

Spring Enrollment Record Teeters

Enrollment figures continue to rise toward an all-time high for a spring semester during the final week of registration and Registrar Calvin Cumbie predicts the mark will be in excess of 5,900 students.

The previous record was the spring of 1957, when a total of 5,699 students enrolled.

Tuesday morning, the count was nearing the 5,600 mark, and Cumbie is certain the last-minute surge in Evening College enrollment easily will establish a new mark.

Cumbie's prediction takes into account the usual 8 per cent drop from the fall semester, when a record of 6,474 students registered. Included in this spring percentage drop are 102 students who completed their degree requirements at midyear.

Last spring, the University had 3,184 daytime undergraduate students enrolled. Monday morning that figure was an old story as a new mark was set at 3,390, and the Registrar's office stated late registration will boost this mark.

Corresponding to that old daytime mark was the 5,623 mark last spring, just 76 students shy of breaking the record last year.

Amos Melton, director of the Information Services, says the late registrations are largely in the Evening College, since many employees must secure employer permission to be away from work or they seek educational tuition from their particular employer as part of a company plan.

The final day for registration is Saturday, Feb. 14.

Who says the men couldn't stand a little charm? Jim Bonham, Bonham senior, appears to be signing up for the new charm school, but really he's just a victim of circumstances—it was the only seat around and the sign was there first. Bonham is one of an expected record-breaking spring semester turnout.—Skiff Photo by George Rains.

Groups to Nominate Best-Dressed Coed

Good grooming habits and a way with clothes may earn the Best Dressed Woman at TCU a trip to New York via American Airlines, appearances on national television programs, and a chance to represent the University on a famous college board—all part of a contest sponsored by Glamour Magazine.

The Skiff and Student Congress have asked about 40 campus groups, including the 18 Greek organizations, eight religious associations, Bryson Club, Business and Professional Woman's Club, TCU Chamber of Commerce and the five women's dormitory councils to submit nominations for the best-dressed woman here.

Deadline for nominations is noon Monday at The Skiff office, Room 117 of Dan D. Rogers Hall. Finalists will be chosen at a tea next week in the Student Center for all nominees.

Selection will be made by a committee composed of Paul Youngdale, Student Association president; Pat Beckham, Skiff editor; Miss Elizabeth Youngblood, social director; a hostess from each of the dormitories, and a representative of the Administration.

The committee will choose the winner after an interview with each of the finalists.

If she is one of the 10 winners chosen by Glamour from college entries in the United States and Canada, the TCU coed will be featured in the September college issue of Glamour.

Planned March 5

TCU to Dedicate 4 Buildings

Four new buildings on campus will be formally dedicated on March 5, President M. E. Sadler has announced.

Dr. Harvie Branscomb, chancellor of Vanderbilt University, will be the main speaker.

The ceremony will open with a noon luncheon in the Ballroom. Members of the families of persons for whom the new structures are named will be special guests.

Also due to attend are the members of the TCU trustees, other boards of the University, student leaders and members of the faculty. In all, more than 500 will take part.

The buildings to be dedicated were completed and put into service during the last year.

They are the $1,300,000 Mary Couts Burnett Library; the Bailey Building which was modernized at a cost of $200,000 to house the School of Education and which honors Mary Ann and Robert Bailey; Sherley Hall, women's dormitory named for Andrew Sherley of Collin County and Clark Hall, men's dormitory which honors the University's founding family headed by Addison and Randolph Clark.

The two new residence halls cost some $1,000,000 each.

The dedication ceremony will follow the luncheon on March 5. The public programs committee of the University, headed by Rev. James Farrar, is in charge of arrangements.

WHERE DID JOE GO?

Another semester has started, and as you look around in the classrooms, do you miss some of your friends? Approximately 90 students are missing because they failed to remove their scholastic probation during the fall semester.

Registrar Calvin Cumbie announced that the total enrollment for last semester was 6,474 and the 90 failures were about average for that size enrollment.

Freshmen are required to maintain a grade point index of 1.5 and upperclassmen must keep a 1.8 average to stay off probation.

Southwest Baptist College Honors History Professor

Dr. Marguerite Potter, professor of history, was honored by Southwest Baptist College, Bolivar, Mo., recently when she received the highest honor the college can bestow on a former student. She graduated from the junior college in 1926.

Along with three other graduates of the school, Dr. Potter received "The Life Service Award" which is presented in recognition of the graduate's achievements in his vocation, his service to humanity, and the over-all character and quality of his life.

Dr. Potter has been a member of the TCU faculty since 1944.

She teaches English history, Russian history and Modern European history.

Extra activities include the conducting of TCU European study tours. In 1956, she directed a group through Egypt, the Holy Land, Lebanon, Greece, Turkey, and other European countries.

This summer she and a group of students will visit Western Europe, Russia, Poland, Hungary and the Scandinavian countries.

Dr. Potter is the author or co-author of several books and publications on Missouri's history as well as portions of British and Texas history.

Opera Star Returns

Martial Singher, Metropolitan Opera baritone and artist-in-residence, is back on campus.

