THEATER-WITHIN-A-THEATER

University Theatre has been converted to amphitheater format for Ibsen's drama, "A Doll's House," which began its run April 24. James Covault and Mary Ann Mitchell have the leading roles in the play, which will hold 8:15 p.m. performances through Saturday, April 28, with a final matinee performance at 3:15 p.m. Sunday, April 29. Playgoers shouldn't be surprised if they find themselves sitting next to a cast member.

Professor's death mourned

Dr. Alvin F. Nelson, 55, associate professor of philosophy, died of an apparent heart attack Thursday, April 19. Burial was Monday, April 23, in Oakland, Neb., his home town.

A member of the faculty since 1960, Dr. Nelson was given tenure in 1964 and was acting chairman of the Philosophy Department last year.

He received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Nebraska in 1938 and 1939, and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 1942.

While teaching at Yanktown College in South Dakota, he was chairman of the department and holder of the C.M. Fiske chair of philosophy and psychology.

Dr. Nelson was the author of several books on logic and basic philosophical issues, and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Philosophical Association, the Metaphysical Society of America, the History of Science Society and the Southwest Philosophical Society. He was also a member of the Grace Lutheran Church of Fort Worth.

Memorial services for Dr. Nelson were held Wednesday, April 25, in Robert Carr Chapel.

The Philosophy Department has requested that any expressions of sympathy be in the form of contributions to TCU's Phi Beta Kappa scholarship fund in care of Dr. Wendell Schaeffer, Government Department chairman.

Chairmen— Ax to fall?

By JEFF BOGESS

At least one permanent committee chairman in the House of Student Representatives may be stripped of his position because of alleged poor performance in handling committee duties.

Immediately following Tuesday's House meeting, President Bill Stotesbery told a gathering of seven trusted advisers and House leaders he wanted two committee chairmen removed.

Later that same evening, Stotesbery disclaimed the statement, saying he made it "in haste."

"At this point, nobody is being removed, and we are going to re-evaluate the standing committees' effectiveness," Stotesbery said.

Committee Problems

He continued, "I don't know at this point if the problems of the committees lie with the chairmen."

One House member said he knew at least one committee chairman was being considered for removal, but did not think any more were being considered at this time.

Ordinarily, committee chairmen hold their positions in the fall semester, and the House only has one more meeting of this term.

However, David Davis, House legal adviser, said the president had the power to appoint and remove committee chairmen.

One Not Considered

The source added that of the five committee chairmen, one is definitely not being considered for removal, Betty Coffey of the Academic Affairs Committee.

The remaining four panel heads are Brad Beyer, Permanent Improvements; Calvin East, Student Affairs; Bob Rouke, Student Regulations and Clark Terry, Elections.

Repeated attempts to contact the five chairmen produced conversations with Beyer and Miss Coffey. Both said they were unaware of any ouster move being made.

However, Beyer said he doesn't plan to remain in the House in the fall, anyway. Beyer said his committee hasn't been as effective as he had hoped because of a shortage of members.

He related the panel lost members early in the semester and others lost interest. The panel chairman added he was promised three weeks ago by Stotesbery that his committee would receive more members, but no one has been added since then. Currently, he said, the panel has three members.

Turf installation due by August

By JERRY McADAMS
Sports Editor

When it comes to artificial football turf, TCU athletic officials are no longer letting grass grow beneath their feet.

Work has begun which will give the Frogs' Amon Carter Stadium a Tartan Turf playing surface in time for the 1973 grid season.

In an announcement Sunday, TCU Athletic Director Abe Martin said substructure construction is underway and contracts call for a completion date before Aug. 1.

Martin said the entire $300,000 project is being funded by one donor who wishes to remain anonymous at this time.

The new playing field plus a 10-foot border will be covered with the Tartan Turf fibrous surface. Outside that area will be a regular Tartan surface similar to that used on many all-weather tracks.

Tartan Green

Like the playing field, the outer Tartan will be green and is designed to serve as a warning tract between the boundary lines and the stadium walls.

