Mutscher Guilty

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—A jury convicted Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher and two aides Wednesday of conspiracy to accept a bribe in the Texas stockbank loan scandals. Convicted with Mutscher were his two chief lieutenants, state Rep. Tommy Shannon of Fort Worth and administrative aide Rush McGinty.

Mutscher's head swayed slightly as the verdict was read. One of his lawyers, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, dropped his head on his hands and grimaced as if he wanted to cry.

The eight-woman, four-man jury deliberated two hours and 20 minutes after a 13-day trial in which the defense put on no witnesses but used almost all its allotment of four hours in jury arguments in an effort to convince the jury that the state failed to meet its burden of proof.

The son of a farmer, Mutscher, at 39, had risen to the third highest office in the state's government. He is married to a former Miss America.

The case was the first major criminal prosecution growing out of the Texas stock and bank loan scandals that began in January 1971.

Testimony will be taken Thursday on the sentence. Each of the defendants could get 2 to 5 years imprisonment.

About 20 minutes after the verdict was read, Mutscher sat down on a front row bench in the spectators' section and cried openly.

Senate Measure Favors Students as Board Reps

An amendment to the Senate version of the proposed Higher Education Act would, if accepted by a House-Senate conference committee, support the inclusion of students on college and university governing boards across the country.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., was accepted by a vote of 66 to 28, with six senators not voting, February 29, 1972.

Ideas Expressed

If accepted, the amendment would not have the force of law, but would express the sense of Congress: (a) that student participation would be encouraged on the governing boards of institutions of higher education; (b) that to this end there should be at least one student member on the governing board of every institution of higher education in America; (c) that she or he should have the rights and privileges of full members of said board; and (d) that the method of appointing the student member should permit the students of said institution to participate, either directly or through directly chosen student representatives, in the selection and approval of the appointment of the student member.

Congress Questioned

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., opposed the amendment in floor discussion, questioning why Congress should get involved in telling universities what kind of people should be on their governing boards.

"I do not think that is any of our business. It is up to the private universities to determine what they want to do under their own rules and regulations," he said.

Student Trustees

In a poll conducted by Sen. Harris, several schools with students on their governing bodies reported the success of student trustees, including Howard University, the City University of New York, Vassar College, Princeton University, the University of Maine and American University.

Among senators voting for the amendment were Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., George McGovern, D-S.D., Edmund Muskie, D-Maine.

Senators voting against the amendment included John Tower, R-Tex.

Not voting in the roll call vote were Senators Henry Jackson, D-Wash., Hartke, and Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. Hartke and Humphrey indicated they would have voted in favor of the amendment had they been present.

House Halts Action on Budget Following Heated Controversy

By MELISSA LANE

The 1972-73 proposed budget came under intense questioning Tuesday afternoon by the House of Student Representatives resulting in two moves to table the budget.

Earlier in the meeting, House members learned of the administration's cooperation on the 1972-73 residence hall contracts.

The proposed budget, presented by the Finance Committee, first came under fire by Mike Garrett who made an effort to move $1000 of the allocated SPB funds to the House Reserve Fund on the pretense that this would give the Finance Committee more power over other committees.

Garrett's proposal, voted down, was followed by a motion to table the proposed budget for one week. Failing to receive the majority vote needed, the motion was defeated and further discussion ensued.

Assistant Treasurer

Emphasis changed to whether there is a need for an assistant treasurer which the budget allots $450 ($50 each month) for salary.

Scott Self made a motion for an amendment to the budget which would dissolve the assistant treasurer's position and reallocate the money to the House Reserve Fund.

A second motion to table the budget was made and approved. Lanny Gookin, Student Regulations Committee chairman, explained that Dean Bob Neeb, Col. John W. Murray and Dr. Howard G. Wible talked to the committee on Friday, March 10, in which the joint resolution on the responsibility of the University toward the students was passed.

The guidelines for University responsibility, although not written in the 1972-73 residence hall contracts, will apply to them and future contracts.

Taken to Lawyers

Gookin said the University was taking the contracts back to the lawyers for further clarification of certain clauses.