While here, he will sing two programs for the students and faculty. The first will be presented at 11 a.m. tomorrow in Robert Carr Chapel.

Interviews Slated

A representative of Astrodyne, Inc., will be on campus Friday, Feb. 13, to interview seniors majoring in chemistry, mathematics and physics who are interested in seeking positions with that firm.

Those interested may contact the Placement Bureau for further information.

Executive Club Honors Seniors

Two Fort Worth seniors majoring in marketing attended the monthly dinner of the Fort Worth sales Executive Club yesterday at the Hotel Texas.

Robert Spengler, president of the campus Marketing Club, was chosen by Dean Ike Harrison and Dr. Sam Leifeste to represent TCU on his merits of interest, desire and record of college achievement in the field of marketing.

Jim Peirce accompanied Spengler.

Faculty Quintet Performs Tonight

The Faculty Woodwind Quintet will present "Tartarin of Tarascon" at 8:15 p.m. today in the Little Theatre.

This presentation will be the first time the music has been performed for the public. The piece was written by Fritz Manzyk of the Cincinnati (Ohio) Symphony Orchestra, and was dedicated to Marcel Dandois, who plays oboe in the quintet.

Second Grant Is Possibility For Dr. Sanders T. Lyles

Dr. Sanders T. Lyles, professor of biology, may receive a second grant from the National Institutes of Health at Frederick, Md.

A representative of the institution, Dr. C. D. Larson, who was on campus recently, discussed with Dr. Lyles the possibility of his receiving another grant. Dr. Larson is deputy chief of the biochemical review division of the National Institutes.

Dr. Lyles is doing vibrio cholerae research under a grant awarded by the Institutes. This is his third year of research under the grant, which expires in September, 1960. An additional grant could run concurrently with the present one, extending his work to a field of related research.

Five graduate students in the biology department now work with Dr. Lyles in the field of bacteriological research, specifically the cholera research. Mrs. Julia Price has finished residence work and is presently employed in Terrell's Laboratories here in Fort Worth. Mrs. Muriel Bowerman will complete her master's in August. Also working toward their degrees are Miss Judith Anderson, Mrs. Viola Finefrock, and Maj. Charles Hoster of Carswell AFB.

Editor's Note: From all indications, it appears to be on the level. The dean of students, Information Services director, and University vice-president all gave us the good word. Check with the former for additional information.

Ex-Students To Provide Scholarships

A goal of at least $100,000 to provide a block of 200 scholarships in honor of President M. E. Sadler has been set for 1959 by the Ex-Students Association of TCU. Association directors have voted to call the campaign "The M. E. Sadler Fund."

Last fall, Dr. Sadler outlined a number of urgent needs for further development, one phase calling for $250,000 annually to provide for 500 additional scholarships. The campaign of the Ex-Students Association is the first effort in that area.

Regional chairmen will be appointed over the nation to assist in promoting the fund in addition to the support of the 35 chapters from coast to coast.

Association officials said, however, that the $100,000 figure for 1959 was a "minimum beginning point" rather than a goal.

L. C. (Pete) Wright has accepted the chairmanship of the 1959 effort, and Hartwell Ramsey, association executive secretary, will be co-ordinator.

Martin Bares New Offense At Spring Football Practice

By JOHN SHIELDS

That school of hard knocks known as spring football training is under way again and the mild-mannered pigskin pedagogue, Abe Martin, has promised a few new lessons for his charges of next year.

Spring training continues for three weeks, during which time the team will iron out wrinkles in their plays and take a look at the "man-in-motion" to be introduced to the public this fall by Coach Martin.

Martin is beginning his seventh year as head coach at TCU and says his basic football pattern will not change.

"Here in spring training we experiment with the different teams and apply the polish in the fall. We're trying to find the best 22 men out there," said Abe.

"The man-in-motion we'll add this year just adds movement to the backfield. It keeps the defense on their toes and, most important, it gives our halfbacks a better opportunity to perform," said the mild-mannered mentor.

"When this works for us, then those halfbacks are going to do damage."

This year the halfbacks will be set outside the ends. This will leave the powerful Jack Spikes alone with Larry Dawson, the man-under, in the backfield.

"You have to have the team in top running condition for that type of offense. We'll use the pass patterns to supplement the good old hard-driving ground game as we did last year," said Martin.

Dawson will assume the duties of senior Hunter Enis as "the man with the plays."

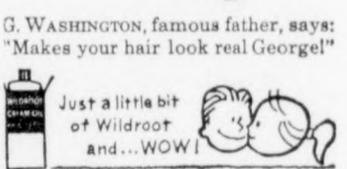

"Of course, the team's going to feel the loss of Dale Walker. He was a great leader and player. Fortunately, Arvie will fit right in there."

Abe was speaking of big Arvie Martin, who commanded the hearty second unit last fall from his center position. Also joining Dawson and Martin on the No. 1 unit is Texas-size Tackle Robert Lilly. Lilly moves up to fill Joe Robb's slot.