The field will be applied over an asphalt base and comes with a five-year guarantee. "I'm hoping it will last better than 10 years, though," Martin added.

The dual drain system is expected to provide a drier surface than most stadiums can produce.

TCU is the last Southwest Conference school to install artificial turf and the first college in Texas to buy a Tartan field.

Last Six Stadiums

The last six major stadiums in the nation have installed Tartan, according to the 3M Company, its manufacturers. These include Texas Stadium in Irving, Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City and Seattle's domed stadium.

TCU chose Tartan after studying injury statistics, field temperatures during afternoon games and overall durability.

"There is not any question that it is a fine playing surface," Martin said. "It should be cooler, and from statistics I have obtained from different studies, there well could be an advantage in the area of serious injury. We have been looking at turf since 1969 and we're very pleased that we are going with Tartan."

The new Frog turf is much like carpet, with a topping of round, crimped, thread-like nylon pile fibers instead of flat, grass-like blades.

B. R. Henson to join OU staff

By JON SHIPLEY
 "It's the greatest disaster that ever happened to TCU," said one chorale student, reflecting the shock that members of the University choruses felt when told B.R. Henson, director of Choral Activities and Vocal Music Education, had resigned.

Chorale students returning from Easter vacation were faced with the news that Henson was joining the Oklahoma University faculty and were bewildered at the sudden change in the Music Department.

"Many students are sad because they came here specifically to study with Henson," explained one student. "Some are thinking about transferring to Oklahoma University to continue studying with him."

Young Conductors

The resignation also poses the question of who will replace Henson. "He seemed like such an important part of the Music Department," another student said. "His leaving will be a big shakeup to the department."

Henson, on the TCU music faculty since 1961, cited the doctoral program of Oklahoma University as the reason for his move. "There is a tremendous need in this country for a place for young conductors to get a doctoral degree," he said.

At Oklahoma University Henson will assume a position similar to the one he has held at TCU, in addition to teaching courses in the doctoral program for conductors.

Last Performance

The chorale department at Oklahoma University is roughly parallel to that of TCU. "It is larger, of course, because OU is larger. Possibly their's has not been as active a performance season as we have had here," Henson said.

Henson's last performance in Fort Worth will be the Schola Cantorum concert on May 6. The Schola Cantorum, a community chorus for Fort Worth area singers, was organized by Henson ten years ago.

"Schola has been an important source of cultural cross-fertilization between musical groups and between communities in the area," Henson said.

Henson has been honored for his work in the community. On Dec. 9, 1972, Schola Cantorum gave a premier performance of "To Troubled Friends" by Daniel Pinkham. The work was dedicated to Henson. Any other tribute would be anticlimactic compared to the Pinkham,

Henson said. "That was the greatest honor anyone could receive, the highlight of my life."

House reps stall election changes

The House of Student Representatives defeated one election code change dealing with cheerleader elections and sent another back to committee in its Tuesday night session.

The two changes represented a "package proposal" from the Elections Committee.

The defeated change called for the cheerleader screening board to limit the number of eligible candidates to eight. Currently, the board can set the number between eight and 12.

The amendment would have also set a maximum candidate number of two, to be determined by the panel, for Addie the Frog candidates.

The screening board reviews all applicants for cheerleader positions and names the candidates that appear on the election ballot.

Change Necessary

Election Committee member Tom Angle spoke for the change and said it was necessary to have a manageable election.

Angle said by limiting the number of candidates to eight there would only be two contenders for each of the four positions. He told the House the limiting would thus help produce fewer runoff elections.

The second, complementary change provided that the four candidates who receive the largest number of votes in the primary runoff would be the winners.

At present, the election code requires a runoff among all candidates who did not receive a majority of the votes in the primary balloting.

Changes Proposed

Angle said the two changes were proposed to eliminate situations similar to the last cheerleader election. In that race, none of the eight female candidates and only one of the eight males received a majority. Consequently all but the one had to be on the runoff ballot.

