By BETHAINE BOLLINGER

TCU Daily Staff / Reporter

Wednesday, February 2, 1994

Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Texas

91st Year, No. 65

Home offices start '94 terms

By GLENN REESE
TCU Daily Staff

TCU opened a new administration building Tuesday night as the new House of Student Representatives elections' results were announced and the administrative staffs for Progressivism and the House parliament

Several professors said the new building will make the student government more efficient and accessible for students.

By SCOTT MCLINDEN

TCU Daily Staff / Reporter

Nationwide trends mirror TCU's

White

5.0

86.6

73.7

82.8

Black

4.7

5.7

3.7

3.9

Hispanic

4.8

4.5

4.1

3.7

Asian

8.5

1.5

1.4

1.2

American Indian

4.3

3.6

3.2

2.8

Non-resident

4.3

3.6

3.2

2.8

Women students increased to 43 percent of all students at four-year institutions in 1993, compared with 48 percent in 1992.

The proportion of women at TCU has slowly increased over the last decade. In 1984, 45 percent of students were women, increasing to 53 percent of all students in 1992.

The percentage of black students at TCU dropped from 1991 to fall 1992. The number of Hispanic students increased from 481 to 523 between Fall 1992 and Fall 1993, according to the TCU Office of Institutional Research.

The percentage of women pursuing advanced degrees. In 1993, 27.3 percent of students were women.

Nonwhite racial and ethnic groups made gains in college enrollment nationally. Black enrollment rose 4.3 percent nationally from fall 1991 to fall 1992. The number of Hispanic students rose 10.1 percent during the same period, while Asian enrollment increased 4 percent.

American Indian and Native Alaskan enrollments increased 4 percent between Fall 1992 and Fall 1993.

Undergraduate enrollment at TCU has maintained relatively constant over the last decade, fluctuating between 5,400 and 6,000.

A large portion of the nation's growth in university enrollment is due to increases in minority and women students. Women were 67 percent of the increase in enrollment from 1991 and 1992, rising to 73 percent of all students in two-year and four-year institutions.

The percentage of women at TCU has slowly increased over the last decade. In 1984, 45 percent of students were women, increasing to 53 percent of all students in 1992.

The percentage of black students at TCU dropped from 1991 to fall 1992. The number of Hispanic students increased from 481 to 523 between Fall 1992 and Fall 1993, according to the TCU Office of Institutional Research.

The percentage of women students nationally has continued its downward trend. The total amount of white students dropped about 4 percent from Fall 1992 to Fall 1993.

Graduate schools noted increased female enrollment

Female undergraduate students at TCU already outnumber male undergraduates, but the same trend may be occurring at the graduate level. The proportion of women pursuing advanced degrees at TCU increased from 46 percent in Fall 1992 to 47.6 percent in Fall 1993, according to the TCU Fact Book, an annual manual published by the Department of Institutional Research.

The proportion of female graduate students increased from 41 to 51 between Fall 1992 and Fall 1993. The number of female students pursuing advanced degrees increased by 4 percent.

The proportion of women students nationally has continued its downward trend. The total amount of white students dropped about 4 percent from Fall 1992 to Fall 1993.

Enrollment of nonresidents of the United States rose in 1993, from 2.9 percent in 1992 to 4.2 percent in 1993.

The proportion of white students nationally has continued its downward trend. The total amount of white students dropped about 4 percent from Fall 1992 to Fall 1993.

Michael Brooks, director of the Center for Academic Services, said graduate study teaches skills that help women perform their future jobs better.

"My overall impression is that it's a lot of opening up the field," he said. "Across the board there are opportunities for women that men don't have. Women are taking advantage of the chances for a better education and career development, which is very important for the M.F.T. School of Business.

"They are seeking new skills and advancement in their careers and increase their income," he said. "Women are also holding more important positions in the business sector and providing an example for many more women." He added that women "are using the skills that they are in our society, using education to broaden their skills and enhance their careers."

TFCU Calendar

TCU's Tuesday night event is open to the public.

"I think the social forces are getting in society and women are getting opportunities," he said. "Women are seeking the men. They are not being brought by the limits that were put on them before."
Campus Man

by Deutsch & Keffer

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here."

LEO MUNSON,
Dean of admissions

Diversity/ page 1

1991 to 1992. White students made up 79 percent of the total number of students, down from 81 percent a decade ago. That trend was also displayed to a lower degree at TCU, where the percentage of white students dropped from 69 percent in 1991 to 67 percent in 1992, according to Munson. According to Munson, the number of admissions to the university has decreased over the last few years, but in that order to attract a higher level of minorities, there needs to be a certain number of minorities here, where the new students already have a group they can relate to on campus.

