WONDERS WORK IN SCIENCE SHOW

By J'NELL ROGERS

Exhibits to make one's hair literally stand on end may be seen at the sixth annual Science Open House which will be held in the Science Building from 7 to 10 p.m. today.

Dr. Russell Faulkner is the chairman of the open house, which will feature approximately 100 displays of equipment set up in various departments to show the general public what is being done in the science division of the University.

Last year, over 1,000 people toured the building in the annual event.

The physics department will have a Van de Graaf generator on display. It creates static electricity, and when one stands in front of it his hair will stand straight out from his head.

A Tesla coil which produces artificial lightning will be shown also.

Two 3-foot by 6-foot paper mache models will be featured by the geology department. The two models, which represent a modern and an ancient river delta, were prepared especially for the annual national meeting of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists which was held in Dallas in March.

The chemistry department promises a chemistry show every half hour.

A portion of the biology department's display will be materials collected from a recent trip which an advanced marine ecology class took to the Florida Keys.

Dr. John Forsythe, professor of biology, has arranged a display of reptiles from his collection.

Various nursing activities and procedures of the Harris College of Nursing students may be seen. The nurses, in conjunction with the biology department, also plan to give free blood tests to visitors and tell them their blood types if they wish.

Dr. Faulkner and his assistants will demonstrate methods of making wax models from microscopic slides.

All classrooms will be open and displays will be set up in each lab.

Those departments which are co-operating in the open house and the professors in charge of displays for that department are physics, Dr. H. M. Moseley; home economics, Miss Bonne Enlow; nursing, Miss Lucille Houston; biology, Mrs. Lola Huff; geology, Dan Jarvis; chemistry, Mrs. Dorothy Gibson; math, Miss Ina Bramlet, and engineering, Arch Wallace.

Formal invitations have been sent to various high schools of this area.

Dr. Faulkner invites all students, faculty members, science graduates and all other interested persons to attend the open house.

Each department will serve refreshments to its guests.

'U' Band to Play Concert Sunday In Ed Landreth

The University Symphony Band will play a concert in Ed Landreth Auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday. The band will be under the direction of Jim Jacobsen.

Jacobsen also is the director of the TCU Marching Band which performs at parades and football games.

One of the featured events of the program will be a brass ensemble playing "Texas, Our Texas."

The band will play the song, "Tulsa," composed by Jim Gillis, former band director at TCU. It is a story in song of the oil boom in Oklahoma.

Admission to the concert is free.

Sound System Will Make First Appearance in 'Prince'

By ANN STUBBS

A newly installed stereo sound system adds realistic effects to tonight's opening of "The Sleeping Prince" by Terrence Rattigan in the Little Theater. Curtain time is 8 p.m. The system was built by Ray Gant Jr.

One of the two speakers is portable, allowing directional sound. Tonight, the music of an organ grinder and the striking of Big Ben will come through one window of the set while all other sounds come from the stationary speaker.

The system includes a Webcor stereo tape and a Garrard turntable and amplifier encased in a portable console unit, allowing the system to be operated anywhere in the theatre. Tonight's sound production will be controlled from the light booth, so that operators can co-ordinate action and sound.

The original play was called "The Prince and the Show Girl." The plot revolves around a middle-aged regent, played by Jack Rader, who comes to England for the 1911 coronation and falls in love with an American chorus girl, played by Ann Hite.

It is a light and satirical comedy, with tongue-in-cheek characterization of royalty.

Accountants, Auditors Needed Throughout U.S.

Accountants and auditors are needed in Washington, D.C., and throughout the United States in the General Accounting Office, the Department of Defense (which includes the Army, Navy, and Air Force), the Internal Revenue Service, and various other federal agencies, the United States Civil Service Commission announces. The entrance salaries are $4,040 and $4,980 a year.

The play will run April 24, 25, 29 and 30, and May 1 and 2.

Others in the cast include Catherine Davis, Ed Parker, Ralph Alexander, John Simons, Mark McCrary, Roger Puckett, Charlotte Starbird, Lynn Peterson, Amanda Murray and Marla Summerford.

Henry Hammack directs the production, with Pat Belew as set designer and Cleve Haubold as costume designer. Nita Webb is assistant director and Pat Wood is stage manager.

