Miss Fort Worth

Marion Wilkinson Wins; TCU Takes Top Five

Lightning did strike twice in the same place for Marion Wilkinson Saturday night when she was named Miss Fort Worth at Casa Manana and Rose Queen of Delta Sigma Pi Business fraternity at a formal dance afterwards.

Yes sir, this was quite an evening for the 21-year-old junior from Midland who had never won a beauty contest.

She hardly had time to digest the fact that she was Miss Fort Worth before she was whisked off to the Delta Sig dance where she was chosen as its sweetheart.

Miss Wilkinson, a music education major, sang "Much More" from "The Fantastiks" in the talent competition, which proved to be a great crowd pleaser. She also gave excellent answers to the judges' questions about marriage and education.

More Than Talent

The new Miss Fort Worth obviously had more than talent to win this coveted title, however, and after one look most can see why. The brown-eyed brunette, whose measurements read 36-24-35½, is a natural beauty.

Miss Wilkinson was not without competition, however, most of which came from other TCU coeds in the contest. In fact the other four finalists were all University coeds. They are Jan Cone, Lubbock senior; Tracie Broussard, Houston sophomore; Linda Ann Meadows, Parkersburg, W. Va. freshman; and Barbara Smith, Troup sophomore.

Miss Cone, first runner-up, sang a medley of popular songs in the talent competition, while Miss Broussard, second runner-up, sang "I've Grown Accustomed to His Face" from "My Fair Lady."

Another University coed who gained recognition was Connie Chatmas, Marlin junior, when she was named Miss Congeniality.

Help Needed

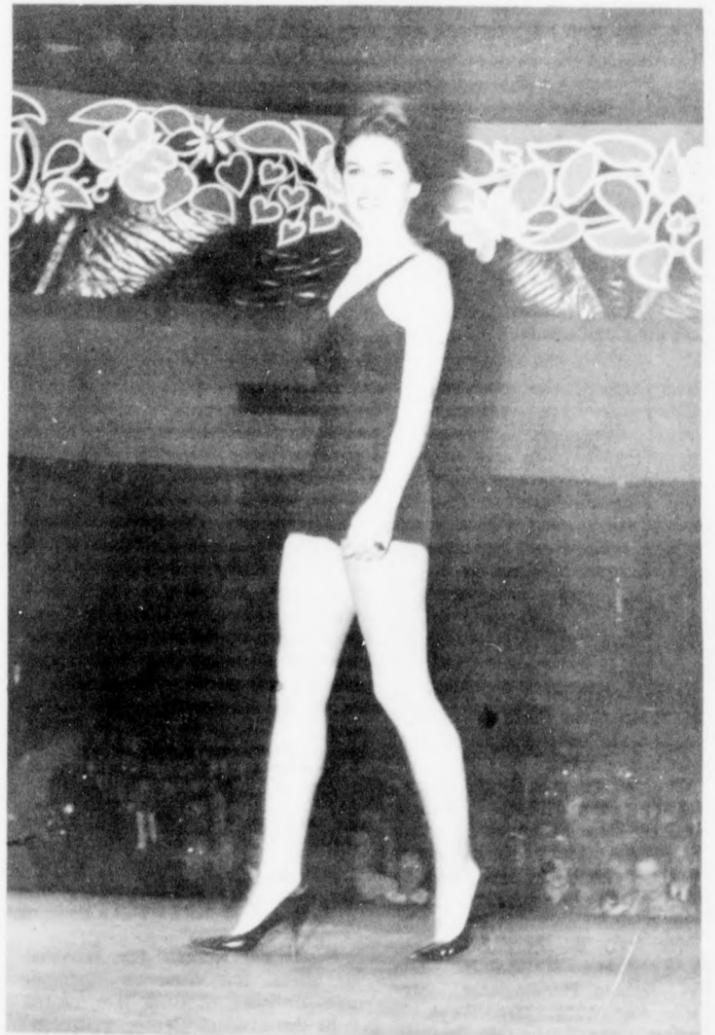

Miss Wilkinson said Lenda Varley, Miss Fort Worth of 1964, gave her some "much-needed encouragement." "You really need it, too," she said, "especially when you don't think the judges have noticed you."

Miss Wilkinson, Miss Cone, and Miss Smith are all members of Delta Delta Delta sorority, as is Miss Varley. Miss Broussard is a member of Delta Gamma.

Some of the prizes the new Miss Fort Worth received included the official crown and a 1965 Pontiac. She also is to receive a scholarship and other prizes.

The duties of Miss Fort Worth are numerous. But the one Miss Wilkinson is looking forward to is the Miss Texas contest to be held in Fort Worth in July. If she wins she will have the right to enter the Miss America contest later.

Her immediate plans are to "meet the people of Fort Worth." And there are no doubt a number of people who would like to meet her, too.

19 More To Run As Filing Re-Opens

Nineteen more hats were thrown into the political ring Friday as filing for spring elections was re-opened.

Richard Garrett will provide the only executive opposition, against Bill Shelton for Activities Council Director. And the graduate school was assured representation when Emmett McGill filed, unopposed.

Greatest response came in the senior representative race, where four original candidates will be challenged by Jerry Williams, Melissa Wall, Sam Bostaph, Cotton Feray, and Keith Gregory. Three representatives will be chosen from each class.

Sharon Heck, Dwight Heard, and April Viewig will provide junior class competition. Debby Downs brings to 19 the number of candidates for sophomore representative.

Business School representation, which would have been no contest because only two, the allotted number, filed, was increased by four candidates. They are Jackie Carroll, Stephan Smith, Neil Newsom, and Dick Heartwell.

AddRan will elect six representatives. Additions to that list are Jan

McKillop, Larry Redlinger and Chris Suit. Linda Barabas added her name to those vying for Harris College of Nursing's one Congressional place.

Representation is decided on the basis of one representative for every 300 people, and one for a remainder over 150.

Zambian Ambassador a Student

By JON LONG

The Zambian ambassador is a member of the University student body.

Phillip Dean Parker, Fort Worth senior, was Zambian ambassador to the National Model General Assembly of the United Nations in New York March 4-7.

All member countries of the UN were represented at the meeting, sponsored by Harvard University. Headquarters for the four-day session were the Commodore Hotel.

Although Harvard sponsored this year's session, the annual meetings are organized and carried out by the Collegiate Council of United Nations (CCUN).

Parker described CCUN as a national student organization working for the promotion of world understanding and peace. Jeanne Cleaver is the president of the TCU chapter.

Graduate Study

Parker, sociology and music literature major who hopes to do graduate study in England or Sweden after graduation, has attended similar sessions at the Universities of Texas and Oklahoma as well as a leadership conference at the University of Maryland.

During the summer of 1964, he was the only representative from Texas to attend a UN institute at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y.

Parker took with him two African costumes characteristic of Zambia which he wore to several sessions. The costumes were made by Dolores Tanner, University costumer.

Parker said he began attending the sessions in the spring of 1963. He was selected by the Forums Committee after sending an application and writing several essays.

Parker explained that delegates chosen to attend the session were assigned countries they would represent by the Model General Assembly secretariat.

Delegates

Delegates were then told to learn the policies of the countries they represented before attending the session.

The session was attended by students from many American universities. However, some delegates were foreign students studying in the U.S.

Parker said he feels the sessions are valuable in that they are a study in parliamentary government. He said rules followed in the sessions were the same used in the U.N.

In addition to attending the Model General Assembly, delegates also attended various committee sessions. Parker said each delegate was a member of one of six committees. He was a member of the Social and Humanitarian Committee.

"The committee sessions were useful because we had a chance to study problems in a smaller group before bringing them before the General Assembly," he said.

Parker said he feels the UN makes its greatest contributions in humanitarian fields.

"In a sense we were playing peace games," he said. "The purpose of the Model UN is to learn as well as teach."

High-Lonesome Ranch

Branding, College Mix

By JOE BALL

Running a ranch and getting a college education can go hand in hand, at least in the case of David Clark, junior at the University.

The High-Lonesome Ranch, located near Breckenridge, has 43,000 acres of grazing land plus 1,000 head of Hereford cattle. It is the site of much hard work on the part of Clark.

"The busiest part of the year comes around Christmas and late spring when we do the branding," he said.

Each branding session requires at least one week of hard work and begins with rounding up cattle from various pastures and locating them in one place. Pick-up trucks and men on horseback perform this operation.

