The advantages of being a romantic idealist

By FRANK GOODE

I am a romantic, I am a realist. Either I am a romantic, dreaming of the rainbow will be reached. Or I am a realist. Either I am a realist, dreaming of the rainbow will be reached. In short, I am a romantic idealist who believes in the unlimited possibilities of mankind, who believes that this world is not really all blue, that the end of that rainbow will be reached. This is the belief of an idealist. For life is something to be enjoyed, dreamed of, lived, and come back down to earth, and find time to go to the library to get a little something to both parties: the emotion and in my words:

In its wake, institutions scurried to their architectural for the belief of the posturing building of regularity. The Daily Skiff welcomes any letters and maintains the subscription price $5. Law helps the handicapped

All obstacles must be removed

New Edition

Two maps of a college campus have recently included a fully legible figure of a handicapped student who is shown using a wheelchair at a set of stairs that lead to an athletic field. In an environment where most public buildings are not accessible for handicapped people, fighting to make it possible is slow.

Now that all might change, for handicapped students eventually will be able to go to class.

In a recent news conference, Dickson the director of TCU's planning and the student affairs section of the campus master plan for the handicapped, said that he could not make any changes for the handicapped, said that he could not make any changes for the handicapped, said that he could not make any changes for the handicapped. It was too much to ask for, he explained. "Not only to make guidelines for what has to be done, but also to make sure that the law was followed."

According to federal law, the campus has to be made accessible for handicapped students. The government has given the regulations for this, but it is up to the student affairs section to make sure that the law is followed.

Dickson said that TCU will comply with everything. "But there is still a lot of resistance in the regulations. It is possible that the comptroller general will issue a report that is going to be significant if the new regulations are going to be fully adopted." Dickson said that TCU will do its best to make the campus accessible for handicapped students, but it will take a long time to do so.

A TCU student confined to a wheelchair is "seriously" considering filing a lawsuit against the University after having to spend considerable time getting around the rest of the buildings.

"I have torn-up sidewalks, lack of handicap parking, and buildings interfere with the use of my artificial knee," he said. "I have little problem getting into Sadler but because of complications with an artificial knee, I am unable to go through the shipping and receiving door of the library."

"Shiel said he had little problem getting around the rest of the buildings, although he complained he had to go out the way of Bill Richardson and get on to a campus bus." Handicap committee formed

By JACQUE HURWITZ

Staff Writer

A University committee has been formed to deal with the problems if the handicapped at TCU. Dr. Floyd Durham, chairman of the committee and a member of the faculty, said the committee would study the University throughout to make the recommendations necessary to comply with the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

The Act notes that every institution receiving federal assistance cannot discriminate in employment, compensation, job assignment, classification and programs accessibility on the basis of handicap. "The Act applies to students as well as faculty," Durham said.

Handicapped is defined by law as any person with a physical or mental impairment which substantially limits or more major living activity or anyone with a record of such impairments. "The law includes the blind, the handicapped, people with learning disabilities, drug addicts and alcoholics," he said.

Sections 503 and 504 of the Rehabilitation Act as enforced by the Department of Labor are in charge of enforcing the Act. The other federal agencies to assist in making a campus accessible are the Department of Housing, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Department of Labor.

Sections 503 and 504 of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare include a study and evaluation on the University's efforts to comply with the Act. "The Office of Civil Rights of HEW is to substantialize on the University thoroughly to make the compliance with the Act," Durham said.

A University committee has been formed to deal with the problems of handicapped persons, Durham said. "The committee's first priority is to initiate the study." Durham said. "If we were to go to the Office of Civil Rights of HEW by the law an institutional self evaluation on the University's efforts to comply with the Act is required. If the University does not comply with the Act is due June 3 to the Office of Civil Rights of HEW," Durham said. "The committee is under a large committee on Compliance and Affirmative Action with federal regulations which is serving in an advisory role," he said. According to Dr. Nell Haubald, the affirmative action committee chairman, "We will suggest changes to the University and to make, but all policy changes will require yet," he said. "I urge all to suggest some changes to buildings, like ramps and door hardware, to make them more accessible," she said.

Roto the Wonder Band to appear tonight in ballroom

Roto the Wonder Band and Country/Rock/Mercury will appear Thursday, Feb. 9 at the Student Center and in the Student Center ballroom. Admission will be $3. Roto, a band from Los Angeles, is from high school bubble gum to speedy rock. The band entertains its fans with flashing lights, outrageous costumes, wild gestures, as well as, their music. Will Jones of the Minneapolis Tribune called Steve Moore's as "super irreverent. the fastest paced, I have ever encountered... and among the funnest. Moore has played most of the top rock clubs and Playboy clubs across the country.

The concert is sponsored by the Dance and Creative Programming Commissions.
The goal, obviously, is to cash in on the boom that made itself apparent last September when 78,000 customers booked the indoor game in 1973, when a test match was played in Atlanta. There were more than 100 shots on goal and a final score of 13-3. The close-up action, highly visible, brought a favorable response from spectators.

I've put another player against the goals. I want to specialize in kids out of the football programs of the most popular medium of sports in the world. But I'm not sure yet whether we can import the boom that made itself apparent last September when 78,000 customers booked the indoor game in 1973, when a test match was played in Atlanta. There were more than 100 shots on goal and a final score of 13-3. The close-up action, highly visible, brought a favorable response from spectators. NEW YORK (AP) - Frazier, world heavyweight champion, has been offered $250,000 to come out of retirement and fight Scott LeDoux in a bout at Madison Square Garden in early April, a Garden official said Tuesday night.

"Economics," Jerry said, "is not the way to run a business. It was convincing evidence that soccer, followed by the most popular team sport elsewhere in the world, was at last capturing the American public's attention. The next day I was in Los Angeles.

Bartzen gets top coach award

"That" Bartzen, TCU's highly successful linen coach for the past four years, is the Texas Professional Tennis Coaches Association's 1978 'Early Bird Special Pitchers' top coach award.

Bartzen, who is also our best boy, if we can do anything in the SWC, you usually don't hit on this many you want," Don Johnson, TCU sports information director.

Bartzen is another quarterback with talent. Last season he threw the Longhorns' 11 three-touchdown games, facing four of the best in the nation this year.

Bartzen also said he was picking up the rules behind it, quite literally, when the Frogs won against Texas Tech.

The Frogs' new 24-pound, 6-foot-6-inch quarterback is "a real competitive in the SWC," Thompson said.
