

Research Foundation Approved by Board

The University Board of Trustees, in its annual fall meeting, Friday approved a charter for a "TCU Research Foundation," a non-profit corporation to support an expanding research program on campus.

Chancellor M.E. Sadler referred to the project as "one of the most significant TCU has undertaken."

THE CHARTER will go into effect immediately.

Chancellor Sadler said the University must begin thinking in terms of building a large Research Center as soon as funds are available.

The new foundation's purpose will be to solicit and receive funds to support the research programs. The charter specifies that its trustees will be made up of University officials and a number of others to be determined by the by-laws, at least half of whom will be selected by the TCU Board.

The University launched its first doctor of philosophy degree program in 1960, and since then the graduate study and advanced research programs have recorded a great expansion, Dr. Sadler reported. Doctoral programs were added in mathematics and English this fall.

ENROLLMENT IN THE Graduate School increased 15 per cent this semester to 612. More than 20 research projects are being conducted under grants of more than $700,000 from industrial, governmental and educational agencies, Dr. Sadler told trustees.

Additional doctoral programs in six or eight fields "are needed to develop and maintain the climate of scholarly activity essential to first-class advanced work," Dr. Sadler told the board.

In his report to the board, the Chancellor said the record fall semester enrollment of 6,631 was a gain of 5.1 per cent over the previous year. He called the 15 per cent increase in the Graduate School and the 12 per cent climb in the Evening College "especially significant."

"A major factor in our enrollment situation continues to be a lack of dormitory space," he said. "We hope to remedy this matter reasonably soon."

Dr. Sadler reported that the beginning of the University's 90th year in September was "the best ever," and singled out for special praise Vice Chancellors James M. Moudy, Laurence C. Smith and L. C. White; the academic deans and especially Dr. Warren K. Agee, new head of the Evening College; Registrar Calvin Cumbie and Assistant to the Chancellor Amos W. Melton.

IN OTHER ACTION, the trustees approved a plan to grant full tuition to dependents of all "professional workers" as an additional fringe benefit; approved the start of one or more new Ph. D. programs in the fall of 1964; and heard a financial report by L. C. White, vice chancellor for fiscal affairs.

No designation was made as to fields in which the doctoral work will be conducted.

The trustees also voted approval of the University's "experimental membership" in the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which was announced recently.

THE TRUSTEES re-elected nine members and named four new ones to serve on the board. Re-elected officers are Loren A. Boswell of Fort Worth as chairman; Clyde Tomlinson of Hillsboro as vice chairman; and Dr. Jerome A. Moore dean of Add-Ran College, secretary.

Re-elected trustees were Carlos Ashley of Llano, Dewey Lawrence of Tyler, Fred Erisman of Longview, M. J. Neeley of Fort Worth, Harold Herndon of San Antonio, Lester Clark of Breckenridge, Gean B. Turner of Cleburne, Dr. W. A. Welsh of Dallas and Earle B. Barnes of Freeport.

NEW MEMBERS of the board include Judge Jack M. Langdon, newly appointed associate Justice of the Court of Civil Appeals; Beeman Fisher, president of Texas Electric Service Company; W. C. Conner, president of Alcon Laboratories; and Rev. Newton J. Robison, minister of First Christian Church of Amarillo.

Rev. Robison also was named to the Board of Brite College of the Bible, TCU's graduate seminary.

Cuba-Like Crisis in Africa Predicted by Dr. De Blij

BY BARBARA JOHNSTON

Predicting that Africa soon will be the scene of a crisis equal to the one in Cuba today, Dr. Harm J. De Blij concluded International Relations Week activities here Friday night.

Dr. De Blij recently returned from a tour of Africa, where he previously has resided and studied. He was formerly on the geography department faculty at Michigan State University. He used a map to illustrate his talk, "Social Revolutions in Southern Africa."

He divided Africa south of the Sahara into three parts: "black independent Africa" in the north, "white nationalist Africa" in the south and a buffer zone in the middle.

