Fem Libs Abhor 'Sexist' Books

By SUE ANN SANDUSKY

A group of TCU graduate students active in NOW (National Organization for Women) have charged that the TCU Bookstore is selling certain children's books that perpetuate sex-image stereotyping.

Donna Falzarano, a graduate student in biology, selected four books from a Hallmark collection of children's books: "What Girls Can Be," and "What Boys Can Be," and "The Little Girl Story" and "The Little Boy Story," all by Dean Walley.

She brought them to the attention of bookstore manager Michael Gore and asked that the books be removed from the shelves.

The books according to Mrs. Falzarano, project the image of the woman's appropriate place as service, artistic or sexual roles. "Never is she depicted in a position of responsibility or contributing something to society," Mrs. Falzarano said.

Won't Send Books Back

"What Girls Can Be" ends with the girl becoming a housewife and mother. The little boy gets to be an astronaut and President," she said.

Mrs. Falzarano said she sug-

Genesis," "The Social Contract," and "The Territorial Imperative," combines his wealth of knowledge on animal traits with recent insight to modern biology and the latest information regarding human evolution to probe contemporary problems such as the revolt of the young, the status struggle and the role of leadership, population growth, urban over-crowding and violence in civilized life.

Free and open to the public, the 8 p.m. lecture will be held in the Brown-Lupton Student Center Ballroom.

Free Ice Skating Offered Tonight

Free skating time will be offered to TCU students with ID cards tonight from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m. at Will Rogers Coliseum. Students without IDs will be charged 50 cents and skates will be available for 50 cents.

gested to Gore that he send the books back to the publisher as a way of protesting the images the books communicated. "I even offered to come over and pack the books up in boxes so all he would have to do is ship them back," she said, but Gore refused.

"I won't send them back," Gore said. He explained that the books have been in the store since September as part of a display of children's books he ordered.

Sees Nothing Wrong

Gore said, "I don't see anything wrong with the books. I've shown them to four Ph.D.'s—men and women—and a number of other people at random and they told me they would still buy them for their children—even after I explained the objections that have been raised."

One of the professors Gore talked to about the books was Dr. William W. Ray of the Geography Department.

Dr. Ray said he would buy the books for his daughter because he didn't see anything wrong with the sex-image of a woman as part of her total nature. "I wasn't immediately conscious of anything wrong with the books," he said, when first asked to look at them. "After Mr. Gore pointed out the objections, I looked at them more critically." But, he concluded, "I found nothing objectionable."

Sarah Gordon, English graduate student, reacted more violently. Pointing to an illustration in one of the books of a little girl's face on a sexy body in a low back dress, she said, "They are making the little girl aware of herself as a commercial sex-image already."

Christina Poschmann, another graduate biology student, said the books portrayed the girl's role as "very passive." She added, "The little boys are always shown as doing. The little girls are just being."

Not One Book, But Society

Dr. Judith Suther of the French Department said she doubted that an individual book would thwart a child's ambition or inspire him, but that the society that would think of presenting certain role-images might.

Dr. Frank T. Reuter, dean of the Graduate School reacted to the books by saying he didn't see anything wrong with the woman's role as a mother. "After all," he said, "the woman is biologically suited for that role."

Falzarano said perhaps bookstore manager Gore was right—the majority of people don't care yet. "Five years ago maybe I wouldn't have cared either," she said, "But now I see we have to try to open people's eyes to the harms of sex-role stereotyping."

Gore reported he had called Hallmark offices in Kansas City, Missouri and that the company was not going to reprint the books once their supply is exhausted. "We will not be ordering any more copies of them after we have sold our copies," Gore wrote in a note delivered to The Daily Skiff's office, but he was not available for further comment at press time.

US Condemned In Pakistan Acts

By LINDA THORNTON
 Guest Editor

Very few people are ignorant of the savage, brutal, and bloody attacks of retribution that the West Pakistani army of General Yahya Khan has inflicted upon the people of East Pakistan in the last few months.

The news media have been full of accounts of the incredible suffering and misery of the East Pakistanis at the hands of the punitive forces, accounts that shock even the minds of those who have grown used to the stories of the cruelties that men are capable of inflicting upon others.

Aid Still Given

But what very few people are aware of is that the United States has continued to give covert military aid to West Pakistan, even though such aid was supposed to have been officially suspended at the outbreak of the East Pakistan conflict. A recent article in Time magazine reported that Sen. Edward Kennedy has charged the Pentagon with signing defense contracts with the Pakistan government for over $10 million in the last five months.

Thus, while the United States sends millions of dollars in relief to the starving survivors of the devastating conflict, we also continue to supply the aggressors with the weapons to carry out their bloody vengeance.

The bitter struggle now taking place between India and East and West Pakistan is not limited within their borders. The politics of these strife-torn nations are tightly intertwined with those of the three major world powers, Red China, the United States, and the Soviet Union.

Forsaken Ideals

Politics and strategy cannot, of course, be ignored. But can we, the U.S., forsake the ideals we have supposedly fought for in two world wars—particularly, the right of freedom and a decent existence for all the peoples of the world?

