lips, the Aggie broke the standing record of 59 seconds by giving the tireless Tessie a kiss which lasted 1:45.8.

Are you sure their braces weren't locked?

ARKANSAS—

Hula hoops are becoming a traffic hazard on the Porker campus.

The Traveler reports that a group of sorority women were practicing for a hula hoop contest in front of their house which faced one of the university's busiest streets.

The hula gyrations were going at full speed, when three carloads of university men drove by and began to ogle the proceedings. The lead car suddenly stopped to get a better look and the result was a triple bumper smash.

Between the women or the cars?

THE SCORE

What Do You Think?

By PAT BECKHAM

The Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Award was conceived in 1948 by the Texas A&M Battalion. Award No. 12 will be made at halftime of the Cotton Bowl Classic Jan. 1.

SMU won it the first year, A&M copped it next, Rice was third, then the Mustangs won again, Arkansas was fifth, Rice took it again, then TCU captured it three consecutive years to retire the trophy.

In 1957, The Skiff provided a new trophy which initially was inscribed with SMU's name. Last year, Rice won the honor.

The award, which is given to the school whose athletic teams and student body best promote good sportsmanship between the member institutions of the conference, now has been won by all but two of the SWC members (not counting new member Texas Tech).

We will attempt to withhold comment, either pro or con, on a recent editorial by The Daily Texan, the University of Texas' student newspaper. However, we would like to pass along a few quotes for your judgment.

"UT, the 'big, bad University,' is low-rated by the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Committee as a traditional activity each year.

"This 'rating' process by the student committee has come to be somewhat of an intercollegiate farce as far as having real impact in terms of actual better relations between schools.

"It seems that schools have become so intent on going through the forms of pre-game, post-game, week-before-the-game howdy-do's and endless number of institutional courtesies . . . so they can win the 'coveted' loving cup of inter-campus friendship and sportsmanship, that they might have forgotten that the important purpose is a friendly atmosphere between schools.

"The problems of a 'big school' like A&M or Texas competing for the award are legend. It just ain't possible to either 'build up' or 'tone down' or 'regulate' the 18,000 campus citizens into a co-ordinated cup-winning sportsmanship unit. Not that we'd ever want to do so."

It may come as a shock to The Texan, but "big school" A&M only has an enrollment of approximately 75 to 100 students more than TCU.

Also, the "student committee," which is supported by all the student publications, includes the athletic directors, head yell leaders, student body presidents, deans of students, alumni secretaries, faculty representatives, game officials, seven metropolitan sportswriters, and Howard Grubbs, executive secretary of the SWC.

Pass the sour-grape jelly, please.

If You've Gotta Gripe

Complain For Good Reason

By A. L. DANIELS

The freedom to gripe without the fear of official reprisal is a privilege enjoyed only by those living under a democratic form of government.

The armed forces of the United States, in recent years, have become aware of the importance of "official griping." The Air Force, for instance, provides its personnel with the "personal conference hour." One day each month, at specified hours, airmen may air their gripes in the presence of their commanding officer.

Many civilians will attempt to make their gripes official through the use of petitions—a practice in which TCU students have been known to indulge.

One or more charming characters usually will put a grievance in written form. Then, with the charm that would induce an Eskimo to purchase an electric refrigerator, they prevail upon their fellow men to apply their signatures to the document.

During a recent interview with L. C. White, business manager and treasurer of TCU, a Skiff reporter asked what action was usually taken in regard to student petitions.

As the reporter followed Mr. White's movements, his eyes came to rest on a filled wastebasket.

White went on to explain that in most every instance where students find a good cause to submit petitions, the Administration has taken action to relieve the condition. He offered examples to back up his statement.

"The Administration of TCU," White explained, "welcomes criticism of its policies and all practical suggestions that would tend to improve the operation of the University. But," he continued, "there is a right way and a wrong way to gripe. Petitions, as a rule, are not effective and are a waste of time for all concerned."

A good example of griping occurred during World War II, at a time when patriotism was at its zenith. A large Southwestern university was without a flagpole for over a year, due to some event which destroyed it. A group of students, figuring that the administration was unpatriotic, wrote a petition demanding the immediate erection of a flagpole. After the document had been graced with a number of signatures, the writers paraded to the administration building.

