Episodes of the religious life of early Texas were portrayed at a meeting of the University Religious Fellowship last Sunday night on the campus near the band stand. The program was directed by Dean L. L. Leftwich.

A pageant depicting the life and religious ceremony of Texas Indians was presented by the W. A. A. under the direction of Mrs. Helen Walker Murphy. The coming of the French and Spanish explorers, who enslaved the redman and took his possessions, was portrayed by Kenneth Martin and Lewis Copeland.

Professor Newton Gaines sang a religious philosophy of the cowboy period when Texas was being colonized. Old hymns were sung to celebrate the coming of the Kentucky gentlemen with their families and slaves.

The dramatic story of Texas Independence was told, followed by the singing of old negro spirituals to represent the negro slaves' efforts to harmonize biblical stories with their enslavement.

The event of Texas becoming a state was celebrated by the raising of the American flag and the singing of "America." Rev. A. Preston Gray, pastor of the University Christian Church, gave a brief summary of the program and pronounced the benediction.

Student Activities Limited This Year

A new system of student activities has been introduced in T. C. U. this year. This "point system," as it has been named, limits the amount of activities that a student can participate in. The following announcement about the system was made by Miss Eula Lee Carter, faculty chairman of the committee on student societies.

"The student body in assembly last spring formally adopted the 'point system' in regard to student activities. This program was approved by the cabinet, and goes into effect this school year. A copy of the point system as adopted is printed below. You are asked to read it carefully, and to make out your club program in conformity to it.

"Student activity cards have been printed and will be filled out in chapel at a later date. They will be kept in permanent files thereafter. The presidents of the various clubs are asked to send in a list of their members and officers as soon as the clubs are thoroughly organized."

The University point system in student activities is as follows: No student shall participate in extra-curricular activities during any one collegiate year to exceed the value of twenty points.

The point evaluation of extra-curricular activities shall be: Activities counting ten points are: President of the student body, editor of the Horned Frog, business manager of the Horned Frog, editor of the Skiff, business manager of the Skiff, and employment in the city or by the University.

Activities counting eight points are: Class presidents, president of Y.W.C.A. and president of Y.M.C.A. Activities counting five points are: President of all other societies, other class and student body officers; varsity letters (men and women); membership in band; and yell leader.

Activities counting three points are: other officers of all societies not previously designated; standing varsity debating team; intercollegiate oratorical contest; intercollegiate dramatic contest; woman's sweater monogram; Skiff Staff (in extra-curricular); Horned Frog staff and Glee Club.

Activities counting two points are: Membership in all societies where any office is held, membership is not counted. A committee for the interpretation, modification and enforcement of this regulation shall be constituted, consisting of the faculty committee on societies, together with the four class presidents.

"It's a good policy to remember where you put your car key, especially if you are 38 miles from home," is the advice which Freshman Wayne Newton volunteered to his friends after an experience he had in Denton last Friday.

Newton deemed it necessary to make his departure from Friday's football game at the end of the half, in order that he might be back in Fort Worth at an appointed hour. But "Lady Luck" frowned on this freshman, for when he reached into his pocket he did not find his key.

Finally, after removing the dash board and many other things in their effort to start the car, they decided to consult a locksmith as to their next move. With great diligence the two pushed the automobile up one hill after another until some kind gentleman in a Ford truck consented to aid them in their quest to reach the locksmith.

When Newton alighted from his car, he discovered that an object in his cap was acting in an extremely queer fashion. This queerly acting object was subdued and found to be his lost key. Now of course it is no doubt that Newton's companion felt sufficiently urged to chastise him with no conscientious scruples intermingling.

This arrangement will give the members sufficient time to make their thirty hours, which are required of every sport.

Tomato Splashes As Rooter Takes Unexpected Pass

Splash! Blood! And all of the football fans forgot about the players and turned their attention toward the tomato thrower and the one who received the tomato.

It was near the end of the last quarter in the Lion-Frog football game last Saturday when a tomato suddenly came in contact with a spectator's face. Had the throw been a little higher, the spectator would have had a bad case of the "pink eye."

Since it is considered a very gentleman-like act to toss tomatoes during a football game, there was no excuse for the tomato receiver to become alarmed or even to try to find the tomato thrower. But as all codes of ethics are broken at one time or another, so was this code broken at Saturday's game.

