Miss Elizabeth Youngblood, social director, and Miss Anne Matlock, Fort Smith, Ark. senior, look over plans for the Region IX convention which commences tomorrow. This is the first year the convention will be held on this campus.

Region IX Meeting To Begin Tomorrow

"Emphasize the Indians; evaluate the chief" will be the theme of the annual Region IX meeting of the Association of College Unions to be held on campus tomorrow through Saturday.

Over 300 students and staff members from five states—Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi—will be in attendance.

George Nigh, lieutenant-governor of Oklahoma, will be the special speaker of the meeting, addressing the group at a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Miss Ann Stephenson of SMU is president of the Association. Registration will begin at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the upper lobby of the Student Center, with the first general session scheduled at 9 a.m. Friday in the Ballroom.

Dr. D. Ray Lindley, president of the University, will give the keynote address. Miss Anne Matlock, senior from Fort Smith, Ark., and second vice president of the Association, will welcome delegates and introduce guests.

"Tribal Pow Wows" are planned during the three-day session on such topics as finances; art and music appreciation; programming for special groups such as married students, foreign students and commuters; leadership training and publicity.

The annual conference banquet will be held at 6 p.m. Friday in the Ballroom, with Hiram French of Texas A&M College presiding.

The regional talent show, featuring acts by various schools in attendance, and an informal mixer and dance will follow the dinner.

The closing business session of the conference is scheduled at 2:30 p.m. Saturday when new officers will be elected.

SALES BEGIN

Tickets for the Bluebonnet Bowl, Dec. 19 in Houston, will go on sale Monday at the Ticket Office in the Stadium.

Students may purchase their tickets for $2.75 and one extra ticket for $5.50. No more than one extra ticket will be sold to a student.

Ted Stafford Will Address Journalism Students Friday

Ted Stafford, member of the Fort Worth Advertising Club, will speak at the monthly journalism assembly one p.m. Friday in Rogers Hall Auditorium.

"Is there a place for you in advertising?" will be Stafford's contribution to a series of talks on Jobs-in-Journalism at the University.

Stafford is a native of Vernon, Texas. He studied journalism and speech at North Texas State and Texas Wesleyan, earning a B.A. degree at the latter in 1942.

He served in World War II with the intelligence branch of the Air Force in the Pacific, including the Philippines, Okinawa, Korea and Japan.

Since the war he has worked as a newspaper reporter, with the Chamber of Commerce, and as director of public relations and journalism instructor at Texas Wesleyan.

D. Wayne Rowland, chairman of the journalism department encourages all interested students to attend these meetings.

ELECT YOURS

Today is the new date set for the favorite elections and run-offs will be held Tuesday in the Student Center Lobby.

The results of the election will be announced at the Presentation Ball, Friday, Dec. 11, in the Ballroom.

Psychology Plans Ph.D. Course

By SUE GOLDSMITH

Next September graduate psychology students will be given an opportunity to participate in individual research projects and studies in areas not covered by regular courses.

The course is one of eleven graduate psychology courses being offered as a part of the new Ph.D. program.

Departmental permission is required to take the individual research course for which the student may earn one to three hours credit.

Courses in theory of learning, motivation and personality will earn the graduate student three hours credit.

Dr. Malcolm D. Arnoult, associate professor of psychology, will teach modern learning theories. The student must have had a course in the psychology of learning to qualify for this course.

Dr. Arnoult also will teach an advanced course in the principles of perception. Prerequisite for this course is a basic course in perception.

Dr. S. B. Sells, professor of psychology, will teach courses in both motivation and personality theories. The student is required to have had a course in the psychology of motivation and personality to qualify for these courses.

Courses in the psychology of thought process, in language and communication and in human factors in industrial systems will offer three hours credit each.

Two seminars will also be offered, each worth three hours credit. One will be in psychological theory and the other will be on contemporary problems in psychology.

The Ph.D. candidate will be required to enroll for 12 hours credit work on a dissertation. This would be the student's report of some original idea, hypothesis or experiment.

Dr. Cyrus W. LaGrone, chairman of the psychology department, said, "The University curriculum committee approved the program Thursday. It had already been approved by the AddRan College of Arts and Sciences curriculum committee and by the Graduate Council."

Cast in leading roles of the Little Theatre's production of "Othello" are Miss Mary Littlejohn, Fort Worth senior, as Desdemona, and Jack Rader, Fort Worth junior, as Othello. The play opens Friday.

Little Theatre Opens 'Othello' on Friday

The second production of the Little Theatre for this year will be William Shakespeare's "Othello", opening Friday.