All unbranded cattle weighing under 400 pounds are branded in the traditional manner; they are roped, thrown, and branded by hand. Heavier cattle are branded by using "the chute." In this process a cow is run into a portable chute, locked in, and a lever released tilting the floor, laying the cow on its side. The animal in such a position, is easy to brand, earmark, and vaccinate.

Other ranch work by Clark consists of driving cattle from pasture to pasture and putting out feed for them in the winter months.

Each pasture on the High-Lonesome Ranch, on the average, consists of 4,000 acres. Every other year each pasture is given a rest, keeping cattle from grazing on it in order to let the grass grow.

In winter, when grass is scarce, the cattle are fed every other day a diet consisting of hay and cow cake. The one exception would be steers, which are fed daily during this period. The diet remains the same.

The bulls on the ranch have to be sold every four years and new ones bought. This prevents crossbreeding, which results in dwarfs. Clark sells at a local cattle auction.

Cows are sold when they reach the age of seven or eight. By this time their calves have reached an age to replace their mothers.

Steers are kept until they weigh about 700 pounds. They are called feeder steers and when sold usually find their way, via the meat packing houses, to the refrigerators of housewives the nation over.

Helping in all this work and studying to get a degree in business management results in a busy schedule, to say the least. And Clark's father owns the ranch!

Teaching the Deaf 'Only Half the Job'

By KAY CROSBY

"When we teach the deaf, we've done only half the job," said Mrs. Marjorie Moore, superintendent of the program for the deaf in the University's Speech Clinic.

"We also want to educate the public. They always know the disabilities, but we want to show them the abilities of the deaf," she said.

Mrs. Moore coordinates the work of speech therapy majors. Each major in the department must do 20 hours of clinical work with the deaf as part of the 200 hours required to be certified as a therapist.

The University's Speech Clinic works with deaf patients from four months to 80 years old who come from Fort Worth and many surrounding communities once or twice a week, according to Mrs. Moore.

Mothers Help

For children under two, the clinic sponsors a parent guidance program. "We teach the mothers what they can do. We give them suggestions, reading material, and therapy activities they can utilize with the children at home," she explained.

After the age of two, in addition to the parent guidance program, the children come to the clinic for appointments with the advanced speech therapy majors and the supervisors.

About 20 children participate in nursery school activities adapted to help in speech and hearing problems, such as games that teach speech—or lip-reading.

Activities also include games matching actions and sounds, blowing games and balloons, and identification of speech vibrations through fingertips.

Through these activities the children become aware of speech in others and of their own potentialities for speech.

Among the first phrases children are taught at the clinic are "hi," "bye," "yes," "no," "please," "thank you," "I'm sorry," and "I love you."

When the children are three they may begin classes at E.M. Daggett Elementary School, a special school for the deaf in the Fort Worth system.

Although three seems early to begin public school, Mrs. Moore emphasized the importance of early training.

First Year Important

"Doctors realize training should begin soon after birth. The first 60 days of life are most important. New methods have been developed for determining severe hearing loss in a new-born baby," she said.

"If training can begin in the first year," Mrs. Moore added, "possibilities are greater that the child can take his normal place in school with his age group."

The newest program in the Speech Clinic is a course for the young adult deaf to help them improve speech, language, and reading skills.

"Working with these people is especially rewarding because they are self-motivated and realize the importance of improvement," she said.

"It often goes slowly, but it's very gratifying."

Publicity Methods

A.C. Studies Inadequacies

Posters, table cards, and Student Center announcements are the elements used to publicize student activities.

Activities Council is exploring the area of public relations because of the feeling that present publicity methods are not adequate.

Roger Ackey, Dance Committee chairman, said the lack of places to display posters and the crowded conditions of the existing bulletin boards cause the posters to be ignored.

The cards on tables in the cafeteria and snack bar seem to be effective as long as they remain in place. The council noted the quick disappearance of the cards and the unwillingness on the part of the cafeteria staff to allow their display.

Stunts in the Student Center at busy times were thought to be good attention-getters. Richard Garret, Public Relations chairman, said these were effective, but they could be used so much that they become ineffective.

The council suggested the possibility of a bulletin board in a central location with space reserved for all A.C. Committees.

Areas around the post office and between Sadler and Reed Halls were suggested as possibilities.

Variety in sign-making was another new approach decided upon. Maureen Galyon, 1964 Homecoming chairman, said her committee had used trees from which to display their signs. They also used odd shapes and colors to draw attention to the event.

The council plans to give further study to the problem of communication with the dorm student.

Kenn Ulrich, Student Bulletin editor, said the lack of communication is obvious in an event like the International Festival. He pointed out that although the event was widely attended, the largest number of people came from Fort Worth and not the campus.

NASA Aid For Study

Dr. Claude B. Elam, adjunct professor of psychology, will direct a study on "Integration of Stimulus Cues in Control Decision."

Vice Chancellor L. Cecil White has received word that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded a $22,000 grant to the University for this study.

The one-year study is part of the research program at NASA's Ames Research Center in California in cooperation with the Biotechnology Division of the Center.

Dr. Elam received his doctorate from University of Texas in 1955 and has been here since 1957. He was head of the psychological group at Radiological Laboratory of the School of Aviation Medicine, 1956-57, and chief of the Human Factors section of General Dynamics, 1957-1961.

He has been director of research in Bell Helicopter's Human Engineering Section.

Honor for Pilferers?

Planning on eating in the Worth Hills Cafeteria? You'd better take along your own fork, and, just to be on the safe side, maybe you'd better bring along your knife.

The silverware shortage at Worth Hills has become so chronic that you might have to wait 20 minutes after getting your meal for a fork to eat it with.

Charles Peveler, director of the Student Center, told The Skiff that a total of 1,500 pieces of silverware became unavailable for use during the four-month period from September to December. About five per cent of this loss can be attributed to wear, but the rest, according to Mr. Peveler, is due mainly to student pilfering.

The loss of china is also appalling. During the same period, 1,500 pieces were lost. About 45 per cent of this loss was due to breakage; the rest simply disappeared.

Replacing the loss in both the Worth Hills and the Student Center cafeterias cost the school $3,300.

Recently, there has been considerable discussion of the possibility of instituting an honor system at the University. In order for such a program to work, students must assume responsibility for their actions.

The Skiff feels that the current student attitude toward cafeteria pilfering is a poor indication that the University is ready for the increased responsibility of an honor system.

Before students can fairly ask for more freedom and privilege, they must demonstrate a little more honesty and quite a bit more maturity than they have been doing.

Peveler asked students with silverware and china in their rooms to return them to the cafeterias. The Skiff makes the same request. Maybe then we will be in a position to ask for and get greater freedom and greater autonomy.

To Drink or Not To Drink That Is the Question

A friend staggered up and remarked, "Why not? College is a fountain of youth where all come to drink." It was a possibly solid view, except that his condition proved he was taking the idea too seriously.

A personal canvass suggests the vast majority of students, who do drink, are doing so expressly for the purpose of being social.

All manner of unspeakable things seem to happen to the person who does not drink. He is regarded as a social outcast, untouchable, incapable of enjoying himself, and a complete bum, usually with a taint of sanctimony about him.

This, it seems to us, is not as it should be. What rule requires drinking as a prerequisite for social acceptance?

Nevertheless, the rare, but refreshing non-drinker, is often ostracized.

Analysis produces several explanations, not very pretty.

First, incoming students are often at a loss on "proving" themselves. Therefore, the drink in the hand becomes a "shield" to staving off any unpleasant situations.

So as the years pass, the favorite crutch becomes a real necessity in the personality structure of the individual.

Another reason drinking predominates is the wish to "get back at" whomever people desire to "get back at." This is a hard line of reasoning to follow, but it is present.

Hence, the individual who does not choose to partake serves as a guilty reminder of what the "indulger" might be capable of without his crutch. To express his upset feelings, the "slings" and "arrows" are thrown at the dry.

The thought that stricter enforcement will solve the problem of drinking is probably pure fiction. It will only intensify the problem.

So what to do? Maybe each person can look, not at his surroundings, but at his inner-self and come up with the best solution.

Or is the Utopia too much to ask?

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I'LL SAY ONE THING FOR MISS HENLEY—SHE DOESN'T TAKE MUCH 'SASS' FROM STUDENTS ABOUT HER ASSIGNMENTS."