The tomato receiver must have been a very tough fellow, always ready to fight at the drop of a handkerchief. He tried to pursue the thrower through the stadium, and finally downed him on the 25-yard line. This did him little good as the crowd suddenly turned their attention to football. His embarrassment can easily be understood when he lost the limelight, so he hung his head in shame and sneaked away from the game.

Freshman Girls Are Overjoyed With Dormitory Life at College

Gay rooms, colorful with pennants, pillows, strange dolls and fantastic animals. Galleries of pictures from those of the favorite grandfather to the tallest, darkest, handsomest boy friends! To say nothing of the adored Buddy Rogers and Gary Cooper, as well as other heroes of the movies. The incessant click, click, click of the typewriter. Jazz notes come swirling from the piano and radio downstairs. A portable on third walls "What's the Use?" A voice on second catches a tune and shrieks "You Darling" as a clatter of mules denotes the daily before-dinner rush for the showers.

"It is all I expected and more," is a freshman's version. "I love it. It is my college dream come true." The sophomore says, "It's great to be back in Jarvis. Somehow the spirit of the dormitory gets you just as

"Like dormitory life? There is nothing like it," says a junior. How keen to have at least one acquaintance going to the library each morning who will return that reserved book. How convenient to have a variety of friends, one to hear you love affair recall each day.

"I find dormitory life boring, horribly boring," says one girl. "Oh, for one moment alone. There is always someone else in the room. Give me peace! Give me freedom from the girl next door who quotes Teasdale and Millay."

The seniors reflect on dormitory life and think it great. One said, "It is a school in citizenship. Anyone who lives through it will be of value to any home or court of peace."

Collegiate, crowded, gay, glorious dormitory life! The joy that once in a lifetime.

Dr. Salkeld Delivers Address in Chapel

"It is the use that life is put to that determines its value, and if you are going to use your life there are only three ways to use it, for the necessities of life, for the luxuries of life, and for the sanctities of life," said Rev. E. D. Salkeld, pastor of the First Christian Church of Abilene, in the convocation address before the student body of Texas Christian University in chapel Friday morning.

The chapel program was opened with a number by the orchestra under the direction of Prof. Claude Sammis, followed by the singing of the school songs led by David Scouler, new instructor in the voice department.

Dr. E. M. Waits, president of the University, presided over the chapel meeting and read the scripture. The invocation was pronounced by Randolph Clark from Stephenville, one of the founders of T. C. U. Mrs. Helen Fouts Cahoon, head of the voice department, sang "Waltz Song" from the opera "Romeo and Juliet" by Gounod.

Introduction of the new members of the faculty and of the board of trustees of the University was made by President Waits. Van Zandt Jarvis, chairman of the board of trustees, welcomed the students to the University. "There is only one thing in life that counts, and that is character. With the help of students, faculty, and the board of trustees, we can make this one of the greatest years in the history of T. C. U.," Jarvis said.

A meeting of the board of trustees was held after the chapel service. The board considered only routine business.

Religious Life Is Pageant Topic

Early Texas Hardships Will Be Portrayed Sunday Evening.

The program will be under the direction of Dr. W. C. Smith, A. T. Barrett, Noel Roberts, and Miss Vera Bell Stephenson. Those taking part in the program will be Misses Lamar Griffing, Vera Bell Stephenson and Angeline Jones, and Harry Crews, Otton Nielson, Oliver Harrison, William Gonder and Charles Hanna.

The program will depict the arrival of the pioneers from the states north and east of Texas during 1820 to 1836. Their struggles against the Indians, starvation and disease will be shown.

The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. are the sponsors of this program. About 200 people attended the historical pageant last Sunday and the program for this Sunday was planned to carry out further the idea of historical portrayal.

Dr. Morro Teaches Bible Class

Dr. W. C. Morro, professor of new testament in the Brite College of the Bible, taught the young people's Bible class of the First Christian Church last Sunday morning. He substituted for Judge R. H. Foster, regular teacher of the class.

Miss Weldert Is Elected T. C. U. Band Sweetheart

Freshman Girl Receives Honor and Special Privileges. PROGRAM DURING CHAPEL Murry Livingston Is President of Band and Ernest Croft Is Young Mascot.

Marie Weldert, a freshman from Waco, was named sweetheart of the T. C. U. band at a program given in chapel on Wednesday. As Miss Weldert is a dormitory student, Dean Sadie Beckham stated that all the privileges that a town student would have had in conjunction with the band will be given to her.