"We're certainly seeing an increase in minority requirements and information visiting TCU," he said. "If you go to a Minnova, you're going to see a lot more minority representation in the audience."

TCU announced two years ago that of a goal to have 20 percent minority student body by fall 1993, he said. Munson said goal is reachable, but in that order to attract a higher level of minorities, there needs to be a certain number of minorities here, where the new students already have a group they can relate to on campus.

One of the important things to look at in TCU's statistics, he said, is that unlike some universities, TCU's minority recruitment is not from other countries at TCU are not included in the statistics. For example, only Hispanic

CAMPUSLINES
CAMPUSLINES is provided as a service to the TCU community. Announcements of events, meetings and other general information should be brought to the attention of the office. To make a reservation, call 735-9426. The deadline for reservations is 24 hours before the event.

Campus Man

by Deutsch & Keffer

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here."

LEO MUNSON,
Dean of admissions

American, and not Mexican-Americans, are included in the number of minority students at TCU. Although the university is trying to improve diversity among minority students' standards and admissions have not been affected.

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here," he said.

He said the admissions staff has been especially active in minority recruitment and said they need to attract a significant number of local minority families and minority students to continue recruiting minorities out of the area. If we want to continue recruiting at Minnovas here, we might just go to Chicago, he said.

Concerning the amount of women TCU, Munson said he did not understand why there has consistently been a larger number of women enrolled compared to men.

"We don't have any answers. Why enrollment is so large among the percentages of freshman community eligibility," he said. "It's a lot of parents that feel they feel comfortably sending their daughter here."

One of the important things to look at in TCU's statistics, he said, is that unlike some universities, TCU's minority recruitment is not from other countries. American, and not Mexican-Americans, are included in the number of minority students at TCU. Although the university is trying to improve diversity among minority students' standards and admissions have not been affected.

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here," he said.

He said the admissions staff has been especially active in minority recruitment and said they need to attract a significant number of local minority families and minority students to continue recruiting minorities out of the area. If we want to continue recruiting at Minnovas here, we might just go to Chicago, he said.

Concerning the amount of women TCU, Munson said he did not understand why there has consistently been a larger number of women enrolled compared to men.

"We don't have any answers. Why enrollment is so large among the percentages of freshman community eligibility," he said. "It's a lot of parents that feel they feel comfortably sending their daughter here."

One of the important things to look at in TCU's statistics, he said, is that unlike some universities, TCU's minority recruitment is not from other countries. American, and not Mexican-Americans, are included in the number of minority students at TCU. Although the university is trying to improve diversity among minority students' standards and admissions have not been affected.

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here," he said.

He said the admissions staff has been especially active in minority recruitment and said they need to attract a significant number of local minority families and minority students to continue recruiting minorities out of the area. If we want to continue recruiting at Minnovas here, we might just go to Chicago, he said.

Concerning the amount of women TCU, Munson said he did not understand why there has consistently been a larger number of women enrolled compared to men.

"We don't have any answers. Why enrollment is so large among the percentages of freshman community eligibility," he said. "It's a lot of parents that feel they feel comfortably sending their daughter here."

One of the important things to look at in TCU's statistics, he said, is that unlike some universities, TCU's minority recruitment is not from other countries. American, and not Mexican-Americans, are included in the number of minority students at TCU. Although the university is trying to improve diversity among minority students' standards and admissions have not been affected.

"There's no purpose in bringing in low quality students, if they're going to flunk out as soon as they get here," he said.

He said the admissions staff has been especially active in minority recruitment and said they need to attract a significant number of local minority families and minority students to continue recruiting minorities out of the area. If we want to continue recruiting at Minnovas here, we might just go to Chicago, he said.

Concerning the amount of women TCU, Munson said he did not understand why there has consistently been a larger number of women enrolled compared to men.
www.tcu.edu/daily

Tcu Daily Skiff

January 26, 1984 Page 3

EDITORIAL

Month of progress

"Let us hope that the dark clouds of racial prejudice will soon pass away and that the deep fog of misunderstanding will be replaced by the radiant stars of love and brotherhood. I am convinced that if we stand together, we will be able to bring about the day when all of God's children will be able to sing with new meaning, \"long may she reign.\"

Leaders must be able to represent the view of the writers.

March 1st, 1963

The Skiff welcomes the editors of the letters. Letters must be typed, double-spaced, signed and must not exceed 200 words. They must include the author's classification, major and phone number. The Skiff reserves the right to edit or reject any unacceptable letters.