From the Editor's Desk

If we were in Peru right now we would be in the second day of the official two-week opening of spring, which begins March 21 in Peru each year.

We would be in the year 1344 instead of 1965 and we would be celebrating in a way entirely different from the way we celebrate the coming of spring in the States.

But why couldn't we celebrate the new spring as they do in Peru? There are several practices which are used throughout this holiday period that we could adopt here.

First we need a background of the origin of the holiday. King Jamshid declared March 21 as the first official day of spring in 621, which allows for the difference in the year.

The king instituted the holiday period to celebrate spring as a time of renewal. Loyal countrymen would throw away their old clothes and send cards and gifts to their close friends. In addition to this they would hold a massive feast in the village. A table would be filled with seven foods and everyone would help himself.

Why couldn't we do something like this instead of the usual party raids to bring in the new spring.

We could gather our old sweat-shirts, textbooks, and unwanted tennis shoes and stack them on the quadrangle and burn them.

Then we could push the tables together in the cafeteria and put the food on them, and watch the cafeteria ladies run around and try to punch everyone's meal tickets.

Well it's only a thought. But it would be a change from calling in false alarms to the fire department, which seems to be a tradition at the beginning of each spring.

Letters

Editor:

I would like to commend The Skiff on its editorial by Jane Humphrey in the March 16 issue, dealing with election filing. I feel the Skiff is living up to my idea of a newspaper—speaking upon issues which, in our case, are the "goods and bads of Student Congress."

Many things accomplished this year have been successful, and we accepted your praise. In this issue we should accept your criticism. But I do think Jane failed to stress two facts on election filing. The first concerns the inadequacy of the students whose apathy and disinterest—not only at election time, but all year—have been extremely detrimental to every aspect of campus life including school government. If students were concerned, and they should have been, they could have effected a change in the administration, but only a few seemed to care at all. The second fact is that the people who did file for offices—executive and otherwise—were not "put up" in as much as they knew what Student Congress does, and were interested enough to seek office.

This is much better than the popularity contests of years gone by. Student Congress welcomes anyone who will think and be concerned—and accepts criticism that is constructive with interest. Please continue the excellent job you have done in reporting the pros and cons of our organization.

John Bailey.

Spring Scene

Major Comments On Minor Issues

By SANDI MAJOR

When several girls strike out on a weekend field trip, the possibilities for mis-adventure far outnumber those for a group of male students. And the trip to Lubbock for this year's Southwest Journalism Congress was no exception.

Females having no mechanical abilities invariably develop motor trouble, get lost, or attract unwanted admirers.

The trip began quite according to Hoyle—all five of us were late. The faculty sponsor, who is never late, had already started out. By the time our bag and baggage was loaded and we were on our way, half the day was spent and our arrival would coincide with the conclusion of the evening events.

Not far out of town, the car developed serious noises. Stopping to check produced nothing, so we started out again. The problem—the car would not come out of low gear. Driving the next 300 miles at 20 miles an hour seemed unlikely, so we pulled into a service station for help.

So Helpful

The garage man raised the car on a rack, pushed, pulled, and cursed a few connections, and then lowered it.

"What is wrong with it," we asked.

"It got stuck in low gear," he answered dryly.

"Yes, we know that, but what happened?"

His only reply was that we should avoid shifting for the rest of the trip. We filled up with gas and asked to cash a check.

"Would you like our address and phone number on this?" we asked as we filled out the check.

"I'll take it if you want to put it down," he said trying to be suave. He added, "but I don't need it to cash the check."

One person stayed behind the wheel for the whole trip—Gina. It was her boyfriend's car. With most painful diligence, she drove the auto as though it were magnetically attracted to all cars ahead, or behind it. All went well, until we approached a construction area, which proved to be her undoing.

Lane Blocked

At one particular point, highway engineers had blocked off 500 feet of one lane for blacktopping. After the first warning sign, only an ordinary household string divided the two lanes. Gina, not quite sure which way to take, drove down the middle. Men at the second checkpoint, seeing the oncoming vehicle, began waving their iridescent orange flags in warning. Not a moment too soon, the car veered to the right, barely missing the blockade but sending exasperated workers in all directions.

Discounting all this, the trip was uneventful. The car pulled through without a scratch and Gina with no outward signs of neurosis. Putting aside our afternoon ordeal, we tumbled into bed with something besides sugar plums dancing in our heads. For our part, all we could envision were the combinations of road signs passed during the day:

Eat at Herbie's . . . Litter Barrel . . . Loving . . . Floydada . . . Only 40 miles to Herbie's . . . Slow Traffic Keep Right . . . Air Currents . . . Worm Farm . . . Just 30 miles to Herbie's . . . Climbing Lane . . . Wizard Wells . . . Eat at Herbie's in 20 miles . . . Pavement Narrows . . . Herbie's—10 miles . . . Divided Highway Ahead—Keep Right . . . You just missed Herbie's!

Elective Post Aspirants

Unopposed!

Staunch advocates of the democratic election process will probably notice the absence of pictures and platforms for the candidates filing for top Student Congress offices.

John McDonald, John Bailey, and John Jackson, running for Student Congress president, vice president and treasurer, respectively, declined to present such pictures and platforms for publication in The Skiff. These three candidates are running for office unopposed.

Mary Louise Dailey and Bill Shelton, who have filed for Student Congress secretary and activities council director, did hand in election platforms. At the time of election filing, both candidates had opposition. However, the opposing candidates were later found to be ineligible for holding office.

Therefore Miss Dailey and Shelton are running for office unopposed. Thus it has not been regarded necessary for their platforms to be displayed in top position. They appear on page 8.

Possibility of a change in the "unopposed" picture remained at week's end—with Congress' hair-line decision to reopen filing for top offices.

Nursing College Representatives

Carol Norris—Nursing Representative

As a senior with a 3.3 college average, I would work to the best of my ability in carrying out my goals which are as follows: to establish a closer relationship between the nursing students and their "home base;" to make the student body more aware of the various activities of the student nurses; to reflect the interests of the school of nursing; to give proper attention to student grievances; to emphasize academic honesty; to help in the improvement of school spirit and loyalty—thereby aiding in the positive, progressive development of TCU.

Nancy LaGrone—Nursing Representative

Above all I share your interest in the School of Nursing and your concern for TCU. Let me represent you on Student Congress so that I may further coordinate your interests as both a nursing student and a student of TCU.

Susan Selby—Nursing Representative

As a nursing major, a member of the HCN club, and a member of the Hospitality Committee of Student Congress, I feel that I am qualified to run for the office of Harris College of Nursing representative. I have a 3.2 average and could devote the time necessary to fulfill the responsibilities of this office. If elected, I will give my energies to represent Harris College and be an effective Student Congress member.

Bobbie Evans—Nursing Representative

I realize that the students' skepticisms and disregard for university elections stem from the fact that the proposed campaign pledges usually become vague compromises and forgotten resolutions.

It is easy to profess great goals and intentions, but I won't. I simply say, that if I were elected as Representative of Harris College of Nursing, I would do my best with sincerity and honesty on behalf of the students of Texas Christian University.

Wayne Guidry—Business Representative

Naturally, a person running for office from the School of Business will try to put the interest of that group first. However, I feel that a campus-wide outlook is necessary for all candidates. For let us remember that what is good for the School of Business is also good for TCU. There are many improvements that are needed on our campus: (1) a pedestrian traffic light on University Dr.; (2) a policy to help beautify our campus, such as, park benches; (3) a better policy on hours for the men's practice gym; (4) a place to wash cars; and (5) vending machines that will give good service. Of course, like all candidates for office I am also strongly in favor of "God, Motherhood, and the American way of life."

Holley Sparks—Business Representative

I am a Junior with a 3.0 over-all average. I am aware of the responsibilities of this office and willing to accept them. I am mainly interested in a better "communication line" between the students and Student Congress and between the Administration and the Student Body in all matters. If elected I will represent the School of Business to the best of my ability.

Heidi Heinemann—AddRan Representative

I am a junior Home Economics major from Fort Worth. At this time of major decisions on campus activities, I believe in a strong and united Student Congress. As your representative, I would work to the best of my ability to make our college a major voice in student government.