Other production dates are this Saturday plus Dec. 9 through 12. Curtain time for each evening is 8 p.m.

The play is directed by Dr. Walther R. Volbach, director of theater arts, set designing by Henry E. Hammack, technical director of theater and costumes by Miss Dolores Tanner.

In the production, Barbantio is played by Mike Cusack, Fort Worth senior; Desdemona is played by Mary Littlejohn, Fort Worth senior; and Othello is portrayed by Jack Rader Fort Worth junior.

Other members of the cast are Roger Puckett, Houston junior;

Dorothy Kemper, Phoenix, Ariz. junior; Marc McCrary, Amarillo junior; Pauline Pearce, Fort Worth junior; Robert O. Jones, San Antonio graduate student; Neal Reck, Claude freshman.

The third production coming up will be "Arms and the Man" on March 11, 12, 15 through 19.

Dean Moore At Meeting

Dr. Jerome A. Moore, Dean of the AddRan College of Arts and Sciences is currently attending a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Louisville, Ky.

He served as chairman of the Committee on Latin American Colleges which met on Nov. 29 and 30.

Dean Moore plans to return here on Dec. 7.

Finding a Way Home

Transportation Map Is Aid to Students

By BETH MORRIS

If it has become a season drudge to find a ride home for the holidays, after finals or even for a weekend at another school, your worries have ended.

A Transportation Map, which enhances the appearance of the Student Center Lobby, is the result of much work by Don Gore, ex '60, and his special events committee of the Activities Council last spring.

The map is designed for use by students who want a ride to a particular location and those who have a car and are able to take passengers to a certain point.

Red and green cards are available to be filled out with all pertinient information for making arrangements for a trip.

The red cards are for students seeking a ride and the green cards are for those with cars who are making a trip.

The map is divided into 22 zones, which have corresponding numbers at the bottom of the board where the cards are placed.

The zones get larger as the distances are greater from TCU.

Final arrangements for a trip are to be made by the driver and passengers, who are generally expected to share expenses.

That cheerful Christmas season is almost upon us and many students' thoughts are turning to ways of saving money and time.

Why not turn to the Transportation Map?

This large United States Map, which is located in the Lobby of the Student Center, aids students in finding rides home. Students wanting rides and car owners offering rides may contact one another with the cards below.

Jacobson Judges Marching Bands

James A. Jacobson, Horned Frog and director, will be one of seven judges in the Region XII Interscholastic League Marching Band Competition.

The competition will be held Saturday at the Bulldog Stadium in Nederland. Bands will be judged on their marching maneuvers.

Other judges are Fred McDonald, Brazesport High School, Freeport; Joe McMullan, Clear Creek High School, League City;

Bill Eubank, Gladewater High School; Sam Burke, New London High School; Cecil Rusk, Alvin High School; and Miss Barbara Thurmond, Ball High School, Galveston.

School to Sponsor Week For Ministers Jan. 11-14

The University will host the annual Ministers' Week Monday, Jan. 11 through the 14th.

Oreon E. Scott Lectures will be given at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The speakers at this endowed lectureship are Rabbi Levi A. Olen; Arch Bishop Robert E. Lucey, executive in charge of the chancery office in San Antonio; and the honorable Brooks Hays, president of the Southern Baptist Convention and director of the TVA under the Eisenhower administration.

The lectureship, underwritten by the Oreon E. Scott foundation, began in 1952. Crucial current, national and international issues are discussed from the Christian viewpoint.

Ministers' Week also includes the McFadin Lectures and the Wells Lectures, held at 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. respectively, in the University Christian Church.

Dr. Sells Attends Space Panel Meet

Dr. Saul B. Sells, professor of psychology and an authority on aviation psychology, is attending a meeting of the panel on Personnel Selection of the Committee on Bioastronautics of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, D.C., this week.

Related to the National Research Council through the Academy, the committee is concerned with selecting personnel for space programs.

Dr. Sells, who joined the faculty in 1958, was chairman of the department of medical psychology at the USAF School of Aviation Medicine for ten years.

All filter cigarettes are divided into two parts, and...

"Weni, widi, Winston!" Thus did Caesar (a notoriously poor speller) hail the discovery of Filter-Blend—light, mild tobaccos specially selected and specially processed for filter smoking.

He knew that a pure white filter alone is not enough. To be a complete filter cigarette, it must have Filter-Blend up front. And only Winston's got it!

That's why Caesar would never accept another brand even when it was offered gratis. In fact, history tells us he'd glower at the extended pack and sneer, "Et tu, Brute?"