One wonders what our Revolutionary forefathers would say if they could see us now; supporting a cruel oppressor's brutal ravaging of a crippled, starving people.

If we cannot support the underdogs in their fight for freedom from tyranny and terrorism this time, then let us at least have the decency and the dignity not to aid in their destruction.

Horror Classics Featured

This Halloween weekend the Films Committee will be presenting "King Kong" and "Frankenstein," two of the most popular horror films ever produced.

Since the film's release it has developed one of the most devoted groups of enthusiasts of any film, with many having seen the film over 50 times.

Recently, Janus Films released a copy of "King Kong" with five minutes of never-before-seen footage that censors clipped from the American release prints of the film.

It is not clear whether the additional footage will be in the copy to be shown here and will not be known until the film arrives.

The second film is "Frankenstein," Dwight Frye as the hunchback lab assistant and Boris Karloff in his first major role as the monster.

"Frankenstein" is considered the best horror film of all time by "Film Review" and set the pace for many later horror films.

Both films will be shown at

Informal Get-Together

'Fireside' Hosted by Honors Cabinet

The first University Fireside of the semester will be held Monday, Nov. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Dr. Ted Klein. Hosted by the Honors Cabinet, the casual discussion will be led by Dr. Robert Britton, chairman of the Theater Department, speaking on

"Professional Regional Theater."

The purpose of the firesides, according to Mrs. Jan Stone, Honors Program Secretary, is an informal get-together of faculty and students, and though the program is open to all, those planning to attend should preregister by signing the list in the Honors Program mail box near the Information Desk in the Student Center.

Monday night the group will meet at the Student Center before proceeding to Dr. Klein's home, located at 4245 Ranier Court.

Youth Meet Tomorrow

Some 150 area high school students and their advisors will participate in the 1971 Youth and Government Conference to be held Saturday on the TCU campus.

Learning the art of government through practice, they will attend general sessions, introduce and study bills, hear committee reports, participate in a moot court session, and stage simulated campaigns in the election of officers.

The conference will prepare the students for the statewide meet to be held in December.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. in the lobby of the Student Center, with general sessions at 9 a.m. The conference will adjourn at 5 p.m. Several TCU faculty members and local government officials will serve as reference persons for the would-be legislators.

Frogs Seek Second League Win at Baylor

The TCU Horned Frogs go trick-or-treating in Waco tomorrow night, hoping to collect a big bag full of points and their second Southwest Conference victory of the year.

The Frogs will face Baylor in the Bears' homecoming game at 7:30 p.m.

TCU has now won seven years in a row over the Bears, including eight of the teams' last nine meetings.

Last year the Frogs were 24-17 victors over Baylor in Fort Worth.

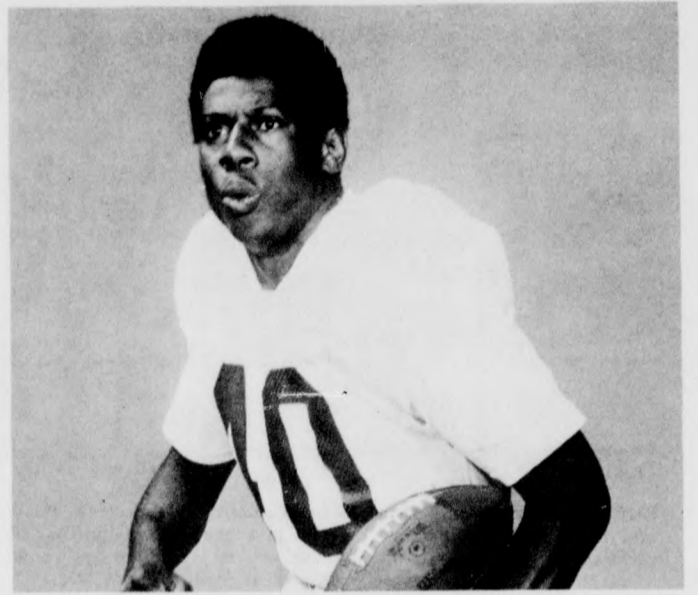

TCU will be trying to regroup its forces after a 66-14 shellacking at Penn State last week. Head coach Jim Pittman says the ability to come back from a big loss is the mark of a good team and that the Baylor game will be both a challenge and an opportunity for the Frogs.

Larry Harris has moved back into TCU's number one spot at left halfback for tomorrow's contest after Bill Sadler injured an ankle during workouts early in the week.

Harold Muckleroy was also doubtful for a while after a bout with the virus, but he is now expected to start at safety for the Frogs.

The game will be broadcast locally by WBAP radio and over 18 other stations by the Humble Network.

The Frogs are 1-1 in SWC games, having beaten A&M and lost to Arkansas. Baylor is winless in league play after falling to the same two opponents.

STARTING AGAIN—Junior halfback Larry Harris is listed to start for TCU tomorrow night against Baylor, replacing Bill Sadler who injured an ankle during workouts Tuesday. Harris had slipped to the second team after beginning the season in the number one spot.
