Sparks Urges Students To Emphasize Reading

By J'NELL ROGERS

Next week has been proclaimed National Library Week over the United States.

"The TCU Library is joining with other Fort Worth libraries and those throughout the nation in observing National Library Week. We hope that the week will be a time when all TCU students will think about reading, talk about reading and above all read —read for knowledge and pleasure," urges C. G. Sparks, librarian.

National Library Week is a campaign to help re-establish reading in the daily life of every American and to focus attention on the services of libraries. Co-sponsors of the special week are the American Library Association and the National Book Committee.

Here on campus a special radio program will be taped in the Library and then replayed over KTCU, campus radio station.

Mike Marshall, Fort Worth sophomore, staff announcer, will conduct an interview with Sparks and several students in the Library Tuesday morning.

Facts about the history of the Library, and students' reactions to the facilities of the structure will be brought out. The taped broadcast may then be heard over the campus station Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

James Duty, Rogers, Ark., freshman, director of student productions, arranged the program.

Next week will be the second annual National Library Week. The theme again this year will be "Wake Up and Read."

Sixty-one per cent of the adults in the United States don't read. Turn to LIBRARY on Page 3

TCU Profited From Burnett Poker Hand

The story of how TCU got the Mary Coutts Burnett grant for its library starts in a poker game.

J. Frank Dobie, in telling the story of the Burnett gift to TCU, related how the good lady's husband got the money in the first place. He recorded the story that Burk Burnett had received his start as a rancher by winning a complete ranch in a poker game with a hand of four sixes.

"This is probably the best poker hand that a Christian Institution ever drew," Dobie wittily remarks.

A telephone call to Dr. Edward M. Waits, president of TCU from 1916 to 1941, on the morning of Dec. 2, 1923 brought an unusual invitation. He was to join in a 9 a.m. conference with Mrs. Mary Coutts Burnett, who lived on Summit Avenue.

When he arrived, Mrs. Burnett's attorney read her will which left her entire estate, valued at three million dollars, to the University. There was only one exception. Provision was made that $150,000 be used to erect one building as a memorial to the donor. President Waits suggested a library. On that day Mary Coutts Burnett Library became a dream. In March, 1925, it became a reality the day the formal dedication ceremony was held.

The news of Mrs. Burnett's gift seemed a surprising thing since she was not a member of the Christian Church, she had no children to attend TCU, nor was on terms of acquaintance with any of the personnel of the institution. Neither had she been solicited.

Possibly her gift was due to the fact that her father, Col. J. R. Coutts, a Weatherford banker, had been an admirer of Addison Clark, pioneer president of Add-Ran. Mrs. Burnett had a gen-

'Similar' Singers

Two Opera Majors Enjoy Roles in 'Carmen' Tonight

By LYNN SWANN

"Now kick her again," are the instructions Zana Flowers receives as she rehearses for the opera "Carmen," which appears at Will Rogers Auditorium tonight.

Zana, an alto member of the chorus, becomes involved in a brawl with the sopranos during one exciting scene of the opera directed by Glenn Ross of San Francisco.

Other Texas Christians associated with the opera are Rudolph Kruger, general director of the Fort Worth Opera Association, and Mary Alice Dammon, who sings the supporting role of Mercedes, one of Carmen's Gypsy friends.

Misses Dammon and Flowers have similar biographies, both having come to TCU to major in voice and both being sorority members, Miss Dammon, Alpha Delta Pi and Miss Flowers, Kappa Delta. Though the young ladies have previously appeared on an amateur status, they both made their professional debuts in the Fort Worth's Civic Opera presentation of "The Magic Flute" in January.

Miss Dammon, here on an Opera Guild scholarship, appears May 15 and 16 in the TCU production of "Orfeo," while Miss Flowers sings arias from "Carmen" May 15 in a performance sponsored by the Women's Music Club to raise funds for scholarships. May 3 she gives her junior recital in which she will sing selections in English, German, French and Italian.

