College costs keep climbing

CEEB survey shows fall prices to increase

NEW YORK (AP)—College costs, a major concern of many American families, will show another sharp increase next fall, according to a national survey by the College Entrance Examination Board.

A survey of more than 2,200 institutions of higher education showed that the cost gap was narrowing between two- and four-year post-secondary institutions, both public and private, and that projected increases in average total budgets would be greater for commuters than residents.

"Meeting the costs of a college education is a problem more and more American families face every year," the College Board said in the report, which was released over the weekend.

The most dramatic increases in average total budgets, which include tuition, room and board, transportation and miscellaneous items, are in the private two-year colleges.

Both the dollar amount and per cent of increase of the average commuter budget for this type of college showed the most significant gains. Between this year and next costs will have increased about 27.3 per cent from $2,583 to $3,287, the College Board said. This represented a 79.2 per cent spiral in costs in four years.

For the resident student at a private two-year college, the increase would be 13.2 per cent or from $3,194 to $3,617. The figure is 52 per cent higher than the cost for the 1970-71 school year.

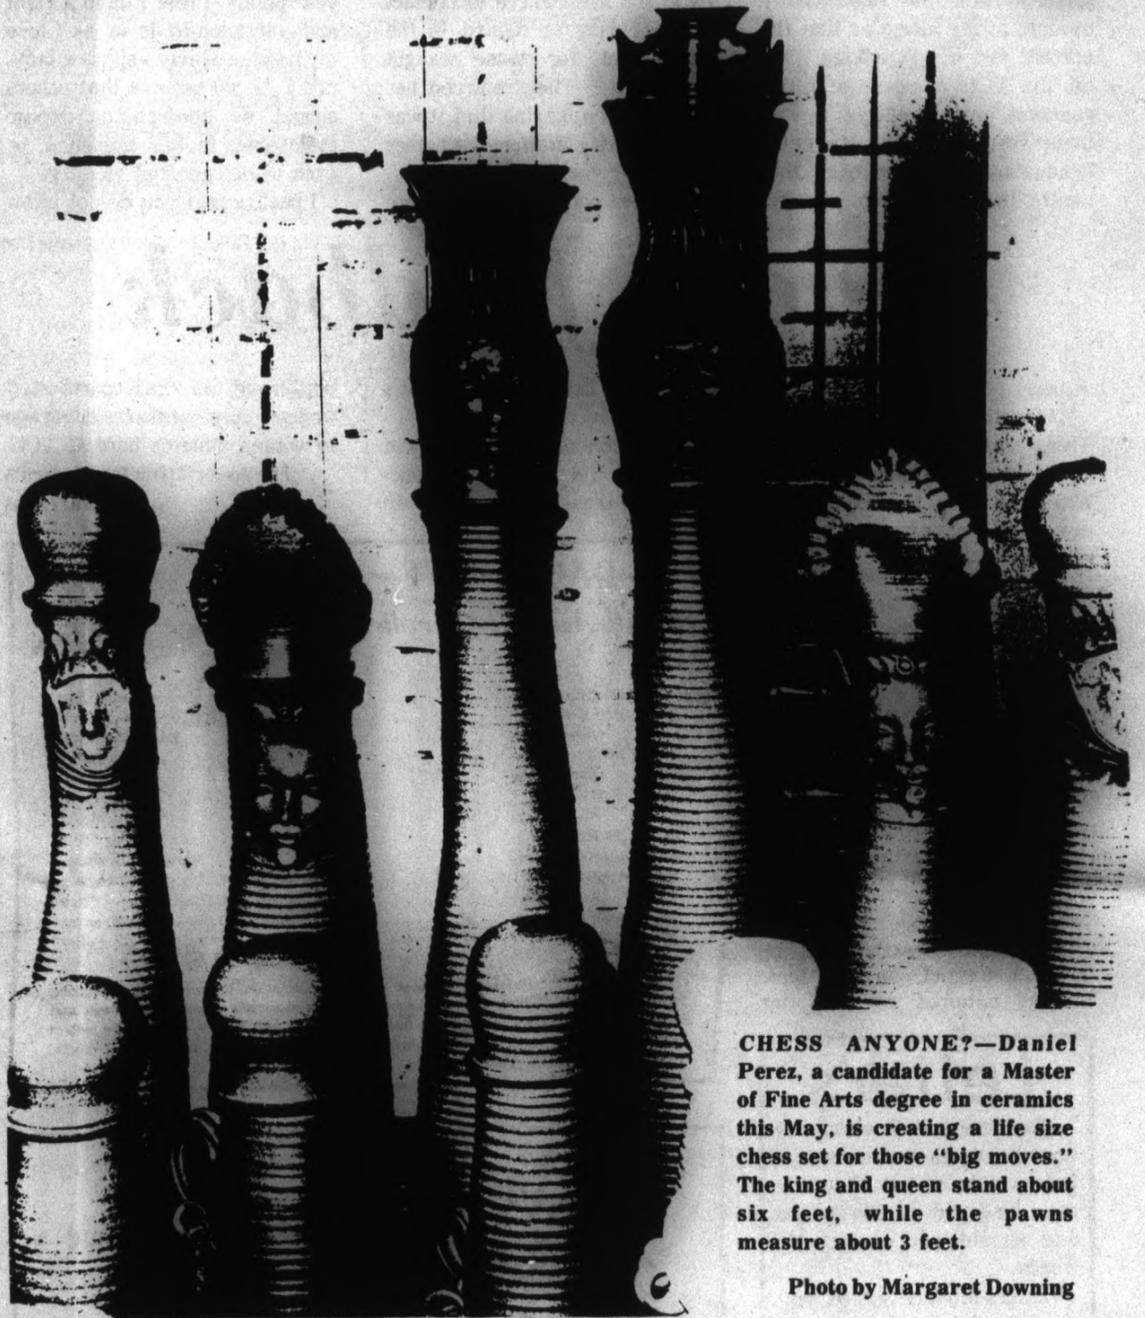

A student living on campus at an average four-year private college next year would have to pay $4,039, $346 more than this year and a 35.8 per cent increase since 1970-71.

The student commuting to an average private four-year college next fall would have to pay $3,683, $521 more than this year and 54.6 per cent more than four years ago.

The College Board said the average tuition for a resident student at a public college or university next fall would be $2,400, $74 more than this year and $269 more than was paid in 1970-71.

A commuter student at the same school would pay $2,085 next year, up $79 from this year and $246 from 1970-71.