However, Karen Dayton, Colby representative, said it is unfair to limit the number of candidates to eight when many more apply to the screening board, referring to female hopefuls.

Although the change then passed by one vote and a motion to reconsider it failed, a second vote was taken when it was discovered an error in the vote had occurred by not having a change of vote asked.

On the second vote, the change failed.

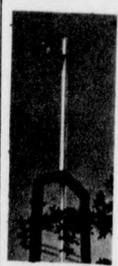

Lisa Baird then moved to send the second proposal back to committee for reworking. Her motion was approved by three votes.

In other action, the House passed a resolution commending Danforth Fellowship finalists Janis Butler, Eddie Coble and Charlie Ess.

The semester's final House meeting is scheduled next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

"A DOLL'S HOUSE" TO PLAY THROUGH SUNDAY

The world of an unhappily married woman, trapped in an undiscovered identity and guilty of constant role-playing, is brought to light in "A Doll's House," opening tonight in University Theatre. The 19th century play by Henrik Ibsen will be presented each night April 24-28 at 8:15 and at 3:15 p.m. on April 29.

"A Doll's House" keeps young with its adaptability to different interpretations. In a drama often seen these days as a motive for women's freedom, director George Sorensen, chairman of the theatre arts department, chooses rather to emphasize the human relationships that develop.

IMPROVED HOSPITALIZATION PLAN ANNOUNCED

A revised group hospitalization program which doubles the daily room limit will go into effect May 1. The room limit is now $20 a day on the base plan and $25 under Major Medical provisions; the new limits will be $40 and $50. The cost to employes is also increased--by $1.85 a month for one employe only, $3.90 for an employe and one dependent, $5.20 for an employe and two or more dependents--though the University continues to pay a substantial portion of the insurance cost.

MADAME KRAUS' MASTER CLASS SET FOR JULY

Starkly set with a single prop in arena style, the play offers a microscopic view of the existence of the woman Nora. The narrowness of the bleak setting indicates Nora's need to escape. "We will play 'A Doll's House' as a tragedy not a melodrama," said Mary Ann Mitchell, TCU graduate student who will play the principal role of Nora. "Nora is a tragic figure who causes her own downfall." Two other Noras, situated in the audience to represent the lead woman's thoughts, will complete a three-part portrayal of Nora's character.

Admission is free to TCU students, faculty and staff. Tickets, available at the University Theatre box office, are $1 for other students and $2 for off-campus adults.

All participating members of the group program should have received details of the changes last week, said E.Q. (Swede) Swenson, director of personnel relations. Many faculty and staff members have asked for more adequate hospitalization insurance, he said, and the revisions were worked out by administrative staff members and the University Retirement and Insurance Committee headed by Comer Clay.

CESCO to revamp

Problems plague program

Collegiate Educational Service Corps (CESCO) is planning some organizational changes to improve its program next year.

Jim Spruell, CESCO chairman, said the organization, which provides a chance for individuals to become involved in community service, is having problems with the students and agencies involved in the social work.

He said some agencies are not setting programs and helping the students. Spruell said these agencies will be asked to "pull their share or drop out."

Students who are inconsistent in their work also cause problems for CESCO, Spruell said.

Retreats for the various agency personnel and students may be planned, Spruell said, in an effort to solve some of the problems.

Spruell said the organization may get a professional adviser and coordinate activities with the Sociology Department.

About 120 to 200 students join CESCO at the start of each year, but Spruell said about half of the students usually drop out. About 30 agencies are presently involved.

Senate endorses Bill of Rights

The Faculty Senate firmly endorsed the Student Bill of Rights in a special meeting April 12. Acting with barely a quorum present, only one abstention kept the Senate decision from being unanimous.

Discussion on the bill, which has already been endorsed by the House of Student Representatives and the student body, centered around the amendments which deal with speaker policy and student organizations. The need for the Senate to update its bylaws to provide for appointments to the Speaker Policy Committee was also discussed.