"The two power groups are so opposed that confrontation cannot be avoided," Dr. De Blij said, asserting that the existence of the buffer zone is all that prevents a major crisis now.

He cited Mozambique and South Africa as two key areas.

"In South Africa there are 10 million black Africans, 3.2 million whites, 1.5 million coloreds, and a half million Asiatics," Dr. De Blij related.

He said that the crucial development was the territorial division of the land by the government. To provide complete segregation 15 per cent of the land was allotted to the black Africans, 81 per cent to the whites, and the remaining 4 per cent to the coloreds and Asiatics.

"Economically there is no way out for the Africans. There is going to be starvation. They are going to have to fight for survival, and the fighting will be against white rule," declared Dr. De Blij.

Band Causes LSU Schedule Change

Followers of the TCU football team, those planning to go on the student trip to LSU, will be fortunate enough to be standing around the Student Center when old Sol pokes its head up in the east on Nov. 10.

The buses chartered to take the students to the train depot at 7 a.m. that morning will be leaving at 5:30 because of a decision by the band to leave earlier so they would arrive early enough to practice before game time.

Train departure has been moved up from 7:30 a.m. to 6 a.m.

Congress at Turning Point

BY JAMES MARTIN

No campus organization has experienced such an agonizing reappraisal of its purposes, aspirations and activities than has the Student Congress.

Often criticized, sometimes praised and always misunderstood, Congress has matured with the years, not because it wants to, but because of changes in college life and standards created with each new freshman class.

This maturity has not been accomplished without problems. For the University presently is entering an era of unprecedented expansion, both in its physical plant and academic standards, so important for TCU.

Over the years, Congress has come to mean many things to many people. One student referred to it as a "sham," a do-nothing organization, a group whose members occupy a world of their own, far removed from the realities of the average campus "Joe."

Some students complain that Congress has regressed into nothing more than a social club, exclusive of the best interests of all. They cite its inability to achieve communication between itself and the student, as the cause for much of its difficulty.

To Congress President Galen Hull, Congress means an idea with tangible benefits for all students. "I think Congress has got to be representative of the student body so that in planning campus activities, it can reflect the ideas and prejudices of the students."

"Of course it can never be a full fledged democratic organization," Hull emphasized, "because we're subject to the whims of the administration in anything we do."

Criticisms of the student government have focused chiefly on its inequality and poor method of distribution.

"I feel that our representation is appalling, because class officers really only represent a small portion of the students," Hull said.

Hull considers this inequality a major problem facing Congress, and one that must be answered soon if it is to continue to operate.

Last year Congress appointed a committee to look into possible changes and updating of the representation.

The committee was unable to solve the acute problem of how to provide equal representation among the students who live off campus. Hull said the dormitory students would, in such an arrangement as the committee suggested, be taken care of by the dorm councils.

The women's dorm councils have begun to work effectively in their areas, Hull said, and the proposed men's dorms councils will bear watching to see if they can cope with the problems that may arise within. If they can, a solution to in-

Social Critic Will Speak

Noted American author and social critic Vance Packard will speak on campus Thursday.

"The Changing Character of the American People" will be discussed by Packard for Select Series fourth program of the season. The presentation will begin at 8 p.m. in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

Packard, author of three best sellers in the non-fiction field, pioneered in alerting the American public to the techniques employed for "persuasion in depth" advertising in "The Hidden Persuaders."

"The Waste Makers" involves such strategies as "planned obsolescence." He shows how waste has become a virtue and "product death" a watchword in American industry.

In "The Status Seekers," from which he will draw for the Select Series program, the author outlined a trend toward a more rigid class system in supposedly classless America which in one way or another affects the lives of every citizen.

AFROTC Cadets Receive Awards

Four senior AFROTC cadets recently were named distinguished Air Force ROTC cadets by Maj. Zane G. Brewer, professor of Air Science.

The award was made on the basis of leadership, character, aptitude for military service and academic standing.