Miss Dammon enjoys the fortune telling sequences of Carmen, in which a Gypsy friend reads her cards and says, "You love money, money, money." Miss Dammon withholds further comment.

And Miss Flowers laughs about smoking a cigarette during a scene. "I can't smoke in private, much less on stage," she explains.

Both women plan to pursue their singing further, though neither has made definite plans for a career in the theater.

CENTER'S CAKE-CUTTIN' COMIN'

"The County Fair" will be the theme of the Student Center's fourth annual Birthday Party, April 20-23.

The four-day event will begin Monday when a special meal will be served in the Cafeteria.

Tuesday night has been designated as game night, and the cutting of the cake is scheduled at 7 p.m.

A hypnotist will entertain at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Room 203.

The "Grand Slam" on Thursday night will consist of a free movie, "Seven Brides of Seven Brothers," and a western dance afterwards.

Shakespeare Is Honored In Display

"He was not of an age, but for all time!" These words of tribute to the English author William Shakespeare are spelled out in gold letters on a black background in a new display on the Library's second floor.

"We have this display on Shakespeare this month because April is the month of his death. It is believed that he was born in the month of April also," said C. G. Sparks, librarian.

Surrounding the large poster, books of Shakespeare's works have been arranged.

Pictures of the author and of his home in Stratford-Upon-Avon, England, have been placed in one of the glass display cases. Also included in the case is a rubbing of the inscription from the grave of Shakespeare in the Church in Stratford:

"Good friend for Jesus' sake forbear, To Digg the Dust Enclosed Heare. Bless Be the Man To Spare Thes Stones, And Curst Be He Who Moves My Bones."

Books about Shakespearean drama, his Globe Theater and the memorial theater to him are open in the remaining display case.

Volbach Plans European Tour, Lecture in England

Dr. Walther Volbach will serve as chairman of a panel for the International Student Festival of Drama in Bristol, England from July 26 to Aug. 1. The Fine Arts Instructor also plans a lecture.

The gathering was initiated a few years after the close of World War II and each year the festival is in a different country.

Drama on Telerama Tomorrow

The last program of the radio and television original dramas will be presented on "Telerama" over KFJZ-TV tomorrow, from 11:30 until 12 noon. The story, written by Michael Fox, Fort Worth junior, is entitled "A Young Man Grown Old."

John Pitt Nolan, the main character, is a 75-year-old man. Ten years ago, he became tired of the ordinary life he was living, of his society wife, and his business transactions. He decided to move to a small Mexican village where people accepted life in simple terms.

He adopted an orphan boy to whom he disclosed his life's philosophy. On his 75th birthday, he believed his purpose for living had been fulfilled because his adopted son was a success.

Characters in the play include John Pitt Nolan, Jim Morgan; Sergas, Richard Zavala; Boy, Tony Costy; Escamil, Dick La-Motte; Trina, Sandra Duncan; Old Woman, Joyce Nicholson; Patren, Bob Romo; and Doctor, Jack Rader.

Royce Syren, Jim Grey, Mike Cusack and Carl Hoyt play four men and parts of women are played by Georgia Ealey, Catherine Davis and Amanda Murray.

Dr. James O. Costy, head of the radio-television dept., is director, and June Pence is assistant director.

"Bebe" Edmondson is stage manager, and Jim Grey and Larry Kuehn are assistant stage managers.

Twenty-five Students Aid As Assistants in Library

Twenty-five student assistants in the Library this semester aid students with their book needs.

Although the hours worked vary for each, most of them average approximately 16 or 17 hours a week, according to C. G. Sparks, librarian.

Hours must be arranged so that assistants are available all hours which the library is open. Holidays don't provide a rest for many of them since the Library usually stays open during vacations, though on a special schedule.

The students mend, shelve, label and check out books to students. Others work in the reference department or work with government documents.

Six of the present Library assistants are graduate students. One of them, Edgar Fox of Fort Worth, is a graduate student in Brite College of the Bible. He has been working in the Library since the summer of 1953.