A few yards short of their destination, they saw stretched across the walk a long tapered steel pole fitted with pulleys, ropes, and other hardware that immediately would identify it as a flagpole. Red faces were the order of the day.

It seemed that the new pole had been ordered within a matter of weeks after the destruction of the old one. Steel for materials of war held priority over steel for campus flagpoles, therefore, "Old Glory" did not fly over the campus for nearly a year.

The moral of this tale, dear students, is gripe. Gripe to your heart's content. But, do it where it will do the most good.

The door of any dean or department chairman always is open to any student with a legitimate gripe or a practical suggestion.

If your back happens to itch, scratch your back and not behind your ear.

Classes Plan Tour of GM

Two classes in policy formulation and administration will get a first-hand view of operations at the Arlington division of General Motors on Dec. 4.

"Half of the tour will be devoted to seeing actual operations in the plant itself," Dean Ike Harrison said. "The rest of the time will be spent asking questions directed at General Motors executives."

This particular course in management is taught by Dean Harrison, and takes into consideration all subjects previously taken in the students' four years.

"We want our graduates to think like executives," the dean said. "Progress is made through top-level decisions, and seeing corporations in actual business situations makes us aware of the need for training in management."

A resourceful man isn't necessarily a man of means.

Female Must Snag Male By Tricks Despite Ratio

By LYNN SWANN

(Editor's Note: The following story was written by a member of the fair sex in answer to a similar dating feature by male representative, Bruce Neal.)

The buzzer rings once, then silence. Is the call for Jane or her roommate? They wait, looking very much like racers just before the starting gun.

Then three more buzzes. It's for Jane! She races to the nearest phone. It's busy. As she starts to the other telephone, the house mother says firmly:

"No running in the halls; you're a young lady now."

Jane walks calmly to the opposite end of the hall, thinking meanwhile:

"This is like the last mile; it's so long, so long. Maybe Jim's on the phone. He's been asking me to meet him in the Library to help him with his English."

Jane has agreed to meet him, but only after making a big show of consulting her date book, clean though the pages were.

After putting on her favorite skirt and tightest sweater, she measures her socks with a slide rule (they must be even) and starts out for the library 15 minutes late (can't seem too anxious). And then all he wants to do is study English.

After six miles of hallway, Jane reaches the phone and counts to 36 before answering (can't seem anxious). "Hello," she goes.

"Duh, Jane, you wouldn't like to go out with me Saturday night, would you, huh? The frat's having a party, see, and I'd sure like to take you, 'cause, well, uh . . ." Really because he'd already asked three girls who'd turned him down. That's life, though, gals. When it rains, it pours (Texas is famous for its drouths). So Jane accepts.

According to statistics, each TCU coed has one and one-half boyfriends apiece. True, some guys are just half a man, but where's the rest of the number?

Few males realize what antics the women employ to hook their men. Here are a few trade secrets:

Of course, there's always the old standby, "drop the handkerchief," slightly revised. Now, in place of a feminine hankie, a coed accidentally drops her largest book (on her victim's foot, of course). After this, she replies:

"Bless your little ol' heart. Here, let me give you my card, so you can call to tell me how your foot is doing."

"please help me" strategy. It seems that Mary just can't understand biology, but since Harry "knows so very much about everything," maybe they could get together next Friday night about 7:30, to study biology, of course. That leaves Harry with absolutely no time to really study, so he flunks the course. And guess who makes an "A"?

Woods and Waters

By GEORGE GOULD

Last week, the annual Texas Duck Calling Championship was held in the Fort Worth Children's Museum. If you missed this unusual event, you missed some very good and unique entertainment.

Quite a few TCU students were there, watching them quack it up. Among those present were Dale Walker, captain of the Frog football team, and several teammates, and Charlie Edwards, B.S. '58, who hunts with hand grenades and other assorted weapons. The female half was represented, too. Barbara Beyette, Fort Worth senior, seemed to enjoy it all, but kept asking where all the birds were. What a place to take a date!