[Letter from Birmingham Jail, 1963]

Those were words to express the hope of the Negro during those early turbulent days of the 1960s. Those words were the hope of millions of Negroes who were Alied by their race between the fires of prejudice and might come out of that dark day with an even greater determination to more and to an even greater desire to fight for

JUNE 1963

Yes. Segregation has changed since then. When Martin Luther King, Jr., was a little boy, it was Rodney King? Fires were started, people were beaten and stores were being looted, not broken but broken.

Does a woman get arrested for sitting in the lunch counter of her choice or is she forced to go along with the publicity inevitably follow-

My opposition to Mr. North lies in his failure to support the Constitution. Back when Mr. North graduated from the Naval Academy, he took an oath upon receiving a commission in a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. The first thing he solemnly swore to do was to support and defend the Constitution of the United States. "Mr. North adhered to the Constitution during the service in Vietnam and afterward, but when he broke the law (by vis-

If you have a good sense of humor, you let

London, it's possible that women who are genuine victims do not have a just cause. You can always tell when you hear the justice system and you see the law in action that some things are happening.

I really didn't want to have to do this, but it isn't clear that the Bobbitt case go by without notice, even if it is getting in me trouble. First of all, we have the Bobbitt's accusa-

Some few weeks, Jessie Jackson announced that he was a racist because he was referred to find that it was a white man behind him on the street instead of an African-American. Hatred is everywhere today, and is gripping the nation.

In June, Lorena maintains. John came home after a little trip away and raped her. Instead of going to the police, a hospital or a domestic-violence center, she had Nowhere in the officer's oath of office is there a pledge to support any particular justice system. In fact, John Wayne Bobbitt, a little drunk and passed out, then decided that he was probably the best judge of what was right or wrong in the domestic-violence case of his life.

In the words of Lorena, Bobbitt walked free. This is a travesty. The story of Lorena Bobbitt and the way she handled herself with courage and determination is a message of hope and inspiration to all women. It is a message that says that women can and should band together to fight for their rights.

Let's hope that the dark clouds of racial prejudice will soon pass away and that the deep fog of misunderstanding will be replaced by the radiant stars of love and brotherhood. I am convinced that if we stand together, we will be able to bring about the day when all of God's children will be able to sing with new meaning, "long may she reign."
The TCU lacrosse team is on probation because of "behavior problems," according to chancellor for Student Affairs Don Mills. The terms of the probation are being kept secret.

The lacrosse team is one of the two oldest sports at TCU and not a college sponsored sport. Team member said the team's lack of leadership with finances, repairs for alcohol abuse, tearing up their hotel rooms, and a bad reputation have caused problems.

Team members want to receive more positive feedback from the university's administration. Stevenson says he remembers hearing stories about the team's lack of leadership and finances, repairs for alcohol abuse, tearing up their hotel rooms, and a bad reputation. It is funded partly from team members' dues and partly from the House of Representatives' travel money.

Several team captain Steve Stevenson said he believes the university brought about the terms of the probation mainly due to $100 worth of damage the team did to the hotel rooms they stayed at while competing in a Texas A&M tournament this past fall.

This action was the climax of what Stevenson describes as "a history of irresponsible behavior" by the lacrosse team.

Sophomore lacrosse team member Ryan Halbert said, "We were out of control at one time and club has a bad reputation, but we are working towards a better reputation." Stevenson says he remembers hearing stories from the mid-1990s about the lacrosse team's lack of leadership with finances, repairs for alcohol abuse, tearing up their hotel rooms unnecessarily and other hotel damages. Although little has changed in terms of the team's behavior, he says that "it's frustrating in a way because we were aware of our mistakes. We did try to make things right in the past about the problems, just didn't listen to what we were being told and it happened to affect us severely.

Team members said they want to receive more positive feedback from the university's administration.

Sophomore lacrosse team member Jason George said, "I don't see how the administration can put us on probation when they don't even support us, and we are the only team on campus with a warrant." He said, "It's a setback for us, but we did the best we could."

Steve Keating, director of Recreational Sports, has said the probation "helps break the lacrosse culture." Kenfield said the lacrosse team could have appealed the decision.

Kenfield believes the team is "taking responsibility for our actions," by accepting the terms of the probation.

"I am humbled," said Kenfield. "Conservatives downvoted the choice even before Clinton's announcement. "Patrick appears to be a 'stealth candidate,'" said Clint Bolick, vice-president of the Institute for Justice. "He has no paper trail, but in part of the pro-quota chorus that I called 'Record L. Justin.'" Clinton's first nominee as associate attorney general was someone who claimed he would present a "positive case in the Justice Department's civil rights division."