In a stirring peroration to his legions, Caesar put it this way: "For the Numeral I filter cigarette—for the best-tasting filter cigarette—for the noblest filter cigarette of all—smoke Winston!"

"Winston tastes good like a cigarette should!"

P.S. to bachelors. If you're lucky enough to find a gal who'll keep you in Winstons, Caesar!

Guthrie Will Lead Choir In Fall Concert, Dec. 8

The School of Fine Arts will present the University Chorus in their annual fall concert conducted by William F. Guthrie, at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The first half of the program will stress 16th and 17th Century music.

Included in the first half are the following: "O Magnum Mysterium" by Tomas Luis de Victoria; "Glorify the Lord" by Jan Pieters Sweelinck; "Ave Verum Corpus" by William Byrd and "Cantate Domino" by Heinrich Schutz.

Soloists featured in the Magnificat in C by Johann Pachelbel are Miss Mary Alice Dammann, Miss Zana

Roylyn Flowers, Stamford senior; Michael Waco, Fort Worth senior, and Don Cowan, graduate student from Jackson, Tenn.

In addition to the chorus and soloists featured in the Magnificat in C, there will be the chamber orchestra also.

The second half of the program will consist of miscellaneous group of selections from various periods in which other students will take part.

This part of the program will include the following numbers: "Alleluia" by Randall Thompson; "The Creation" by Tom Scott; "Haste Thee Nymph" by G. F. Handel; "Tee Roo" by Gail Kubik; "Go Way From My Window" by John Jacob Niles and "Set Down Servant" by Robert Shaw.

If your studies led you to believe you could strike oil by drilling a hole right in the middle of the campus, would you (A) keep still about it so people wouldn't think you were nuts? (B) sell stock in the proposition to all your friends? (C) get an oil man interested in the idea, even if you had to give him most of the profits?

A B C

"A watched pot never boils" means (A) the man who made such a statement never watched a pot; (B) if you don't want the stew to boil over—watch it! (C) you can't hurry things by worrying about them.

A B C

If you saw a girl perched up in a tree reading a book, would you say, (A) "Timber!" (B) "Is the light better up there?" (C) "Will that branch hold two?"

Assuming cigarettes could talk, would you listen to (A) a filter cigarette that talks only about its taste? (B) a weak-tasting cigarette that talks about its filter? (C) a filter cigarette that lets its advanced filter design and full taste speak for themselves?

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Convention Time

At the Region IX Convention of College Unions this weekend delegates from schools from several states will meet to discuss problems and to find ways to make the councils more active and effective.

The convention is being held at TCU for the first time and all students, whether they are members of the Activities Council or not, should try to make the convention delegates feel welcome.

Many of the delegates will carry their impressions of TCU back to their schools.

It is an honor to have TCU selected as the host school and we should prove that we deserve the honor by working and making this year's convention as successful as possible.

To Form a Club

Student initiative and knowhow are the backbone of every organization, but no matter how sharp you are, you can't start new clubs without clearance from the University Committee of Clubs and Societies.

First step, if you're interested, is to find a member of the faculty who would be willing to serve as sponsor for your proposed organization. Until you get a sponsor, it's no go at all.

Then, see the chairman of the Committee on Clubs and Societies, and she'll give you the forms to be submitted for approval.

These procedures hold true for departmental and honorary organizations as well as for interest groups. If you're in doubt, see Dr. Bitu May Hall or Miss Elizabeth Youngblood.

Making Pledges Work

A good rule to follow if you are in doubt, is don't, that is if it is anywhere near hazing.

TCU, like most other colleges and universities, forbids hazing of any kind—and there's trouble ahead for any group that ignores the regulation. And, by the way, a "walk" by any other name is still hazing in the eyes of those who regulate such matters.

However, having pledges work together on some worthwhile project is a good way to build morale. In the past, a few groups have tried such things as volunteer work in local hospitals, painting or repairing churches and community centers in the poorer sections of town and entertaining children from local orphanages.

There's no end to the number of jobs that really need to be done—if officers would just look for them and then direct their pledges' energy into worthwhile channels.

A word of caution: Fort Worth has served so-called "popular" charities. For instance, most orphans in this vicinity have more Christmas parties and Easter egg hunts than children from wealthy families. If you are looking for a project, pick one that isn't given a lot of attention from other service organizations.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"THE HEAVENLY BODY WE WANT TO STUDY TONITE IS ONLY VISIBLE FOR SHORT PERIODS OF TIME."