Last Sunday was the first day of the 1958 deer season in Texas. After a hasty survey of opening-day results, it is safe to say that some TCU hunters would have been better off had they stayed at home.

The weather was warm and the deer just weren't moving. Ike Harrison, dean of the School of Business, and L. C. White, business manager, didn't even fire a shot. Dean Harrison hunted in Walker County, and White took to the woods in Kerrville. President Sadler and Dr. Lindley spent three days chasing buck in Breckenridge.

Just a reminder to all you deer hunters. If you get your animal, drop us a postcard here at The Skiff. We would like to run the names of those persons who made the grade. Be sure to include weight and whether it was a buck or doe. If you feel that yours was an exceptionally large deer, send in a picture with all the vital statistics. Our contest will close after Thanksgiving.

Don't forget those postcards and pictures.

Along with deer, two other seasons open Nov. 16. Turkey shooting will run through to Dec. 31, and geese can be taken until Jan. 14.

The limit is three gobblers per season, but the majority of counties have special laws restricting the limit to one turkey per season. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour before sunset. Rifles or shotguns are permitted in most counties.

The Canada and white-fronted goose limit is five daily and in possession, in the aggregate of all kinds, provided that in such limit there shall be no more than two Canada geese or its subspecies, or one Canada and one white-fronted goose. Shooting hours on geese is the same as other migratory waterfowl.

Wogs Finish Campaign Today

By GORDON PYNES

The Wogs close out their 5-game season Friday when they hook up with the SMU Colts.

The Wogs will be out to square their win-loss record in the 2:30 p.m. affair at Amon Carter Stadium.

A 16-22 loss to the Texas Shorthorns last week left the frosh record at one victory, a tie, and two defeats. Coach Sleepy Morgan's Colts have fared much worse, taking shellackings from Arkansas, Rice and Texas. The Shorthorns pounded them, 30-7.

Though victory-less thus far, the younger Mustangs have always proven tough on Coach Fred Taylor's Wog teams. In 1956, they rode Don Meredith's passing arm to fight the Wogs to a 14-14 tie, and last year edged Taylor's charges, 20-19, to put the only blemish on the '57 Wogs' record.

This year's version of the Colts has lacked an offensive punch and has had very little defense. Top performers have been Backs Mike Henry, Mike Rice and Doyce Walker, while Center Bobby Hamm has proved a consistent defensive standout.

Thus, with the records compared, the young Horned Frogs will be favorites.

Though things look bright on paper, the Wogs have been constantly plagued with injuries and still have several on the lame list.

They got out of the Texas battle with no serious losses. Halfback Bert Coan proved his wounded leg is better with several fine gallops against the Shorthorns. Guy Gibbs finally got his passing eye in focus and completed numerous throws running from the spread formation.

From the Sideline

By LEE GRIMSLEY

How big is big? The powers that be behind the annual Cotton Bowl Classic have been bothered by that problem of late.

Since the annual New Year's Day event began 22 years ago, two players have been selected each year for the all-star team.

Since only 11 men can be named to the first team, many of the games' top stars have been designated to an honorable mention status.

But the Cotton Bowl committee has come up with an answer—instead of having one all-star team, there will be a mythical squad for each decade. As a result, 22 players are now listed, and many proven stars have been elevated above the also-ran level.

THE FIRST TEAM was taken from the 1937-1949 period. It includes three TCU players—L. D. Meyer, an end; Sammy Baugh, quarterback, and Ki Aldrich, center, of the 1937 team.

The second team still isn't set, because this year's classic is needed to complete another 10 years of play. But the committee has named 11 players who stand a good chance of remaining on the squad.

This alignment includes only one Frog—Tackle Norman Hamilton, who was cited for his work in the Christians' loss to Mississippi in 1956.

Such a system still proves unsatisfactory, however. Jim Swink, a star in the Frogs' victory over Syracuse in 1957, is still missing from the team. So are a pair of Ole Miss stars, Quarterback Eagle Day and Fullback Paige Cothren, who were instrumental in the 14-13 victory over TCU in 1956.