Bud Wilkinson, Fort Worth senior, started working at the Library as an assistant in the summer of 1954.

Many of the student assistants, such as the two mentioned, start working as freshmen and continue until they graduate.

Miss Linda Wilkinson, Fort Worth freshman, began her job the first six weeks of summer school after graduating from Arlington Heights High School here in Fort Worth.

"There isn't too much turnover each semester. We usually keep the same students right on through until they graduate," Sparks said. "We have only four new ones this semester."

Usually there are no more than four or five student changes each term.

At least two of the assistants are considering a continuance of the library business. Work in the TCU Library has convinced them that they would like to be librarians themselves someday. They are David Hardcastle, Little Rock, Ark., senior, and Bud Wilkinson.

Miss Betty Ann Hanson, B.A. '58, who worked in the Library while she was at TCU, is now studying to be a librarian.

The fact that many of the permanent staff of the TCU Library once were student assistants here shows that the love of books and libraries seems to stay with one.

Among those who worked in the Library during their student days here are Miss Mary Charlotte Faris, assistant reference librarian; Miss Emily Garnett, reference librarian; Mrs. Nell Ornee, loan librarian, and Miss Elizabeth Smiley, loan assistant.

The Fine Arts Library in the Fine Arts Building also employs approximately six assistants.

Tea To Honor Women Grads

A tea honoring the women graduates of TCU will be given by the Recent Graduate Group of the Fort Worth Branch, American Association of University Women.

The event will be held at the home of Mrs. Mayo E. Vick, 1705 Merrick, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow. Mrs. Vick is the president of the Fort Worth Branch.

The tea is held annually for women graduates who will receive approved degrees from college and universities approved for AAUW membership.

The purpose of the tea is to acquaint these graduates with the values of the AAUW, which is the largest organization of women in the United States.

Election Code Goes Before Student Body Again Today

Voting continues from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. today in the Student Center on the election code referendum.

The referendum was ordered by Student Council last Thursday because portions of the recently enacted code conflicted with the constitution.

Constitutional revisions on the ballot are:

1. To allot one representative for every 400 students enrolled in each major division of the University with an additional representative entitled to a division when its enrollment increases by 200.

Approval of this question will allot the Add-Ran College of Arts and Sciences four seats rather than the two it now has.

2. To fill the offices of secretary and treasurer of Student Congress by general election. Previously they have been hired by Congress.

3. To increase the number of sophomore representatives to four.

4. To increase the number of freshman representatives to four.

5. To abolish the six lower class representative seats.

Approval of all points will enable new positions to be filled in spring elections, April 29 and May 1.

uine interest in culture, education and a loyalty to her hometown, Fort Worth.

Her two advisors, Dr. Charles H. Harris, her physician, and William J. Slay, her attorney, also had influence over her choice of TCU.

When a part of Mrs. Burnett's estate was set aside for a library, TCU was sorely in need of one. A room of the Administration Building housed its 22,000 volumes.

The Mary Coutts Burnett Library has since outgrown the $150,000 structure which the Burnett money provided.

On March of this year the new enlarged $1,300,000 library was dedicated. The new structure houses about 315,000 volumes, according to C. G. Sparks, librarian.

LIBRARY

Continued from Page 1 one book a year other than the Bible. Although half the adults in this country live within a mile of a public library, only one-fifth of them use it. It is because of facts like the above that the sponsors decided that libraries and reading need to be re-emphasized.

In cooperation with the Fort Worth Public Library, Sparks is serving on the library sub-committee of Greater Fort Worth Committee for National Library Week.

Marchette Chute, an American authoress, in stating the aims of National Library Week says that the United States could not exist without the written word or without readers.

"Ours is a government of the many, not the few, and it is based on trust in its citizens. It trusts them to have formed the habit of finding out, and that means the habit of reading."

She adds that the habit of reading is not only vital to a democratic society but a source of enrichment to the individual himself.