THE LEDGER

Trophy Misplay

By BETH MORRIS

Considering the past, the 1959 gridiron season is coming to a close with one of the best records of Sportsmanship a conference can boast.

But the school with the most deserving record won't see a Sportsmanship Trophy resting in a case on its campus after the New Year's Bowl event.

Yes, if all will recall, Old Man Trophy died last year in the spring meeting of the Sportsmanship Committee at A&M.

The idea of the award was conceived in 1948 by Jimmie Nelson, co-editor of the Texas A&M Battalion, who fostered and promoted it in its early growth with the aid of the student newspaper. It grew materially both in benefits and interest.

Now, with the support of all student publications and solidly backed by each student body, the presentation of the award at the annual Cotton Bowl game has become an important event in the college life of our conference.

There have been several changes made in the last few years concerning the method of selecting the deserving school and the presentation of the award. However, it still has one purpose—to promote good sportsmanship between member institutions of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

The selection committee at first included students and athletic officials from each conference school along with James H. Stewart, then Secretary of the Conference.

Now this committee includes student body presidents, athletic directors, head yell leaders, deans of students, alumni secretaries, faculty representatives, game officials, seven metropolitan sportswriters and Howard Grubbs, who is now Executive Secretary of the SAC.

During the first three years the award was presented, ceremonies took place in the annual spring meeting of the Conference. But in 1951, the halftime of the Cotton Bowl became the scene of the ceremonies.

The University of Texas found, during the 1958 winter meeting, the procedure for selecting the honoree unsatisfactory and thought it should be abolished. They were successful along that line of abolishment.

The teapigs have a good gripe though, the voting is somewhat of a farce. Who can blame Texas for objecting since they never placed higher than fifth for the Trophy anyway?

But where there's a will, the Committee can find a way.

The Trophy must be revived. True, it isn't entirely dead—just being passed from school to school which means the Austin school stands to get it every eight years. The presentation now is as much a farce as was the voting.

It's a pity to see such a unique idea turn into a mere formality.

Yours Truly

Editor

The Skiff,

As one who considers the Library a place of quiet refuge from the hustle and bustle of dorm activity, I would like to protest the methods used by fraternities of having pledges study in the library to gain pledge points. This pretense of studying (for which they gain points) is most disturbing to other more serious-minded students.

The pledges march into the Library laughing and chatting. They don't bother to lower their voices until they find a mass of empty chairs where they "fling" down their books. After receiving a few "dirty looks" from other students, they MAY lower their voices to loud whispers—which is no better than talking.

Amid heavy sighs and groans, constant book shuffling, page turning, snickers and coughs, they wait out their time. Their constant movement and chatter disturb other students to the point that they are forced to find a quieter place to study—not the Library.

Finally, the long wait is over, and they are free to leave. Then comes the scraping of chairs, more shuffling and more snickering at the scornful looks and polite requests for silence which they receive. Resuming normal voices, they begin their procession back through the Library and out the door, after considerable laughing and back slapping.

Must we who would like to study be subjected to this three-ring circus every night of the week? I would like to suggest that either these mass "study" meetings be kept out of the Library, or put under better control.

Very sincerely,
 Donna McDaniel

Texas—

Under the headline "Parking Hours Vary at Stadium," appeared this gem:

"It is hit or miss for students who normally park in the stadium parking lot."

"Generally, the area is open to Class C parking permit holders or above except for Monday, when the Athletic Department closes it to parking."

"The Athletic Director closes the parking area at his discretion. We use the area for parking on days when it is not needed," E. H. Van Cleave, administrative assistant of the parking and Traffic Division explained.

"Mr. Van Cleave warns that regulation affecting parking permits are in effect when the stadium area is open to parking."

Well, why not? The Athletic Staff has to get their loving in sometime.

According to the Daily Texan, the campus was visited by a VIP recently:

"Decent youngsters in a community are often neglected because of what J. Edgar Hoover called 'the waste of time, money and tears on young hoodlums.'"

"Mr. Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was a speaker Monday at the United Fund luncheon."

"Mr. Hoover said he did not mean mischievous youngsters, but criminal youths such as 'muggers, murderers, rapists, and brawlers whose offenses against their victims are not mitigated by their teenage status.'"

Does this mean Texas will have to give up their football team, too?

TCU Benefactor's Husband

Burnett Won Ranch in Game

By J'NELL ROGERS

Christian school though it is, TCU once profited very greatly from the results of a poker hand—indirectly, anyway.

Mrs. Mary Couts Burnett, for whom the Library is named, left her entire estate of three million dollars to the University in 1923.