Screening Committee Axed; Cheerleader Candidates OK'd

Five men cheerleader candidates were re-instated on the spring election ballot Tuesday as Student Congress abolished the screening committee which had declared them ineligible in a meeting Monday afternoon.

A number of Congress members appeared incensed by the five disqualifications.

The newly adopted election code provided cheerleader candidates had to be approved by a screening committee consisting of the band director, two student members appointed by him, the social director and one physical education department member.

Student Congress Sponsor Ben Proctor, instructor in history, was requested to head the committee since Band Director Jim Jacobsen was to be away from the campus.

In a 3½-hour session, the committee refused to approve John Bell, Dale Netherland, Jimmy Davis, Jim Koch and Charlie Robinson.

Addressing Congress, Proctor emphasized no member of the committee had any animosity towards any candidate and declared a vote of four of the five committee members was necessary to disqualify a candidate.

"Intangible" factors as well as abilities as cheerleader, physical appearance, dependability, interest and academic proficiency were stressed by Proctor as standards of the committee in considering cheerleader aspirants.

Congress also voted to require a minimum of 2.0 grade index for the last long semester or summer session in addition to established 2.0 or better grade index for every campus office. The vote followed a heated discussion on an amendment to put the provision into effect next fall rather than in spring elections. The amendment carried 17-12 in a secret ballot.

Election committee chairman John Tyson proposed the change, originally contained in the first draft of the election code, because academic requirements for cheerleaders and some Congress seats are lower than those for officers of clubs, fraternities and sororities.

Backers of the amendment contend "it wouldn't be fair" to eliminate candidates who filed under stated rules and who already have begun their campaigns.

A proposal by IFC President Danny Fitzgerald to provide a vote in Congress for a representative from Panhellenic and IFC was voted down by Congress.

Fitzgerald asserted Greeks were one of the most representative groups on campus and should be entitled to a Congress vote.

Congress members explained that a Greek representative would be unfair to independents, religious organizations and other interest groups, and that a complete re-alignment of representation would be necessary to justify the move.

WINDY WILLY

A male upperclassman ambled up to a coed who had just come into class from the windy out-of-doors.

"My, you've got your hair fixed differently. What kind of hairdo is that?"

"It's a French roll," she replied.

"I was going to call it a hurricane whip," he grinned.

Interfraternity Council Studying Planned Projects for Next Year

By JAMES HARPER

Campus fraternities, under the guidance of Interfraternity Council, have a number of irons in the fire.

A service project trophy for Greek organizations has been proposed to the IFC by the Fort Worth Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Jaycees, who have between 20 and 30 service projects going all the time, want to turn a few of them over to the Greek organizations.

The Junior Chamber will present a trophy at the end of the year to the fraternity or sorority most successful in carrying out these projects.

This competition will serve a dual purpose. First, the program will be designed for community betterment. Second, it will give the Greeks more important service affairs.

The new IFC constitution is expected to be adopted at their next meeting. The new constitution has consolidated old amendments into the new text and has several additions.

Under new law, a fraternity does not have to present actual proof when making violation charges against another fraternity.

In order to keep down "mud slinging" a 3-man executive committee will investigate and rule whether evidence is in order for prosecution.

The executive committee will bring charges and recommend the penalty. Trial and verdict will be handled by the Council members. The executive committee only recommends, therefore, no new power has been granted.

This innovation in no way limits the old methods of bringing charges.

The new constitution also states that the IFC has to approve any fraternity wanting to come on campus before it takes any action petitioning the University for colonization.

IFC officers are to be elected the first meeting in March and take effect the first meeting in April.

No fraternity may succeed itself in the chair.

The old terms "chairman" and "vice chairman" have been changed to "president" and "vice president." Also the office of treasurer has been acknowledged.

The rules committee has several ideas brewing. A limitation on the amount a fraternity can spend on formals is being studied. Likewise is a bid to strengthen scholarship, strict social probation for chapters having a grade average below a set figure.

Next fall you will find fraternities building individual Homecoming floats. This is to insure no recurrence of last year's "mass mess."

The Rev. James A. Farrar, director of religious activities, will be the Chapel speaker Tuesday.

5 ROTC Detachments Congregate For Third Pre-Summer Encampment

Five schools with Air Force ROTC detachments will participate in the Third Annual Pre-Summer Encampment at Carswell AFB this weekend.