Gookin emphasized that the committee takes a neutral stand, not wanting the responsibility of telling students not to sign the contracts.

Barry Johnson, Student Affairs Committee chairman, re-introduced House Bill No. 72-7, evaluation of University policy-making committees by the Student Affairs Committee. The House approved the bill unanimously.

By voice vote, the House approved the school zone bill, held over from last week, which calls for the placement of zone restrictions from the corner of Berry Street to West Cantey Street.

Johnson asked the House to extend the time for his committee to review and revise the House Constitution from March 20 to April 4 due to lack of time for a thorough job. The House approved the extension.

The only new business presented, the City University of New Garrett requesting the House to grant the powerlifting team $400 out of the House Reserve Fund. The bill was sent to the Finance Committee.

Robin Moore, Elections chairman, announced that a student survey on six issues—government, lieutenant-governor, marijuana laws, state tax structure, Texas presidential election and student apathy—will be administered at the polls Friday, March 17, while the run-offs are held. Called Impact '72, the state-wide student opinion poll is sponsored by the University of Texas.

Residency Rule Struck

Students will no longer be asked to declare Tarrant County as their permanent residence in order to vote here.

The requirement has been discontinued due to the efforts of the American Civil Liberties Union, several TCU students and the secretary of state's office. The announcement was made Tuesday by a spokesman for the Tax Assessor-Collector's Office

Guest Comment
By ROBIN HOOVER

A new twist has been added to the questions over the 1972-73 housing contracts. Legal advice has been sought from Jack Strickland, attorney at law.

Strickland commented on the contracts Monday, "We must start with the presumption that the University has a very wide latitude under the law in regulating the activities of its students."

He said the search and seizure clauses of the contract were of the greatest concern since they do not appear in other forms of housing contracts such as those found in apartment living.

"Essentially the student by coming to the University has certain understood and certain written contracts which may give up some of his rights. However, the student cannot give up Constitutional rights," he added.

Fourth Amendment

Specifically, we are concerned with the Fourth Amendment which protects "persons" against unreasonable searches and seizures, not "places." The emphasis is on the individual and not his location.

The assumption that some students have that by merely signing a piece of paper, the University reserves rights above and beyond those of criminal and civil law is false. As the Fourth Amendment clearly states the consent of a person needed for interrogation, for example, may be withdrawn at any time.

Strickland suggested that from the viewpoint of a defense lawyer, the University really has no basis to conduct wholesale "fishing expeditions" for drugs on the grounds that there is reasonable evidence.

The term used to issue search warrants is probable cause, not reasonableness. He hinted that the University would have a difficult time turning over evidence obtained by a resident adviser to the civil authorities and expect any legal action to follow.

Freshmen Affected

In essence, the University is surrendering students' rights without their direct consent. Freshmen particularly are affected since they have no choice in the matter.

Strickland considered the question of whether or not the contract as it applied to incoming freshmen is a contract of adhesion. "Contracts of adhesion are not normally upheld in courts," he added.

Suggestions made by Strickland included requiring the University to assume all liability for items confiscated by guaranteeing the safety of items while in storage.

Considering that the average student is in the dorm for nine months out of every year, the Student Life Office could allow two days for the student to be warned by certified mail that a man in blue is about to collect $1,000 worth of bicycles, refrigerators, stereos and cameras.

Also, the University should explain the clause making a student responsible for the conduct of his guests. Is a student responsible for a friend who comes up from Austin for the weekend and is discovered with a lid of grass?

These and many other questions remain unsolved. If the University can go to pains to be explicit about what the student cannot do, can they go to just a little more effort to list their own liabilities?

Queen of Blunders Teams with 'Rivals'

Candace Siler, junior theater education major, will recreate the humorous Mrs. Malaprop in the University's Theater Arts Division production of "The Rivals," March 20-25 in Scott Theatre at 8:15 p.m.

"The Rivals" is a sentimental comedy of the post-Restoration Period," said James C. Monroe, technical director. The play was written in 1775 by R.B. Sheridan, and deals with several romantic triangles which illustrate the mannerisms of the period in a comical fashion.

