Get the Plaster Ready, Doc: The Kids Are off on Ski Trip

Skiing in a winter wonderland . . .

And a "winter wonderland" is exactly what Bill Fowler, games and outings committee chairman and San Antonio senior, promises for the student body skiing trip.

The "TCU Snowball Special, Greyhound to Great Fun" will leave after finals at 6 p.m. Jan. 24, and is scheduled to arrive in Red River, N.M., the next day. Buses will depart Jan. 28 and will return to campus Jan. 29, in time for registration.

Alpine Lodge, located in Red River, N.M., an old gold mining town in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, is the final destination.

Chartered buses will make the 600-mile trip. Cost will be $38.80 for the round-trip ticket and hotel accommodations. Other expenses will be paid by the student.

Deposit Required

A $10 deposit with reservation request must be filed with Social Director Elizabeth Youngblood by Wednesday, according to Fowler. Remainder of the cost of the trip must be paid by Jan. 20.

Fowler says the trip will be the first such school-sponsored activity. He urges students to "sign up now, get away from it all and celebrate before the return to classes for the spring semester."

Other activities offered the group include ice skating, swimming in a heated indoor pool, jeep rides to any of the area mountain lakes for fishing, bowling, roller-skating, go-cart racing, dancing, shuffleboard and sleigh riding.

Side Trips Possible

For the more adventuresome students, there is an old mine and a ghost town in the Mallette Canyon. Horseback riding or pack trips into the mountains can be arranged. Mountain climbers can scale Wheeler Peak, New Mexico's highest mountain.

Miss Molyneux To Give Recital

Miss Sandra Molyneux, Del Rio senior, will play her senior piano recital at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Miss Molyneux is a music education major and is on the teaching staff of the Fort Worth Conservatory of Music.

Dormitory-type accommodations will be provided students, Fowler said. Meals will be served in the Alpine Kettle, the lodge dining room, at approximately $3.50 a day.

All trip details will be handled by the games and outings committee.

Productions Begin Thursday

Theater Students To Present Plays

Theater arts students will present a studio production at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Little Theater. The program includes the premiere of "That Long Lonesome Road" by Chester Sullivan. It is directed by Dave Hickey, Fort Worth graduate student.

The evening opens with "The Recognition From Anatasia." Adapted by Guy Bolton, it is directed by Janice Brinkley, Kermit senior.

"The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" by James Barrie, will be directed by Amanda Murray, Fort Worth senior. The closing play is "Pictures On the Wall" by Ivor Brown. Bobbye Sue Albrecht, Fort Worth senior, will direct.

The four directors come from a class of Dr. Walther R. Volbach, director of the department of theater arts.

All actors are students in classes of Dolores Tanner, costume designer for the Little Theater, and Henry E. Hammack, technical director of theater.

Also Beverly Davis, Houston sophomore; Gayle Hunnicutt, Fort Worth freshman; Sherron Cooper, San Antonio junior; and Margó Thorning, Houston sophomore.

The four plays are being presented as a partial requirement in credit for theater courses. They count as the students' final examination.

"Students and their friends are invited free of charge," commented Dr. Volbach.

500 To Visit, Attend Talks During Week

Ministers' Week is expected to draw more than 500 pastors and laymen of different denominations here Jan. 15-18.

Dr. Frank P. Graham, former U.S. senator and now United Nations representative for India and Pakistan, will deliver two of the three Oreon E. Scott Lectures Jan. 16-17.

The third Scott Lecture will be given by Dr. Blake Smith, minister of University Baptist Church in Austin.

Dr. Arthur Wayne Braden, professor of homiletics; Dr. Gustave A. Ferre, chairman of the department of philosophy; and Dr. R. Clyde Yarbrough, chairman of the department of speech, will give the Wells Lectures.

Delivering three McFadin Lectures is Dr. Langdon B. Gilkey, professor of theology at Vanderbilt School of Religion.

Dr. Noel Keith, chairman of the department of religion, heads the planning committee. Chancellor M. E. Sadler will preside at the opening meeting, 8 p.m. Jan. 15.

