

Search This Site for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Editor's Note:

The Friday, Aug. 31, edition of the TCU Daily Skiff was not published because of computer network problems. However, some news and sport stories have been placed on the online edition.

The editorial board apologizes to our readers for any inconvenience.

Be sure to pick up the next issue of the Skiff on Wednesday, Sept. 5.

If readers have any questions or thoughts about the Daily Skiff, please e-mail us at skiffletters@tcu.edu or call at 817-257-7428.

Editor in Chief
Ram Luthra

Transfer interrupted!

.ktcu.tcu.edu >

TCU-UNT Game Coverage

Be sure to check our Web site this weekend for coverage of the TCU-UNT football game.

News

New Texas alcohol laws take effect at midnight

Jan es Zwilling
staff reporter

Motor vehicle passengers in Texas will no longer be able to have open containers of alcohol in their possession beginning midnight tonight. The new legislation passed by members of the 77th Texas Legislature earlier this year makes the offense a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $20 or less.

full story

Academic, housing resources strained by enrollment

By Sarah McClellan
staff reporter

The university is experiencing academic and on-campus housing strains because of increased freshmen enrollment, said Ray Brown, dean of admissions.

A record 1,515 freshmen enrolled this year, an increase of about 3 percent from 2000 when the freshman enrollment was 1,493, Brown said.

full story

Deanship candidate interviewed, may visit

One candidate for the College of Communications deanship was recommended Wednesday to Provost William Koehler for consideration. Chairman of the search committee Bill Ryan said a candidate familiar with the three departments in the college — journalism, radio-TV-film and speech communication — was interviewed by the committee Wednesday. He said the candidate has experience with both public and private institutions and has served at an administrative level.

full story

SuperFrog buffs up over summer vacation

A new version of SuperFrog will be unveiled at Saturday's football game against the University of North Texas, said head cheerleading coach Jeff Tucker.

With a tail, buffed up abs and new shoes, SuperFrog's new look is more athletic and more reminiscent of a horned frog, Tucker said. E-mail your reaction to the new look of TCU's favorite mascot to skiffletters@tcu.edu.

Editorial

New Growth Focus should be prestige, not size

The time has come for the admissions board to cap enrollment. TCU is risking the loss of its small school feel. Each year the numbers keep going up — 1,426 in 1999, 1,493 in 2000 and 1,515 this year. Although the increments are small, the effects are starting to appear.

full story

Sports

Men's soccer looks for revenge against Vanderbilt

By Dan Smith
Skiff staff

After losing 4-0 last season to Vanderbilt, the men's soccer team is looking for payback tonight against the Commodores, players and coaches said.

"We'd like revenge," assistant coach Blake Amos said.

The men's soccer team will start its 2001 season against the Vanderbilt Commodores 8 p.m. tonight at Vanderbilt Soccer Field. The Frogs play the Belmont Bruins at 6 p.m. Sunday at Garvey-Rosenthal Stadium.

full story

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

New Texas alcohol laws take effect at midnight

James Zwilling
staff reporter

Motor vehicle passengers in Texas will no longer be able to have open containers of alcohol in their possession beginning midnight tonight.

The new legislation passed by members of the 77th Texas Legislature earlier this year makes the offense a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $20 or less.

Current Texas law states that it is legal for passengers to have open containers in vehicles as long as they are not in reach of the driver.

The new legislation also requires repeat DWI offenders to install a deep-lung breath analysis device that detects alcohol on the driver's breath. If alcohol is detected, the vehicle will not operate.

Among other provisions, the bill increases the length of driver's license suspensions for repeat DWI offenders, prohibits juries from recommending that repeat offenders licenses not be suspended and requires a one-year waiting period for repeat offenders' wishing to obtain a commercial driver's license.

The changes to the open container laws were proposed following a federal mandate requiring states to enact laws that meet federal requirements for both repeat DWI offenders and open container laws.

Sparkle Greenham, TCU Alcohol and Drug Education Center program specialist, said she feels the new open container and DWI laws will help bring Texas up to the standards that more than 30 other states have already adopted.