Eddie Nelson—AddRan Representative

The student body of TCU seldom raises its voice, but with a sensitive and effective Student Congress, it should never have to shout. The Congress should always be aware of the needs of the students, and should strive to provide for them a true University atmosphere of liberty and learning. Therefore, I advocate within the University an attitude of scholastic and personal integrity, where a vigorous cut system no longer reinforces weaknesses in the curriculum and where the curfews and regulations imposed on the students do not reflect a time gone by. I have served on the Student Court and the Honors Cabinet. I am a sophomore pre-med student with a 4.0 grade average. Our Congress is ready to become a vital force. I sincerely pursue the opportunity to serve TCU on such a Congress.

Morrie Williams—AddRan Representative

Student Congress is making much progress regarding its own effectiveness and working ability. However, it needs representatives who are earnest, sincere, and willing to devote much time and hard work to its program. I feel I can meet these qualities. At present I am serving on the constitutional revisions committee which is studying our student government in an attempt to make it stronger. I have served on Student Congress this past year, giving me adequate experience to represent AddRan College. There should be a maximum amount of communication between representatives and their constituents. This should begin during campaigns and continue throughout the year. I will work to present the ideas of those of you I represent by talking and listening to others of our college. I favor a reasonable change in dormitory hours, a policy on academic honesty, later library hours, and a desire to serve you.

Don Parker—AddRan Representative

Let's keep Congress on the move! We have begun, now "let us continue." My platform is based on two major points: my record on Congress this year and plans for improving student life at TCU; the latter, is more important. These include: 1) Better policies on hours for women's dorms, the practice gym, and the library; 2) Pedestrian traffic light on University Dr.; 3) An area on campus for washing cars; 4) More lights between main campus and Worth Hills; 5) Juke box in ballroom for free time; 6) Park benches around campus; 7) Further maturing of campus elections. I am also strongly in favor of "God, Motherhood, and the American way of life."

and English major. I have a 3.9 over-all and am in the Honors Program. I am tired of hearing students complain that life on this campus is dull, that nothing is going on, that nobody is organized. Quite to the contrary, we have so many organizations that we have become like a many-headed snake that gets nowhere because there is no consensus as to which direction we should take. Our real need is for cooperative and unified action on the part of extant organizations. As a member of Student Congress, I would wish to arrange some inter-organization panel discussions for the analysis of our common problems. Let us have fewer poison pen letters in The Skiff and more sincere effort on the part of all groups, both academic and social, to help themselves by helping each other.

Suzette De Guerin—AddRan Representative

I am a junior and am majoring in Home Economics and have a 3.4 overall. If I am elected as AddRan representative I will do all that I possibly can to promote and further the college. I will keep up to date on the happenings affecting AddRan, not only by being informed, but by getting to know and becoming acquainted personally with the people and problems of the college. Some areas I would concentrate on would be: (1) a new Home Economics building which is greatly needed since their enrollment has doubled this last semester, and (2) the parking facilities for the AddRan students. If any other problems are materialized, I will keep up to date on them and be of any help that I can.

Fine Arts Representatives

Doug Cummins—Fine Arts Representative

A great deal can be said in a platform of this kind. One might give an outline of his whole political philosophy or make a host of rash promises that will never be kept and in fact were never meant to be. This type of platform can be a tremendous ego builder. It gives many candidates the chance to tell everyone of the wonderful things they have done but would not dare to tell any other place for fear of being called conceited. I will simply say this: I am a Music Education major running for Fine Arts Representative because I think I have the necessary intelligence, ability, and desire to be a beneficial member of Congress. The only promise I make is to work hard and faithfully. I would appreciate your support and your vote.

Marion Wilkinson—Fine Arts Representative

I shall strive to interrelate all phases of the arts to form a stronger, closer unity. College students are capable of producing professional work and should be given the opportunity to display their talent. I have maintained a 3.2 average for three years. Ballet, tap, and drama, in "Reach for the Stars" have been some of my outside activities in other arts. As a music education major with a minor in voice, I have been a member of Mu Phi Epsilon for three years, Delta Delta Delta, Cordelettes, and Student Court. My government experience began in senior high and has continued through college. Because of my vital interest in student government, I feel well qualified to represent the Fine Arts Department, and will do my very best if elected.

Betty Jack Cooper — Fine Arts Representative

Having been associated with the theater for many years, I feel qualified to represent my department. I would like to have the honor and responsibility of serving you to the best of my ability.

Linda Hoffman—Fine Arts Representative

I have always been deeply interested in the arts. I have sung in choirs and choruses since I was 10 and have had two years of ballet, six years of piano lessons, and two years of voice. In high school I was president of the advanced chorus and "most outstanding senior singer." I am now a music education major. If I am so fortunate as to be chosen representative for the Fine Arts Department, I will do all in my power to aid it and those connected with it to achieve that which they want and need.

Education Representatives

Sue Thomas — Education Representative

By running for representative of the School of Education, I express a sincere interest in the advancement of the Student Congress. I wish to take an active part in the programs and reforms which must be made for the benefit of TCU. Within the School of Education, I will seek to promote closer relationship with the faculty by working to inform both the students and faculty of each others' needs. I will also keep the concerns of the School of Education before the Student Congress to assure that the School of Education is well represented in campus government.

Mary Ann Hawk—Education Representative

I am a Junior with a 3.4 overall average. If elected I will encourage those in the School of Education to take advantage of the educational facilities at TCU and within the Fort Worth Public School System which are essential to effective service in elementary and secondary school. It would be an honor and a challenge to represent the School of Education.

Sherry Grisham—Education Representative

After serving on Student Congress for a year, I feel qualified to ask for your support once again. I am interested in working with and for the students of TCU. If elected, this would give me a chance to make known your needs to the student body. I would appreciate your support in this election.

Mary Martha Perkins—Education Representative

I am a Sophomore with a 2.7 overall average. If elected I will try to encourage education majors to take advantage of the many educational facilities to be found in Fort Worth. I will try to bring before the Student Congress any complaints or problems from the School of Education, and I will work hard and be a responsible representative.

Jackie Wallen—Education Representative

I feel that experience gained in my past activities will enable me to serve you. I have held the following positions: Vice president and treasurer of SEA, SEA Convention Delegate to San Antonio and vice president of Chi Omega Sorority. After attending the Leadership Retreat, I came to the realization that it is possible to correlate the functions of student government and those of education. I would appreciate your support and would represent you to the best of my ability.

Leslie Morris — Education Representative

If elected, I will strive to represent the best interests of the School of Education, of the student body, and of TCU as a whole. I feel that I have the qualifications of leadership, responsibility, and interest which will enable me to serve you, the education majors at TCU, to the best of my ability. If I am elected, I shall strive to live up to the responsibility and confidence with which you have entrusted me.

Representatives

Barbara Gassler—Senior Representative

I am a junior speech therapy major, have been active in school activities, and am genuinely interested in serving as your representative. It is my goal to work earnestly and faithfully for school unity, to promote the development of an even greater university, and to work toward making our class the most outstanding senior class ever! If elected, I can promise my sincerity and dedication to the fulfillment of the duties and responsibilities of this office.

Janice Webb—Senior Representative

After serving on Congress for a semester, I understand its importance to the Student Body. The potential of Student Congress is at present little realized by the Student Body. By electing responsible, active representatives; we can establish our right to govern ourselves. Through Student Congress, I believe this can and ought to be achieved: (1) The establishment of a greater feeling for academic endeavor, (2) A greater responsibility of the students over matters of social conduct, (3) Making the faculty more aware of classroom duty, and (4) The formation of a method by which Congress and the Administration jointly share in the determination of administrative policy. It is the apathetic students who must bear the guilt for the inactivity of the Congress. It is their support which is so needed if Congress is to accomplish its goals.

Jane Boyd—Senior Representative

As senior representative, I can strive to accomplish the wishes of my fellow classmates. As a freshman I was a member of Student Congress and I felt that this experience would enable me to be more active and demanding in accomplishing my goals. Last semester my grade point was 3.2. I would appreciate your consideration and your vote.