Business Students Change Majors for Different Reasons

Charles Foote, assistant professor of accounting, realized that 43 students in the School of Business had changed their majors and 101 others had dropped out of school for the spring semester last year.

To find out why this had happened he sent letters and questionnaires to the people involved.

Thirty of the "major changers" replied and 60 per cent gave the obvious reason: they changed their minds about what they wanted to study. Only four said they were influenced by parents, instructor or counselor and none was influenced by other students. Four out of nine women decided they wanted to become teachers and only two said business courses were "too hard."

One male student indicated that he had decided to go into medical training; another wanted to follow the fine arts route to pre-law. Four female and three male students indicated that business just did not offer what they wanted for their degrees. Foote says, "The male student seems to be more interested and cooperative in research. However, this might be that the male student more readily accepts an opportunity to express himself. The male students have more reasons for changing their minds while more females changed their minds to become teachers."

Finances Not Cause

As for the students who dropped out of TCU entirely, Foote says, "While lack of finances was the most frequent response, the comments indicate this to

A weighty problem confronts Dr. Henry B. Hardt as he leaves to preside over the National Collegiate Athletic Association convention in Chicago. The University chemistry professor wonders if he can ever balance his hectic schedule.

Numerous Problems Confront Duo-President Dr. Henry Hardt

BY LINDA KAYE

The college basketball scandal, the Notre-Dame Syracuse football fracas and the touchy AAU-NCAA relationship are only three of the problems that confronted the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association during the year.

Elimination of naturopaths, enforcement of legislation against quacks and raising standards for chiropractors — these are problems that the president of the Texas State Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences had to solve.

Seemingly unrelated problems? Not for Dr. Henry B. Hardt, professor of chemistry. For Hardt is the president of both groups.

This week, Hardt is in Chicago presiding over the annual-week-long NCAA convention. He was elected president last year, the first from the Southwest to have that honor.

Dr. Hardt came to TCU in 1946 as chairman of the chemistry department. He was made chairman of the TCU athletic council, a position he still holds.

As chairman, he is faculty representative to the Southwest Athletic Conference and to the NCAA. He served as president of the former and was vice president of the latter before becoming NCAA president.

Dr. Hardt attributes "the good reputation of the Southwest Conference and TCU" as making his election possible. He did not run for the office but was requested to fill the position.

Another request came from former governor Allan Shivers. He selected Hardt to organize the Texas State Board of Examiners in the Basic Sciences, which certifies doctors for licenses to practice medicine in Texas. Hardt has served as president of the Board since its origin.

He Resigned

He resigned as chairman of the chemistry department last year because his work began snowballing so rapidly. To attend conventions, meetings, banquets and other business engagements, he estimates traveling more than 35,000 miles last year.

Hardt says his biggest problem concerns the basketball-fix scandals in which college players "shaved" points or "threw" games. "I hope that nothing like the bribery and gambling going on in other parts of the country ever happens in the Southwest and particularly at TCU," he said.

Hardt and the NCAA are doing more than just hoping. At the convention this week, an addition to the constitution will be considered. The resolution reads, in part:

"Institutional rules should provide that any student (athlete or non-athlete) shall be expelled from college for failure to report a solicitation to be a party to sports bribery."

If the amendment passes, the NCAA will recommend to the 582-member schools that they should adopt this disciplinary action.

Enjoyed Playing

Although now concerned with the administration end of athletics, Hardt used to enjoy playing. He lettered in football and basketball at Southwestern University in Georgetown.

In addition to all his other positions, Hardt is a board member of the First Methodist Church of Fort Worth and teaches in the church school.

He and his wife, Marion, have two children, both graduates of TCU.

Stock Show 'Bonanza' Scheduled This Month

The 1962 Fort Worth Stock Show promises to be a real "bonanza."

Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker, two of the Cartwright family of the television show, "Bonanza," will appear in person at all 20 performances of the Fort Worth Rodeo, Jan. 26 through Feb. 4.

Campus personality, Linda Loftis ("Miss Texas") will sing the national anthem to open each performance. She also will ride in the rodeo grand entry. "Miss Rodeo America of 1961," Marie Mass of Pinion, Colo., will compete as one of the rodeo's 41 ranch girl barrel racers.