Mayor Tom McCann has signed a proclamation declaring that Fort Worth joins in observing next week as National Library Week.

The Library Speaks

I am at your service most of your waking hours. My doors are open from 7:45 a.m. to 10 p.m. inviting you to partake of the knowledge I hold within my four walls.

I aid you with your term themes, reports, reading assignments. My volumes include all subjects. I also retain many periodicals for your reading pleasure. Thus I provide both learning and relaxation.

Edward Gibbon, an English historian, said that the use of reading is to aid us in thinking. This is one of my chief goals.

Another aim is to help build educated men and women. These people easily are recognized because they are the ones who have made the most use of me.

Much of the knowledge and accomplishments of the past are stored within my shelves, waiting for you to open a book which is the key which unlocks my treasures.

Great thinkers of the past have praised me. Dawson says, "A library may be regarded as the solemn chamber in which a man may take council with all who have been wise, and great, and good, and glorious among the men that have gone before him."

Next week during National Library Week, April 12-18, come and visit me. I am yours to command.

What to Do With It?

As Congress plods towards the end of a surprisingly uncontroversial term, members appear puzzled on how to dispose of a sizeable permanent improvement fund.

The fund is said to total approximately $2,400. It comprises 20 per cent of the total Student Congress fees collected at the beginning of each semester. Exact figures have not yet been announced by the Business Office, which collects the fees.

With no feasible proposal in sight, the wisest action Congress can take is to salt away their shekels in an interest-earning savings account and leave the task of fiscal decision-making to their successors.

Assists to Graduates

A handsome number of seniors are fortunate to have recently received generous fellowships, scholarships and assistantships for graduate study.

Every year brings keen, sometimes nationwide, competition for awards offered by the Rockefeller Foundation, Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation, Southern Fellowship Fund and numerous major universities.

But every year TCU boasts an abundant share of the prize winners. Credit for such good fortune isn't confined to academic achievement; the success of many an applicant is due to the professors and deans who graciously write countless letters of recommendation.

Such testimonials aren't easy to write. Salient points must be couched in vigorous but diplomatic passages, for discerning committees must be convinced why one applicant should be selected over another with almost equal ability.

Luckily for graduate study aspirants, the TCU faculty has a King Midas knack of parlaying recommendations into liberal awards for their nominees.

TEXAS—

According to the Daily Texan, an eager freshman walked into the Union Activities Council office and asked the program director how he might become a member of two Union Council committees.

"But wouldn't one be enough?" asked the director.

"Oh, no," he said. "I'd never get to become a 'junior wheel' that way!"

Come to think of it, isn't a "junior wheel" a hubcap?

This can be filed under "embarrassing moments."

"A 28-year-old University woman faculty member was arrested Saturday after the motor car she was driving was involved in an accident with two parked cars.

"She was released after posting bond, according to law enforcement official."

"Shirtainly I was driving, officer. I'm too drunk to walk."

ARKANSAS—

Some people have weird sense of humor, according to an article in The Traveler.

"Someone at Macalester College in St. Paul has been putting strange things in campus mailboxes, the Mac Weekly reports.

"The unusual objects have ranged from a glass of water to a dissected frog."

Just wait until they see the dissected lab instructor that was stuffed in the box this afternoon.

Then, for those charity-minded individuals:

"The total signed up to donate to the Red Cross blood drive, which opens today, has reached approximately the 200 mark. The unit will be open to students from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. beginning today. The quota for the University is 35 pints."

My, they are a bloodthirsty group, aren't they?

A&M—

This little gem originated in the town of Portage La Prairie, wherever that is.

"A young bull being washed before going on show at the annual fair here, got some water in his ear which annoyed him. He broke his halter and tore across a nearby golf course, treeing three golfers before being recaptured."

Too bad he was caught before he could make a hole in one. Of the golfers, I mean.

Here is a touching front-page article that should bring tears to the eyes of lovers everywhere.

"Cupid's arrow with a note attached hit deep in the heart of Aggieland yesterday bearing good tidings for all Fighting Texas Aggies." (Isn't that sweet?)