Her late husband, whose money she was giving away, was wealthy Burk Burnett, who got his start in the cattle business by winning a complete ranch in a poker game. Oil later was discovered on his land, making him a millionaire.

Burnett's cattle brand became 6666 because he had drawn a hand of four sixes in that lucky poker game.

J. Frank Dobie, in a "Saturday Evening Post" article in 1930, called this the "best poker hand that a Christian institution ever drew."

The story has been told that Burnett asserted no college would ever get any of his money. He had no control, though, over what his wife did with his money after his death.

In fact, Burnett initiated action to have his wife judged insane, kept her confined, and bypassed her in his will. After his death she easily proved her sanity and went to court and got her "wife's half" of her husband's estate.

The three million dollars which Mrs. Burnett left to TCU became a trust fund with its own special board of trustees.

The University still receives an income from the trust. It forms a major part of the endowment of the University and a five man board still operates the trust.

Burnett, although he didn't want his money to go for higher education, wasn't adverse to giving gifts. He gave a pipe organ to the First Christian Church in Fort Worth in memory of his father and mother who were members.

He gave a block of land to the city of Fort Worth which now is Burk Burnett park downtown. Its purpose was to have "a place where mothers could take their children to play."

Why did Mrs. Burnett chose TCU as her beneficiary, knowing her husband's feelings? She was not a member of the Christian Church and she had no children to attend TCU. She was not even acquainted with any of the faculty nor had she been solicited for any gift.

First of all, she and Burnett didn't get along, so the fact that he didn't want his money to go for education didn't bother her. She was a woman of refinement and had a genuine interest in culture and education.

She was loyal to her home town, Fort Worth, where the school was located.

In addition, her father had greatly admired Addison Clark, a founder of TCU, and he had contributed money when the school was at Thorp's Spring.

Colby D. Hall, in his book, "History of TCU," says that with many cattle fortunes made in and around Fort Worth, it was only fair that at least one of them should fall to the earliest surviving college of the Texas cattle frontier—TCU.

SMU Profs Counsel Today

Dean John W. Riehm, Jr. of the SMU Law School and Charles W. Webster, pre-law advisor at SMU, will counsel prospective law students today at 11 a.m. in Rogers Hall Auditorium.

They will explain SMU's law program and answer questions from students.

Dean Riehm, a member of the SMU faculty since 1948, holds degrees from Bradley and Michigan Universities. He served with the Air Force during World War II and practiced law in New York City for two years.

Mr. Webster was an attorney for General Electric before coming to SMU in 1954.

AMERICAN LITERATURE: ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Today, as a service to students of American literature, this column presents digests of two classic American novels:

THE SCARLET LETTER

by Nathaniel "Swift" Hawthorne

This is a heart-rending story of a humble New England lass named Hester Prynne who is so poor that she does not have what to eat nor a roof to cover her head. But she is a brave, brawny girl and she never complains, and by and by her patience is rewarded: in the summer of 1859 she wins a football scholarship to Alabama.

Hard-working Hester soon wins her letter and everyone says she is a shoo-in for All-Conference honors, but along comes the War Between the States and football, alas, is dropped for the duration.

Everyone says she's a shoo-in for All-conference honors

Poor Hester goes back to New England. It is a bitter cold winter and poor Hester, alas, does not have any warm clothing except for her football sweater from Alabama, but that, alas, has a big scarlet "A" on the front of it and she can hardly wear such a thing in New England where Union sentiment runs so high.

Poor Hester, alas, freezes to death.

LITTLE WOMEN

by Louisa May "Bubbles" Alcott

The Marches are a very happy family—and for no discernible reason. They are poor as snakes; they work from cockerow to evensong; their dear old father Philip is away with the Union armies; and they can't do a thing with their hair.

Still, nothing can dampen the spirits of madcap Meg, jocular Jo, buoyant Beth, animated Amy, and crazy old Marmee, as the merry March girls laughingly call their lovable mother.

Well sir, one Christmas the March girls get an invitation to a ball. They are dying to go because they never have any fun at all except maybe a few chuckles during the hog-rendering season. But Beth reminds her sisters that they can hardly go traipsing off to a ball and leave poor Marmee all alone at Christmas time. The sisters swear a lot, but they finally agree with Beth.

Marmee, however, will not hear of it. "Land's sakes, little women!" she cries. "You must go to the ball and have some fun. There will be fruit punch and Toll House cookies and Early American sandwiches. Best of all, there will be morris dancing. Oh, how your father and I used to love that!"