More than 70 cadets from North Texas State College, East Texas State, SMU, Baylor and TCU will be active in the weekend encampment.

TCU's AFROTC detachment is the project unit, developing the training to assist the Air Science III cadets, who will participate in the regular summer training this summer.

This pre-summer encampment also will give the cadets a better understanding of what to expect and how to react to the various situations imposed on them in summer camp.

Eight members of the AFROTC junior class will attend. They are Buddy Blake, Dale Boaz, Bob Caraway, Henry Lance, Stana McAnelly, Jack Reding, Roger Stephenson, Bob Treadaway, and one senior, Bob Scheifer.

Cadet Col. Joe Driskill and Cadet Lt. Col. Wilbur Kirkland, seniors with summer training experience, will act as junior TAC officers.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

'D'-Average Representatives

A vacillating Student Congress took two steps Tuesday—in different directions.

One provided for a higher caliber student leader; the other postponed the date when he will take office.

Congress adopted a revision of the election code, recommended by election committee chairman John Tyson, that would require cheerleaders and Congress representatives to have a minimum of 2.0 grade index for the long session preceding the election in addition to established qualifications for the office.

But the legislators, many of whom are running for offices next week, declined to initiate the new requirement in spring elections, because "it wouldn't be fair" to candidates who had already started their campaigns.

Although no names were mentioned, it was apparent that several candidates who filed last Thursday would have been ineligible.

The 17 legislators who voted in secret ballot not to apply the 2.0 requirement to spring elections exercised somewhat less than the foresight presumed inherent in student leaders.

Whether they voted in their own interests or those of students they were elected to represent is a debatable issue.

But one fact is certain. A student who cannot consistently maintain a "C" grade average has no claim to a position of student leadership, despite his vote-winning popularity on election day.

Judge For Yourself

The student voter who neglects to attend the election rally in the Ballroom Tuesday night will miss an excellent opportunity to judge for himself the qualifications of candidates for major offices.

The rally, if attended by enough voters, can help remove the popularity contest stigma that traditionally accompanies campus elections.

It's an important meeting for those interested in student government and who demand more than an attractive poster or a group's endorsement before casting their ballot for an eager candidate.

Play Ball!

This spring, TCU seniors are to be graduated and they will walk off the stage into life holding a sheepskin.

So they have a degree—what good is it?

"A degree opens doors; it gives one prestige and opportunity for higher wages."

True, but the degree doesn't keep the door open, nor assure one the esteem of his fellow man, nor insure wages higher than the non-educated man.

A college degree puts the bat in one's hands, but the individual—not a piece of paper—is standing at the plate.

The first ball is thrown—appearance.

A second ball is pitched—personality.

Then the third ball is thrown—ability.

Most people take it for granted that something will soak in during four years of college. It is not an obstacle course, but getting through and the association with different personalities surely will be of some aid.

Life is out there on the mound pitching and the employers are umpiring the game. Play ball! You're up to bat.

Candidates for Presidency Present Platforms

Max Jones

If elected president of the TCU student body, I would do all in my power to carry out the following platform:

A. Believing that the students of TCU are adults and that they can govern themselves, I would like to see "Honor Life" installed at TCU. This program is one in which students accept certain responsibilities in order to make our University a better one. "Honor Life" would be initiated in the dormitories and Student Union Building before being tried academically, and its purpose would be:

1. To promote a spirit of honesty and citizenship.
2. To promote better relations among student body, faculty, and Administration.
3. To promote school spirit.
4. To promote high scholastic standards.

B. Believing that students of TCU need a school-wide spring activity in order to better school spirit and bring students closer together, I propose that Congress work with the Administration, faculty, students, and all necessary groups to achieve this activity.

C. Believing that there is a definite need for the Library to be available to students more hours during the week, I suggest that Congress appoint a committee to work with the Administration in trying to solve this problem.

D. Believing that the student body needs to know what Student Congress is and what Student Congress is doing, I propose to have a biweekly report of Congress activities made available to all students. Any matters of pressing importance could be announced to the student body.

E. Believing that there is a misunderstanding between the students about the organization and administration of Student Center and Cafeteria, I propose that Congress set up a standing committee to work with the students and Administration on this problem.

This committee would welcome constructive criticism concerning present policies and would try to better the problem by presenting students' criticism to the Administration and by educating the student as to why certain policies exist.