"Texas has made great strides in the last few years by lowering the legal blood alcohol content levels," Greenham said. "Hopefully, these laws will continue that progress."

States failing to enact or not enforcing an open container law or laws pertaining to repeat DWI offenders would be forced to divert 1.5 percent of its federal highway funds for use in traffic safety programs. The percentage would double Oct. 1, 2002.

Prior to the 77th Texas Legislature, Texas was not in compliance with federal law and risked losing highway construction funds for projects to ease congestion and enhance mobility on highways. The new law brings Texas into compliance.

Bill Lewis, the public policy liaison for the Texas chapter of Mother's Against Drunk Driving, said that although these laws are steps in the right direction for the state, work still needs to be done.

"One of the things that drives our support for these bills is that Texas is the worst state when it comes to the number of deaths caused by drunk driving," Lewis said. "Drunk driving is not really rocket science or some big philosophical debate — it's simply just better not to drink and drive."

M.A.D.D.'s most recent statistics reported 1,734 alcohol related deaths in 1999, 383 more than the second most fatal state, California.

Lewis said if Texas wants to make a commitment to keeping drunk drivers off the street, it will need to look at other options like random drunk driving checkpoints.

"Until we start using check points, we will not be able to keep drunk drivers off of our roadways," Lewis said.

More than 40 states use random police checkpoints, but Texas has so far failed to pass such legislation, Lewis said.

For more information about this law or any other new laws taking effect Saturday, visit (<http://www.capitol.state.tx.us/capitol.htm>).

James Zwilling
j.g.zwilling@student.tcu.edu

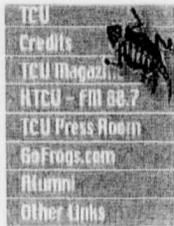

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search This Site for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Academic, housing resources strained by enrollment

By Sarah McClellan
staff reporter

The university is experiencing academic and on-campus housing strains because of increased freshmen enrollment, said Ray Brown, dean of admissions.

A record 1,515 freshmen enrolled this year, an increase of about 3 percent from 2000 when the freshman enrollment was 1,493, Brown said.

Brown said the enrollment increase will create larger number of students in freshman level classes and alter the student-to-faculty ratio.

David Vanderwerken, acting chair of the English department, said two additional sections of Writing Workshop I were added and the class size cap was raised from 20 to 22.

"I don't see any significant difference in the quality of instruction," Vanderwerken said. "The classroom experience will be the same. If it were five more students, that would be different, but there are enough seats for everybody."

Brown said the increased enrollment stems from a 17 percent increase in new student applications last year. TCU offered admission to 4,000 applicants for the 2000-2001 school year.

"I have never been in an admissions office that has been up even 8 percent in applications," Brown said. "We thought fewer would accept because the yield has been going down nationwide."

Brown also said growth is not a priority for the university.

"We don't want to get big," Brown said. "In Texas, people equate bigger with better, but with private higher education we don't."

Admissions staff said admission standards are rising as a result of the increase in applications.

"The ability, as judged by numbers such as class rank and test scores, has gotten higher," said James Atwood, assistant to the dean of admissions. "But recommendations and leadership skills add to academics. That, to us, is a stronger student. It's not all in the numbers."

Brown said freshman male enrollment is up to more than 40 percent for the first time in five years, which has caused a shortage in housing for men.

Roger Fisher, director of residential services, said every bed on campus is full.

"The crunch is a little worse this year," Fisher said. "There was always a crunch but we've never told people 'no' (to housing) ahead of time."

Brown said enrollment of freshmen minority students is also up this year, from 12.5 percent in fall 2000 to 14 percent this fall.

Sarah McClellan
sarahlmac@hotmail.com

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search This Site for SearchGet a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Deanship candidate interviewed, may visit

One candidate for the College of Communications deanship was recommended Wednesday to Provost William Koehler for consideration.