Roper To Appear

Montie Montana, trick rider and champion rope twirler also will appear. Montana has the unique distinction of roping President Eisenhower during the 1953 inaugural parade. However, the secret service men have since made it plain that they prefer the roper's skill be confined to rodeo arenas.

President-manager W. R. Watt says that approximately 400 rugged cowboys will be competing for about $70,000 in saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, steer wrestling, bull riding and calf roping.

Activities Scheduled

Other activities include ranch girl barrel racing, open cutting horse competition and horse show classes.

Performances begin at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 26 through Feb. 4. Tickets are $3 and $2.50 for all nights and Friday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons. For Monday through Thursday afternoons and Saturday morning, tickets will be $2.50 and $2.

Ernest Barratt Goes to UT Medical School

Dr. Ernest Barratt, former professor of psychology at TCU, has accepted a post at the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston.

Dr. Barratt has been on leave this year at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Bobbye Barratt, his wife, is a TCU graduate. She was editor of The Skiff, head of the University News Bureau and editor of "This Is TCU."

Met Husband in Philippines

Life of Religious Director Is Filled With Varied Roles

BY GWEN LAWTON

Director, counselor, teacher, wife and mother are some of the many roles of Mrs. Louis A. Saunders, who met her husband while doing mission work in the Philippine Islands.

As acting director of religious activities on campus, she is taking the place of James A. Farrar, who is working for one year on his doctorate at Duke University.

Based in Manila for three and one-half years, Mrs. Saunders did youth work under the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions in different parts of the country.

She left in 1946, after being graduated from the University of Missouri, to do reconstruction work after the war. "It was similar to the Peace Corps," she said.

Husband Is Council Secretary

The Rev. Saunders, now executive secretary of Fort Worth Area Council of Churches, was stationed as a chaplain at Clark Air Force Base.

After completing his term, he was asked to stay in the Philippines by the United Christian Missionary Society to fill vacancies left by missionaries still in the United States.

He opened a station in the mountains and started a high school, making trips to Manila for supplies.

Mrs. Saunders said the first present he gave her was six baby orchid plants. "It took him six days to bring them down from the mountains," she said.

Planted in coconut shells, the plants had streamers six feet long covered with hundreds of baby orchids.

Lived With Missionaries

Mrs. Saunders lived with five missionary families the first two years of her stay. They stayed in a building which had been a school.

"Each family had two rooms on a long hall. It was real community living," she said with a laugh.

She later lived in an apartment.

Mrs. Saunders now is sponsor of United Religious Council, Greek Council of Chaplains and does some counseling. Her work with URC includes aiding in plans for First Call; Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter convocations; and Religious Emphasis Week.

She is teaching the religious development of children at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. In the spring, she will be teaching the religious development of youth.

The Saunders moved to Fort Worth five years ago and Mrs. Saunders has taught part-time here for four years.

She is originally from Liberty, Mo., while her husband is from North Carolina.

Missouri Graduate

She was graduated from the University of Missouri with a B.A. in philosophy. Sociology and psychology were her joint minors.

Returning from Manila by way of Europe and Southeast Asia, Mrs. Saunders made stops in Hong Kong, Thailand, Burma, India, Egypt, Italy, France, Switzerland and England.

She spent the next year doing professional Girl Scout work and making speaking trips for the mission board.

Mrs. Saunders entered Union Theological Seminary in New York City in 1951 and received a joint M.A. from Union and Columbia University.

The Saunders were married in 1952 while they were both at Union. The Rev. Saunders was working on his doctorate. He had a pastorate in Bay City, Texas for the next four years before coming to Fort Worth. They have a son in first grade and a daughter in third grade.

Mrs. Louis A. Saunders, the University's acting director of religious activities, expects to keep busier than usual for the next month or so, conferring with students in charge of Religious Emphasis Week, which begins March 4.

'Glass Menagerie' Opens At Community Playhouse

A Tennessee Williams' classic, "The Glass Menagerie," opens Wednesday at the Fort Worth Community Theatre.