Holliman is Group Commander of the 845th AFROTC Cadet Group. Dollahite is Executive Officer of the 845th and recent recipient of the 8508th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group Award. Bailey received the Chancellor's Award last year and McKenzie attained the highest rating among University cadets at summer camp.

equal representation would be a step nearer.

Congress Struggles

Congress this fall has struggled with the question of TCU's affiliation with the National Student Association (NSA). Each Congress meeting has seen conflicts between the liberals on campus, who promote NSA, and conservatives, who oppose it.

Hull feels the students have been "unjustified" in accusing Congress of attempting to railroad the issue to a quick passage without submitting the proposal to a vote by the student body.

"All we were trying to do was follow normal legislative procedure," Hull explained. "This is the first time since I've been at TCU that the action of Congress has been questioned."

Hopes for Hands Off

The administration, Hull said, should not have the power to revoke the action of Congress in this matter. He feels that the leaders in the administration presently are split on the issue.

Hull hopes the administration will adopt a hands-off policy in regard to policy decisions of the Congress.

Hull says the students on campus are ready for complete integration now as was indicated by an opinion poll conducted by Congress last spring. "Students have come around to thinking of integration realistically. We are much farther along than schools like Baylor," he commented.

Serves Students

Congress is set up to legislate student problems delegated to it by the administration. It also assumes a more important function in the services it provides students.

It created the Activities Council; it functions as an intermediate agency for establishing relations between colleges and universities; it legislates, through the Housing and Health Committee, necessary regulations for the dormitories, and it also provides scholarships for students.

Hull would like to see the Honor Life program extended

Fallis Players To Open Friday

The Fallis Players will open their season Friday night with a performance of Nicholas Gray's "Tinder Box," a drama for children based on the story by Hans Christian Anderson.

Playing the part of Peter is Ronnie Headrick, Dallas junior. Pat Nielson, Fort Worth sophomore plays the witch and Sidney Long, Fayette, Mo. junior joins Bonita Enten, Baltimore freshman in portraying the witch's helpers. The Princess is Paula McClung, Fort Worth freshman.

The play will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. A special matinee will be given Saturday at 2:30.

throughout the University. Congress should recommend that a system of mutual aid be established between students and faculty. An example would be for professors to be in the room during tests if the students rely on their ability to prevent cheating.

Honesty Needed

To do this, he said, a system of honesty, if this is to be developed in an honor program, then must be throughout the student body. TCU hasn't had such a program in the past.

Whether Student Congress will continue in its present form, move backward or forward eventually must be decided by the Congress, the administration and the students.

Before such action is made, the students will be informed and educated. The administration will give a sympathetic hearing to the problems of the "child," Student Congress.

Baylor Debaters Dominate Contest

Baylor University took two major honors in the TCU College Debate Tournament in Ed Landreth Auditorium Saturday.

The group from Waco placed first in the senior division, in which juniors and seniors competed, and second in the junior division for underclassmen and those who had never competed in a debate contest before.

Senior division winners were Ann Schell and Howard Cunningham. Karen Allen and Martha New placed in the junior division. Dr. Glenn R. Capp, head of the speech and radio department at Baylor, is their coach.

Kansas State Teacher's College of Emporia took second in the senior division. Their coach is Dr. John De Bross, head of the speech department. Another team from Kansas State and Fort Hayes State College, Fort Hayes, Kan., placed third.

Washburn University of Topeka, Kansas, won first place in the State University and Oklahoma City University placed third.

Only judges who had not previously heard the teams were used for the final rounds Saturday. The tournament had opened Friday.

Students Do All on TV Show

BY LINDA CLARK

From making mosaic tile tables to interviewing guests, students in the Radio-Television Department do almost every job necessary to the production of "The Future We Face," a 30-minute program aired weekly on KTVT-TV, Channel 11.

Guided by Dr. William Hawes, department chairman, students produce, direct, host, write scripts, select guests, design and construct scenery and make films for the show. Operation of cameras is the only job they do not handle.