For students who commute to public two-year colleges, the average tuition of $1,922 next fall represents a $97 increase from this year and a $234 increase from 1970-71. Although the vast majority of students attending public two-year colleges do not live on campus, for those who do, costs will increase an average of $129 next year requiring a budget of $1,922. No figures were available for resident students at public two-year colleges four years ago.

Omega Psi Phi hosts yearly talent search

Omega Psi Phi's yearly High School Talent Hunt Contest will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Student Center rooms 205-206. The local winner, chosen from area high school seniors, will get a shot at district and national crowns.

Admission to the fine arts contest is free.

short winter term during the 1975-76 and 1976-77 school years.

No specific plans have been made for the period, but it will probably be used to continue the mini-semester review courses and chemistry trailer section that are presently taught during January before spring registration.

The motion passed by the council states the period will be "developed for academic purposes." No concrete plans for the period were spelled out, but the possibility of using it as a short winter term was discussed.

The 1976-77 calendar was planned with the assumption registration will be assisted by the new Sigma-9 computer. Two days were allowed for fall registration.

Dr. John C. Hitt, associate dean of the University, and Calvin Cumble, registrar, assured the council that the computer would be able to condense registration to just one or two days by then.

Dr. Hitt said he would know within a week or two if the computer will be in use this fall to speed up registration.

As a result of the January period being set aside, upcoming spring classes will not start until Jan. 26, 1976, and Jan. 24, 1977.

The council will meet again

April 29 to consider academic advising and providing flexibility for the final exam policy.

UN rep on tap

Barbara White, alternate U.S. representative for special political affairs at the United Nations, will speak in the Student Center Study Lounge at 7 p.m. today.