THE FROGS can stash away a Cotton Bowl bid Saturday by beating Rice, but there's still a big list of eligibles for the opposing team. Early this week, a Tennessee paper said that Ole Miss already had accepted an invitation to the Dallas game, but Rebel Coach Johnny Vaught said no.

The Rebels once were in the top 10 this year, but losses to Louisiana State and Tennessee dropped them out.

North Carolina was considered also, but a loss to Notre Dame last week knocked the Tar Heels from contention.

One team still on the list is the surprising Air Force Falcons, complete with pale-blue helmets, lightning bolts and all.

The Falcons, so far, look like the best up-and-coming team in the nation. They're undefeated, and they gained national recognition for the first time when they tied the Iowa Hawkeyes, 14-14.

Floyd Named Top Lineman

Making an All-America team is about the only goal Frog Tackle Donald Floyd has left to accomplish.

The rangy junior from Midlothian was named college football's Lineman-of-the-Week this week by Associated Press for his great work in the Texas game.

Stories of the selection and pictures of Floyd were sent by AP to every newspaper in the nation.

GIG THE OWLS—Sophomore Quarterback Larry Dawson (10) eludes Texas linemen. He will be in the lineup against Rice Saturday.

Victory Over Rice Owls Will Cinch SWC Crown

A Southwest Conference championship and an automatic invitation to the Cotton Bowl Classic will be riding on every play Saturday when the Frogs engage the Rice Owls in the most important league battle of the season at Houston.

Coach Abe Martin's charges will carry a perfect conference record into the 2 p.m. conflict, and a victory will assure them of the SWC title—their first since 1955 when they tied with Texas A&M.

Along with the SWC title would go the host's role in the Cotton Bowl. A victory would make the Frogs the hosts for the third time in four years.

They played Ole Miss in the 1956 classic, then came back in '57 for a clash with the University of Syracuse. Last year, these same Rice Owls wrapped up the league title and played host to the U.S. Naval Academy.

The Frogs also have a chance to sweep through league play undefeated. If so, they will become the first team to do it since the Texas Aggies of 1956.

There was only one unfavorable mark on the Cadets' record that year—a 14-14 tie with the University of Houston. But when they hit conference action, they romped to six straight victories, including a 7-6 verdict over the Frogs.

The Christians got their first big test last weekend, and they came through with flying colors. They staged a stunning second-half comeback to outclass the Texas Longhorns, 22-8.

Through the first 30 minutes, the Steers held an 8-0 lead. But the Frogs came back after intermission to hold them to a pair of first downs and a minus-5-yard-total offense.

Rice may prove to be even tougher than Texas. The Owls beat Texas for the first time this season, 34-7, but last week the Aggies bumped Rice off, 28-21.

Another loss Saturday will put the Owls out of the running for the title. But should they beat the Frogs and finish the race without further losses, they could still tie TCU for the championship.

Sports Illustrated Honors Langdon

Judge Jack M. Langdon, B.A. '34, 3-year letterman and co-captain of the 1933 Horned Frog football team, is among 72 senior lettermen of the class of 1934 nominated by their alma maters for Sports Illustrated Magazine's Silver Anniversary All-America Team.

The annual competition seeks to "emphasize the pursuit of the rounded human values in which athletes and education are joined" by honoring former gridmen who have distinguished themselves in chosen fields.

Judge Langdon was president of Student Congress while a senior.

Spikes Leads Rushers

Fullback Jack Spikes wrested the lead in the Southwest Conference rushing from Baylor's Larry Hickman.

Spikes has gained a total of 494 yards in eight games, one step more than Hickman.

Should Spikes go on to win the league rushing crown, it will make the fourth straight year a Frog back has done so. Jim Swink turned the trick in 1955 and 1956. Jim Shoener was the leader last fall.

TWO TIE FOR PRIZE

Dick Fowler, 3005 Waits, and Damon Veach, Box 164, missed two games each and tied in The Skiff Football Contest with a total point pick of 30, the exact score of the TCU-Texas game.

Fowler and Veach will receive two free tickets to the Worth Theater.