The program was an annual affair of the band in which the sweetheart as well as the new officers are presented to the student body. Several band numbers were given leads by Professor Claude Sammis, director.

The program was then turned over to Bill Rogers, retiring president, who exhibited to the students through President Waits a cup won by the band last May in Abilene. The new president, Murry Livingston, was then introduced, and he in turn introduced the other officers of the band. Gibson Randle was elected vice-president, and Hugh Boren, secretary and treasurer. Laurence Coulter is publicity agent.

Helen Jenkins, sweetheart of the band last year, presented Miss Weldert with the sweetheart's cap, which is the only ritual that is held for the new sweetheart. Ernest Croft, band mascot, gave a trumpet solo, accompanied by the band.

An extensive program is being outlined for the year by the officers, Professor Sammis, and Professor Elliot, who is the band sponsor. Announcement was made that the band will play before the president's reception Friday night.

FOR A GOOD START.

The upsetting trivialities and red tape of registration have been shoved into the proverbial background, and we are now in an open field with nine months of work unrolling before us. The opening of a new semester at the University, similar to the occasion of the New Year, gives opportunity to college students for the setting up of resolutions concerning the betterment of their welfare along educational lines.

Such resolutions are noble gestures toward individual improvement, but, like many of the promises we make during the New Year season, they tend to become shoved aside and battered down by dangers that are ever lurking in the midst of our college life.

Embodied in the welcome addresses of the majority of the nation's college presidents, are pleas for the setting up of such standards as will greatly enhance our chances of getting the most out of our time. Our own president made such an appeal in his welcome address published in last week's Skiff. If you have not read it, do so, and think twice before you allow yourself to fall into one of the many off-trails.

"PLEASE DO NOT MAKE A TRAIL."

Several years ago a "more beautiful campus" campaign was inaugurated at T. C. U. The grounds superintendent had signs put up all over the campus, especially at favorite "cut-across" points. These signs read—"Keep Off the Grass." The results of this campaign were hardly tangible. The students were accustomed to walking on the lawns, and they were not accustomed to having their paths limited. One reason for this was that the campus was not supplied with sufficient walks.

The following year the signs were changed to "Please Keep Off the Grass." This helped a little, but still the lawns developed "trails" in a surprisingly short time. This year the signs have been changed again. They now read "Please Don't Make a Trail." With possibly one exception, we have about the most beautiful campus in the Southwest Conference, and all the students should take pride in this fact.

The campaign this year is not one of coercion, but one of co-operation. The requests now are not to keep entirely off the grass, as this is practically impossible, but the plea is to refrain from making a trail. It is a reasonable request and everyone should comply.

A TRIBUTE TO A FRIEND.

The death of Dr. Green marks the passing of one of the most prominent T. C. U. supporters of all time. He sponsored everything which would bring to the school things which would benefit it.

He contributed time, money, land and a heart of the utmost loyalty. When the school first came to Fort Worth, Dr. Green was the man who helped put it where it is today. He was the one responsible for street car service, paved roads to the school, sidewalks, benches—everything which goes to make up a real school. He gave earnestly of time and effort, and in every way showed his love and interest for a school which is a credit to Fort Worth.

He was a silent partner to the school, not serving on any board but supporting all movements for the betterment of the school. From this man's life we can see what it means to a school to have the citizens of the town behind it. Without his help T. C. U. would probably have known more setbacks than it has ever dreamed of.

Dr. Green will always live in the heart of T. C. U. as one of its greatest benefactors, and to him goes much credit for the success of the institution.

FOR A SECOND CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIP.

T. C. U.'s chances of breaking a conference-old tradition by driving to a second successive Southwest football title does not depend any more on team strength and efficiency than it does on the attitude of every member of this Frogland colony toward the team that last week proved it had the stuff.

There is an all-important dependence on the willingness of every University student to do his or her bit, little as it may be, in backing this marvelous grid machine every day, every game. We are speaking specifically of the importance of a real, cheering, leather-lunged, rooting section, one such as Frogland has never before witnessed; one that only the never-failing co-operation of you, and you, and you can ever make possible.

Our 1930-31 cheer leaders are to be commended for their initial efforts to give us that. They are working to unite the student body into a unit that can and will set new records for support. They, too, must have your co-operation, your willingness, your support.

The task lies in getting both town and dormitory students moulded into one big family, which is impossible as long as so few of those who live in town are present at our pep meetings and rallies. True, there is a 99 per cent turn-out at rallies preceding the S. M. U. game and at the annual bon-fire celebration, but those two form only a small percentage of meetings held throughout the grid season.