Ms. White is also a career minister for information at the U.S. Information Agency, and a trustee of the League of Women Voters' Overseas Education Fund.

She has worked with the Office of War Information and the Foreign Service in Italy, Chile, Washington, Spain and Portugal.

The talk, which is sponsored by the Association for Women's Awareness and University Programs and Services, is free.

Fiance calls for offenders' exposure

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Dean of Students Elizabeth Proffer and a copy was forwarded to the Daily Skiff.

Dear Sir:

At present, my fiancee is a junior at TCU. She has recently brought to my attention that the current fad of "streaking" has hit the TCU campus, and this concerns me greatly. I well understand, having recently graduated from college, that controlling a problem of this nature is very difficult.

As is the case in all of society, one of the best preventive measures for all crime or wrongdoing is the assurance of punishment for those who are guilty. This brings me to my primary concern.

I asked my fiancee to contact TCU security in regard to the punishment for those caught "streaking." They referred her to your office, saying that it was not a security matter, but rather was under your control.

She then contacted your office and was told that those caught "streaking" would be subject to scholastic or disciplinary probation of some sort, or possible expulsion, if their past record dictated this action.

At this point, I would like to voice my opinion concerning your policy. I feel I have a right and obligation to do so, as I love my fiancee dearly—she is a lady, and I do not believe that others should be allowed to expose themselves in her presence, or even in her general vicinity.

I realize that you do not allow this directly, but I do feel that your punishment is a mere slap on the hand. I want to know why an individual, guilty of "streaking," is not filed on with Fort Worth police (as would be the case if a student committed murder or theft on campus) for indecent exposure?

Again, I know from experience, that a scholastic or disciplinary probation is not regarded by many students to be true punishment. Nor do I feel that expulsion from school is adequate—an offender can always find some other place to go to school. Expulsion or probation is merely an inconvenience.

I would greatly appreciate it if you would consider changing your punishment policy for "streaking"—which, I feel, is a definite act of indecent exposure. I feel that I am speaking for many other fiance's, husbands, and fathers that have loved ones at TCU.

I would appreciate a prompt comment from you.

reader feedback

Editor:

The article about the women's swim team which appeared in the March 20 Skiff brought to our attention the inadequacy of coverage given to women athletes at TCU.

We feel that any time a person at TCU attains national recognition in a sport, such as Linda Newell did in swimming, that person deserves more coverage than three sentences and a group picture in the Skiff. Other women at TCU have brought the school state and national recognition in sports and received very little coverage.

Women from the TCU rifle team recently participated in national competition and have broken national records this year. Yet, little has been said about this in the Skiff.

We would like to recognize and commend the efforts and successes of these women, and we encourage the Skiff sports staff to give more extensive coverage to women athletes here at TCU.

Syria vows to hack away at Israel

By The Associated Press
 Syrian Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas says Syria "has no choice but to inflict as many losses as it can" on Israel.

Border fighting between Syria and Israel continued for the 15th day today and a Syrian communique said: "Our positions are dealing fierce blows to the enemy."

There were no casualty reports and Israeli authorities said their forces did not return Syrian shots.

Maj. Gen. Tlas said Monday night that "Syria will not let the enemy rest on any part of occupied territory."

He said he believes Egypt,

Syria's ally in the October war, would not stand idly by if clashes in the Golan Heights "expand beyond their present proportions."

Although Syria accepted the initial appeal by the United Nations last October to stop fighting, there has been no formal disengagement of Israeli and Syrian troops similar to the accord reached on the Israeli-Egyptian front.

The Syrians are sending a negotiating team to Washington next month for disengagement talks with Israel through United States Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In Tel Aviv, families of Israeli war prisoners in Syria urged that the exchange of POWs be the first issue on the agenda of the Washington disengagement talks.

American officials in Washington say they expect Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan to arrive Friday for talks with Kissinger.

Syria has announced that it holds 65 Israeli war prisoners, and Israel has said it is prepared to exchange 386 Syrian POWs for them, as well as return 10 Iraqis and six Moroccans.