The play, a Pulitzer Prize winner and Williams' first successful work, will run for eight nights, Jan. 10-13 and Jan. 17-20. Performances are at 8:30 p.m.

Doris Franklin Gramm, who has appeared in the TCU Summer Theatre productions of "The Bad Seed" and "Roomful of Roses," stars as Amanda, a typical Williams' Southern belle.

Cast as narrator of the production is Max Richard. The glass menagerie belongs to the crippled sister of Amanda, Laura, played by Pat Record. She is also a former TCU summer actress, having starred in "Port Royal" and "Blythe Spirit."

Reservations may be made at Community Playhouse, 608 N. Sylvania, TE 8-8612.

Try-outs have been announced for the next playhouse production, "The Silver Whistle," to open Feb. 21. The play calls for a cast of 15. Tryouts will be held Jan. 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Career Cues:

"Whatever your major, make sure to include a course in 'people'!"

W. Emlen Roosevelt, President National State Bank, Elizabeth, N.J.

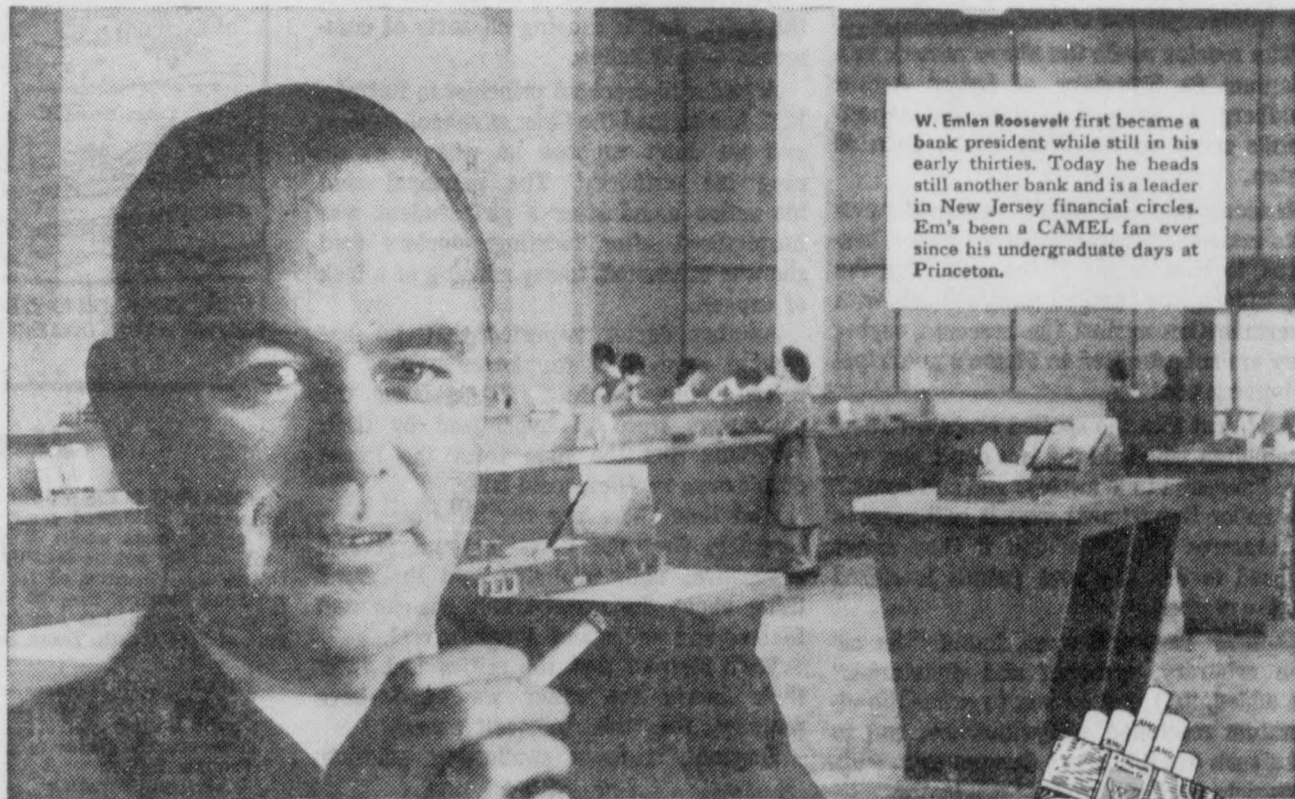

"If my college adviser had prophesied that studying psychology would some day help promote my career in banking, I'd have scoffed. Yet that is exactly what has happened. And when I think about it now the reason seems obvious. The facts and figures of banking, or of any other field, are mechanical devices. They take on real meaning only when related to people.