On October 11 we dedicate our magnificent new stadium with our first conference game. Our student body will be placed in the center of the east stands, in an ideal spot for a cheering section that is not afraid to give vent to its feelings. Down in that natural bowl, with the gigantic west stands to act as a drum-head, this Frog student body can create staccato reverberations that will put to shame the bursting cheers such as emanate from the remarkable Texas Aggie cadet corps.

The accomplishment of such a feat would only be in keeping with the Horned Frogs' title of champions. We have the football team, so far the first time in T. C. U.'s history, why not have cheering, fighting student body that will rise to the standard in keeping with our title of "Champion Fighting Frogs"?

ADAM AND EVE AND THE PAST

The garden was beautiful enough. Adam realized that, of course, but he remembered how extraordinarily beautiful it had been the day before Eve came. There had been a sort of wild sweetness in the atmosphere. A purposeless dreaminess had hung over the brooks and the trees, veiling the sunlight and filling his mind. He told Eve about it.

"You should have seen it, honey. Those were the times! Why, things were so quiet and peaceful you could hear your mind click."

"You must not have heard anything," said Eve.

Adam looked at her. That was it! Back in the good old hours before he had lost that rib, he had never had a feeling of defeat or puzzlement. Strange how things could change. But he only sighed and turned to take a little walk.

As he walked, he could see everywhere the effect of Eve's management. The dried leaves had all been brushed up from under the trees, and the branches of the apple tree had been pruned. His favorite climbing rose had had most of its buds pinched off so that the few remaining flowers might be perfect.

"I'll never forget how lovely the rose bush was on my wedding day," thought Adam aloud. "It was just covered with posies, and I like a lot of them better than I do a few—perfect or no perfect."

"Adam, you're a sentimentalist! There was Eve, hurrying along the path as fast as she could go. 'I wish you'd stop day-dreaming and get down to business. You know there's seed to be gathered and some spading to be done over in the southeast corner. This idea of living forever in the past is beyond me!' By the time she said 'beyond me' she was quite far away."

Adam shook his head. That was the way things were. You couldn't talk to yourself any more. And as for gathering seeds and spading! There hadn't been any such nonsense in the early days.

What was Eve hurrying so for, anyway? Then he knew. Every time she heard the little brown hen singing, Eve flew to hunt the egg. As though eggs wouldn't wait! They had always waited, docilely enough, he was sure, before Eve came. The song of the little hen had been what had pleased him more. Now it was so soon changed to raucous bickering as she and Eve debated the possession of the egg.

Eve had been gone some time before Adam heard her calling him. He was just on the point of going to sleep when he heard her, and he became rather irritable. Once he had had the sweetest sleep without any one's bothering him.

"Oh, all right!" he answered and went. He always went when Eve called. There had been a time when Eve had not called, though.

When he found Eve, he saw that there was a stranger yet.

"Adam," Eve explained, "this—er—angel says we're going to have to move. I told you they'd be changing tenants if you didn't work harder."

The angel looked at Adam. There was sympathy in the look.

"No, madam," he said, "it's not because you didn't work hard enough that you're getting out. It's because of that apple you and your husband ate. Apples are prohibited in this place. I'm sorry."

Adam picked up a handful of berries and handed them to the angel.

"Oh, that's all right," he said. "I understand that it's your professional duty. But have you noticed how the whole world seems to be going to the dogs lately?"

SPANISH DANCER

I'd like to be a dancer, A gay Spanish dancer, Wrapped in the swirl Of a brilliant shawl, With a bright mantilla, A tall mantilla, Caught in the teeth Of a jeweled comb. I'd like to tap wood heels, Scarlet high heels, Quick to the click Of the castanets, With white teeth shining, With dark eyes shining, And a blood-red rose In my blue-black hair. Oh, to be a queen in Spain, In sunny, southern Spain, With a court at my call I know would be fun— But I'd rather be a dancer, A sparkling, twirling dancer, With a million hearts At my twinkling toes.

THE NIGHT AND YOU

The thin silken moon is a crescent comb That I catch In your night-black hair, And the stars I sprinkle In your eyes, And I watch them Shining there.

I miss the sound Of the midnight breeze With the tones Of your voice, so low, And the things it says To the listening trees Are the things I long To know.