"The good news came in the form of a letter . . . inviting the Corps (or should that be corpse?) to a Valentine Dance.

" . . . this will be an excellent opportunity for the Aggies to meet some cute girls."

Remember, boys, 99 per cent of the men who kissed cows still prefer woman.

YOURS TRULY,

The Name Caller

Editor, The Skiff:

We must congratulate Mr. Winkel for his needed statement concerning the present lamentable status of this newspaper. Besides the ills illuminated in that letter, we are wondering what has happened to any high ideal or courage the newspaper profession has been known to attain elsewhere, but is conspicuous by its absence here. This year the students have been given nothing more than a mish-mash of sophomoric content in the paper. Has the editorial staff no ambition of attaining anything more elaborate than a gossip sheet? Nothing outside of a few vague attempts have been written concerning moral justice in world and campus affairs. What has been mentioned of the Tibetan revolt falling, it would appear, into the tragic steps of Hungary? What of the Eisenhower administration or the freshman liberal democrats' plunge into Congress? Nothing comparable to the action of the few Polytech boys has risen from the vat of printer's ink allocated for state affairs. Isolation from the world is a poor policy for a "news" service.

Indeed, even at the University, issues rise and die with, if lucky, a minute obituary notice. When will the newspaper grapple with the commercial hours of the Library? Or the legalized monopoly north of the Cafeteria? Or even the bit of government we have here? The reply to Mr. Winkel's letter mentioned cultural events being "covered," but we found no criticism of a recent play that left its curtain open for an evident comment. There is a German Arts festival in progress at this university; we see no critical mention amidst the columns.

Academic, political, even cultural events pass before the university while an "enjoyable newspaper" fumbles with significant questions, as the nature of a gambling man. We have often wondered about the editorial policy, and if the reply to Mr. Winkel's letter is indicative, an answer is evident to the student body.

Sincerely,
WALLACE FORD.

Editor's Note: We believe this last sentence to be true.

In answer to the writer's questions—justice is blind, Tibet is comparable to Hungary (Would Mr. Ford prefer its comparison to be with Korea?), Eisenhower is a great president, who cares about the liberal Democrats' plunge into Congress?, four stories (including an editorial and letter) have been printed concerning Library hours.

Also, we have a pretty fair student government here, and April 20 is Hitler's birthday.

I'm happy Mr. Ford finds The Skiff "enjoyable." It received its 18th consecutive All-American rating this year.

And finally, Mr. Ford might grapple for awhile with the term "campus newspaper."—Pat Beckham.

The Expose

Editor, The Skiff:

As a respecter of TRUTH, I also am its protector, and thus feel forever compelled to speak out in defense thereof, whatever may prove the cost in terms of friendship and human feelings.

It is my sad duty to expose at once a hoax and a phony. The hoax is Mr. Bernt Winkel's recently notarized culture kick, the phony Mr. Winkel himself.

Here is the straight scoop on Mr. Winkel: He exited, quite noisily, during the first act of Mary Stuart. He neglected the Fallis Players entirely. He failed to attend "The Seven Ages of Man." In his own words, the ballet staged recently evidenced "more pedestrian good intent than worthwhile talent." To top it all, during the piano concert of Sunday last Mr. Winkel, who probably had been up all night writing letters to the editor, fell unashamedly to sleep, this proving quite embarrassing to those of us around him, since, alas! as is true of so many of those who seek the limelight, Mr. Winkel does nothing quietly.

In closing, I might suggest that were the truth known, Mr. Winkel's taste for "Bach" confines itself to the kind one gets in the bier garden.

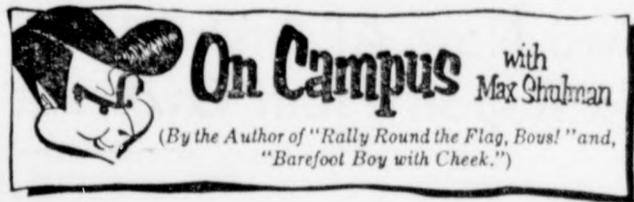

Dutifully,
JAMES T. BRATCHER.