Chairman of the search committee Bill Ryan said a candidate familiar with the three departments in the college — journalism, radio-TV-film and speech communication — was interviewed by the committee Wednesday. He said the candidate has experience with both public and private institutions and has served at an administrative level.

"We're optimistic," Ryan said. "We're very impressed with this individual."

Koehler said the candidate, who is male, will likely visit the campus for a two-day visit within two weeks. The candidate's name and other information will be released once a visit is confirmed.

Koehler also said Interim Dean David Whillock, who is on medical leave recovering from surgery, is expected to start working half days soon. Whillock's role in the college once a permanent dean is hired has not been determined.

skiffletters@tcu.edu

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

New Growth

Focus should be prestige, not size

The time has come for the admissions board to cap enrollment.

TCU is risking the loss of its small school feel. Each year the numbers keep going up — 1,426 in 1999, 1,493 in 2000 and 1,515 this year.

Although the increments are small, the effects are starting to appear.

On-campus housing is listed among student opportunities on the TCU Web site, but the strain on our resources is clear, particularly among male freshmen.

According to Residential Services, every bed on campus is full. Several fraternity houses are hosting non-members and residence hall lounges and study rooms have been converted into dorm rooms.

With no additional residence halls in sight, TCU has obviously reached its limit.

The more important issue, however, is the student-to-faculty ratio. Freshman composition courses have increased from 20 to 22 students. At first glance, two students may not seem like a significant increase, but class sizes will inevitably increase until a cap is placed on enrollment.

As the promotional literature says, at TCU, it is about us, the students. But as more bodies are crammed into classrooms, this promise comes up short.

Dean of Admissions Ray Brown said growth is not a priority for the admissions office. Growth is not a priority for the students either.

A record-breaking enrollment is not always something to brag about. At this point it is cause for concern.

In order to retain the TCU experience, action needs to be taken.

Raise admission standards.

Cap enrollment.

Grow in prestige, not size.

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Men's soccer looks for revenge against Vanderbilt

By Dan Smith
skiff staff

After losing 4-0 last season to Vanderbilt, the men's soccer team is looking for payback tonight against the Commodores, players and coaches said.

"We'd like revenge," assistant coach Blake Amos said.

The men's soccer team will start its 2001 season against the Vanderbilt Commodores 8 p.m. tonight at Vanderbilt Soccer Field. The Frogs play the Belmont Bruins at 6 p.m. Sunday at Garvey-Rosenthal Stadium.

Amos said the players are ready to get off the practice field and onto the playing field.

"We are tired of playing each other and we are ready to play someone else," Amos said. "This will be the first game that counts and our goal is to win two games this weekend."

Vanderbilt is coming off of a preseason win last week, knocking off Lipscomb 2-1. Its lineup has all but one starter returning. The Commodores' two leading scorers, forwards Charlie White and Jimmy Stone, will be returning to the team's 2001 lineup.

TCU players and coaches have anticipated the start of the new season after last year's 7-11 finish.

"From top to bottom we have improved," junior midfielder Nick Browne said. "As a team we have bonded and learned a lot."

The preseason Conference USA coaches soccer poll has the Frogs ranked ninth.

The team has prepared by having many physical practices over the summer to get ready to out hustle their opponents, coaches said.

Vanderbilt is ranked sixth in the Missouri Valley Conference coaches preseason poll, and will be playing its season opener against the Frogs as well.

Vanderbilt finished last season with a 9-11 record and a 4-6 record at home.

Amos said the team is unfamiliar with Vanderbilt.

"Since this is the first game of the season, it's hard to do a scouting report on them," Amos said.

Former Vanderbilt starter Mike Diaz was released from the team last Friday and will not play. Diaz led the Commodores in assists and was a Missouri Valley Conference honorable mention last season.

TCU's roster will be missing four players due to injury and ineligibility. One of the newest additions to the team, sophomore defenseman Justin Franklin, is out for the season with a broken leg received in practice.