"The Future We Face," shown live at noon each Saturday, is an educational show designed to appeal to viewers 16-22. Guests, generally within that age bracket, are interviewed on topics of current affairs that go beyond the campus in scope.

Subjects Suggested

Subjects for discussion are selected by Dr. Hawes with suggestions from his television production class. Departments on campus are featured, with students from those departments on guest panels.

Dr. Hawes appoints a producer who is responsible for talent. Guests are drawn from the Dallas-Fort Worth viewing area. Other jobs, including the host position, are assigned members of the television production class.

The show's format is informal, utilizing only a brief warmup before going on the air with a spontaneous, unrehearsed discussion of the week's topic.

"We aim first for the show to be good and second for it to be educational for the viewer," said Dr. Hawes. "The tendency is for viewers to think of educational television as dull, dry and lower in standard than entertainment shows. We want to get away from that."

Students Get Training

Hawes emphasized that students must know what a good show is and how to make one "come off." He feels real commercial experience students get by maintaining high standards is valuable.

"The Future We Face" was originated in fall 1961 when KTVT offered the Saturday morning time as a public service. The show ran a full 39-week season. Plans are to go the full season again this year.

Upcoming topics include "Should Professional People Strike?" Nov. 10, "How important is College?" Nov. 17, and "After the Atom, What?" Dec. 1.

The Radio-Television Department also will produce a one-hour Christmas special to be aired in prime evening time on Channel 11.

Negro College to Present Music Festival on Campus

Jarvis Christian College will present a "Fall Festival of Music" Nov. 12 in Ed Landreth Auditorium.

The program, sponsored by the University and Tarrant County Christian (Disciples of Christ) Churches, will begin at 8:15 p.m. Jarvis, located in Hawkins, is a Negro school supported by Disciples of Christ Churches.

BOOK NOTES

BY BARBARA HUTCHINS

With the publication of "Justine," "Balthazar," "Mountolive" and "Clea," the four books composing "Alexandria Quartet," Lawrence Durrell came to the fore as a popular, if not already well-known, author.

Durrell has rediscovered "style" and the evocations of words, their sounds and meanings. His books glitter with precise multiple-faceted adjectives, constructing his squalid Alexandria and its curious inhabitants. The tetralogy is not so much separate novels, but an expanding narrative in which a fresh piece of information, or someone else's more intimate knowledge of a character suddenly changes the significance of what we have already learned.

Durrell's purpose in writing the four books was stated in "Justine": "What I most need to do is to record experiences not in the order in which they took place, for that is history, but in the order in which they first became significant for me."

Or in other words, Durrell is trying to capture the truth through perception and time, much in the way of ancient Oriental writers, who retold the same incidences, but from various points of view. So does "Balthazar" ironically mirror "Justine," and "Mountolive" give yet another view of the same time-sequence. Only "Clea" ventures into the future of the first three books.

Behind a pattern of erotic musical chairs lurk sinister treachery and violence. Wrongly treated, this unquestionably sensational material might have lapsed into deplorable melodrama. It is saved by the distinction of the author's interest in the "secret places of the soul" where the ironies and tragedies are conceived.

As one reviewer explained it, "Durrell has humanity."

LETTERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is a letter from the president of the National Student Association (NSA) to Student Congress President Galen Hull:

Enclosed you will find a statement on NSA policy and the Greek system. It is a little out of date but it should contain the kind of information you are seeking.

The article you enclosed is really amazing. I nor anyone in the association to our knowledge has ever advocated the publication "of secret rituals and rites," our only "dislike" or differences with fraternities and sororities is in the question of segregation. Especially where the national refuses to take out such clauses in the constitution, we urge that the campus chapter go local so as not to be bound by this clause.

Many of our present staff and officers are members of national and local fraternities as are many of our National Executive Committee members.

We hope that this will clear up some of the questions you raise, but realize that this type of attack is one of the hardest to combat. I can only refer you and the writer of the article to our policy statement on fraternities and sororities in the codification. We do not advocate such things as described in the article—our objections are on quite a different ground.