The families said they had received personal letters from the prisoners for the first time, written on Red Cross stationery and delivered to their homes by special army messenger.

Reliable sources in Tel Aviv said European security agencies have been warned that an international group of terrorists may be planning attacks on naval installations or ships in their countries.

In Cairo, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram reported that a joint Egyptian-Palestinian committee will meet regularly beginning next month to map out a common strategy for the forthcoming Geneva peace conference.

Egypt is pressing for a resumption of the Geneva talks in early May.

Committee opens forum

The Academic Affairs Committee is holding hearings on any type of student grievance. Complaints will be confined to academic matters.

Anne Snell, committee chairperson, said, "This program will enable us to get student views expressed in our committee. At this moment, we are acting mainly on our feelings."

A student wishing to have his complaint heard should fill out a form available in the House of Student Representatives office at least 24 hours in advance of the next committee meeting. The committee meets every Wednesday at 5:30 p.m.

After the complaint is filed, the committee will meet to decide whether the complaint is valid and warrants any corrective action.

Frogs subdue Kent State 2-1 in 8-inning opener of twin bill

First baseman Tommy Crain's 47th run batted in of the season provided the Frog baseballers with a 2-1 eight-inning triumph over Kent State in the opener of their doubleheader here yesterday.

Crain went on to register RBIs 48 and 49 for the year in the third inning of the nightcap.

Sophomore Gene Duckworth started on the hill for Frank Windegger's club-wielders in the first game and hurled seven and two-thirds innings of four-hit ball before giving way to Frank Johnstone, who got the victory.

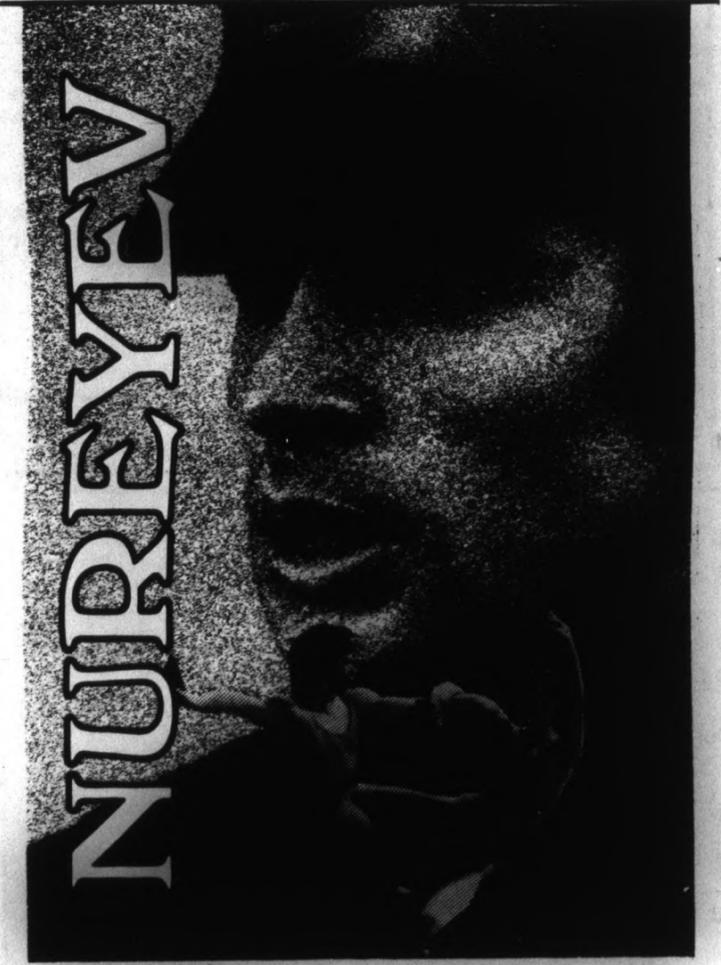

One unearned tally was all Kent could manage off Duckworth, who struck out five and walked two during his stint serving.

The Purples trailed in the second contest by a 3-2 count after four innings.