Wim Kalmon—Senior Representative

I am an International Affairs major with a 3.4 grade average. In the years at TCU, I have held various offices in my sorority, served on Activities Council, and Panhellenic Council. I believe that Student Congress must settle its organizational difficulties of representation and election of members; from that point, the Congress will better be able to handle the needs and problems of the greater University. Other considerations, such as women's dorm hours and elections of class officers and favorites may be handled to student satisfaction. It would be my immediate aim to (1) alter curfews according to the proposals by AWS, (2) find a workable solution in election of class favorites, and (3) establish a selection board of qualified people with limited power to approve cheerleader candidates, who would then be voted upon by the students. In the area of general university goals, it would be an honor-aim for every student that TCU further traditions of school spirit and academic excellence. These are not accomplished by any particular group setting itself up as exemplary, but by each person as an individual and as a member of the body of TCU students.

Junior Class Representatives

Carolyn Breeding—Junior Representative

My hope is to unify the current sophomore class by encouraging its members to work together toward a mutual goal. I have maintained over a 3.0 over-all average during my two years at TCU and feel that I have the necessary time and qualifications to represent the 1965-66 Junior Class. I would also work toward promoting better student-faculty relations. Primarily, I would like the opportunity to give voice to the '65-66 Junior Class by being their representative.

Charlie Williams—Junior Representative

Student Congress should be more influential in regulating student activities. If elected, I pledge my support toward achieving a stronger governing body of students. It should seek greater cooperation with the Honors Program, some changes in dorm rules, and new projects to include participation by students besides Student Congress members. The Congress also needs to consider proposals from class meetings that are better publicized and attended. I feel that my interests, experience, and academic record qualify me for this position. Your vote is the one I need—it could give me this opportunity to serve TCU and our class.

Surilda Hudson—Junior Representative

I feel that one of the most important qualities a representative should have is to be a truly participating member for the people he represents. If I am able to represent you I will be as active a participant as possible. I've been in marching band, on committees in AC, and am now working on the Spirit Committee as its secretary. If elected, besides my regular duties, I would like to see that this committee's work is furthered.

Bill Harrison—Junior Representative

Student Congress is now in the midst of a very important transitional stage. Many of the old and useless functions of Congress are being questioned and in their place many new ideas are being considered. As a member of Congress, and as a member of the committee of six to study these purposes and changes in Congress, I would like to be returned to Student Congress as one of the Junior Representatives. Specifically, I would advocate: A monument of a Horned Frog on Campus, continued work on unfinished projects such as academic honesty, dormitory hours, and re-vamping of Congress. Generally, I would be in favor of a more mature approach to the possibilities and limitations of Student Congress. I will welcome any questions and your support.

LeGrand Jones—Junior Representative

I have a deep interest in student government work on this campus and I have been active in school functions. If elected I would strive to accomplish the goals of my class through Student Congress. My overall grade point is 3.4. I would appreciate your consideration and if you feel I am deserving, your vote.

Lynda Howard—Junior Representative

This is a job requiring someone to work sincerely for the class in providing an effective link between students and Congress, to try to make students better informed of the functions in Student Congress, and to work along with other organizations to improve conditions on campus such as dorm and cafeteria hours. Having served on Student Government in other schools, I feel qualified to run for this office, and am eager to serve.

Dianne Neuman—Junior Representative

I am an interested member of the present Sophomore class and a recent member of the Dean's List with a 4.0 average. As a three-year member of Student Government in high school, a member of the President's Cabinet, and as a delegate to the convention of Student Governments held in Virginia in 1963, I believe I have the qualifications and the ability to represent our class in the best way possible. I would welcome the chance to work for you.

Donne McReynolds—Sophomore Representative

I, Donne McReynolds, being of sound mind and body, do hereby make my last will and testament to the sophomore class. My testament is that last semester I was treasurer of my pledge class, social chairman of my youth group, and had a grade-point average of 3.8. I do bequeath to all my friends and classmates one promise: I will earnestly strive to uphold all the promises that are promised to you promising sophomores this coming semester!

Dana Morrow—Sophomore Representative

We are drawing near to the completion of our freshman year, a year well-spent, for we have learned to work well together. We must now further the strength of our unity and look forward toward the promotion of an even-better sophomore year. I wish to fulfill this worthy position by working to improve school spirit, promote better support of TCU functions, such as dances, films and special programs, and by continuation of the building respect our Class of '68 has thus far gained. So, moral for tomorrow? Do vote DANA MORROW, Sophomore Representative, a candidate with TCU's better interests at heart.

Drew Sawyer—Sophomore Representative

At semester break I was selected to fill an unexpired term as Freshman Representative. Since the first meeting I have been amazed at the magnitude of the work done by Student Congress and proud to serve as one of its members. I am interested in serving again next fall on Student Congress as Sophomore Representative. If I am elected I will promise to be a responsible representative of the sophomore class.

Tom Wassenich—Sophomore Representative

I would first of all like to express my sincere interest in this University and in being in a position to serve it should I win. My interest is in the University as it pertains to all its factions: the students, the faculty, upper classmen, freshmen, Greeks, and independents. Having been a representative to the Inter Fraternity Council, I have been able to see some of the conflicts arising between different parts of the school. I would like to work toward the unity and progress of these divisions, and to have an opportunity to do this, I am asking for your vote in the coming election.

Betsy Boyer—Sophomore Representative

As a voting member of Student Congress, I hope to work on the possibility of an honor system at TCU or some system to emphasize academic honesty as begun by the Education Promotion Committee this year. I feel that holding a student council position before coming to TCU qualifies me as an enthusiastic candidate.

Sue Spivey—Sophomore Representative

The Student Congress is such an important part of TCU that it has some influence on almost every area of campus activities. As a candidate for sophomore representative to Student Congress, I will strive to promote better mutual understanding, cooperation, and communication between the student body and Congress. If the TCU students and the representatives they elect work toward this participation and unity, they will achieve the spirit that would make next year outstanding in the history of TCU.

Sandy Palmer—Sophomore Representative

During my freshman year, I have served as representative and through this office I believe I have gained valuable knowledge and experience, which I would be able to use in the future. I have tried to serve as freshman representative to the highest of my ability and I believe that I could continue to represent the class in this manner. If elected, I would try again to help further the advancement of the class and fulfill my job as a representative.

Jill Goff—Sophomore Representative

If elected, I will justly represent the sophomore class to the best of my ability, striving to be an unbiased representative of both the Greek and independent members of the class and endeavor to unify the class.

Helen Howard—Sophomore Representative

If elected, I will strive to: (1) Promote increased school spirit and class unity as well as school loyalty, (2) Promote more all-school affairs (At present I am treasurer of Dance Committee), (3) Achieve a closer relationship between S.C. an effective organization.

Dorothy Pickens—Sophomore Representative

Serving as a Freshman representative this year, I feel I have gained the necessary experience to qualify me for the office of Sophomore Representative. I have enjoyed serving on Student Congress and I hope to be an even more active member if I am re-elected.

Jo Cook—Sophomore Representative

I promise to do my best to stand for the ideas and ideals of the Sophomore Class. I feel Student Congress is becoming a more important part of campus life and I want to be an active part as a representative of our class. Although I am not now a member of Congress, I realize the responsibilities involved with this position and I will carry out my duties to the fullest extent.

Ann Bolton—Sophomore Representative

Interest in the students you represent and enthusiasm and determination to succeed in fulfilling their ideas, needs, and wants through representation in Student Congress are two important traits which a candidate for class representative should possess. I sincerely feel that I possess these qualifications and that I can adequately represent you, the sophomore class.

Jeni D. Finch—Sophomore Representative

Having served on Student Council for two years in high school I feel I am qualified for this job. If elected to this office I will try to make TCU a more united family by bringing Student Congress and the student body closer together so that each will know

Chuck Oswalt—Cheerleader

The future of the spirit at TCU, because we have not had championship teams, will not improve automatically. Only through the organized effort of concerned students and responsible cheerleaders can this be accomplished. Cheerleaders can help greatly in the field of recruiting new athletes by adding a note of personal interest.

Cheerleaders assume, without question, the inherent responsibility of attending all athletic events. Through the comprehensive fields of influence of the Spirit Coordinating Committee, cheerleaders should work to establish tradition, foster better attendance at pep rallies, and organize special attractions, such as card section stunts. Above all, they should be prepared, and able, to represent TCU before the public, as befits the cheerleaders of a school in the Southwest Conference.