W. Dennis Shaul,
President of NSA

Petitions, Please

There has been much controversy over the proposal to open the library on Sunday.

Impartial student polls reveal that many students advocate it. But still some administrators and most of the library staff members persist in their opposition or reluctance to institute Sunday library hours. Why is this?

It's because they have been made wary of such an innovation by the failures of similar schemes in the past, the apathetic student response to the few times the library has been open on Sunday.

A possible solution for the present situation would be a trial-run of Sunday hours to test student response. If the results are favorable, a policy change would be in order.

We must remember that TCU is a business, and no business can operate continually at a deficit. The administration must be fairly certain that any change of policy will be beneficial and stand some chance of success. An open library with no students utilizing it is a failure both economically and academically by anyone's criterion.

Dr. James Moudy, vice chancellor for academic affairs, has suggested a student petition as a means of manifesting to the administration the sincerity of the student's desire for Sunday hours.

There are petitions being circulated now by several students. The Skiff urges that you sign up, thus indicating your support for library hours on Sunday. A long roster of names would be a convincing argument, but bear this in mind: Obtaining the change is only half a victory.

Keeping the library open as a regular policy is the other half. This can be realized only by active student support of the library. It's up to you.

As I See It

BY HAROLD MCKINNEY

As the new year draws nearer, plans are already in works for the special days, weeks, months and events which all America will be celebrating.

Funny thing about it is that most U.S. citizens do not know yet realize the festive occasions they will be called upon to commemorate.

Many students currently are battling with the perplexing question of which New Year's Eve party to attend during the waning hours of 1962. What they haven't found out until now is that when they go through the whole business of the new year bit they will be helping to usher in the star of "International Take-A-Deep-Breath Day" also.

While some may smirk and call it unimportant, this column will provide TCU students with a list of what special holidays are coming in 1963 and give them the opportunity to make proper preparations.

After resting from all of those deep breaths taken Jan. 1, Americans will be ready to join with the national pickle packers in celebrating two special weeks. From Jan. 23 through April 14 will be hailed throughout the land "Pickle Ways for Lenten Days." If this does not suit your fancy then try "Pickles 'n Fish are Flavor Pals" from Jan. 27 to April 14.

March 1 kicks off "National Weights and Measures Week" and "National Buttermilk Bread Month."

Clean sweeps ought to be in order during April which has been designated "National Rug Cleaning Month." Bright lighting this month will be the first seven days, officially declared "National Laugh Week."

The pickle packers return in June and July with "National Pickle Week" and the "Pickles for Picnic Time" season. Nov. 15-Jan. 1, 1964, has been set aside as the "Holiday are Pickle Days" time of the year.

Some may call it luck and others smart planning. Nov. 28 through Jan. 1 is "National Indigestion Season." Let it be said here that America's collegians are overlooked, however.

There will be that old standby "Be Kind to Animals Week," "National Sweater Week," and "Measure Your Stress Month."

But May will be the month most college students are looking forward to—it's "National Personal Affairs Month."

Three foreign students, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity in co-operation with foreign students at the University, spoke during International Relations Week. The week's activities ended Friday.

Anthony Le Page, Kent, England; Mike Schehadeh, Jerusalem, Jordan; and Ki Jun Ohm, Seoul, Korea, talked about America.

More than 50 persons attended the session in the Student Center.

Le Page talked about America's education system; Schehadeh, on American culture; Ohm, on general impressions of the United States.

Sandwiches and donuts will be sold in all dormitories from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. Jan. 17, 20, 21, and 22.

Selling of concessions during finals last year netted $319.19 for the class of 1965.

Skiff Opinion Poll Shows Week Night Flicks Preferred

The Calendar Committee recently handed down a ruling ending Flick Nite showings on week nights. The action was designed, the Committee said, to raise academic excellence on campus.

Student reaction to the committee's decision as gauged by a Skiff opinion poll Friday:

Kay Campbell, Troy, Mo. junior: "I never go anyway, so I can't say."