Period Spoof

Dr. Gaylan Collier, professor of theater arts and director of the play, said, "The production is a farcical take-off on the manner of the 18th Century, and does some hilarious fun-poking at the pretensions and romances of the period."

Dr. Collier has cast a number of experienced performers such as Candace Siler, who has appeared in "Patience," "The House of Bernarda Alba" and "Stop the World, I Want to Get Off."

Experienced Cast

Other actresses in the play are Janice Elder, who appeared in "The Tempest" and "Patience;" and Sallie Biggs, graduate student, who performed in "Much Ado About Nothing."

Leading actors in "The Rivals" are Alan Klem and Jim Covault. Klem, named best actor for 1970 at North Texas State University and a Nordan Fine Arts Scholarship holder, has appeared in "Spoon River," "Twelfth Night" and "Lion in Winter." Covault, graduate student, has appeared in Casa Manana Children's Playhouse productions.

Stylized Set

Other performers are: Art Lippa, who has appeared in "Patience" and "The Fantasticks" at TCU and "Black Comedy" for Fort Worth Community Theater; Porter Murphy, who has performed in "The Headhunters;" Margo Price, who has performed in "Hamlet," "Guys and Dolls" and "Spoon River;" and William Stalsworth, who has appeared in several productions including "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Monroe said, "The set is a very stylized replication of the original set; however, it is two-dimensional in regard to scenery because it was not environmentally important to the action of the play." He concluded by saying, "The play is a highly stylized, highly theatrical production which captures the flavor of the age."

Tickets for the performances are $2 for non-students and $1 for students and may be purchased at the University Theater box office or at Scott Theatre box office.

McGovern in Wisconsin

Students To Go North

TCU students are being encouraged to hit the presidential campaign trail for Senator George McGovern.

"TCU Students for McGovern" is an organization recruiting students to work for the South Dakota Democrat during the Wisconsin primary. The TCU group is working in conjunction with the Tarrant County McGovern organization and student groups from UTA and SMU.

The trip is scheduled to begin March 24, which will include a week's sojourn in Wisconsin. Most workers will be asked to canvass door to door, although some will be doing telephone and staff work at McGovern headquarters.

Free room and board is to be provided; however, the question of transportation has not been settled at this time. A bus might be provided, free of charge, by the national McGovern organization. If not, students will be asked either to help pay for chartering a bus or ride with friends.

TCU sophomore Jack Heller, "TCU Students for McGovern" coordinator, said it has not been decided where the volunteers will stay, but will be in or around Milwaukee. He is encouraging those making the trip to bring sleeping bags, because they may be asked to sleep several in a room.

Houston's Image Unimproved

The University of Houston suffered two major setbacks on a basketball court in Las Cruces, N.M. Saturday night.

The Cougars were upended 85-74 in the first round of NCAA regional playoffs by the underdog Southwest Conference team, Texas.

But an incident toward the end of the contest may have cost Houston significantly more than the loss of the game itself.

Houston's 6'7" center Dwight Davis fouled out of the contest in the final minutes, with a Texas victory already eminent. He had been one of the Cougars' top performers, finishing the night with 25 points.

After Davis drew his final foul and started off the court, Texas' Harry Larrabee approached the Houston player and extended his hand in friendship and congratulations on Davis' fine performance.

As the television camera zoomed in for a close-up, Davis turned and issued Larrabee a vulgar command which scorched the ears of lip-readers everywhere.

Larrabee merely shook his head at the insult and again offered his handshake to Davis. Davis then repeated his verbal attack twice before continuing on to the Houston bench.

While some people will argue that it's wrong to approach a member of a defeated team to offer congratulations on his individual performance or condolences on his team's loss, no one can believe Harry Larrabee's intentions that night were anything more than good sportsmanship.

Houston has long had an "out-law image" among many sports followers and the Cougars have been in and out of trouble with the NCAA more than once.

It had been hoped that their admittance to the Southest Conference might influence their ethical standards, or at least more control over their players.

Clearly, Houston athletes are laden with ability. But the Cougars still have some growing up to do before they're going to win anybody's respect.