Army ROTC Parades at Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—Units representing the TCU Army ROTC department participated in the final parade of King

Rex today as part of the annual Mardi Gras celebration in the Crescent City.

The band and drill team marched in the parade accompanied by Cadet Col. Leon Sims, battle group commanding officer, Fort Worth senior; and three honorary cadet captains, Misses Peggy Whatley, Noriene Funk and Kay Culver. Monday the 28-man drill team marched in the Pershing Rifle Drill Competition.

While in New Orleans, the group lodged at nearby Leroy Johnson Army Camp. They will conclude their 5-day tour Wednesday and return to Fort Worth.

Let's Tie the Knot . . .

. . . not the marital one, but one much simpler. Not everyone knows that these days the better dressed young men are tying their neckties in a four-in-hand knot. The perennially popular Windsor is out.

The four-in-hand was a knot developed in the early 19th Century by sporting men who were able to drive their own carriages or high-perch phaetons with four horses—in other words they could keep four-in-hand.

If you can't tie this knot, which really does look better with today's button downs and small tab collars, come in and let one of our early 19th Century salesmen show you how.

Mid-Week REPORT

By BOB SCHIEFFER

About a week before last, Lee Grimsley walked up on me as I cleaned the mud off a new pair of cowboy boots.

"You," he says, "are to be the sports editor of the Wednesday edition when The Skiff goes semi-weekly."

"Not I," says me, as I strategically placed a boot heel in his ribs.

"Yes, you," says he, as he slapped me across the face with an old catcher's mitt.

Since his catcher's mitt was bigger than my boot, I informed him that I could take a hint and would be glad to accept the job.

Later on at dinner, I began to plan my policies. No soft guy me, no sir, I'd rule that sports bunch with an iron hand, yessir, hard as nails, that's the kind of boss I'll be.

"Quit daydreaming and eat your supper," my mother said, "or no dessert."

"Yessum," I answered.

Next day I went looking for a suitable desk. None of those spic-and-span journalism desks for me. I'd have to have one of those jobs with character. Something old and rugged, piled high with papers and dog-eared old books about statistics and all that.

Well, I found one, had it hauled into the office and went to a doctor's down the street to get some of those old magazines they always have littered about their offices. (Doctors always have old magazines; if they had new ones people would think they had just started practicing.)

That afternoon I called a meeting of the staff.

"Men, we've got work to do here, we've got a sports page to get out!" I told them.

Nobody listened, mainly because only one showed up and he had since left for coffee.

Anyhow, we got her out and here she is, our first 'un.

Now I think I'll go buy me the one thing that's missing, one of those snap-brim felt hats that all reporters don't know should be taken off indoors. That should lend an air of authority, I think.

Leading Frogs Battle Aggies In Return Bout Here Tonight

Texas A&M, still smarting from a 76-64 loss to TCU on the Aggies home court last week, comes to Fort Worth tonight to tangle with the Frogs for the third time this season.

Both teams have beaten each other one time this year.

Tip-off is set for 7:30 p.m. at Public Schools Gym.

The towering Frogs, with the conference's top scorer, H. E. Kirchner, leading the attack, could advance their league lead to three games if they stop the Farmers, and professional oddsmakers say TCU should have little trouble in doing it.

But some TCU supporters differ with the odds and say the Aggies, although they have little chance at the conference bunting, are "laying" for the Frogs after the ruckus that developed at last week's game and could score an upset.

TCU was rated an underdog in that match that saw one TCU player ejected from the game for roughness and the court littered with trash thrown by the rabid home-town fans.

Wary sports observers also point to the fact that the Aggies upset Baylor Saturday night, 65-52.

If TCU can defeat the Aggies tonight and get by Arkansas Saturday, they will be virtually "in" as conference champions with a 9-1 record and only four games to go.

For the Aggies, the future is dim regardless of the outcome of tonight's game. They are mired in fifth place in the 8-team race with a 4-4 record.

Another overflow crowd is expected to jam into the stands for tonight's game to watch the Frogs, who suddenly dropped the "unimpressive" tag applied by some sports writers.

Most of the favorable comment about Frog play of late has been centering around the tremendous efforts of H. E. Kirchner, who stations himself in, on top of and around his own and visitors' backboards.

His 28 points in Saturday's game ran his season total up to 339, making him the top scorer in the conference, as Tom Robitaille of Rice slipped to second with 319.

Kirchner will be joined on the court by forwards Ronnie Stevenson and Darrell Nippert and guards Kenneth King and Ken Brunson.

BANDITS VS. BARRACUDAS

When TCU's Horned Frogs clash with Louisiana State's Bengal Tigers next September, Coach Abe Martin will have a team of his own to match the famed Chinese Bandits.

It seems certain Eastern newspapers have picked up a name for the Froggie second unit and the name seems certain to stick. Thus, henceforth, just refer to them as the Barracudas.

Though reports varied as to how the tag originated, the best story is that Line Coach Allie White used the name at the recent NCAA convention which the Eastern scribes were present.