Diane Kramer, San Antonio sophomore: "I think it (the ruling is ridiculous. Doing away with Flick Nite will not increase studying at all."

Tex McIver, Wichita Falls sophomore: "I feel college students can adjust their own time. If they want to go to the show, let them go."

Mary Corzine, Cleburne junior: "Enough activities have been cut down on already. Flick Nite isn't that bad on grades."

Ruth Guy, Corpus Christi sophomore: "People who went to the movies will probably go someplace else now."

Jimmy Garland, Fort Worth sophomore: "People have other things to do on Friday and Saturday nights and I don't think many people would show up."

Foundation Boosts University

The purpose of the Brown-Lupton Foundation, established in September 1941, is to make contributions to charitable institutions.

The foundation is under the general management of S. P. Woodson Jr., Fort Worth business man.

"T. J. Brown was always interested in TCU and the primary interest of the foundation is in this university," Woodson said. He added that Brown was co-owner of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company with C. A. Lupton.

Woodson explained that the two men set up the foundation so that money is donated in various amounts annually. The money is derived from a half interest in the company and its 12 subplants, mostly in Texas, with others in California and Kansas.

"MONEY WAS borrowed to build the Student Center which carries the name of Brown-Lupton and the cost of construction is paid by the foundation," Woodson said.

He explained that the foundation had decided to give a sizeable amount of land to the University, but sold the property instead. A check for $195,000 was given for the purpose of building a medical center at TCU.

L. C. White, vice chancellor for fiscal affairs, reported that blueprints for the medical center were released to contractors yesterday and that a contract will be awarded on Nov. 22.

WOODSON ADDED that there also are student loan funds providing scholarships in the graduate school and in the field of physics. "The number varies from year to year according to the need," he said.

The first managing director was Lupton on the death of Brown. Glen Woodson, who was on the TCU board of trustees, assumed the responsibility when Lupton died. Woodson took over in 1959.

The directors are V. J. Earnhart, J. A. Gooch, Mrs. Shirley Holmes, Mrs. Gloria Tenison, Mrs. C. A. Lupton and Mrs. C. P. Lupton.

SWC Sports Roundup

BY TIM TALBERT

Tempus fugit like the dickens and here we are nearing selection of the all-Americans for 1962. Chances are, before the Great Pumpkin arrives, some of the players already will have been chosen, since those doing the picking have the same motto: Get thar fustest.

Leave us then check on how our local heroes are faring. Before the season started, TCU's Sonny Gibbs and Texas' Ray Poage seemed to be the SWC's best bet for stardom.

GIBBS HAS A BETTER than average chance of making some of the squads while Poage's chances are rather slim. Gibbs' fortunes are rather ironical. The tall quarterback had good afternoons against Tech and A&M while he enjoyed a spectacular game against Baylor.

He was accused of having an "off" night when Arkansas slapped the Frogs, 42-14. The criticism was unjust. Gibbs receivers dropped at least six passes. For the game, he completed nine of 22. 15 of 22 certainly would have been more impressive.

Gibbs also has some strong competition from George Mira of Miami and Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech. Then there is Billy Moore of Arkansas.

MIRA HAS GAINED well over a thousand yards through the air and completed more than half of his passes. Lothridge has had a hand in every point the Yellow Jackets have scored this year. What he has not scored himself, he has passed for. In his spare time, he kicks extra points and field goals. Moore, of course, is leading the SWC in all offensive departments.

Gibbs has at least two more games to play before the selectors make their final decision. A strong showing in those games would certainly land Sonny on some All-American squads.