Dale Young—Cheerleader

It is my opinion that school spirit is related to every area of campus life and that cheerleaders should seek to lead in this spirit not just at the athletic events and at pep rallies but in all other school functions as well. It seems to me that all of us need to follow the example of the band and the Vigilantes in enthusiastic support of the teams whether our "Fighting Frogs" are winning or losing. If you will elect me as cheerleader, I will undertake to fulfill this responsibility.

Tom Wood—Cheerleader

In running for cheerleader, I would like to stress these points: experience, ability, and desire.

I was a cheerleader at Arlington State last year and I feel that this has given me the necessary experience. I attended SMU cheerleading school under the direction of Lawrence Herkimer, where our team finished in first place. I have a sincere desire to serve TCU as a cheerleader, and I would appreciate your support.

Paul Fruge—Cheerleader

I have served on Student Congress and the Spirit Committee this year as Freshman Class President. Through this office I have come to learn about all student activities, both present and past. I believe that I have learned how to be a leader among my fellow students. Although the spirit this last year has been better than in the previous years, I would like to improve it even more this next year. Realizing the full responsibilities of a cheerleader, I would be honored to be elected one of the TCU Horned Frog cheerleaders.

John Trautman—Cheerleader

Spirit, as well as books and professors, is an integral part of college life. The student body must be the driving force behind school spirit. Good spirit is hard to achieve unless, of course, the school is number one in the nation. For my part, I want to promote and enhance the spirit and pride which for many years has been characteristic of TCU.

Betty Buckley—Cheerleader

A candidate for cheerleader must have enthusiasm, spirit, and a never-ending optimism! These are the characteristics that are most valuable for the part that the cheerleader must play in sports and all related activities. Spirit, an intangible, meaningful quality of attitude, is the objective for which we at TCU must sincerely strive in the coming year. In short, we must COME ALIVE IN '65! I seek your vote for cheerleader that I may have a part in inspiring this rising tide of enthusiasm.

Sharon Saylor—Cheerleader

What do you as students of TCU look for in a good cheerleader? Do want and expect a cheerleader to have outstanding ability in both performance and leadership, besides having a sincere interest in the students and school spirit? Through previous cheerleading experience,

The quality of tact, a sense of personal responsibility, and an attitude of active interest in Congress and academic activities are the necessary attributes of a representative to Student Congress. He or she should maintain intense interest and participation in Congressional activities throughout his term as representative. In announcing my candidacy for sophomore representative, I would vow to sincerely strive to cultivate communications between the student body and Congress. In short, I would do my best to represent you the sophomore class.

Lois Tarbox—Sophomore Representative

If elected, I will strive to encourage and develop class advancement, class unity, and class spirit. I have had experience in working with such organizations as our Student Congress and feel that I am well qualified for this position.

Eileen O'Donohoe—Sophomore Representative

I would like to give you some of my qualifications. I served on my high school student council,

Jane Haley—Sophomore Representative

Because Student Congress is the ruling body for the students on this campus, one must be willing to give much time and hard work to the fulfillment of this office. If I am elected, I will represent you, the students, to the best of my abilities and work hard for the betterment of TCU. I am willing to accept this responsibility and will strive to fulfill the duties of this office. I would be proud to represent the sophomore class of 1965-66 in Student Congress if your support places me in the position to do so.

I am aware of the importance of keeping school spirit alive and growing. In the last year our school spirit has improved, but there is still much work to be done. I am sincerely interested in doing my share by representing TCU as a cheerleader. I would like to see improvement in not only the attendance of pep rallies, but in the pep rally itself. If these are your ideals and goals, Sail Along with Saylor for cheerleader!

I base my platform on the following issues: 1. A block section for the students in the stadium, and tickets which would entitle the student to sit where he pleases in this section. 2. Freshmen cheerleaders, chosen in the fall election. 3. An out-of-state student body trip and exchange of tickets between TCU and the visited school, allowing our students to be admitted in their stadium by our activity cards; and they would have the same privilege the following year at TCU. 4. A student body that is proud of their team whether it wins or loses, and a student not afraid to stand up at a game and blast the ear off the person in front of him!

Have traveled all over the country teaching junior high, high school and college cheerleaders yells and the proper methods of yelling. I hope to be able to make new cheers and better cheers for TCU and I hope to create more school spirit among the students of TCU. I think that the Band and the Vigilantes should be given more credit for their work. Trying to do my best to get the independents and the Greeks together will also be another one of my aims. I sincerely would appreciate your vote and I hope you consider my qualifications as I believe that I could help TCU if I am elected cheerleader.

Terry McCrocklin—Cheerleader

With the potential that TCU has for the coming year, I feel that our spirit can become even greater with encouragement and enthusiasm. Along with increased spirit, good sportsmanship, and better attendance at baseball and freshman games could be maintained. As a cheerleader, I would mainly offer my love for TCU and my own spirit to make TCU represented as the fine school that it is.

Peggy Jane Breazeale — Cheerleader

If we as students are to get the most out of our college life, the spirit we display behind all campus activities must be such as to encourage enthusiasm and a desire to be on the top. This is true not only for the best results in sports, but in other phases of the University program. I would appreciate the opportunity to work toward the highest degree of school spirit and enthusiasm for all college activities.

Student government, no matter how limited its scope is in reality, is the only means by which the students can be heard. For this reason it must be the active interest of qualified representatives who will carry through the wishes of those they represent. Concrete proposals must be stated and pushed instead of rhetorical nothings. I have served in a representative student congress at the college level representing a wide variety of student interest. I know that the wishes of those I would represent would be heard on such matters as dorm hours, compulsory attendance, academic freedom, and rule changes concerning school organizations. The college of liberal arts and sciences involves such a wide range of interests that effective representation of it requires experience and understanding of the interests shared by all those not in business, education or the fine arts.

As Sophomore Representative, I hope to learn more about the functions of Student Congress so that I can work more closely with the Sophomore class. I want to represent the Sophomore class in order to present your ideas to Student Congress for consideration.

A. C. Director

Bill Shelton—Activities Council Director

The Activities Council Director has two very important jobs. First, he serves as the overall head of the Activities Council making sure that committees and chairmen are doing their jobs and that the activities are planned with the student in mind. Second, he serves as a member of Student Congress and more specifically, as a member of the Executive Committee. He must represent the tie between the two bodies. Through serving on A.C. committees, I have been able to see the internal structure of the group which plans numerous school activities. I have served on a committee which seeks to evaluate the other committees checking to see that the chairman and members are functioning properly. I have seen the weaknesses and the strong points of the Council. It seems to me that the prime problems of the committees lie in two areas. First, many students at TCU do not know what A.C. is and does. A constant reminder to the students of the Council and its task would be a main means of correcting this fault. This could possibly best be accomplished by the creation of a symbol (similar to the double "T" of Texas Tech) which would be used on posters and advertisements concerning A.C. The second fault lies in the lack of coordination among committees. A more unified Public Relations Council which advertises each committee's projects rather than twelve individual public relations groups within each committee is an example of the correction which must take place. I recognize this problem and would seek through selection of committee chairman, to solve such problems. I have served on Student Congress for two years. I presently serve on a Congressional Revisions Committee. It is my desire to continue to work for reorganization of Congress. I will pledge to the entire Student Body to serve to the best of my ability, showing no partiality to any group or person. I ask for your support in this election.

secretary in Economics Dept.

Besides the routine duties of the secretary such as taking minutes, keeping an accurate and up-to-date role, mimeographing and distributing minutes to Congress members and sending them to the Southwest conference schools, I feel that the secretary has other duties and responsibilities of equal importance. These duties and responsibilities include a willingness to type reports for Congress members, to keep up-to-date files and secretary's notebook (for future reference), and to prepare congressional folders for representatives. I also feel that the secretary, as a voting member of Congress and of the executive committee, should offer her ideas and suggestions in the meetings. I feel that with my previous experience and my interest in being secretary of Student Congress, I would be able to carry out the above duties and responsibilities.

Helpful to Cause?

QUESTION: Do you feel the rioting and demonstrating which has recently been prevalent in the civil rights struggle is of any use? Do you feel it has helped the cause? If not, what methods would bring results.

Doug Dickerson, Fort Worth senior: "Yes, it's helped. I'll say one thing about all the emotional people who have been demonstrating, however. They are people that are worried about the welfare of others in the civil rights question, but when it comes to aiding other human beings in distress, such as occurred in a subway in New York recently, they do nothing. Rioting is ridiculous, but I do feel that you can have a peaceful demonstration. They seem to give these people direction."