Jerry Johnson

Before any platform can be advanced, we must have a critical evaluation of our present student government. Such an evaluation shows that today's Student Congress is at best synonymous with a social committee.

I recognize the significance of social life, yet should a government organ, representative of over 4,000 students, hold this position only? This governing body should take an active part in the origination of policies affecting students' life. Student Congress should have the right to participate in the enforcement of these policies.

These powers are not possessed by our present student government, due to a drought in leadership. This absence of leadership has created a vacuum, which, through necessity, the Administration has attempted to fill.

Believing Congress to be weak, I feel that the fulfillment of any promise advanced prior to the establishment of a more efficient student government is impossible. Therefore, I advance the following remedies:

1. The birth of student responsibility by the initiation of an educational campaign through a student leader committee for a greater TCU. The committee members shall be representative of all phases of campus activity. One task of the committee will be to enlighten both the students and the Administration as to the advantage of a more responsible student government.

2. The creation of an annual leadership planning retreat, the purpose of which is to familiarize new members with congressional organization, to correlate the activities of the committees, and to lay plans for operations to follow in the course of the year.

3. To provide a regular meeting place in order that a more serious and contemplative atmosphere may be maintained.

The extent to which these changes can be carried out depends upon responsible leadership and the willingness of the students to accept their responsibilities as members of this community we know as Texas Christian University.

Any student not willing to accept these responsibilities relinquishes his right to criticize the policies by which he is governed.

YOURS TRULY,

Question of Taste?

Song fest or song jest? This question came to my mind as the awards were being presented to the fraternity and sorority winners of the ZTA song fest. I seemed to have difficulty, on occasion, remembering that the proceedings were not a continuation of the pathetic "Greek Review" in formal (for some) attire.

I enjoy good singing and like to consider my range of enjoyment rather broad, so that it is not with an injured sense of decorum or an air of stuffiness in mind that this letter was composed. With this obvious rationalization over, I sought the resources of Webster's book and found a cappella, classified as "chapel style" in relation to unaccompanied singing.

Now this does not imply flowing black robes, but it would possibly not stretch the interpretation to mean "formal with overtones of dignity." Instead, these qualities were absent to varying degrees in several groups, even those receiving the laurel wreaths.

While some may justify this as homage to the god of variety, they were inconsistent with the theme of the song fest, which I understood to be singing ability and not mere production.

In one glaring example, it was like pitting the "Grand Old Opry" against the voices of Walter Schumann and declaring the former superior since more of the audience stamped their feet and got a good laugh. Even the boys swung out with a show-stopper and a jaw-dropper that left even the most blase listener with arched eyebrows.

Although this group did not officially place, they sang their song with gusto as if it had received much practice in a suitable environment. In their proper place these "errors" would have been acceptable, but at the song fest they were in glaringly poor taste. One does not wear blue jeans and his second-best vocabulary to a formal affair.

One can only hope that next year's entries are judged by their musicianship and not so much by the sense of informal costumes which the judges this year saw fit to honor.

Sincerely,
TIM LEWIS.

Yes, It's AddRan

Editor, The Skiff:

Last week, an article in The Skiff brought up again the question of the hyphen in the name of our college of arts and sciences.

I am able to add further evidence in the controversy.

I have on file the written statement, given me several years ago, of T. M. Clark, younger brother of Addison and Randolph Clark, who with them taught from the first day, Sept. 1, 1873, at Thorp Spring.

Mr. Clark wrote: "The college was named in memory of Addison Clark's first-born child, a son who died at the age of three years. This child's name was AddRan, made up of the first syllable of the name of his father, Addison, and the first of that of his uncle, Randolph. It is properly written capital A and capital R—no hyphen. Thus, AddRan."

It was stated in The Skiff article that the child was buried in Greenwood Cemetery. This is in error. His grave is in Pioneer Rest, and the stone may be seen to this day.

The testimony in Mr. Clark's letter should be conclusive.

Yours truly,
E. CLYDE WHITLOCK,
School of Fine Arts

Editor's Note: Dear Mr. Whitlock—You may be correct on the facts, but you have the wrong publication. The Faculty Bulletin ran the story, not The Skiff. Thanks, anyway.

VIVE LE POPCORN!