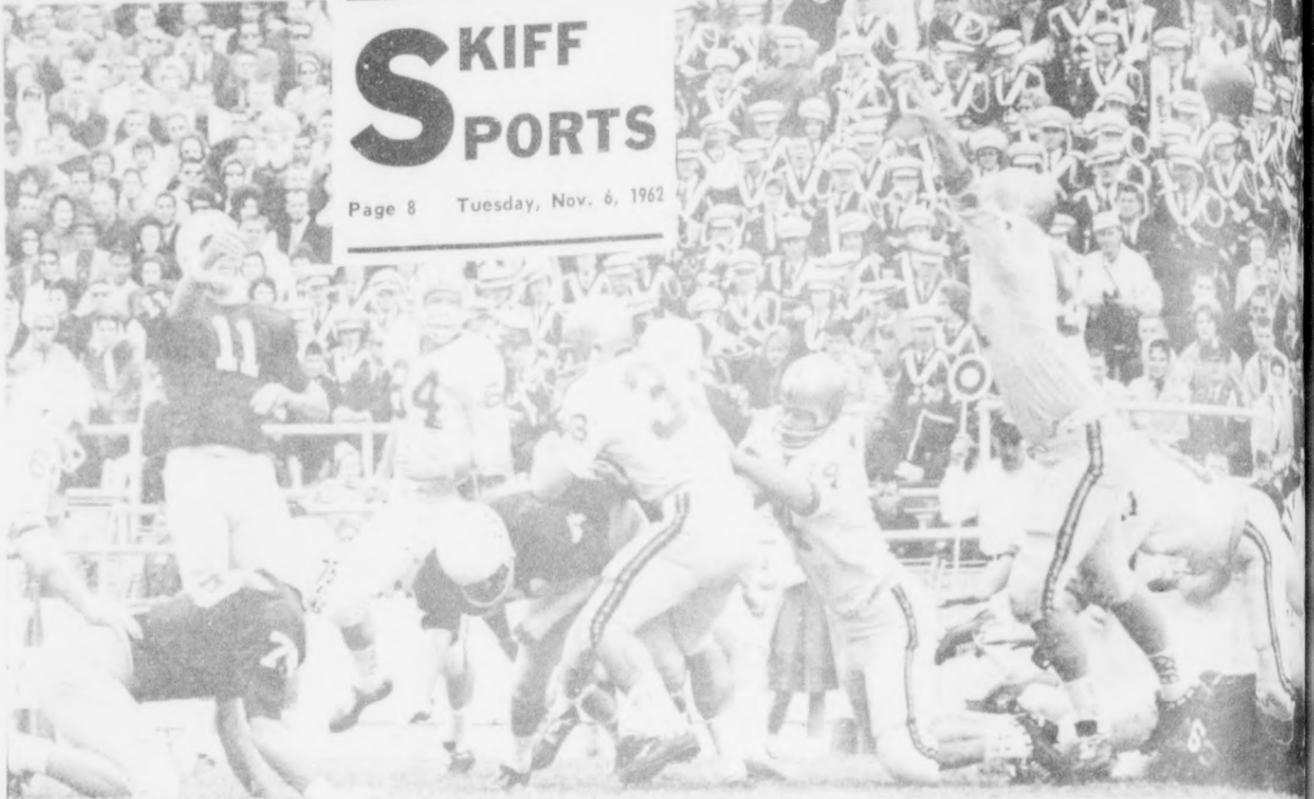

ANYWAY, ALL-AMERICAN or not, Gibbs is the best quarterback TCU has seen for a long time.

Poage's statistics have not been exactly overpowering. He has averaged 3.0 yards a carry and has been slowed by injuries in a couple of games. But the nations fullback troops are much less crowded than most positions, particularly quarterback.

Probably the best bet the conference has for national plaudits is Texas guard Johnny Treadwell. Treadwell has received nothing but raves from rival SWC scouts and he has good support from the conference football writers.

If Pat Culpepper was not a defensive specialist, the Texas linebacker would be a shoo-in for All-America. The selectors may create a new position for him on a mythical squad like wildcard, etc.

As tempus fugit, these lads will be worth watching as all-America time nears.