"I never knew father could dance," cries Meg. "Oh yeah?" cries Marmee. "You should have seen Philip morris."

"Was Philip a good morriser?" cries Jo. "The best!" cries Marmee. "Philip could morris in soft pack or flip-top box and was full of fine, fresh, natural mildness!"

The girls are cheered to hear this and go to the ball. Marmee stays home alone, but soon gets a wonderful surprise: Philip comes back from the war!

When the girls return from the ball, they find Marmee and Philip morrissing, and they cry "Huzzah!" and throw their poke bonnets in the air, where they are to this day.

And speaking of literature, in our book the best selection of cigarettes on the market today comes from Philip Morris Inc.—Marlboro filters; new Alpines, high filtration and light menthol—and, of course, mild, unfiltered Philip Morris.

Style Tips from the CLYDE CAMPBELL UNIVERSITY SHOP (one of a series)

"The moving finger writes . . .

. . . and having writ moves on." Omar Kayam was right as usual in his pessimistic way.

Men's clothing styles move on, too, but usually we bid them goodbye with a sigh of relief, because they often overstay their welcome.

This is the case with the so-called "jivy ivy" styles that have been popular with the duck-tailed set for the last year or so.

This leaves the old favorite natural shoulders to you, our customers at the CCUS, the conservatively minded, clothes-conscious college men.

Realistic 'Summer Place' Is Held Over at Worth

Portraying stark realism, "A Summer Place" opened Wednesday at the Worth Theatre. Because of excellent box office attendance, Interstate plans to hold it over for a second week at the Worth.

The plot finds two ex-lovers meeting 20 years later—both unhappily married to someone else. They each have one child—she a son, he a daughter, who also fall in love. The parents realize that they still are in love.

The rest of the movie seems to give the viewer the idea that immorality is all right as long as everybody finally gets married.

This author longs for the good old days when the bad guy got his due. Contrary to usual practice, this picture casts the people who still have morals as villains and portrays the guilty ones sympathetically.

On the good side of the slate, however, are the performances by the stars in the picture, Sandra Dee belonging at the top of the list. She gave what could be the best performance of her career.

Richard Egan and Dorothy McGuire gave excellent performances while Constance Ford did a very good job of making the audience hate her. Arthur Kennedy was convincing as an alcoholic.

Another highlight of the picture was the performance of newcomer Troy Donahue, who was Sandra's boyfriend in the picture.

Walt Disney scored again, as usual, with his excellent family picture, "Third Man on the Mountain." It's due for a second holdover at the 7th Street Theatre.

A light, happy picture, it combines young love in a Swiss village with suspense on high mountain climbs.

The Bowie plans to open with a couple of all-time greats tomorrow. One is "Stalag 17," the show which won William Holden a "best actor" Academy Award. "A Place in the Sun" which teams Elizabeth Taylor and Montgomery Cliff, is the second picture in the Bowie's double feature.

"Hound Dog Man," the picture Fabian fans have been waiting for, opens tomorrow at the Palace. Carol Lynley, whom fans may remember from "Blue Denim," co-stars.

"They Came to Cordura" comes to the Hollywood tomorrow. Set in Mexico in 1916, the movie stars Gary Cooper, Rita Hayworth, Van Heflin, Tab Hunter and Richard Conte. It's in color.

"Othello," opening Friday at TCU's Little Theatre, should not only interest Shakespeare lovers on campus, but everyone else as well.

Dr. Guenther Attends Meet In Detroit

The University was represented at the 35th annual meeting of National Association of Schools of Music by Dr. Ralph R. Guenther, Executive Director of the School of Fine Arts. The meeting was held in Detroit at the Statler-Hilton on Nov. 27-28.

Dr. Guenther conferred with officers of the NASM and carried school of music reports to the accrediting organization. The School of Fine Arts has been a member of the NASM since 1949.

The executive and administrative heads of the music departments of leading universities, colleges and conservatories in the United States attended the meeting.

The discussion of the meeting dealt with some of the current problems facing music education at college level.

Events of special interest was the topic by Dr. Howard Hanson, of the Eastman School of Music on "Music in the Atomic Age," and a group of administrators' workshops in which problems facing various types of schools were discussed.

New schools were approved for membership, and reports submitted by various commissions.

On Friday afternoon, the 250 delegates were guests of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at a concert given by the organization in the Ford Auditorium.

Editor Speaks To Educators At Banquet

Dr. Fred C. Archer, editor of the Gregg Publishing Division of McGraw-Hill Co. of New York City, will speak at the Business Education Dinner today.