The other day as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (Marlboro, incidentally, has the best tinfoil, which is not surprising when you consider that they have the best cigarettes, which is not surprising when you consider that they take the best filters and put them together with the best tobaccos and rush them to your tobacco counter, fresh and firm and loaded with smoking pleasure). The other day, I say, as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (I have, incidentally, the second largest ball of tinfoil in our family. My brother Eleanor's is bigger—more than four miles in diameter—but, of course, he is taller than I). The other day, as I was saying, while walking down the street picking up tinfoil, I passed a campus and right beside it, a movie theatre which specialized in showing foreign films. Most campuses have foreign movie theatres close by, because foreign movies are full of culture, art, and esoterica, and where is culture more rife, art more rampant, and esoterica more endemic than on a campus?

Nowhere; that's where.

alas, his flashlight battery is burned out

I hope you have all been taking advantage of your local foreign film theatre. Here you will find no simple-minded Hollywood products, marked by treacly sentimentality and machine-made bravura. Here you will find life itself—in all its grimness, its poverty, its naked, raw passion!

Have you, for instance, seen the recent French import, Le Crayon de Mon Oncle ("The Kneecap"), a savage and uncompromising story of a man named Claude, whose consuming ambition is to get a job as a meter reader with the Paris water department? But he is unable, alas, to afford the flashlight one needs for this position. His wife, Bon-Bon, sells her hair to a wigmaker and buys him a flashlight. Then, alas, Claude discovers that one also requires a leatherette bow tie. This time his two young daughters, Caramel and Nougat, sell their hair to a wigmaker. So now Claude has his leatherette bow tie, but now, alas, his flashlight battery is burned out and the whole family, alas, is bald.

Or have you seen the latest Italian masterpiece, La Donna E Mobile (I Ache All Over), a heart-shattering tale of a boy and his dog? Malvolio, a Venetian lad of nine, loves his little dog with every fibre of his being. He has one great dream: to enter the dog in the annual Venetian dog show. But this, alas, requires an entrance fee, and Malvolio, alas, is penniless. However, he saves and scrimps and steals and finally gets enough together to enter the dog in the show. The dog, alas, comes in twenty-third. Malvolio sells him to a vivisectionist.

Or have you seen the new Japanese triumph, Kibutzi-San (The Radish), a pulse-stirring historical romance about Yamoto, a poor farmer, and his daughter Ethel who are accosted by a warlord one morning on their way to market? The warlord cuts Yamoto in half with his samurai sword and runs off with Ethel. When Yamoto recovers, he seeks out Ethel's fiancé, Red Buttons, and together they find the warlord and kill him. But, alas, the warlord was also a sorcerer and he whimsically turned Ethel into a whooping crane. Loyal Red Buttons takes Ethel home where he feeds her fish heads for twenty years and keeps hoping she'll turn back into a woman. She never does. Alas.

Everybody Wants To Get in the Act

By GEORGE GOULD

"My home isn't surrounded with big buildings, streets and stores, but rather tents, concession booths and sawdust," says James Rossi, a junior from Hugo, Okla.

Jim started his schooling at the University of Oklahoma, but after a year of book work, decided he might like to see what the rest of the world had to offer.

Fortunately for Jim, he had a special talent that he could call on to help work his way to and from these far distant points.

In one of the two years he was away from school, he went as far north as Canada and south to Panama City, east to New York and west to California. He made his livelihood performing in rodeos as a trick rider and roper.

"My family has been involved with circuses and rodeos ever since I was two months old, and I guess that's when my interest in riding began.

"My mother and dad own the Kelly-Miller Brothers circus which is the largest tented circus in the United States now that Ringling Brothers is no more," mentioned Jim. But, Jim's circus affiliations don't quit there. He's engaged to Wanda Moore, a student at North Texas, whose folks own a circus, too.

"Wanda helps pay for her schooling by circus performing as an aerial star during the summer."

Jim's older brother, Rex, is considered one of the two top trick riders and ropers in the country.

"Because this event is non-contested, it's hard to say he's the best," said Jim.

"His talents were recognized in Hollywood, and as a result, he received several parts in movies. Rex doubled for Gene Kelly in 'The Three Musketeers' and he's doubled for Bob Steel," Jim added.

When Jim was in California, he worked and lived with The Cisco Kid for six weeks. While performing in the Los Angeles rodeo in 1956, Rossi worked with Natalie Wood, who was then queen of the Los Angeles rodeo. He also met Rex Allen, Gary Mitchell, Arthur Kennedy and Chill Wills.