HOW TO BE A THUMPING BIG SUCCESS ON CAMPUS

While up in the attic last week hiding from the tax man, I came across a letter, yellow with age, that dear old Dad had sent me when I was a freshman. I reproduce it below in the hope that it may light your way as it did mine.

"Dear Son, (Dad always called me Son. This was short for Sonnenberg, which used to be my first name. I traded it last year with a man named Max. He threw in two outfielders and a left-handed pitcher . . . But I digress.)

"Dear Son, (Dad wrote)

"I suppose you are finding college very big and bewildering, and maybe a little frightening too. Well, it need not be that way if you will follow a few simple rules.

"First of all, if you have any problems, take them to your teachers. They want to help you. That's what they are there for. Perhaps they seem a little aloof, but that is only because they are so busy. You will find your teachers warm as toast and friendly as pups if you will call on them at an hour when they are not overly busy. Four a.m., for instance.

"Second, learn to budget your time. What with classes, activities, studying, and social life all competing for your time, it is easy to fall into sloppy habits. Set up a rigid schedule and stick to it. Remember, there are only 24 hours a day. Three of these hours must be spent in class. For every hour in class you must, of course, spend two hours studying. So there go six more hours. Then, as we all know, for every hour studying, you must spend two hours sleeping. This accounts for twelve more hours. Then there are meals—three hours each for breakfast and lunch, four hours for dinner. Never forget, Sonnenberg, you must chew each mouthful twelve hundred times. You show me a backward student, and I'll show you a man who bolts his food.

"But college is more than just sleeping, eating, and studying. There are also many interesting activities which you must not miss. You'll want to give at least three hours a day to the campus newspaper, and, of course, another three hours each to the dramatic and music clubs. And let's say a total of eight hours daily to the stamp club, the debating club, and the foreign affairs club. Then, of course, nine or ten hours for fencing and bird-walking, and another ten or twelve for ceramics and three-card monte.

"Finally we come to the most important part of each day—what I call 'The Quiet Time.' This is a period in which you renew yourself—just relax and think great thoughts and smoke Marlboro Cigarettes. Why Marlboro? Because they are the natural complement to the active life. They have better 'makin's'; the filter filters; the flavor is rich and mellow and a treat to the tired, a boon to the spent, a safe harbor to the storm-tossed. That's why.

"Well, Sonnenberg, I guess that's about all. Your kindly old mother sends her love. She has just finished putting up rather a large batch of pickles—in fact, 350,000 jars. I told her that with you away at school, we would not need so many, but kindly old Mother is such a creature of habit that, though I hit her quite hard several times, I could not dissuade her.

Keep 'em flying,
Dad."

Business School Will Add 2 New Majors in Fall

After more than three years of study and planning by its faculty, the School of Business at TCU will initiate two new degree programs to begin this fall.

"This will enable our students to receive a stronger liberal arts background along with their business subjects," states Dr. Ike Harrison, dean of the School of Business. "It will insure their getting the broad training they will need to pursue their vocations after graduation."

A major in Industrial Management will be set up on the undergraduate level. The program is designed to train students planning a position in some aspect of factory management. Personnel Management will be offered as a major under the master's degree program.

The graduate program in business has revised its thesis requirements. Students may now choose between taking 24 semester hours of work plus writing a thesis, or following a program without a thesis which requires 36 hours of course work.

Soviet Trip High Spot of Tour

A Soviet Union visit will highlight a tour of Europe sponsored by TCU next summer. It will be the first time that a Southwest school has conducted a trip to Russia.

The tour, led by Dr. Marguerite Potter, professor of modern European and Russian history, will cover 11 countries from July 19 to Aug. 23.

While in Russia, the group will inspect a collective farm in Kiev, see places of interest around Moscow, Aug. 10-13, and will be in the Leningrad area Aug. 14-16.