"Good psychology is also the basis of all teamwork. And, since most of today's business and scientific problems are too complicated for 'one man' solutions, teamwork is essential. If you want to be a valuable team player, and a likely candidate for captain, be the person who understands people. Learn what it takes for people to work together in harmony. Learn how to win trust and confidence. Learn basic human psychology.

"Bear this in mind, too. World tension, community tension, business tension, even family tension are the facts of everyday life. The more you know of human behavior, the better prepared you will be to deal with these problems.

"So, if you have the chance, take a course devoted to 'people.' Your class adviser can probably help you fit a psychology elective into your schedule. I don't think you'll regret it... I know I didn't."

W. Emlen Roosevelt first became a bank president while still in his early thirties. Today he heads still another bank and is a leader in New Jersey financial circles. Em's been a CAMEL fan ever since his undergraduate days at Princeton.

Does Skiff Fulfill Its Role?

BY LYNN SWANN

Recent visitors to campus set us thinking.

They were Kerry O'Quinn and David Crossley, students at the University of Texas. O'Quinn was art director, and Crossley, managing editor of the "Ranger," Texas' former humor magazine.

The staff of the "Ranger" was fired earlier this semester because of the risqué material the magazine included. O'Quinn and Crossley, who were among those dismissed, are now trying to establish a Southwest Conference-wide magazine.

They came here partly to study TCU in hopes of featuring it in one of their issues.

"No Picketing"

Strolling along our serene campus, one of the men commented, "No picketing — seems strange." (Students at Texas have been picketing for integrated dormitories.)

They asked about major controversies raging now. They wanted to know what sort of revolutionary topics The Skiff had covered recently, what crusades we are waging.

We answered that things seem to be running smoothly on campus; there is no reason for a crusade.

The visitors were shocked with "apathy." They described TCU students as "content — and wouldn't get excited about anything."

Set Us Thinking

This is what set us thinking. Has The Skiff failed somehow in answering the needs of students? Is there a fault on campus that merits attention? Have we not furnished information about campus problems? Are we wrong in our "contentment?" If the student newspaper does not stimulate intellectual circulation, what will?

If it does not uncover campus discrepancies, what will?

If the student newspaper does not evoke comment on controversial issues, what will?

Skiff Seeks

The Skiff this semester has sought to accomplish these ends. We do not know what sort of job we have done.

We do know, however, that The Skiff is not a rabble rousing publication, seeking sensational news for its own glorification.

Many student newspapers do just that. They crusade for the purpose of crusading.

The Skiff will not do this. But it will not stir shy of controversy for fear of the administration or personal ridicule.

The Skiff seeks to report the news thoroughly — and maturely.

Destroy America? Here's How To Do It

If you decided to destroy America, here is what you should do.

First, plant seeds of suspicion in the minds of the people, to destroy their confidence in each other and in their leaders. Oppose legislation, saying it is against basic democratic principles.

Since more than half the population is associated with some church group, brand religious leaders and organizations communistic or socialistic. (Never say outright that they are communists or socialists, for that could mean legal action.) After all, many people not well informed on such matters may believe some of the things you say or imply.

You may make people lose confidence in their public schools, teachers and textbooks by calling some of them subversive.

Convince people that their government is working against them and you will be on the road to revolution. Question the integrity of the judicial system — an excellent way to undermine trust.

Of course, in most cases critics are attempting sincerely to act in the best interests of the nation. But eroding people's faith in each other and in the society are ways to weaken America, whether that is the plan or not. Criticism is best when fair and factual. Both sides of a case should be aired.

A ground rule is to think before speaking.