"When I was in New York, I used to work out every morning with Will Rogers Jr. in Madison Square Garden. It was a wonderful experience, and we enjoyed teaching each other new tricks," he said.

"In the city of Santa Anna, there's an active volcano that likes to erupt at unexpected moments. This time it decided to throw a fit just when I was hanging off my saddle with the horse going as fast as he could.

"The volcano gave with a heave and the pony tried to clear a 7-foot fence. It seems that native horses of El Salvador can only jump fences 6 feet 11 inches. Result — one broken wrist."

Of Sounds

As usual, the greater part of the University community was absent from the Tuesday night concert of the University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Ralph R. Guenther and featuring Joe Bratcher as piano soloist.

The "regulars" who were there can feel just pride in some of TCU's jewels in the Fine Arts showcase. Mozart's E-Flat Major concerto was brilliantly performed by Mr. Bratcher with excellent orchestral rapprochement.

The program opener, Wagner's Overture to Die Meistersinger, was substantial enough in spite of numerical weakness in certain sections of the orchestra.

Mendelssohn's Reformation Symphony is not included often enough in symphonic programming. The finale to an inspiring evening, this lyrical work received sensitive treatment from Dr. Guenther and company. Bravo!

Ministers' Wives Plan May Party

The Ministers' Wives Club will sponsor a party at Weatherly Hall at 8 p.m. on May 11.

The theme of the party will be "The Country Store" and dress will be accordingly.

The party is for the married couples and the faculty of Brite College. The wives are to bring their husbands' favorite pies. This will serve as admission and also for refreshments for the party.

There will be games and square dancing for the couples.

ROUGH COURSES; BETTER WRITING

Nearly 200 entries have been submitted to the Creative Writing Contest this spring.

The creative writing committee feels that not only was the quantity higher this year but the quality also was superior. Credit for the superior entries may be given to the fact that the number of invitational freshmen English and creative writing courses has increased.

The winners of the contest will be announced at the Creative Writing Convocation at 11 a.m., May 7.

Why did
14,436
sophomores
enter advanced
during 1958?

Many more applied. Not all were accepted. In more than 200 U. S. colleges, 14,436 college sophomores met the high standards set. These students were selected to continue officer training in the advanced R.O.T.C. course. Why did each of these young men decide that he would benefit by fulfilling his military obligation as an Army officer? Here are two important reasons. Perhaps they'll help you make your decision.

1... TRADITIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES

As an Army officer, you're in command of men. More men than the number supervised by many civilian executives years older than yourself. To meet your command responsibilities, you employ a great many of the LEADERSHIP principles acquired in advanced R.O.T.C. training. And your executive potential develops while you gather LEADERSHIP experience. The executive ability you gain as an Army officer will be an important advantage in any civilian career. That's why employment directors often prefer men who have served as commissioned officers. These men have already proven their capacity to handle executive responsibility.

2... TRADITIONAL REWARDS

In every organization, greater responsibilities mean greater rewards. The traditional prestige of an Army officer is matched by material advantages. A second lieutenant earns a minimum of $355.88 per month—plus substantial fringe benefits. Think you might want to marry soon after graduation? An officer's salary can make things a great deal easier for a married couple just starting out. What's more, an Army officer is entitled to take his dependents with him, wherever possible. Imagine sharing the fun of travel with your wife—in the United States or foreign countries like France, Germany or Japan.

Cellar Dwellers Face Strong Owl 9

2-Game Series May Hold Key to Conference Hopes

By JACK HARKRIDER

The see-sawing Frog nine took on the powerful Sam Houston State Bearkat team last night in a game which was scheduled to mark the victor of the up-coming Rice series today and tomorrow.

Rice met Sam Houston State last week and went down to defeat, 3-2, before the powerful and defensive Bearkats. If the Frogs can follow in the "Bearkat tracks," it would mean a good boost up the conference ladder.

The Frog mentor, Rabbit McDowell, is still undecided about today's starting pitcher, but is expected to call on Charles Rutherford or Darrel Read.

Both Read and Rutherford have shown marked improvement in their recent assignments against the Baylor Bears, yielding six and four hits respectively.

CHARLES RUTHERFORD

There also is a good chance of Rode Gonzales getting the starting nod, since he has seen only limited action lately.