Qualified students may earn 6 semester hours of history credit on satisfactory completion of the work outlined in connection with the trip. However, those who wish may join the tour without qualifying for college credit.

In addition to visiting Russia, the 36-day tour will also take in London, Paris, Cologne, Heidelberg, Lucerne, Rome, Venice and Vienna. Stops will also be made in Budapest and Lwow, Poland, and cities in Norway and Finland.

Jobs Open With Two Companies

Two companies will be interviewing seniors for possible jobs on campus next Monday and Tuesday.

Gean St. John of the Prudential Insurance Company of America will talk with students of all majors Monday.

Lon Argabright of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. will interview students from the School of Business and liberal arts majors Tuesday.

It is not necessary for a student to have filled out a biographical form with the Placement Bureau.

New History Student Organization Will Petition National Fraternity

A group of 20 history majors recently organized to petition for affiliation with Phi Alpha Theta, national honor society in history.

This fraternity is for students and faculty members of distinguished American colleges and universities who are interested in the study of history.

Scholastic requirements for membership are that a student have at least 12 hours in history above the Social Science 312ab level, a little better than a 3.0 grade average in history coupled with a 3.0 over-all average.

Ben Procter, assistant professor in history and faculty sponsor for the new organization, said that an acknowledgment from national headquarters in Allentown, Pa., should arrive in six weeks concerning the TCU charter.

Officers elected at the April 6 meeting were Robert Carr, president, Dallas junior; Sandra O'Donnell, vice president, Fort Worth junior; Nancy Yant, secretary-historian, Fort Worth junior and Marvin Mastro, treasurer, Greenville junior.

Any history major interested in membership in Phi Alpha Theta, is asked to stop by and talk with Prof. Procter in AD 102.

Phi Alpha Theta has 171 active chapters in 42 states including Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico.

From the Sideline

By LEE GRIMSLEY

Again TCU is low man on the totem pole and officials from other schools in the state are beginning to recognize the fact.

"It's a disgrace," said a conference baseball coach after a recent game with the Frogs here. We won't mention his name or the school he coaches so as not to create any ill feelings.

We thought he might be mad about losing the ball game, so we pursued his statement further. He wasn't mad about losing.

"I think as much of TCU as anyone does," he said. "And I always enjoy playing one of Rabbit's (McDowell) baseball clubs. But I hate to come up to this place for anything, football, basketball or baseball.

"It's a disgrace that a school this size can't have adequate facilities for athletic events.

"Look at the basketball team," he said. "Here they won the championship and could fill up any gymnasium in the country. Yet they have to play in a cracker-box high school gym that won't hold any people. And it's senseless to have that sort of situation existing in a school this size.

"And look at this baseball diamond," he said. "It's the worst one in the state and it wouldn't cost over a $1,000 to fix it up.

"They could put a fence around here to cut down on the wind. The wind here is terrible and there's nothing to stop it except that dinky little picket fence.

"And look at that mound out there," he said, pointing to the pitcher's mound. "It's got a big hole in it and I thought my pitcher had broken his leg when he stepped in it in the fourth inning.

"I just hate to come up here for a game. And yet I like TCU as well as anyone. They've got some good coaches and they always come up with some good teams. They just don't have a place to play."

There was no malice in the visiting coach's statement. He was merely stating a fact that is becoming well known to TCU students and followers.

Dual Duel With Bats

By JACK HARKRIDER

The proverbial battle of David and Goliath will be repeated Friday and Saturday as TCU takes on the "giant" of the Southwest Conference, the Texas Longhorns, in a 2-game series at the Frogs' diamond.

Texas leads the conference with a 3-1 count, by virtue of a 1-0 victory over the stubborn Rice Owls in Houston Tuesday.

The Frogs, on the other hand, will try to save face after a decisive 7-14 loss to the Texas Aggies at College Station Tuesday.