Second 'Army' Invasion

Owls Wait For Purple Blitz

By BOB SCHIEFFER

The Rice Owls, who have trouble with things military—they were nipped by Army two weeks ago, 14-7, and upset by A&M, 28-21, last Saturday—will have another "Army" on their hands tomorrow when loop-leading TCU invades Houston.

It's Ramon "Army" Armstrong, the 1-man gang who entrenches himself in a guard slot for Abe Martin's legions.

The big sophomore has been "havoeking" Frog opponents all season with his rugged play, and with a conference title at stake in this one, he could be an even bigger thorn in the side of Rice's offense.

It shouldn't require inspired oratory from the Owls' white-haired coach, Jess Neely, to convince his charges a victory over this week's "Army" and his playmates is essential to cop the conference bunting.

A loss to the Frogs would leave the Owls as hopeless as Tiny Tim on Christmas morning.

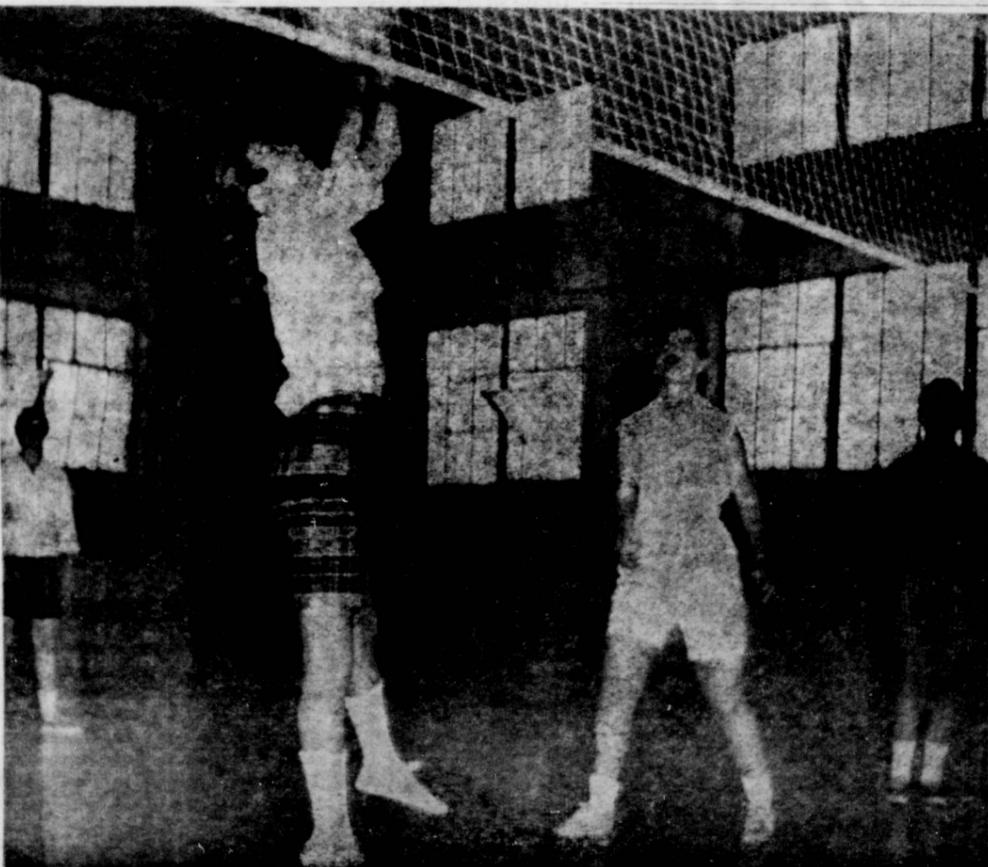

Easy-going Abe Martin, the Frog coach, knows the Owls will be pointing for TCU. His first comment at the Texas game, when he heard the Rice-A&M score, was:

"That's going to be a real football game down in Houston. I feel like Rice was thinking about us and let the Aggies slip up on 'em, but it won't make things any easier for us."

The Owls should be at full strength for the game.

Larry Dueitt, the churning halfback who missed action last week with a bruised hip, should be ready for tomorrow's tilt.