Rounding out the starting nine will be the same familiar faces which includes Outfielders I. B. Childs, Jimmy Walker and Marshall Harris and Shortstop George Banda.

Doug Moore and Bob Newton will vie for the starting catcher's berth, while Hunter Enis will be at first, Charles Franklin at second and Bennet Shotwell at third.

Del Morgan, Owl coach, will probably call on Jim Brock (no relation to TCU's Jim Brock) to handle the pitching chores for the Rice Birdmen.

Brock worked seven innings against the SMU Mustangs last week, gave up only four hits and struck out seven men.

The Owls also have another strong point in Shortstop Lynwood Stallings, who has consistently sparked the team with his heavy hitting.

The Frogs need these two games to keep the noose from growing tighter, cutting off their slim chances of the title.

Rice, on the other hand, needs the series to stay in the upper bracket and put the squeeze on Texas and Texas A&M, the leaders of the frantic race.

From the Sideline

By LEE GRIMSLEY

Any resemblance between Darrel Read and the New York Yankees' Bob Turley last Friday was purely intentional.

If any of you saw Turley in the World Series (television viewing, of course) you will remember how the burly right-hander time and again set down the Milwaukee hitters.

That's the way Read looked last Friday as he set Baylor down on six hits in pitching an 11-0 shutout, and he wasn't throwing a spitball either.

Read was the Frogs' top pitcher last spring, but he has been off form this year. Not Friday, though, no siree.

You had to feel pity for the Bears as they stepped into the batter's box to face Read's fast balls.

There was only one thing wrong—there was just a handful of students on hand to watch the game.

Granted, we don't have the best facilities in the world. But like Dutch Meyer says, "they'll stack up with any in the conference."

The poor attendance at baseball games is puzzling. There's no admission charge for students and it's only a short walk down to the diamond.

But, to paraphrase what Dizzy Dean says, "The students are staying away in droves."

The Frogs have a lot to offer the fans. There are games like Read's 6-hit masterpiece Friday. Then, Saturday, Charles Rutherford was beaten by Baylor, 6-1, but he gave up only four hits.

Then there's Marshall Harris, the Southwest Conference's leading hitter with a .485 average. Harris went 5-for-5 in the first Baylor game and 2-for-4 in the second.

Jim Walker, I. B. Childs, Doug Moore, Charles Franklin and Hunter Enis provide an extra punch at the plate.

The shortstop - second base combination of George Banda and Franklin is as smooth as most professional double-play combos.

The Frogs have a lot to offer, and they win games, too. Why not give them a look; you might even get hooked by the baseball bug. It's free, too.

Track Team Tackles NTSC

TCU's varsity track team took part in a dual meet in Denton yesterday afternoon with the North Texas Eagles. This small meet is to serve as a warmup for the Froggies before they journey to the conference meet, May 8 and 9.

Those competing were half miler James Livergood, pole vaulter Mike Howell, John Cantrell in the shot and discus, Aubrey Linne, high jump; Joe Douglas, mile; Kelly Westlake, low hurdles, and quarter miler Lafayette Heath.

The Wog cinder squad, which has already competed in four meets, also will see their next action in the conference gathering.

In a quadrangular meet last weekend in Abilene, the Wogs turned in a mediocre performance, with the exception of dashman Bert Coan, who turned in his best times of the year with a 9.6 clocking for the hundred and a 20.9 in the 220.

Tennis, Badminton Hold Spotlight In Spring WSA Sports Tournament

The round-robin tourney of the WSA swings into the sixth week of play, with action in the Little Gym, the tennis courts and the softball field.

In badminton, Barbara Britain was beaten by Minette Elder, 11-5, 11-9, while the rest of the games were cancelled by default.

In tennis, Elder won over Barbara Woolwine, Susan Brown lost to Billy Faust, and Kay Adams beat Jeanie Hall. Linda Ligon, Beverly Dalton, Lois Minze, Martha Chilton and Patricia Dalton all drew byes.

The tennis pairings for this week post Billy Faust against Minette Elder, Linda Ligon versus Kay Adams, and Beverly Dalton against Lois Minze.

In last week's softball games, Kappa Kappa Gamma downed the Delta Gams, 27-6, while the Alpha Gams won a forfeit game from the Phi Pi's.