I join your soul To the silent soul Of the night, And you are one; Then I catch my breath, And still my heart And view What I have done.

ANALYSIS

They have told me you were imbecilic; That often, when hours were filled With listless nothings, you caught Your fingers one in one and pulled them mercilessly I could not know the truth of their idle words, Until I saw you clutch a flower, That had been given you, And press its soft, warm petals to the Moisture of your lips— Then I knew that what they said could not be true.

ORGAN GRINDER

I see you stand long hours With your funny monkey Just outside my window. You grind your squeaking organ— My monkey will sometimes dance. Again you have to poke him, I wonder you do not grind away the years Inside the squeaking organ.

Varsity, Varsity, Add-Ran U!" The college yell rang from the lusty throats of 800 football fans, a record crowd for Waco. Pink and cream ribbons waved wildly, tied to thin bamboo canes. The crowd went wild when "Big Boy" McClellan, captain of the pink and cream eleven, '06, fell on the ball for a two-point safety. The gun and the game was over. Add-Ran University had won its first game with the powerful Toby Business College eleven to the tune of 8 to 6. Mr. W. F. Wilson had come up from Houston to coach the boys and also help with baseball in the spring.

Add-Ran University did not have a paid coach in those days and there were few teams to match games with since football was generally considered a rude and uncouth game.

By the first of the school year in 1897 the thing had been thrashed out and a coach, Mr. Joe Y. Fields, was hired to train a bunch of farmer boys, two or three of whom had seen a football before.

The first official game came early in October, 1897. It was played at Waco with the Dallas professional team. Add-Ran won 6 to 0. The line up of the team and substitutes of that first game were, according to Dr. M. R. Sharp of Granger, Texas, as follows: Le. Romulus Holt, now a rancher who lives in New Mexico; J. Guy Green, a farmer, accidentally shot and killed in Coleman, Texas, in 1929; J. G. A. Post, who received an M. D. degree from Vanderbilt and who is now located in North Texas; q. Charlie Herring, who died in Miami, Fla., during the Spanish-American War; h. Dr. M. R. Sharp of Granger, who had a daughter, Miss Eugenia Sharp, in T. C. U. last year; r. Earl Sparks, who was city marshal at Waco until his death in 1905 or 1906 at the hands of a Mexican; fb. Dr. Jeff R. Syper of Dallas.

The substitutes were James McClellan, United States senator from Oklahoma; Frank Prewitt, who lives in the state of Washington; John Montgomery of Amarillo, Texas; and Colby D. Hall, dean of T. C. U.

Baseball had been first. Said the 1896 catalog: "The athletic association, organized at the beginning of the present session, has done much to develop an enthusiastic interest in athletic sports. . . . Baseball teams had been organized and trained."

The value of physical culture had been recognized long before, however, for the catalog of 1892 gave T. M. Clark, A. M., as being a professor of elocution and physical culture. The next year A. C. Easley and Miss Jesse Clark were the conductors of the school of physical culture.

When Add-Ran moved to Waco in September, 1895, students organized a baseball team and played Baylor and were the Waco champions in '96, said an early issue of the Collegian.

Their first football game had been on Dec. 7, 1896, but the month before, on Thanksgiving Day, the blacks and browns, two teams made up from the

A ruling of the trustees forbade the first team to leave Waco to play a game. And, said the Collegian, the boys "resented that embarrassing action." So the next year the ruling was repealed.

Across the top of the page of the Horned Frog of 1897-'98, which opened up like a bookkeeper's day book, was printed the following: "Oct. 1—work on football was begun" and down on the bottom of the page: "Coach Field arrives." A little farther on came this: "Oct. 3—Dallas encounters war bag—0-6." This was that first official game.

Thus it was that J. Y. Fields came to Add-Ran College to become its first coach. Fields was brought from Dallas. He was a graduate of Leland-Stanford and had two years training under Walter Camp of Yale, who selected him as All-American guard for that year. A few years ago Mr. Fields had a ranch near Grapevine, Texas.

And about here the records break off. If Add-Ran had a coach from 1898 to 1905 nothing is said of it in either yearbook, catalog, Collegian, or minutes of the trustee's meetings.

A man named C. E. Cronk coached the football team in the season of 1905, but the records do not tell us who he was.

J. E. Hyde came in the fall of 1906 to coach athletics and remained through 1908. Wright played guard and graduated in 1911. J. R. Langley of the University of Michigan took the helm in 1908. "His knowledge of football is thorough for he is an apt pupil of the mighty Yost," said the yearbook. And the Collegian backed it up with: "The man who knows football and men."