"Trends in Office Training" will be the subject of his speech to Fort Worth Business teachers at the third annual meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Center.

Dr. Archer, who holds a Ph.D. from New York University, is associate editor of Business Teacher magazine, and has published many articles and books on office practice. He is president of the United Business Education Association Research Foundation and of the Minnesota Business Education Association.

be played. In this way, not only would the viewing audience be assured of a thrilling game, but attendance would show a negligible decrease, if any at all.

If the fans know the game is relatively unimportant and that it will be televised, it seems doubtful they will pay to watch the game in person.

On the other hand, there is always a ticket rush for an important game and the announcement of the game being televised, might spur others to viewing it in person. Considering the payment for television rights, the loss in paid attendance would be more than covered.

Of course, the success of this depends on not releasing the "game-of-the-week" announcement until a week before it is played.

Carrying the plan further, a board of officials would pick the game to be televised two weeks before it is played, so that other top games may be bid for locally. The usual "blackout" plan would apply in areas where other games are scheduled.

Naturally, no one can tell how exciting a game will be until it is played. However, a revision of television rules affecting football games would result in better and more evenly matched video opponents, and possibly would increase the paid attendance.

After all, look what television did for bowling and golf.

Graduate Wins Contest Easily

According to the results of the football contest, there apparently are a few pessimists on campus since two students picked SMU over TCU.

Only one forecaster emerged victorious in the contest, however he didn't have a perfect pick. Bill Grady, a graduate student from Carrollton, missed only the Army-Navy upset to win the theater passes.

Three contestants predicted ties. Dale Heiskell, Dalhart senior, and George Banda Jr., Waco junior, predicted TCU and SMU to fight it out to a draw, while Miss Cynthia Blanton, Beaumont freshman, predicted Texas to tie the Aggies and Boston to match points with Holy Cross. Banda, also predicting two ties, picked the Army-Navy game to end in a deadlock.

Next week's contest will be the last of the year and will feature eight of the bowl games.

FROGS

Coming back to Amon Carter Stadium, the Frogs met the Texas Aggies in a one-sided game that gave TCU a 39-6 win over the cadets.

TCU's last non-conference battle was on foreign soil as the Frogs downed the stubborn University of Pittsburgh Panthers, 13-3.

The next conference test came as the Frogs met the Baylor Bears, and on a cold and misty night, put the Bears back in their cage with a 14-0 win at Waco. Then came the game that was to make or break the Frogs, the Texas Longhorns.

At Austin, on a sleet-filled, bitterly cold day, the Frogs rose up to beat the Steers, 14-9. Now at their peak performance, the Frogs coasted past the Rice Owls, 35-6, and in containing Don Meredith, crushed the Mustangs' resistance. The Ponies fell before the Frogs, 19-0.

The Frogs ended the season by leading the conference with 153 first downs and 516 rushing plays, while holding their opponents to 114 first downs and 404 rushing plays to lead the conference in that category.

TCU also led the conference in defense by holding their opponents to 195.5 yards-gained per game. Breaking this down, Frog opponents gained 114 first downs on 578 plays to net a total of 1955 yards.

The Frogs led the conference in pass interceptions by gathering in 16 enemy aerials.

Having completed his college football career, Jack Spikes, the Frogs' fullback, left behind an excellent record that many college ball players will find hard to surpass.

Spikes wound up the season as the top rusher, with a 4.7 yards per carry.

Carrying the ball for 660 yards and showing sparkling defensive play, Spikes is rated as one of the top college players in the nation. In addition, Spikes has been nominated for several All-America teams and is rated high as a prospect for the pro football leagues.

Leaving with Spikes, is All-America tackle Don Floyd, who was chosen for the Coaches' All-America team. One of the best linemen in the conference, Floyd will be remembered as the other half of the Robert Lilly-Floyd twosome that harrassed Frogs' opponents all season.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

Field-goal expert kicks about classes

(See below)

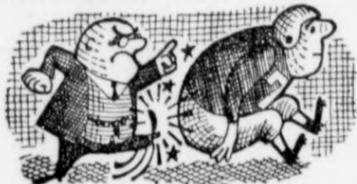

DR. FROOD'S MORAL OF THE MONTH:

Make the most of your college days. (The nights will probably haunt you the rest of your life.)

Dear Dr. Frood: Is it all right to study with the TV on? Distracted

Dear Distracted: Better not. You might miss some of the story.