Twist Causes Comment and Action

Let's face it: there always will be fads. And as long as there are fads, there will be those who object to them.

Right now, it seems to be the new dance, the twist, that is causing all sorts of comments — and action.

A junior high school principal in Buffalo, N.Y. has banned the twist at school dances, and we don't suppose he was overstepping his authority. The principal said his action came after a girl student was hospitalized after twisting; doctors said she was exhausted, to say nothing of a lack of oxygen.

Another doctor reported that he has treated some kids for knee injuries received while twisting. He claimed the youngsters were so hypnotized by their gyrations that the pain from the knees didn't even register, until later.

And then there are the bluenoses who complain that the twist is immoral and suggestive. They probably said the same thing about the mambo and cha-cha and foxtrot and waltz and Virginia reel.

We'd suggest that the critics just twist their heads the other way and have patience, for "this, too, will pass."

Anyway, it beats swallowing goldfish.

Students Here 'Silent'; They Riot in Argentina

While college students in the United States concern themselves with panty raids and sports rivalries, their counterparts in other nations often let off steam through politics.

Students at TCU and other colleges have been accused of apathy — indifference to local and world happenings. Young people have been called "the silent generation." By contrast, demonstrations and boycotts by Latin American students make htm appear anything but apathetic.

In 1956 students from seven universities in Argentina locked themselves in classrooms to challenge Argentine President Pedro E. Armburu and his minister of education, Atilio Maini. The issue concerned how much influence over education and political life the Catholic clergy should have.

Students charged that the minister was a "clerical reactionary." The president, apparently faced with the choice of alienating one side or the other — conservative or anticlerics and laborites — decided to accept resignations of both the minister of education and one of his opponents.

Some advocate students' having a strong voice in school policy; others object to it.

Congressman John Brademas of Indiana, a recent traveler in Argentina, has said that University of Buenos Aires students have power to turn thumbs down on professors, to determine university organization and to involve the school in national politics.

Junior-Senior Art Exhibition To Be Shown

The Junior-Senior Qualifying Exhibition in art opens at 9 a.m. Thursday. It will continue through Feb. 22 at the TCU Gallery on the second floor of the Ed Landreth Building.

In order to graduate, students must have their work accepted by a faculty jury in a qualifying exhibition. Each exhibitor displays a variety of his work, emphasizing his major area of concentration.

Two Shows Held

There are two qualifying Junior-Senior shows held each year. If a student fails to qualify during the first show, he may enter the following exhibit.

This year 15 students submitted portfolios to qualify for the Junior-Senior show; four were accepted.

Selections Shown

In addition to the Junior-Senior Exhibition, selections from the Permanent Collection also will be shown.

The selections may be seen from 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; and 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday. Sundays and holidays the gallery will be closed.

Dr. Karl Snyder, this year's director of the European Study Tour, will begin a series of meetings on Friday, Jan. 19, to discuss preparations for the tour.

The meetings, scheduled for Jan. 19 and 30, Feb. 15, March 9 and 22, April 3 and 18, and May 4, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Weatherly Hall, the basement meeting hall in Brite College of the Bible.

The first meeting will be a general discussion on preparing for the tour. Such things as what clothes to take, and how much extra money will be needed, will be studied.

A film on Germany will be shown by a representative of the Hoyt Travel Agency at the first meeting.

At each of the following meetings a film on a particular country will be shown.

"The primary purpose for these discussions," Dr. Snyder said, "is so the people will know what they are seeing when they get there."

Six semester hours of credit may be earned by anyone wishing to do so. The credit will count as three hours in Interrelation of the Arts and three hours in Contemporary Drama.

At the end of the trip, students earning credit will be required to write the equivalent of a term paper. Either master's or undergraduate credits may be earned.

This year's tour includes visits to Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Western Austria, Italy, France and England.

Two days will be spent at Stratford-on-Avon. Dr. Snyder expressed hope that tour members would be able to attend two Shakespeare plays there.

The total cost of the tour is $1,950 from Fort Worth-Dallas or $1,775 from New York.

The lecture meetings are open to anyone, whether they have definitely decided to make the tour or not.

