Public input on parking sought

Town-hall meetings planned by campus traffic committee

BY MARY RANS

The Traffic, Regulations and Appeals committee has planned two town-hall meetings to hear students, faculty and staff discuss ideas for solutions to the campus' parking situation.

The two open meetings will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Oct. 18 and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 19 in the Student Center. More information will be distributed on flyers and via KTCU radio.

At the meetings, the committee will present its recommendations from the month-long study of the parking situation. Committee members said they would encourage students, faculty and staff to attend the town-hall meetings to voice their opinions and possible solutions in the town-hall meetings.

John Brown, chairman of the committee and professor of geology, said public input in the parking problem can lead to a greater understanding of the problem and solutions to the problem and that they can feel involved in the process to deal with the situation.

"There will be a presentation of the entire process, the need to get the parking process and up the road toward the director and goal" of solving the parking problem, Brown said.

The committee needs the input from the meetings and the student and faculty in order to better address the problem and its solutions, he said. The forum of the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where the town meeting was chosen, Brown said, because it was "the forum where..."}

Library offers Internet workshops

By Betelhe Gardner

TCU Library offers Internet workshops that will teach students and faculty how to research and use resources on the Internet, the international computer network.

Students will learn how to find sources of information on the World Wide Web and also to research on Gopher, which is another Internet service. The workshops are open to students, faculty and staff.

Carver said that the library is putting a lot of resources on the Internet, the international computer network, because it has become a great way to do research because you can access information faster.

The workshops will be held in Room 219 of the Mary Costa Burnett Library.

The workshops will be held today and Monday, 2 p.m. Each workshop is limited to 25 participants. To register, contact Becky Carver at 823-9127.

Scott Whitley, House president, said: "Last week's resolution wasn't something that would necessarily cause panic. We have to vote on that every year."

Homecoming week, she said, will involve little or no parking problems and suggest solutions.

"We have an extremely eclectic crew on campus," Brown said. "The ensemble on stage is a microcosm of the world at large."

Rugby's prominence has grown because of players' love for the game

By MARK MOURER

In a world where professional sports seem to be managed by money instead of the love of the game, interest in rugby tells an interesting tale. Students use rugby as a form of exercise and a way of life, and the sport now enjoys a prominent place in the college environment.

"Rugby is a game of constant motion," said a student athlete. "It demands the use of all your senses, from your physical abilities to your mental focus. It's a game that requires you to think on your feet and stay alert."

The actors on the field also contribute to the atmosphere by showcasing their skills and teamwork. Spectators can see the game in action and appreciate the athleticism and dedication of the players.

"Rugby is a game of precision and accuracy," said another athlete. "It requires not only physical strength but also mental focus and strategy. The game is a study of how to outmaneuver the opposition and make the most of your opportunities."

"Rugby is a game that is played by players who are passionate about the sport," said a coach. "It is a game that is enjoyed by those who have a genuine love for it, and it is not a game for those who are only interested in the money."

The rugby community is a close-knit group, and the players value the camaraderie and support they receive from their teammates. The sport is a way of life, and it is the players who keep it alive and thriving.

"Rugby is a game that is played by players who respect each other and play with honor," said a coach. "It is a game that is based on sportsmanship and fair play."

"Rugby is a game that is played by players who are dedicated to the sport," said a student athlete. "It is a game that is played by players who are willing to work hard and put in the time to be successful."