Sandy Fischer, Stamford, Conn., freshman: "I don't think it has done any good, although I can't think of anything else that would help them. Most white people feel they are just a rebellious group, that they're not really worthy of the rights they are striving for. Talking won't work anymore, because nobody seems to want to give in. Perhaps if more people understood the ideals of the civil rights movement the demonstrations wouldn't be necessary."

Buck Royal, Wichita Falls senior: "It must be of some use, because some of it is getting someplace. But, I think they are going about it in the wrong way. If they would just let it go, and take their time, full equality would come about—it's inevitable. Some of their methods are shoving it down throats, and the more they shove, the less people want to accept it. Demonstrations are helping the cause, but I think it would help more if they wouldn't demonstrate. Why push so hard?"

Pam Werme, Houston freshman: "I don't think it's helped the cause at all. It's done less for it. This may sound crazy, but I feel the two factions should just sit down and talk it out, settling their differences in this way. The demonstrations are making the news all right, but people have been killed, and towns torn up. These things have occurred because of rioting. Picketing has a little more effect. I'm all for equal rights, but rioting just isn't the way to do it."

Mexico Jaunt Due For Spring Break

Acapulco is just a jet and a jaunt away for students and faculty who take the All-University trip to Mexico.

The group will leave for Mexico City April 14 by Braniff jet and continue from there to Acapulco aboard a chartered bus April 16, making stops in Cuernavaca and Taxco. The return trip is April 20.

Deadline for making reservations in the Student Center is April 1. To hold a place requires a $25 deposit, and full payment is due April 9.

The price is $159.95, which includes transportation, a tour in Mexico City, hotel bills, and one meal. Other meals are not included.

Additional requirements are evidence of U.S. citizenship, a small-pox vaccination certificate proving the individual has had a vaccination within three years, a statement signed by one parent if he's under 18, a Mexican tourist card and a waiver of legal responsibility.

Citizenship may be proved by a birth certificate, a poll tax receipt, discharge papers from the U.S. Armed Forces, or a U.S. passport.

The office of student activities will get the tourist cards, if evidence of citizenship and an application for the card are turned in.

The waiver of responsibility is due before boarding the bus, and must be signed by parents if one is under 21.

In case group members are planning to go shopping in Mexico, one may bring back goods worth $100 duty free.

Blueprints in a Home Economics course?

They're nothing unusual in the home furnishing course taught by Mrs. Margaret Binger, freelance interior decorator from Dallas.

Blueprints and floorplans begin the course designed to give students a background in interior design through practical experience.

Field trips to area furniture, carpet, and wholesale shops along with visits from special speakers are included in the program.

Students are planning furnishings for TCU's Discovery II house which will be shown in the Fort Worth Home Show April 23-May 8. The house is built in conjunction with Ernest L. Buckley's construction management class.

Room designs are being planned around the E. John Bielefeld family, for whom the house is being built. Bielefeld is a member of Buckley's class.

Students show Mrs. Bielefeld their room plans just as a professional designer presents his suggestions to a client.

Dr. Warren K. Agee, dean of the Evening College, said the home furnishings class is the largest program in the evening college this semester, with 81 enrolled.

Song Fest

Greeks To Serenade

One of the biggest Greek events of the school year, Greek Song Fest, will take place Saturday at Will Rogers Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Song Fest was originated by Zeta Tau Alpha but was made a joint Panhellenic-IFC project in 1959. Each group will offer two songs, one a fraternity or sorority song. Trophies will be awarded to the first, second, and third place winners chosen by a panel of judges.

The chairman of this year's event are Malcolm Louden of Kappa Sigma, representing the interfraternity Council, and Deborah Short, Delta Delta Delta, and LeGrand Jones, Zeta Tau Alpha, who represent Panhellenic Council.

Several problems came up regarding the event which were not considered at first. Louden said, "The two main problems were having to buy insurance for the Auditorium and hiring stage hands, since the Auditorium doesn't provide any."

Each Greek organization has been selling tickets for the event, with sales profit going to Campus Chest. Tickets are $1 per person. To be announced at Song Fest is the Campus Cutie, who will be from the organization contributing the most money during Campus Chest Week, and the Ugliest Man on Campus.

No Costumes Used

Between 50 and 75 members will represent each group. No costumes will be worn. Two groups, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Lambda Chi Alpha, who will not sing, have been selling tickets. A dress rehearsal for all groups will be held at Will Rogers Auditorium Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Pi Beta Phi will sing "Pi Beta Farewell" and "Amen." Sigma Phi Epsilon will offer "Rum, Rum" and "The Green Leaves of Summer."

Kappa Alpha Theta will do "Climb Every Mountain" and "The Heart of the Theta." Kappa Sigma will sing "Raise a Hymn to Kappa Sigma" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again."

Alpha Delta Pi will offer "Exodus" and "Let Us Sing To Alpha Delta Pi." "Little Brown House" and "Phi Kappa Sigma Sweetheart Song" will be sung by Phi Kappa Sigma.

Offers Medley

Chi Omega will do "Deep River" and "Southern Born" while Delta Tau Delta will sing "Today" and "Delta Shelter."

Curly Broyles Entertains

At AGD Formal

The Alpha Gamma Delta Spring Formal was held recently in the grand ballroom of Ridglea Country Club. Music was provided by Curly Broyles and his orchestra.

The Alpha Gam's Man of Distinction Award for the spring semester was presented to Dave Duemke. Seven Alpha Gams from the University of Texas attended the affair.

Alpha Gamma Delta will perform a medley of "Give Me Your Tired Soul," "America My Own," and "This is my Country," and "Wear the Pearls of Alpha Gamma Delta." Sigma Chi will sing "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" and "The Winter Song."

Delta Delta Delta will sing "Tri-Delt True" and "When the Saints Go Marching In." Sigma Alpha Epsilon will not be competing for a trophy but will sing "Her Loveliness" and "Red Red Robin."

Delta Gamma will offer "Stay With Me" and "When You Go." Phi Delta Theta will sing "Shenandoah" and "Phi Delt Pinning Song."

Kappa Delta will sing "Tumbling Tumbleweeds" and "To Thee, Our KD." Zeta Tau Alpha will do "Creed" and "Holiday Song."

Louden expects more than 1,500 not counting the Greeks who will sing. Some 2,100 attended Greek Review last spring, so the crowd may be larger.

Initiation Adds 20 Members

Kappa Kappa Gamma initiated 20 new members recently in their chapter room. Following the ceremony, Miss Lorraine Sherley, an alumna and the sorority's faculty sponsor, spoke at the initiation banquet.

New members include Barbara Beckwith, Jeanie Bedford, Ann Bolton, Betsy Boyer, Barbara Bradley, Gretchen Connell, Georgeann Granville, Gail Gumm, Imma Jeanne Lasley, Pam Lawrence, Betty McCelvey, Terry McCrocklin, Marie Morgan, Susan Peters, Beverly Roberts, Carol Roegelien, Jackue Rogers, Candy Rose, Lydia Stocks, and Joanne Stuckert.

Miss Stuckert won the pledge scholarship award, and Miss Bradley was runner-up. Miss Lasley received the Cynthia Farris key as best pledge. The active scholarship ring was awarded to Mary Ann Ball, and Jane Humphrey was given the Jo Copenhaver key as best active.

Deedie Potter, Kappa Kappa Gamma and former "Miss TCU", is now Mrs. Edward Rose and lives in Cambridge, Mass. . . . Laurence Olivier is the star of a film version of William Shakespeare's "Richard III," to be shown by the Films Committee in the Student Center ballroom Friday. The film, which tells about Richard of Gloucester, one of the most evil "heroes" in the history of drama and also stars Sir John Gielgud, is a virtual "who's who" of British actors and actresses. Single admission to the annual Shakespeare-on-Film presentation will be 25 cents. Doors will open at 7 p.m.

'Nights of Cabiria'

Fellini Film Featured

Federico Fellini's Academy Award-winning "Nights of Cabiria" is tonight's Fine Film Series offering. The film, directed by the man who made "La Dolce Vita," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center ballroom.

On the surface, the film tells the story of a prostitute and her struggle to exist in the outskirts of decadent Rome. But Fellini, as usual, has packed his film with deep interior meanings.