Talbert's Study Appears In Area Publication

Robert H. Talbert, professor of sociology, had a study of the Fort Worth central business district printed in the November Fort Worth Business Review.

In the article, Talbert concluded that the downtown central business district is fast disappearing, and that a strong and vital central business district is essential to a city.

Professors Set Dinner, Meeting

The Fort Worth chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will hold an open meeting, with dinner and a program, Jan. 12 at 6 p.m. in the Student Center.

The program for the evening will include three presentations by members of the association. Dr. Landon Colquitt, professor of mathematics, will talk on "What A.A.U.P. is and Does Nationally."

The second presentation, "A.A.U.P. in the Southwest," will be given by Kendall P. Cochran, professor of economics at North Texas State University. Dr. Malcolm Arnoult, professor of psychology here, will conclude the program with a discussion of what the local chapter can do in the future.

All faculty members interested in attending should send $1.50 to cover dinner reservations to Floyd Durham, professor of economics,

Christmas Cards Needed in China

The cards can be used, however, to help lepers, orphans and deserted children, through the "Mustard Seed, Inc." program in Formosa (free China).

Mrs. Lillian Dickson, wife of a Formosan missionary, is collecting the cards. Bible verses in Chinese are printed on them and they are distributed in Formosa.

Louise Pilcher, secretary in public relations here, will pack and mail the cards. Additional information concerning the "Mustard Seed" program may be obtained in room 326, Sadler Hall.

Future Builders To Choose Slate

The Future Builders Club, formed by students of the construction management program, will elect officers at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in room 217 of the Student Center.

T. D. Caldwell, coordinator of construction management, said students and faculty members interested in building construction are invited to attend.

Fouled Up on Moonglow

Mike O'Meara of the Rocky Mountain News, Denver, got a good action shot during a night ball game of a batter fouling off a pitch.

Fellow staffers told Mike the baseball in the picture looked more like the moon than a baseball. Mike stood his ground. The News published the picture.

Next day, Mike admitted reluctantly that his pals were right—it was the moon.

Reverend To Discuss 'Adult' Films

The Rev. Gordon Miltenberger will speak on "adult" movies at 6:30 Wednesday evening at the Canterbury House.

Father Miltenberger said that his talk was prompted by the growing interest in "adult" movies by the youth of the nation.

Dinner will be served at 6 p.m.

Mabel Major, professor of English, was explaining to her Shakespeare class about the symbolism attached to certain colors.

To make her point, Miss Major said that blue has come to be connected with melancholy like blue Monday and "blue books."

All academic responses were from men students. "Business courses were too easy," "did not like courses required for business major," "academic standards were too low," and "business courses were too general," were some of the academic reasons for dropping out entirely. These answers were given by students enrolling in other universities.

Girl Watcher's Guide

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

Girl watchers are honorable men

LESSON 6 - Who may watch

Any male is eligible to become a girl watcher. There is no age limit, although most girl watchers are over ten and under one hundred and four. There are no height or weight requirements, although taller men enjoy an obvious advantage at crowded parties. The only strict requirement is one of character. The girl watcher is a man of honor. Since he can't possibly take notes, as the bird watcher does, we must rely on his word. Therefore, when an experienced girl watcher tells you he saw nine beautiful girls while on his way to class, he saw nine beautiful girls. And when he tells you his Pall Mall is the cigarette of the century, believe him. It is.

Colleges Offer Service Grants

Graduating seniors interested in a public service career are offered an opportunity to apply for fellowships to study at three different universities.

Beginning in June, a three months' internship with a government agency in Alabama, Kentucky or Tennessee will be available. In the 1962-63 school session, the student can take graduate courses at the Universities of Alabama, Kentucky or Tennessee.

For more information and applications, students may write Coleman B. Ransone, educational director, southern regional training program in public administration, Drawer I, University, Alabama. Deadline for submitting applications is March 3, 1962.

Frogs David Warnell (20) and Alton Adams (33) are shown fighting for a rebound in TCU's home opener against Centenary. The Purples topped the Gents, 63-61, for their only win of the season. With a 1-10 record the Frogs meet Texas tonight in the coliseum.