Dan Smith

d.r.smith@student.tcu.edu

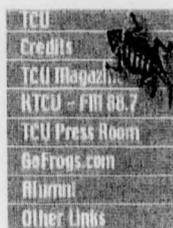

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search This Site for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Editor's Note:

The Friday, Aug. 31, edition of the TCU Daily Skiff was not published because of computer network problems. However, some news and sport stories have been placed on the online edition.

The editorial board apologizes to our readers for any inconvenience.

Be sure to pick up the next issue of the Skiff on Wednesday, Sept. 5.

If readers have any questions or thoughts about the Daily Skiff, please e-mail us at skiffletters@tcu.edu or call at 817-257-7428.

Editor in Chief
Ram Luthra

Transfer interrupted!

ktcu.tcu.edu >

TCU-UNT Game Coverage

Be sure to check our Web site this weekend for coverage of the TCU-UNT football game.

News

New Texas alcohol laws take effect at midnight

James Zwilling
staff reporter

Motor vehicle passengers in Texas will no longer be able to have open containers of alcohol in their possession beginning midnight tonight. The new legislation passed by members of the 77th Texas Legislature earlier this year makes the offense a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $20 or less.

full story

Academic, housing resources strained by enrollment

By Sarah McClellan
staff reporter

The university is experiencing academic and on-campus housing strains because of increased freshman enrollment, said Ray Brown, dean of admissions.

A record 1,515 freshmen enrolled this year, an increase of about 3 percent from 2000 when the freshman enrollment was 1,493, Brown said.

full story

Deanship candidate interviewed, may visit

One candidate for the College of Communications deanship was recommended Wednesday to Provost William Koehler for consideration. Chairman of the search committee Bill Ryan said a candidate familiar with the three departments in the college — journalism, radio-TV-film and speech communication — was interviewed by the committee Wednesday. He said the candidate has experience with both public and private institutions and has served at an administrative level.

full story

SuperFrog buffs up over summer vacation

A new version of SuperFrog will be unveiled at Saturday's football game against the University of North Texas, said head cheerleading coach Jeff Tucker.

With a tail, buffed up abs and new shoes, SuperFrog's new look is more athletic and more reminiscent of a horned frog, Tucker said.

E-mail your reaction to the new look of TCU's favorite mascot to skiffletters@tcu.edu.

Editorial

New Growth Focus should be prestige, not size

The time has come for the admissions board to cap enrollment. TCU is risking the loss of its small school feel. Each year the numbers keep going up — 1,426 in 1999, 1,493 in 2000 and 1,515 this year. Although the increments are small, the effects are starting to appear.

full story

Sports

Men's soccer looks for revenge against Vanderbilt

By Dan Smith
Skiff staff

After losing 4-0 last season to Vanderbilt, the men's soccer team is looking for payback tonight against the Commodores, players and coaches said.

"We'd like revenge," assistant coach Blake Amos said.

The men's soccer team will start its 2001 season against the Vanderbilt Commodores 8 p.m. tonight at Vanderbilt Soccer Field. The Frogs play the Belmont Bruins at 6 p.m. Sunday at Garvey-Rosenthal Stadium.

full story

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search This Site for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

New Texas alcohol laws take effect at midnight

James Zwilling
staff reporter

Motor vehicle passengers in Texas will no longer be able to have open containers of alcohol in their possession beginning midnight tonight.

The new legislation passed by members of the 77th Texas Legislature earlier this year makes the offense a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $20 or less.

Current Texas law states that it is legal for passengers to have open containers in vehicles as long as they are not in reach of the driver.

The new legislation also requires repeat DWI offenders to install a deep-lung breath analysis device that detects alcohol on the driver's breath. If alcohol is detected, the vehicle will not operate.

Among other provisions, the bill increases the length of driver's license suspensions for repeat DWI offenders, prohibits juries from recommending that repeat offenders licenses not be suspended and requires a one-year waiting period for repeat offenders' wishing to obtain a commercial driver's license.

The changes to the open container laws were proposed following a federal mandate requiring states to enact laws that meet federal requirements for both repeat DWI offenders and open container laws.