Dear Dr. Frood: The Dean is trying to force me to go to classes. I think this is unfair because last season I scored 16 touchdowns, intercepted 18 passes and kicked 22 field goals in 23 attempts. What should I do? Letter Man

Dear Letter Man: I fail to see how going to classes will help. Better practice your kicking.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am a very plain girl and I don't have much personality. All I want is a man who will love me. Why can't I find one? Sad

Dear Sad: You're too particular.

Dear Dr. Frood: I want to get married, but I don't like children. What shall I do? Surly

Dear Surly: Marry an adult.

Dear Dr. Frood: My husband teaches at a girl's college. I know it's silly, but since I'm middle-aged and stout, I am very jealous and worry all the time. What should I do? Plump, Tired

Dear Plump, Tired: Keep worrying.

Dear Dr. Frood: How can I keep people from borrowing my Luckies? Pestered

Dear Pestered: Put them in a Brand X pack.

DR. FROOD ON HOW TO BE A BEATNIK

I've drawn up instructions for becoming a Beatnik: Let your hair grow until your hearing is noticeably impaired. When beard covers your tie, discard tie. Hang your shoes and socks in effigy. Sell your sink for scrap. Stock your room with cigarettes—because you won't be allowed on the street any more. (Better make 'em Luckies and enjoy your isolation!)

COLLEGE STUDENTS SMOKE MORE LUCKIES THAN ANY OTHER REGULAR!

When it comes to choosing their regular smoke, college students head right for fine tobacco. Result: Lucky Strike tops every other regular sold. Lucky's taste beats all the rest because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco.

Frogs Repeat For SWC Title

By ERNEST WHITE

"This is one of the finest teams that has ever come out of TCU," said Abe Matrin, Frog head coach, as TCU finished its season against SMU.

With the defeat of SMU, the Frogs ended the season with an 8-2 record. TCU started this season with a couple of setbacks, but came back to show the fans they were worthy of the conference championship.

SMU was the last conference game, and as a prize for a well-fought season, the Frogs got a third of the SWC crown along with Texas and Arkansas.

Texas fell before the Frogs, 14-9, TCU bowed to the Razorbacks, 3-0, and the Razorbacks were humbled before Texas, 13-12. Out of this confusion came a tri-championship in the SWC, the first time in the conference's 45-year history the crown has been split three ways.

The Mustangs were favored at the outset of the season, but many pitfalls lay before the Ponies, as they lost three and tied one.

The Frogs bowed only to nationally ranked LSU and Arkansas, ended the season ranked No. 7 and accepted a bid to play in the newly formed Bluebonnet Bowl against the Clemson Tigers.

The Kansas Jayhawks were the Frogs' first opponents and were sent back to the wheat country with a 14-7 loss on their record.

Next came the LSU Bengals, and with the luck of the Chinese and an exceptionally good team, beat the Frogs, 10-0.

After the bad day in the bayous, the Frogs went to the hills and were nudged out, 3-0, by the Arkansas Razorbacks in a rough, mud-slinging contest.

Playing Texas Tech in the first game of a comeback series, the Frogs downed the Red Raiders, 14-8, in a grueling battle that took place in Lubbock.

KOOL ANSWER

BALLIN' THE JACK

By Jack Harkrider

TV or not TV, that is the question.

The Aggies gave Texas a run for their money Thanksgiving Day, before the Longhorns squeaked out a 20-17 win in one of the conference's top battles.

Anyone listening to the game on radio knew it must have been exciting, because of the announcer's fervored pitch throughout the battle.

However, at the same time, television viewers were entertained with a farce of a ball game, in which North Carolina slipped past Duke, 50-0.

The Longhorn-Aggie classic was originally scheduled for television, but was dropped since Texas had previously appeared on video in the Oklahoma and California games.

According to the rulesmen, no team can appear more than twice on television during the regular season, unless the game is a sellout. Also, no game can be televised unless it is scheduled before the season or is a sellout. And, if it is a sellout, it must be sold out at least three days before the game, in order to make the necessary arrangements.

This policy may be well and good, but two questions enter the mind: what about the near sellouts, and who can tell before the season, what will be the best games to televise?

For example, the A&M-Steer tilt was a near sellout, as was the SMU-TCU game. Therefore, why couldn't the local television station, or stations, bid for the television rights?

While televising the game might cut into attendance, it seems the money received from the station would more than cover the loss of such estimated income.

Also, those fans unable to attend, might bless the conference for the privilege of viewing the game.

Secondly, no one can tell what game will have national interest, two months before it is played.

Northwestern was upset by both Wisconsin and Illinois in games of strong national interest, but the games were not televised.

Perhaps better game selections could be made if the choice came no more than two weeks before they were to
