Campus Datelines

A COOPERATIVE housing unit near the University of Michigan is sponsoring a two week co-habitation project. The purpose of the experiment is to see if the participants can break down inhibitions and misunderstandings between the sexes.

The group of 29 students, 17 men and 12 women, chose their roommates by drawing lots.

THE AMERICAN BAR Association committee on legal rights is planning an investigation of the University of Arkansas Law School. A series of controversial events surrounding the promotion of a law instructor sparked the investigation.

A report in the Arkansas Traveler, student newspaper, said James Gallman, the promoted professor, was violating University and ABA policy by running a full-time law practice while teaching.

100 STUDENTS, predominantly black, gathered on the lawn of Texas Women's University President John A. Guinn in an attempt to discuss grievances of black students.

Complaints included "unjust" disciplinary actions taken against blacks, dorm directors invading privacy and lack of respect for black students by the security police.

COUNTY JUDGE Bill Elliott refused last week to grant a license which would allow the sale of beer in the University of Houston university center.

Larry Wayne, university legal counsel, told the student newspaper, "We would win if we appealed in District Court, and we have ten days to appeal."

THE COUNCIL of Deans at the University of South Florida has recommended to President Cecil Mackey a "forgiveness policy" that would allow students to raise grades in courses they have done poorly in.

If approved by Mackey, the policy would allow the student to repeat a course and have only the second grade count on his grade point average.

PRESS MARAVICH, head basketball coach at Louisiana State University was fired last week. Athletic Director Carl Maddox said in a prepared statement, "I have reluctantly reached the decision that our basketball program will have a better opportunity for success with a change in coaching staff." Maravich's won-loss record was 76-86.

SURROUNDED by a 1,000 peering Aggies, one lone member of the University Police stood handing out tickets and he was smiling. He was smiling because the Aggies were behind him all the way.

Robert Tucker, on his own initiative, stopped speeding cars in a congested campus area and handed out tickets. He was aided in his efforts by students offering moral support and pointing out oncoming speeders.

Voting Discrepancies

Board Questions Election

The Election Appeals Board met late Thursday to consider complaints filed after Wednesday's election.

DR. JAMES H. CONE
Brite Speaker

James Cone To Lecture Brite Series

Dr. James H. Cone of Union Theological Seminary will be the featured guest for a series of Brite Divinity-School lectures.

The March 21-22 series is designed to bring highly qualified men to Brite Divinity School for formal presentations and interviews with students and interested members of the community.

Four lecture presentations by Dr. Cone, associate professor of theology at the New York City Seminary, are scheduled. Planned for March 21 is a 12:30 p.m. luncheon meeting of TCU's Homiletic Guild and a 7 p.m. address, both in Weatherly Hall. His topics will be "Black Theology on Revolution," "Violence and Reconciliation" and "The Meaning of God in the Black Spirituals."

A discussion-dialogue with Dr. Cone is set for March 22 at 10:30 a.m. in room 207 of Brown-Lupton Student Center. He will also speak at 7 p.m. in Weatherly Hall on "The Meaning of Heaven in the Black Spirituals."

'Swope' on SC Screen

When a black ad man accidentally becomes boss of a lily-white Madison Avenue agency, he tells the advertising executives, "I'm not gonna rock the boat, I'm gonna sink it."

Wild satire on TV commercials, Madison Avenue and race relations spark Friday's film, "Putney Swope" (1969) to be shown in the Student Center Ballroom at 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. Admission is 50 cents.

The Films Committee, which selects and publicizes the films shown, was prevented Wednesday from putting up the publicity posters which accompanied the movie.

Don Mills, program adviser in the Student Activities Office, explained he considered the signs "inappropriate" and "more sensational than anything else."

There was some discrepancy in the number of votes cast for each position, as well as the number of votes determining majorities, according to Helen Dayton, vice president of the House of Student Representatives.

Miss Dayton said it was conceivable that in the case of female cheerleaders, eight persons could have received clear majorities and be named winners because eight names could be circled on the ballot. Four positions were open.

Winners were declared in every category except Miss TCU and TCU Sweetheart. These positions and Mr. TCU will be announced at the spring formal.

Further complaints involved the actual posting of winners. No vote totals were listed for any position, a practice some persons termed unfair, too.

It was expected that results of yesterday's special meeting would be posted today on the House bulletin board outside the student lounge.