Sparkle Greenham, TCU Alcohol and Drug Education Center program specialist, said she feels the new open container and DWI laws will help bring Texas up to the standards that more than 30 other states have already adopted.

"Texas has made great strides in the last few years by lowering the legal blood alcohol content levels," Greenham said. "Hopefully, these laws will continue that progress."

States failing to enact or not enforcing an open container law or laws pertaining to repeat DWI offenders would be forced to divert 1.5 percent of its federal highway funds for use in traffic safety programs. The percentage would double Oct. 1, 2002.

Prior to the 77th Texas Legislature, Texas was not in compliance with federal law and risked losing highway construction funds for projects to ease congestion and enhance mobility on highways. The new law brings Texas into compliance.

Bill Lewis, the public policy liaison for the Texas chapter of Mother's Against Drunk Driving, said that although these laws are steps in the right direction for the state, work still needs to be done.

"One of the things that drives our support for these bills is that Texas is the worst state when it comes to the number of deaths caused by drunk driving," Lewis said. "Drunk driving is not really rocket science or some big philosophical debate — it's simply just better not to drink and drive."

M.A.D.D.'s most recent statistics reported 1,734 alcohol related deaths in 1999, 383 more than the second most fatal state, California.

Lewis said if Texas wants to make a commitment to keeping drunk drivers off the street, it will need to look at other options like random drunk driving checkpoints.

"Until we start using check points, we will not be able to keep drunk drivers off of our roadways," Lewis said.

More than 40 states use random police checkpoints, but Texas has so far failed to pass such legislation, Lewis said.

For more information about this law or any other new laws taking effect Saturday, visit (<http://www.capitol.state.tx.us/capitol.htm>).

James Zwilling
j.g.zwilling@student.tcu.edu

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search This Site for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Academic, housing resources strained by enrollment

By Sarah McClellan
staff reporter

The university is experiencing academic and on-campus housing strains because of increased freshmen enrollment, said Ray Brown, dean of admissions.

A record 1,515 freshmen enrolled this year, an increase of about 3 percent from 2000 when the freshman enrollment was 1,493, Brown said.

Brown said the enrollment increase will create larger number of students in freshman level classes and alter the student-to-faculty ratio.

David Vanderwerken, acting chair of the English department, said two additional sections of Writing Workshop I were added and the class size cap was raised from 20 to 22.

"I don't see any significant difference in the quality of instruction," Vanderwerken said. "The classroom experience will be the same. If it were five more students, that would be different, but there are enough seats for everybody."

Brown said the increased enrollment stems from a 17 percent increase in new student applications last year. TCU offered admission to 4,000 applicants for the 2000-2001 school year.

"I have never been in an admissions office that has been up even 8 percent in applications," Brown said. "We thought fewer would accept because the yield has been going down nationwide."

Brown also said growth is not a priority for the university.

"We don't want to get big," Brown said. "In Texas, people equate bigger with better, but with private higher education we don't."

Admissions staff said admission standards are rising as a result of the increase in applications.

"The ability, as judged by numbers such as class rank and test scores, has gotten higher," said James Atwood, assistant to the dean of admissions. "But recommendations and leadership skills add to academics. That, to us, is a stronger student. It's not all in the numbers."

Brown said freshman male enrollment is up to more than 40 percent for the first time in five years, which has caused a shortage in housing for men.

Roger Fisher, director of residential services, said every bed on campus is full.

"The crunch is a little worse this year," Fisher said. "There was always a crunch but we've never told people 'no' (to housing) ahead of time."

Brown said enrollment of freshmen minority students is also up this year, from 12.5 percent in fall 2000 to 14 percent this fall.

Sarah McClellan
sarahmac@hotmail.com

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for SearchGet a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Deanship candidate interviewed, may visit

One candidate for the College of Communications deanship was recommended Wednesday to Provost William Koehler for consideration.

Chairman of the search committee Bill Ryan said a candidate familiar with the three departments in the college — journalism, radio-TV-film and speech communication — was interviewed by the committee Wednesday. He said the candidate has experience with both public and private institutions and has served at an administrative level.

