Frogs whip Razorbacks, 73-66

By Rusty McCaskey

TCU's men's basketball team is like an aging bottle of fine wine—as time goes on, it gets better and better.

Before the basketball season began, most people expected TCU would be the best team in the Southwest Conference. They are proving to be just that and much more.

TCU defeated Arkansas, 73-66, in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum Saturday night before a sold out crowd. This game marked TCU's 14th consecutive win this season and TCU's 22nd straight victory at Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

The victory over Arkansas gives TCU the second longest winning streak in the nation—a feat practically nobody expected.

"I have been a coach for a long time, and to tell you the truth, I don't know what to expect from one night to the next," said TCU coach Jim Killingsworth. "I didn't have any idea we would come out and do that (dominate the first half)."

TCU spent the first 10 minutes of play getting into the flow of the game. At the beginning of the game, Arkansas found success working the fast break, and TCU's Tony Papa got in foul trouble early. Papa went to the bench with two fouls only 1:47 into the game, and Killingsworth had reason to worry.

"Arkansas Shawn Baker would release and run under their basket every time we would score. Then they back."

TCU led 20-19 with 9:25 left in the first half, and then the Frogs exploded. TCU scored 10 unanswered points before giving up a field goal to the Hogs. Then the Frogs scored another 13 unanswered points to give TCU a 43-21 lead with 38 seconds to play in the half. From that point, both teams scored a field goal before the half, but TCU led at halftime, 45-23.

Arkansas was never really in the game again. At one point the Frogs had more than doubled the Hogs score, 53-25.

Arkansas came back some in the last five minutes of the game, but they were never a threat. Killingsworth took the opportunity to give some substitutes experience.

"We really played well until we got 25 points ahead, and then we started to slack off a little bit," Killingsworth said. "We just were not playing as hard."

Carven Holcombe was the Frogs' high-point man with 29 points for the night. That is a season high for Holcombe, and it is his best effort since his 31-point game against Texas his freshman year.

Larry Richard led the way for the Frogs in the first half. Richard had 18 points and 7 rebounds. He ended up with 20 points, 16 rebounds and 2 blocked shots.

Jamie Dixon was good for 11 points, and Norman Anderson pumped in 7 points with 11 rebounds.

TCU holds a three game lead in the SWC with only seven games to play.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

Ex-aide to Reagan is probed

WASHINGTON (AP)—James C. McKay, a Washington lawyer, was appointed as an independent counsel Monday to determine whether former White House aide Lyn Nofziger violated federal ethics laws when he helped a New York company get a defense contract.

McKay, a trial lawyer and partner in the firm of Covington and Burling, was appointed by a special panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here.

The eighth independent counsel appointed under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, McKay will investigate efforts by Nofziger to help a New York City company get a $31 million Army contract for small engines.

The investigation is expected to center on a 1982 letter Nofziger wrote to a White House official on behalf of Wedtech Corp. four months after he left the administration.

The ethics law prohibits ex-government officials from lobbying their former colleagues for a year after leaving federal service.

Nofziger left his job as President Reagan's special assistant for political affairs on Jan. 22, 1982, to start a consulting business.

TV revives false arrest

DALLAS (AP)—Lenell Geter will watch dumbfounded as police officers surround him, and he'll live through the same agonizing trial and hear the prison doors clang shut again.

But when the ordeal begins anew tonight, the aerospace engineer will be watching actor Dorian Harewood in the CBS television movie, "Guilty of Innocence: The Lenell Geter Story."

Geter, a black engineer for E-Systems, was arrested Aug. 24, 1982, in connection with the robbery of a Taco Bell. He later was convicted of robbing a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant the day before his arrest.

His co-workers and family, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a "60 Minutes" segment and other stories of his plight helped turn up discrepancies in the case, and he was exonerated after 16 months in prison.

Five eyewitnesses had identified him as the robber, but Geter's supporters argued he was arrested only because he was a black man in a small, white Texas town.

"I'll be emotionally up and down roller coaster-style," the 29-year-old Geter said of the movie in a recent telephone interview. "If I didn't have to live with the bad memories of a bad experience, I wouldn't have too much of a problem seeing it again."

Police said they had arrested another man in the case, and Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade dropped the charge against Geter on March 24, 1984, after the nationwide publicity.

No one else was ever brought to trial, said Geter attorney Ed Sigel, who is portrayed by Dabney Coleman in the Embassy Communications production.

Geter—who still lives in the city of Greenville, about 50 miles northeast of Dallas—has filed an $18 million civil suit against almost all the officials and institutions who had anything to do with what he called his "racially motivated incarceration."

Wade says of the case only that "the press proved him innocent whether he was innocent or not. I still in my own heart feel like he was guilty."

After his December 1983 release from prison, Geter went back to work at E-Systems.

"I'm able to express myself better as I get this stuff out of my system," he said. "You begin to unblock yourself, and I especially want to talk about the case because there's much to learn about our legal system."

"I had always felt our judicial system would never treat anyone like this," he said. "The mechanism to unjustly incarcerate people is still intact, and I hope this movie gets that point across to people."

Geter has started the Geter Justice for All Foundation, which provides names of attorneys, civil rights agencies, Justice Department officials and others who can aid people facing criminal charges. It also offers spiritual literature.

Geter says his best prison experience was teaching Bible classes—and the worst was "everything else."

"I was somewhere I wasn't supposed to be," he said. "I felt like a hostage. I had nothing to do with it happening."