Miss Moore was expected to ask for a new election to be held Tuesday, March 21, with any run-offs March 22. Complete results of the meeting will be reported in the Tuesday, March 21 Daily Skiff.

Winners declared March 15 are as follows:

Male cheerleader—David Ferebee, Bill Hertel, Mark Hill, Josh

Culture Center Finds Home

The black culture center has a home. The Student Programming Board (SPB) has designated room 105 in the Student Center as the black culture center proposed by the Students for Afro-American Culture (SAAC).

The SPB last week approved the group's second proposal. A SPB sub-committee on black culture located the room and approved it.

Gus Assessed Five Years, Probated

Texas House Speaker Gus Mutscher, his aide Rush McGinty, and Fort Worth state Rep. Tommy Shannon were given five-year probated sentences by Judge J. Neil Daniel yesterday in Abilene.

The men were convicted March 15 of conspiring to accept bribes from Frank W. Sharp, Houston promoter.

Huffman, and Greg West, alternate.

Female cheerleader—Peni Atwood, Beverly Fecel, Linda LaRoche, Jennie Young, and Suzanne Avirett, alternate.

Addie the Frog is Rusty Burkett.

Run-offs were declared in the following categories:

Miss TCU—Liz Donoho and Cheryl Rowe.

TCU Sweetheart—Beverly Fecel and Jennie Young.

Some 1,613 ballots were cast in the March 15 election.

Farenthold To Speak Tuesday at Forums

Texas State Representative Frances Farenthold, gubernatorial candidate, will speak Tuesday, March 21, as a Forums guest in the Student Center Ballroom at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Farenthold, who earned her B.A. at Vassar and the L.L.B. degree in 1949 from the University of Texas Law School, recently announced her candidacy "in order to give the people of Texas a choice—a choice other than between two contaminated candidates and a legislator from the 1950's."

"I am not part of the entrenched Texas political system.

a system that spawned this present era of corruption and stock-fraud scandal. My political life has been unorthodox for Texas because my initial support has come from the people. My pledge is to restore integrity to state government and to make it serve the people of this state," Mrs. Farenthold said.

Elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1968, Mrs. Farenthold is a member of the Texas Advisory Committee to the U.S. Committee on Civil Rights and the former director of Legal Aid for Nueces County.

Hope of Easter Show To Feature Pat Boone

Entertainer Pat Boone will be featured at the "Hope of Easter" program, sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon and scheduled for March 23, 7:30 p.m., in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

Baltimore Colt Norm Bulaich, a TCU alumnus, and evangelist Gerry Craft will also participate in the program.

"Hope of Easter," to be presented free of charge, is an expansion of a similar program held last year. Jody Ambrose, program chairman, said an attendance of 4,000 to 7,000 people is anticipated.

Ambrose said the program originated a little over a year ago when Gerry Craft spoke at the SAE Christmas devotional.

"The response to him (Craft) was so great we tried to put it on for the student body at Easter time," Ambrose said. The program was attended by 550 students.

Last semester a conflict arose when SPB allocated $500 to the Gerry Craft Youth Association, an interdenominational Christian group on campus, to help coordinate this year's expanded program.

Several students took action against the committee's decision, gaining signatures from 10 per cent of the student body, and SPB rescinded the funds.

Although GCYA helped schedule speakers for the program, Ambrose said "Hope of Easter" was strictly sponsored and paid for by SAE, with a budget of about $7,000.

Ambrose said, "We as a chapter are selling candy door-to-door to raise money and are also providing manual labor for setting up the coliseum. Chapter members are also receiving support from alumni and community and civic leaders.

The only difficulty, Ambrose said, was for SAE members, as students, to find time to talk to people interested in "Hope of Easter."

Ambrose expects no loss of attendance due to the SPB wrangle.

"I think the program has enough merit in itself to overcome the controversy over it last semester," he said.

In Our Opinion . . .

Student Trustee Would Be Token

From the campus of TCU to the United States Senate, the trend seems to be toward urging the inclusion of students, or at least one student, on the governing boards of colleges and universities.

Gov. Preston Smith, not usually known for his awareness of popular student causes, has jumped on the bandwagon, appointing a student to the Texas Southern University board of regents.

There is a growing feeling on this campus that a student should also be appointed as a full member of our Board of Trustees, with all rights and privileges.

We have serious doubts regarding the wisdom of such a move, should it ever become a reality.

Students have, in recent years, become concerned that their voices are not being heard by those who make the decisions affecting their college careers. One result has been the inclusion of students on University committees as equal members.