"We're optimistic," Ryan said. "We're very impressed with this individual."

Koehler said the candidate, who is male, will likely visit the campus for a two-day visit within two weeks. The candidate's name and other information will be released once a visit is confirmed.

Koehler also said Interim Dean David Whillock, who is on medical leave recovering from surgery, is expected to start working half days soon. Whillock's role in the college once a permanent dean is hired has not been determined.

skiffletters@tcu.edu

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

New Growth

Focus should be prestige, not size

The time has come for the admissions board to cap enrollment.

TCU is risking the loss of its small school feel. Each year the numbers keep going up — 1,426 in 1999, 1,493 in 2000 and 1,515 this year.

Although the increments are small, the effects are starting to appear.

On-campus housing is listed among student opportunities on the TCU Web site, but the strain on our resources is clear, particularly among male freshmen.

According to Residential Services, every bed on campus is full. Several fraternity houses are hosting non-members and residence hall lounges and study rooms have been converted into dorm rooms.

With no additional residence halls in sight, TCU has obviously reached its limit.

The more important issue, however, is the student-to-faculty ratio. Freshman composition courses have increased from 20 to 22 students. At first glance, two students may not seem like a significant increase, but class sizes will inevitably increase until a cap is placed on enrollment.

As the promotional literature says, at TCU, it is about us, the students. But as more bodies are crammed into classrooms, this promise comes up short.

Dean of Admissions Ray Brown said growth is not a priority for the admissions office. Growth is not a priority for the students either.

A record-breaking enrollment is not always something to brag about. At this point it is cause for concern.

In order to retain the TCU experience, action needs to be taken.

Raise admission standards.

Cap enrollment.

Grow in prestige, not size.

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001

Search for Search

Get a Free Search Engine for Your Web Site

Note: Records updated once weekly

Friday, August 31, 2001

Men's soccer looks for revenge against Vanderbilt

By Dan Smith
skiff staff

After losing 4-0 last season to Vanderbilt, the men's soccer team is looking for payback tonight against the Commodores, players and coaches said.

"We'd like revenge," assistant coach Blake Amos said.

The men's soccer team will start its 2001 season against the Vanderbilt Commodores 8 p.m. tonight at Vanderbilt Soccer Field. The Frogs play the Belmont Bruins at 6 p.m. Sunday at Garvey-Rosenthal Stadium.

Amos said the players are ready to get off the practice field and onto the playing field.

"We are tired of playing each other and we are ready to play someone else," Amos said. "This will be the first game that counts and our goal is to win two games this weekend."

Vanderbilt is coming off of a preseason win last week, knocking off Lipscomb 2-1. Its lineup has all but one starter returning. The Commodores' two leading scorers, forwards Charlie White and Jimmy Stone, will be returning to the team's 2001 lineup.

TCU players and coaches have anticipated the start of the new season after last year's 7-11 finish.

"From top to bottom we have improved," junior midfielder Nick Browne said. "As a team we have bonded and learned a lot."

The preseason Conference USA coaches soccer poll has the Frogs ranked ninth.

The team has prepared by having many physical practices over the summer to get ready to out hustle their opponents, coaches said.

Vanderbilt is ranked sixth in the Missouri Valley Conference coaches preseason poll, and will be playing its season opener against the Frogs as well.

Vanderbilt finished last season with a 9-11 record and a 4-6 record at home.

Amos said the team is unfamiliar with Vanderbilt.

"Since this is the first game of the season, it's hard to do a scouting report on them," Amos said.

Former Vanderbilt starter Mike Diaz was released from the team last Friday and will not play. Diaz led the Commodores in assists and was a Missouri Valley Conference honorable mention last season.

TCU's roster will be missing four players due to injury and ineligibility. One of the newest additions to the team, sophomore defenseman Justin Franklin, is out for the season with a broken leg received in practice.

Dan Smith

d.r.smith@student.tcu.edu

The TCU Daily Skiff © 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001