Frog quarterback Sonny Gibbs (11) fires a pass intended for end Tom Magoffin in the third quarter. Frog tackle Rudy Matthews (75) and fullback Lloyd Mynatt is blocking for Gibbs. Baylor's Claude Pearson (84) and Dalton Hoffman (33) are putting the pressure on Gibbs. The pass fell incomplete but two plays later, Magoffin caught a touchdown pass. The Frogs won, 28-26. (Photo Linda Kaye)

Big Night in Baton Rouge

Tigers Await TCU

It's usually termed a "breather" when a team gets a Saturday off from the conference grind, but you can't convince the Frogs they'll have a swingin' time in Tiger Stadium Saturday night.

That's the raucous Baton Rouge home of Louisiana State—TCU's 7th opponent of the season.

LSU was fourth in the nation last week until beaten by sixth ranked Mississippi, 15-7 Saturday.

Although the Frogs won, two crippling injuries were sustained against Baylor. End Ben Nix and tackle Norman Evans suffered knee injuries.

Trainer Elmer Brown announced that Evans is definitely out for the year while Nix may see some limited action in the Texas game. Evans became a starter against Arkansas taking over right tackle from Rudy Matthews. Now Coach Abe Martin plans to go with Matthews and sophomores Bobby Smith and Preston Phillips at the tackle slot.

Nix was quarterback Sonny Gibbs favorite receiver this year. He caught 17 passes for 228 yards and one touchdown. Martin plans to shift right end Lynn Morrison

Quarterback Sonny Gibbs enjoyed his finest day in a Frog uniform. The big senior hit 14 of 26 for 192 and two touchdowns. Gibbs added 16 yards over the ground for a total offense of 208 yards.

Gibbs had one of his passes intercepted in the first quarter by James Ingram on the Bear 25. Ingram had run the ball back 28 yards and Gibbs was the last man between him and the goal line.

Gibbs used his arms to fight off the blocker and tripped up Ingram on the Frog 48 to save the TD for the moment.

However, from there the Bears moved on to its first score. Fullback Tommy Joe Crutcher, injured shoulder and all, was the games leading ground gainer with 68 yards on 13 carries.

Short Wog Cagers Open Season Dec. 7

The Wog basketball team will have a tough time matching the second-place standing of last year's squad.

That's Coach Johnny Swaim's summation for this year's freshman team.

"We don't have the height we did last year in 6-9 Archie Clayton or the speed," he added.

"It will be missed quickly in our opening game against Kilgore Junior College," Swaim continued. "Their pivot man, who had offers from 55 colleges, has five inches on our Dale Abshire (6-4) from Poly."

Abshire had a 16.8 point average for 12 district games last year. He and the Wogs' next tallest man, 6-3 Jim Torbert from St. Louis, were tabbed as top prospects by Swaim.

Five Teams Compete

Of the five teams competing for the freshmen crown—TCU Texas, Baylor, SMU and Texas A&M—Swaim said that A&M and SMU looked better, on paper, than the other three.

Last year the Wogs lost to unbeaten Texas twice and once to A&M which shared the runner-up spot with TCU.

Swaim listed Abshire, Torbert, Glenn Middlebrooks, Roger Potts and Jim Monroe as tentative starters for their first game here Dec. 7.

Middlebrooks is a 6-2 forward from Dallas; Potts is a 6-0 guard from Chattanooga, Okla., and Monroe is a 5-10 guard from Houston Lamar.

Second Team

The second team, as it stands now, lists Dwayne Howell, 6-2, Duncanville; Jim Kemp, 5-10, Pashal; Harry Drake, 5-10, Perryton; Steve Meltzer, 6-2, New Jersey; Don Parker, 6-2, Pasadena from Brockton, Mass.

Swaim also mentioned that there is room for one more player if there is anyone on campus who would like to try out.

Baylor will come to Fort Worth Jan. 1 for the Wogs first league game.

Bowlers To Roll Here on Nov. 10

The Texas Intercollegiate Bowling Conference will hold monthly matches at GSC lanes Nov. 10.

TCU, San Antonio College, Texas A&M, Sam Houston State and Arlington State take part in the competition.

Fourth place TCU will league leading San Antonio with two other contests scheduled for 12:30 p.m. and 3 p.m.