Non-Attendance

But it has frequently been found that either the students appointed to the committee don't attend the meetings, or that students' slots go unfilled due to an apparent lack of interest on the part of the students.

Several student committee members we have talked to expressed discouragement about their positions, complaining they are merely tokens, present to give a "student opinion" on different subjects and not expected to participate fully in all actions of the committee.

They maintain students do not attend meetings of committees to which they belong because they feel ineffective when they do go.

We believe this would be one unfortunate result of adding a student representative to the Board of Trustees.

The main duty of board members is not actually to make internal University policy. That is done primarily in the offices of the chancellor and the vice chancellors.

Financial Access

One of the first jobs of trustees is to raise money for the University. To that end they are persons with knowledge of and access to financial sources which may be persuaded to give the University hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of dollars.

We wonder how a student could fill this role. Most do not have the experience, the influence, nor the connections to function as a major fund raiser.

Further, the board only meets twice a year. Would students who seem to think they should belong to the board be content with two brief business meetings during their membership, assuming the body which would choose a student member elects him annually?

The reason for proposing a student board member is to bring before the trustees a student to represent student opinions, student needs, student concerns.

Token Representation

How, in a semi-annual business meeting, is our token going to represent us? Will he gain the floor and make a brief speech on student needs?

There is probably little time for that. Will his one overwhelming vote bring trustees to a greater awareness of and sympathy for student concerns? Of that we are skeptical.

We agree students and administrators at all levels should have more interaction and communications. But the first answer, simply sticking a student on the Board of Trustees, is not the best answer.

A better course of action would be to delegate a group of students to meet regularly with a group of trustees, say once a month, to discuss current student needs and concerns. The students' view could be presented much more effectively and perhaps have a greater influence on the board, through several of its members who have become familiar with students themselves. Even guest students to speak before the board or its executive committee could carry the students' views to the trustees.

Understand Purpose

In this way, when students and trustees met it would be for the understood purpose of discussing student matters.

Both groups would know their purpose, while a student sitting among 50 other trustees listening to the chancellor deliver a financial report may be unsure as to what he's supposed to be doing there.

We do need better relations with the Board of Trustees, but a token member is the least effective way to achieve that goal.

We suggest other means to bring the trustees to the students and vice versa. Invite them to campus to receptions, House meetings, dorm speeches, fire-sides. Form a group of students to talk to them about student concerns.

But the weakest course of action is to add one token to the board. We do not need a fifty-first trustee.

Waits Dorm To Remain Open

Waits dormitory will remain open over spring break.

The decision to keep one dorm open was announced by Assistant Dean of Women Cozbie Reed. Originally all of the women's dorms were scheduled to be closed, but enough women requested that one remain open that a reversal of the first decision was made.

The University was never opposed to housing women students who for certain reasons (usually economic) felt they could not go home, said Dean Reed. But, as Dean of Women Dr. Jo Ann James explained, they had no way of knowing how many women were planning to stay here over the holiday.

In the past, students were required to sign out in advance if they planned to leave during break. This way the administration knew ahead of time how many would be staying and whether there would be enough to make it economically feasible to keep a dorm open and staffed, Dean James pointed out.

Optional Sign-out

Now, with the new system of optional sign-out, there was no way the administration could know who wanted to stay until they put out the bulletins saying no dorms would be open and anyone with a problem should get in touch with the Dean of Women's Office, said Dean James.

All of the male dorms will remain open. Assistant Dean of Men Bob F. Neeb said the reason men's dorms are able to stay open as a matter of course, while it is impossible for women's to do so, is because of the difference in size of the resident adviser staff.

With six to 14 RAs in each hall, it is easy to make it part of the male RAs' responsibility to stay over either Thanksgiving or half of the Easter holiday, Dean Neeb said.

Women on the other hand, have a smaller force of advisers and thus would have to take on extra staff if they all were to remain open (or make the regular staff give up both their holidays) Dean Neeb pointed out.

Diminished Staff

Reasons why men's dorms can operate with a diminished staff, while women need a more complete one, are that men's dorms are not locked at night and they don't have to open their front office each morning as the women do, Dean Neeb said.

Charles Peveler, director of the Student Center, said the Student Center will be closed March 25 and 26, but will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the week.

Economic reasons are behind the complete Student Center shutdown for two days. Certain things, especially in the maintenance field, can only be done in large work crews, so it is better if everyone works at once and extra people don't have to be hired, Peveler explained.