Drawing fire from some black leaders, Patrick strongly withdrew Guinier's nomination in June. "He stood against Guinier, brought administration to bullet screen and was surprised by the liberal screen to some of her writings on race," Clinton said. "There is still much more to be done. We need a strong and balanced Supreme Court and a vision of race and a consensus and us at the helm of the court's division."
A day after winning the Super Bowl, Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman decided that he didn’t need to see his doctor after all. The Associated Press reported Monday that Aikman decided to cancel an examination Monday at Shady Grove Medical Center, but he never showed up.

Robinson said his decision was made because he had been feeling better Tuesday on Sunday under the supervision of Dr. James Andrews at the Andrews Institute in Alabama. Andrews operated on Aikman’s knee in 1991, and the quarterback had been complaining of some pain during the season after suffering both shoulder.

Jones, Jeffires named to Pro Bowl

Five Texas holdovers have joined Dallas Cowboys teammates Jeff Jones, Jeff Quayle, and Barry Switzer in the Pro Bowl. Jones was named to the Pro Bowl for the first time, and Jeffries was named to the Pro Bowl for the second time. Switzer was named to the Pro Bowl for the third time.

Frogs hope to end home slump tonight

TCU basketball team is not discouraged about facing the Texas Tech Red Raiders. The Frogs' erratic play has head coach Mike Robinson frustrated, and he said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But despite all the history, Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders.

TCU hopes to end its home blues tonight when the Frogs play the Red Raiders at 7:30 in Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

Texas Tech is led by sophomore post Michael Lomboy, currently ranked fourth in the nation despite losing star forward Todd Day to an injury early in the season. The Lady Frogs hope to capitalize on Tech's loss of Day by running the floor and pressing the Red Raiders.

The Frogs' preview of Pepperdine at Santa Barbara was impressive, as the TCU men's tennis team was ranked No. 3 in the nation entering last weekend's match with Pepperdine. The Frogs won the match, 5-2. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes' rank was No. 6 in the Intercollegiate Tennis Association poll. Bartzen was unimpressed with the Frogs' performance. He said, "They're not as good as we thought they were."

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.

Robinson said that no one is underestimating the Red Raiders. But another concern for the Frogs is the strong player on Team Miami. The Miami Hurricanes were evenly matched. Bartzen said. The Hurricanes will be rebounding because both teams are having trouble rebounding.
dantic disc delivers frank insights into emotions

By MARCO HAY
DC DAILY SKIFF

Anyone who read Rolling Stone has seen or heard of Liz Phair. She is not shamed from the front lines of the music industry. Her sound, trailing behind Nirvana's "Nevermind," is the equivalent of No. 2 on the Ivys, and the man she is married to on the radio chart is his wife. "I'm not saying she's the best," said the interviewer, "but she's doing a great job."

Phair's music is one of the most interesting and influential in the rock world today. Her music is not only entertaining, but it is also a reflection of the times we live in. Her songs are raw, honest, and heartfelt, and they speak to the experiences of young people around the world.

Phair's debut album, "Exile in Guyville," was released in 1993 and it immediately became a cult classic. The album was named after a poem by John Ashbery that described the emptiness and isolation of the suburbs. Phair's lyrics were filled with teenage angst and a sense of alienation, and they resonated with listeners all over the world.

"Exile in Guyville" was a huge success, and Phair was quickly hailed as one of the most exciting new talents in rock. Her follow-up album, "White Chalk," was released in 1995 and it continued her success. Phair's music was praised for its honesty and its ability to capture the feelings of young people.

Phair's later albums, "Darling through the Radio Head," "The Head and the Heart," and "The Great American Beggar," were also well-received. Her music continued to evolve, and she experimented with different styles and sounds. She has collaborated with a wide range of artists, and her music has been featured in movies and TV shows.

Phair's music has inspired many other artists, and she has become a role model for young people everywhere. Her honesty and her willingness to speak about her experiences have made her a powerful voice for a generation.

Phair's music has also been used in films. Her song "Screws" was featured in the movie "American Beauty," and her song "Getaway Car" was used in the movie "Source Code." Her music has been a part of popular culture, and it continues to inspire and entertain fans around the world.

Phair's music is a reflection of the times we live in, and it is a testament to the power of music to connect people. Her songs are full of emotion, and they speak to the experiences of young people everywhere. Phair's music is a source of comfort, and it is a source of inspiration. She is a true talent, and she is a true artist.