Frogs Seek 1st Conference Win With UT Tonight

With a chance to pick up their first Southwest Conference victory of the year as well as their initial loop win in the Daniel Meyer Coliseum, Frog cagers play host to Texas' surprising Longhorns tonight at 8:05 p.m.

TCU will carry a 1-10 record into the contest while Texas brings an 8-3 season's mark to Fort Worth. The Frogs have lost both of their SWC outings and Texas stands 1-1 in League play.

Orange coach Hal Bradley has fashioned a possible title contender out of material that was considered only mediocre in the pre-season pickings.

The Longhorns were hit heavily by graduation but the play of several promising sophomores and the blossoming of some squadmen from a year ago have turned Texas into a team to be reckoned with.

TCU's cage boss Buster Brannon will be seeking an answer to what causes his team to fade in the game's final ten minutes.

In five of their last six games the Frogs have played fine basketball only to lose out in the late stages of the encounter.

In its last appearance before the home town folks TCU fell before SMU, 53-70, in a bout that was much closer than the score indicates. The score was knotted 25-25 at the half but the Frogs went through a spell of cool shooting and fell hopelessly behind.

Saturday the Purples could manage only one field goal in the final 13:16 against Rice to blow a 12 point lead and lose 63-71.

Phil Reynolds' 32-point performance in the Owl game boosted his conference total to 55 and gave the Frog guard the league scoring lead.

Johnny Swaim's Wogs will square off against the Texas Shorthorns at 6 p.m. tonight.

ND-Syracuse Controversy Brings Poetic Comment

One of the most controversial sports events of 1961 was Notre Dame's disputed 17-15 football victory over Syracuse.

The winning points came on a field goal after the game had ended. The referee, through a misinterpretation of the rules, awarded the Fighting Irish an extra play and a three-point try was good.

Syracuse officials protested. The NCAA rules committee decided the play was illegal but that nothing could be done unless Notre Dame would voluntarily concede the contest. The Irish would not.

The game and Notre Dame's attitude toward football prompted Maude Hennessy of South Bend, Ind., to send the following poem to TCU's Dr. Henry Hardt, president of National Collegiate Athletic Association:

EPITAPH FOR A PSEUDO SOCIETY

The "ultimate" weapon had been perfected by the U.S.S.R.
Yuri was on the moon, Colonel Titov on Mars.
The world trembled day and night with utter fear
Convinced that 1961 would be its final year.

Far away in the safe Mid-West
They were facing the crucial test:
Nine games won—what would be their fate—
Could the glorious team win ten straight?
The big motels were filled that night
With delirious alumni screaming delight.
The names Rockne, Leahy and The Gipper
Were to be heard on every lip;
No Phi Beta Kappa key on silver chain
So what—they had athletic fame!
The rockets came—the world screamed and bled,
Burning faces in every head
The fire, the stench, the horrible dead—
Nothing more was there to be said.
But one old grad would not be gypped,
He raised charred body on broken hips
From mangled throat, insane with pain
The poisoned air carried one last refrain—
"Cheer, cheer for old Notre Dame."

SWC Cage Scores Hint Close Race

Basketball teams in the Southwest Conference may not score more than 100 points in a game very often, as teams do in other parts of the country, but then neither are its players seen leaving the District Attorney's office with their overcoats over their heads after being questioned for game-fixing tactics.

To date the scores in the SWC have been about average but have been close. It looks as though the team which scores 70 points will win games while losers will score about 60 points.

Keeping with the tradition of evenly-matched teams in the SWC, winning scores have been 79, 77, 73, 73, 71, 70, 70 and 64 points. The losers have managed 66, 63, 61, 60, 59, 59, 56 and 53 points. The average winning score has been 72.1 while the losing score has averaged 59.6.

Only Rice and SMU have perfect records, but they shouldn't remain that way long . . . the teams in the Southwest Conference play for keeps!

Former Frog Gains Army Grid Honor

Paul Pitts, former TCU footballer, was selected to the first team of the 25th Infantry Division Football League All-Star team recently in Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

Pitts was a second team All-Star pick in 1960.

The former Frog tackle was one of the leading scorers in league with five field goals and 13 conversions for 22 points.