Snack Bar Open

The snack bar will remain open continuously during the time the building is open, Peveler said. He went on to say he saw the hours as being somewhat limited, but said with the amount of people involved in using the service, the quality of the food might go down if the snack bar was open two more hours at night.

Debaters Enter District, First Time Since 1967

The debate team will enter the District III tournament at Ardmore, Okla., March 16-18, for the first time since 1967. The team, composed of sophomores Debbie Zerjav and Martha McKee, could possibly qualify for the national tournament by finishing in the top three teams in the district meet.

Debate coach Jim Luck said 12 teams qualified for the district tournament. Among the teams entering are: Texas Tech, Texas, Baylor, North Texas, Abilene Christian, Northeast Louisiana and Oklahoma State.

To qualify a team must have participated in at least six major tournaments and won at least 50 per cent of its matches.

Although only sophomores, Miss Zerjav and Miss McKee have competed at the varsity level this year and have shown continuous improvement, Luck said.

They placed 18th of 50 teams in the TCU tourney and 22nd of 96 teams in the University of Houston meet last fall, then continued their strong showings during a winter tour of California.

During February the team gave its most impressive performances, starting with a record of four wins against four losses in the tough Northwestern University Invitational Tournament.

They followed this by winning the Abilene Christian College tournament and then compiling a 6-3 record at the Naval Academy tournament, one of the strongest meets in the nation.

The team will depart Thursday for the weekend tournament.

Stotesbery, Johnson To Attend Conference

Glenn Johnson and Bill Stotesbery have been selected to participate in the third annual Southwestern Life Youth Leadership Institute, scheduled for March 24-26 in Dallas.

Named as alternates were Rosie Everts and Nancy Inglefield. Sally Conn and Larry Lauer were chosen as faculty participants.

The student selections, based on academic standing and campus leadership experience, were made by University officials.

The purpose of the leadership institute is to provide promising campus leaders with first-hand knowledge and experience in such areas as developing teamwork, resolving conflict, making decisions and communicating effectively.

The course is intended to develop insight and skills that will be of value long after the participants have completed their formal schooling.

Some 50 schools located in six states have been invited to send student representatives to the institute.

Baseball Clash in College Station

Frogs Face Aggies' Revenge

By ROB CLIFFORD

If revenge is as sweet as grandstand philosophers proclaim it is, Frog baseballers hope A&M won't remember last year's meeting in Fort Worth.

JOHNSTONE
They were ranked second in AP polls.

The Aggies sauntered into town sporting a 29-3 season record and a spotless conference standing of 12-0.

Two days later they left 29-6 and 12-3, grumbling something about being beaten by a team fielding five starting freshmen.

This year's clashes initiate what could be the closest SWC race in several years.

"We've got to play well the first couple of weeks if we are going to be a contender," Coach Frank Windegger said. "We play A&M (this weekend in College Station) and then Tech, two of the strongest teams in the conference.

"We're still a young team, even though we have a lot of experience. I look for us to improve as conference play goes on, but we've got to play well this weekend."

For the Friday doubleheader, Windegger plans to pitch Frank Johnstone (4-1, 0.56 era.) in the opener and come back with Jess Cole (3-2, 1.20 era.) in the second game. He'll counter Saturday with either Tom Ladasau (3-0, 0.40 era.) or senior Johnny Grace (2-0, 1.05 era.).

"We'll have to see what the conditions are Saturday before we make a decision," the hard-ball mentor explained. "We'll see which direction the wind is blowing, how many left-handed hitters they use, and so forth."

According to Windegger, the rest of the lineup will not be altered. That means the infield will be Pat Carden (.212), first base; Phil Turner (.268, 14 runs scored) at second; Tom Butler (.246, 8 stolen bases) at shortstop; and Don Bodenhamer (.233) at third.

The outfield is Mike Turner (.417, 2 HRs) in left; Jimmy Torres (.400, 6 doubles, 4 triples) in center; and Dub Adcock (.294) in right. Catching will be Dana Carden (.212).

Three Frogs Make District In Basketball

Three TCU basketballers have been named to the NCAA all-district VI team. Simpson Degrate was a first string selection along with Dwight Davis of Houston, Jeff Overhouse of A&M, Greg Lowery of Tech and Larry Robinson of Texas.

Horned Frogs Ricky Hall and Jim Ferguson were second and third-team choices respectively.