In other business, the Senate passed unanimously a report given by Dr. John Bohon, chairman of the Committee on Committees, which revised the University committee system and made committee appointments for the coming year.

The revisions would move some committees to ad hoc status immediately and make others ad hoc as soon as they finish the business they are presently dealing with.

Later, Dr. Bohon moved that the Senate request implementation of proposed changes in parking regulations be delayed until the Senate can consider them.

The changes would abolish the faculty parking directly west of the Student Center and make the lot west of the Frog Fountain into a faculty parking lot. The proposal was approved.

Skiff experiences 'worth the effort'

By JERRY McADAMS
Sports Editor

Over the Easter holidays, candidates for graduation—those of us who have paid off our tuition mortgage—were mailed the game plan for the May 13 commencement ceremonies.

The tipoff is set for 11 a.m. in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum and the instructions call for an orderly procession of diploma dealing and handshakes.

"Give the marshals in charge your complete cooperation so that everything will move smoothly," the guidelines say. Nowhere does it mention anything about throwing pies at the Chancellor, though.

One senior organization is even issuing billfold-size diplomas. They'll go well with the billfold-size education some of us netted.

But of course graduation is serious business and everyone involved is looking forward to the big day. I've already bought my water gun.

At the risk of getting hokey, however, I can't help staring at this typewriter and recalling some of the events it has described over the past couple of years.

Struggles Continue

While a lot of us are struggling with finals so we won't have to return next fall, head football coach Billy Tohill is struggling in a hospital room across town. Returning next fall is his goal.

Tohill's near-fatal auto crash last month was one of those unpleasant tasks this job has brought. As was the tragic death of Jim Pittman, Tohill's predecessor who succumbed to a heart attack during 1971's TCU-Baylor game in Waco.

The football coverage has recorded poor starts and good finishes. It has also seen good starts and poor finishes.

Coaches have come and departed. So have offensive formations. New uniforms, new quarterbacks, even new cheerleaders. All have helped fill these pages.

Last minute victories have been documented here. So have last minute defeats.

Sometimes it took the last basketball game of the season to keep TCU out of the championship circle. Sometimes we'd quit keeping score by then.

A conference baseball crown last year made good reading. And you'd think an astronomer had been writing about TCU track, so many stars have risen and fallen the past two seasons.

Being sports editor of this prestigious periodical has been bothersome at times. Honestly, I don't see how Blackie Sherrod and Jim Trinkle keep their grade-point-averages up.

But the experience has been more than worth the effort. How else could a kid from Burleson ever meet biggies like Darrell Royal, Ara Parseghian, Paul Hornung, Lindsey Nelson, Dan Jenkins or Howard Cosell?

Not to mention Merle Wang and John Beilue.

Apologies

Naturally, this scribe hasn't been able to please every reader these past four semesters. Some may not have been pleased once.

Between varsity and freshman programs in football and basketball, along with baseball, golf, tennis, swimming, soccer, judo and countless intramural events, someone is bound to get overlooked.

Someone probably just did, again.

But, the home keys on this Smith-Corona can only handle one set of digits at a time, and volunteer assistants have been scarce some days.

To those of you mumbling "Yeah, the bum never wrote about our team," please accept my sincere apologies.

Next year's stories will no doubt answer some of today's questions: Artificial football turf? Recruiting investigations? Billy Tohill's comeback? And basketball rebuilding? There'll be some surprises along the way too.

Someone else will be writing those stories, though. Here's wishing my successors more success.

Baseballers at Lubbock

It isn't instant, but it is a rerun in the final week of the Southwest Conference baseball race.

Texas is going after its ninth straight title and TCU is in a position—barely—to claim the crown.

The TCU hope is a slim one as Texas moves into College Station for two games Friday and one Saturday against the Aggies, while the Frogs follow the same schedule in Lubbock against Texas Tech.

TCU must sweep its three games and Texas must lose its three for the Frogs to break through as the champions.

The Frogs picked up their 30th win of the year last week against UTA, setting a school record for most victories in a season.