In Tuesday's game, the Aggies pounded Darrel Read and Rode Gonzales for eight runs in the sixth inning to smash the Christians and gain a 3-2 record.

The Frogs grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first inning, scoring on a walk by George Banda, Charles Franklin's double and a single by I. B. Childs.

The Aggies got runs in the first and fourth to tie the count at 2-2, but the Frogs stormed back in the fifth with two runs to go ahead, 4-2.

These came when Childs was issued a walk, Hunter Enis singled and Marshall Harris and Bob Newton delivered back-to-back singles.

The Frogs could do no more until the seventh when Enis poked one over the left field wall for his second homer of the year.

Then came the fateful eighth inning when the Aggies blasted the Purple out of the ball park.

Woods and Waters

By GEORGE GOULD

Sportsmen may be in the middle of the fishing season, but many are wondering what the quail situation is, and how it will affect next year's shooting.

From the looks of all reports, the problem is a big one with the quail getting the short end of the stick. Two factors are cutting the quail's chances of a good reproductive season this spring—lack of food and rats.

The North Texas area seems to have been the hardest hit. The Texas Game and Fish Commission has done some trapping with the hopes of moving as many birds as possible out of low food areas into more substantial surroundings. There is really no telling whether this maneuver will solve anything, but we've got to give them credit for trying. Just a few months ago, there was an abundance of quail in the area including Fort Worth. Because of an insufficient food supply and plenty of rats in the field, a good percentage of the quail population has died, and more will die as food gets lower and the rats get bigger. Prediction—no open quail season for the next two years.

The success of stocked fish in Texas lakes and streams is dependent upon many things. To help determine the future of black bass, channel cats and others in our waters, extensive tagging of these fishes has started in this area. By learning how fish travel when spawning or just moving from place to place, it can predict with some degree of accuracy how they will survive and develop.

However, it is impossible for a bass to fill out a for and send in its own tag. The only way this plan can be effective is for the fisherman who catch tagged fish to send in their metal clip. They are usually attached to either the upper jaw or gill cover. When sending in a tag, it is requested that length, weight, location and date of catch accompany the clip. Fishermen who return these tags will in turn receive a letter giving information as to where the fish was released, and any other information about the fish that is available.

Two Track Meets Set Saturday

By GORDON PYNES

Boosted by some of TCU's best track performances in history at last week's Texas Relays, Coach J. Eddie Weems splits his forces for meets Saturday in Austin and Denton.

The varsity journeys south for a quadrangular meet involving Rice, Baylor and Texas while the talented Wogs enter the North Texas Relays.

Frog varsity forces, with only seven entrants, fear the worst against the power-laden Longhorns, but hopes are that the few Purple competitors can cop some places.

Pole Vaulter Mike Howell is the only Frog with a favorite's role. He has repeatedly out-jumped those he'll be up against.

James Livergood, who turned in a superb leg on the 2-mile relay last week, will attempt to upset the plans of Texas' Joe Villareal for a triple victory. Villareal hopes to gain firsts at the half mile, mile and 2-mile distances but Livergood rates a good chance of clipping him in the 880 event.

Weightman John Cantrell is entered in four events, the discus, shot put, javelin, and high jump.

Footballer Aubrey Linne will high jump and use his big frame to add power in the javelin throw.

Other half-mile entrants are Lafayette Heath and Joe Douglas. Both are slated for a stint on the mile relay.

Joining the mile relay and competing in the 220 low hurdles is Kelly Westlake.

Trainer Elmer Brown expects better things with his frosh in Denton. The mile relay team which reeled off a brilliant 3:17.9 last Saturday, the best in school history, hopes to trim a couple of seconds off that time. Bert Coan, Alfred Hizer, Reagan Gasaway and Bobby Barrett compose this foursome.

Other entrants are High Hurdler Bobby Bernard, Mike Loudermilk in the lows and Glenn McCrosky and Coan in the 100.

A pile of freshmen: Bert Coan, Alfred Hizer, Reagan Gasaway and Bobby Barrett.