The simple little street-walker becomes, in the end of the film the symbol of man's hope and faith. She has a role to play in life, like all people.

Finest Alive

Fellini has been hailed by critics as the finest living film director. His "La Dolce Vita" and "Eight and a Half" achieved world fame. Both of them, like tonight's film, won Oscars as "Best Foreign Films."

The director's message is, essentially, a Christian one: All people, regardless of position in life and their views of contemporary morality, have roles to play in life.

Fellini asks that we accept both the beautiful and the grotesque, that we accept all people regardless of what "role" they play on the world's stage.

"Nights of Cabiria" tells of the experiences of Cabiria, a prostitute, who is shown in her involvements with several men, including a popular matinee idol and a charlatan.

Faith Heals

After her rejection by society, Cabiria goes to a church, where she becomes disillusioned by religion. But, unlike other persons in the congregation, she has the right attitude—she is faithful.

Cabiria's faith helps her to overcome all obstacles and, in the denouement, she is pushed to the limit of degradation but comes out of the experience even more faithful than before.

"Nights of Cabiria" won more than 60 awards at international film exhibitions and festivals. It is one of the critically acclaimed motion pictures of modern times.

Single admission to the film is 25 cents. Doors open at 7 p.m.

Plans Made For Pianist In Residence

"We hope to attract some of the top contestants in the Van Cliburn Piano Competitions in 1966 to our campus by having an artist in residence for the teaching of piano," said Dr. Earl Waldrop, vice chancellor for external affairs.

Dr. Waldrop announced a $15,000 gift from the Minnie Stevens Piper Foundation of San Antonio to aid the University in securing a resident pianist.

The University was notified of the gift by William C. Wiederhold, the foundation's administrative secretary. The late Mr. and Mrs. Randall G. Piper founded the organization.

The gift is to be paid out $5,000 per year on a matching grant basis. The foundation set Dec. 31, 1965, as deadline for the amount to be matched.

Plans are to have the resident pianist on campus by the beginning of fall semester.

Frog-Rice Tilt Slated Today

When the Frogs take the field this afternoon, they'll have one eye on the opposition, Rice Owls, and the other on the sky.

A plague of adverse weather continued to bedevil Frank Windegger and crew this weekend, forcing postponement of the game scheduled with Baylor. It was the fifth contest of the nine slated for the Frogs thus far this season that has fallen victim to meteorological maladies.

The first day of spring sprang the same prank on the rest of the conference also. Near freezing temperatures knocked out both the Texas-SMU and the A&M-Rice games.

The Frogs will be seeking to even their SWC record today at 1-1. The possibility for doing so seems excellent since Rice is at the bottom of the heap with an 0-2 record.

The Owls will be looking for not only their first loop victory, but also their first run in league play. They were shut out 0-8 by Baylor and 0-3 by SMU.

Steve Edwards, who was due to start against Baylor, will probably get the nod for today's game. The junior left hander is 1-0 on the season, having received credit for the Frogs' first victory over SMU in the season opener. In that tilt he hurled the first six innings without giving up a hit.

Game time is 2:30 at the TCU diamond.

Baylor Sets Two Mile Records But Loses West Texas Relays

The Baylor Bears managed to knock out the fastest mile relay in the state this season but still could not manage enough points to overtake Abilene Christian College for first place honors in the West Texas Relays at Odessa last weekend.

The Wildcats amassed 68 points to the Bears 58. Houston followed with 45, Texas had 31, SMU 27,

North Texas 25, Texas Tech 22, and TCU 7.

TCU derived four of its points from John Truelson's second-place javelin throw of 186 feet 2 1/2 inches, a career best for the Fort Worth senior.

In the initial running event, the high hurdles, John Charlton cruised to a fourth place for the Frogs' other two points.

Roger Hunt did not compete due to family illness.

Roger Orrell, AOC's weightman, pulled off a double which greatly aided the Wildcats' championship cause. He spun the discus 177 feet 9 inches and won the shot at 55 feet 11 for two new marks.

Baylor authored the only other records in the university division with the 3:11.8 in the mile relay and the 3:21.5 in the spring medley.

Purples Win Over Whites

By BENNY HUDSON

Members of the Purple squad, mostly varsity veterans, slapped the Whites, 28-13, Saturday afternoon before 2,000 fans in the annual Purple-White spring-training-ending intrasquad game at Amon Carter Stadium.

The White team, consisting mainly of sophomores, battled the Purples from the opening moment when Purple Gene Uptegraph returned the kickoff 91 yards for a lead that was never erased.

The Whites remained tough all the way, with halfback Mike Landon, formerly of Waco Riecher, running for 112 steps and sophomore-to-be Larry Peel tossing passes to keep the Purple defense on the alert.

P. D. Shabay, the Graham sophomore-to-be, completed 13 of 19 aeri-als while commanding the Purples, the same number Peel completed for the Whites. Neither had an interception.

Long plays by Uptegraph and Frank Horak accounted for the first two scores, but the third touchdown the Purples staged an 84-yard march, climaxed by Joe Ball pulling in a seven yard pass from Shabay for a touchdown.

Peel's passes to Joe Sherell and some strong running by Landon took the Whites 64 yards to their first score in the third period.

David Smith scored from the three for the final Purple tally early in the fourth, capping a 35-yard drive.

Kenny Post scored the final TD, going over from the two to end a 75-yard campaign.

The statistics for the game ran fairly even with the Purples getting 182 yards on the ground to the Whites 222, but the Purples held the edge in the passing, 146 to 122.

Junior Alvis Ballew Frogs' Hitting Hurler

Most pitchers are constantly implored by fans and teammates alike to "be a hitter." Alvis Ballew has complied remarkably.

The junior right-hander from Fort Worth has suddenly made himself not only the best hitting pitcher, but also the leading batsman on the entire Frog team.

Alvis had an undistinguished appearance his first time up this year, striking out against SMU. He then rapped out three base hits in as many trips in the second Sam Houston game and went three for four against Texas for a lofty .750 average.

No one is more surprised than Alvis himself.

"You bet I was surprised," he said. "You know, pitchers don't get to take batting practice very often and I hadn't been hitting at all."

Coach Frank Windegger was so impressed by Ballew's plate performance against Sam Houston that he started him in center field against Texas. Whether he will stay there, however, is problematical.

"I don't know yet where I'll end up the rest of the season," said Alvis. "Coach Windegger told me to think it over and I still am. I guess some of the decision will have to come from him since he's running the team."

Ballew's hitting spree isn't all accidental. He played his high school ball at Fort Worth Poly and never hit under .300.

Alvis came to TCU on a last-minute scholarship. "I had an offer from Texas, but I didn't want to go there," he said. "I wanted to attend either TCU or Baylor. For quite a while I didn't know if I was going anywhere at all."

"I hadn't heard anything from either school and it looked as if I might either not go to school or go to some small college. Coach finally said about three or four weeks before school started that he'd give me a scholarship."

Ballew feels that the Frogs have a chance at the SWC title, but thinks they have a long way to go. "I've been a little disappointed so far," he said. "We're a better team than we've looked to be. I think this year's team has more of at least as much ability than last year's and a better attitude."

"I was surprised that Baylor beat A&M and I'm a little worried about them, but I know we have a better team than Texas. We should have beaten them."

Alvis wants to go into professional baseball on finishing college, and thinks his best chance lies in pitching. "I know that this hitting can't last. I've been awfully lucky so far and this streak is bound to taper off."

But six for seven and six runs batted in in two games makes Frank Windegger and the rest of the Horned Frogs hope to the contrary.

Clark Downs Vigilantes

In independent softball intra-Clark B team defeated the Vigilantes 8-2 last week. Jim Stovall pitched for Clark while Dave Mills was on the mound for the Vigilantes.

Clark A team, with James Schilling on the hill, and the Vigilantes, led by pitcher Dave Mills, were set to play Monday. Clark B team played Delta Sigma Phi Monday.

Wednesday at 3:30 the Vigilantes face BSU and Clark A plays DFS.

Lamar Tech Tops Netters

TCU netmen travel to Houston Wednesday for a match with the University of Houston netters.

Bob Farmer scored the only victory for TCU Saturday as the Lamar Tech netmen defeated the Purples, 5-1, on the Ridglea Country Club Courts.

Farmer beat Joe Csandly, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the No. 4 singles match. TCU's record is now 2-4.