In 1910 the University buildings at Waco burned and the school opened the next year in Fort Worth.

Henry W. Lever of Ohio State University coached in 1911; Willis T. Stewart of Fort Worth in 1912, and in 1913 Fred Cahoon was drafted from the music department to direct athletics and coach football.

In 1914, S. A. Boles, who had trained at Vanderbilt and coached at Poly, came to T. C. U. and opened up the first summer training camp. Cahoon and Boles, took the boys to Venus, Texas, before school opened and trained them for football and baseball. E. Y. Freland, who had trained at Vanderbilt and coached Daniel Baker for three years, came to T. C. U. and relieved the professor of violin, Mr. Cahoon, of his athletic duties.

For several years T. C. U. had had a "C" Association but in 1914 it was changed to the "T" Association.

During 1916 and 1917 M. E. Daniel was head coach, with Cahoon as assistant. "Dan" graduated from T. C. U. and was a "Napoleon on the field." He had to give up his work at T. C. U. to go to France during the war.

Cahoon was head coach again in 1918, with Ted Hackney as his assistant. Ted was the "man with the educated toe," the ambidextrous punter of the University of Missouri Tigers, who kicked a goal from the 35-yard line. He went overseas during the war.

Two A. & M. College men coached the T. C. U. team in 1920 and '21. W. L. Driver was head coach, with John McKnight his assistant.

On Dec. 8, 1922, T. C. U. was admitted to the Southwest Conference. Pete Wright was made director of athletics and McKnight moved up to head coach. These were the days of Kit Carson and Blair Cherry. The next year Matty Bell of Centre College came to make such four-letter men as Blair Cherry, Herman Clark and Bear Wolf the football men they were.

In 1925 Ed Kubale was added to the athletic staff, and the combination remained through the years when Clark, Washom and Williams served terms as captain of the team. "Never before in the history of the Southwest Conference," says the 1929 Horned Frog, "has there been such a shakeup in the coaching staffs of the various schools as was witnessed during the 1928-29 season with T. C. U., A. & M. and Arkansas holding the spotlight." Matty Bell after five years at T. C. U. went to A. & M., Francis Schmidt of Arkansas fame came to T. C. U., and, incidentally, carried off the championship; Ed Kubale returned to his alma mater, Centre College, to take the lead; and Raymond Wolf was chosen from the ranks of T. C. U.'s hall of athletic fame to assist Schmidt as line coach.

COULTER'S COLUMN

Catherine Elkins, Elizabeth Wimberly, and Margaret Newsom - all freshmen—are seeming to have the time of their lives. In fact, they have so much time that it hangs heavy on their hands. Upperclassmen girls should look into this.

The band is honing its way into the ears of the people. The first rehearsal sounded better this year than it did last year. The door was closed.

After listening to some of the freshmen talk, it appears that whoever said that there is nothing new under the sun is wrong. The things some of these freshmen talk about are really wonderful to listen to. Some of the things have never been heard of and more than probably never will be. The freshmen are so mixed up that some say that in the great war, George Washington should never have taken time to throw a dollar across the Atlantic Ocean, but should have sent it by telegraph. Some even went so far as to say that they had taken a submarine trip this summer from Denver to Chicago, when in all probability they were on a sail boat. And last but not least something that is entirely new—a freshman said that he came here with the lone purpose of studying. He probably meant and loan purpose for studying, after he saw his bill.

Tomorrow should see a good crowd at Clark Field. It will be the last game on the football field from which the Christians graduated from mediocre football to Southwest Conference champions last November.

It will be a hard fought game tomorrow. Cecil Griggs and his Kangaroos would consider it quite an accomplishment if they held the champion Frogs to a close score. Coaches Schmidt and Wolf will not send their strongest team against the Sherman team, but will give all of the men a chance to show their stuff against outside competition. Often it makes a difference in a player when he is in scrimmage and when he is in a game.

Paul Snow and Otha Tiner, neither of whom received much attention until last week, showed that they will bear watching this season. Spearman and Dennis, halfbacks, cut loose with lots of fire last week and will give other halfback candidates plenty of competition. Salkeld and Pruitt, on the wing positions, showed plenty of form and will be battling for a regular position on the team.

Good news was received in the Horned Frog camp Thursday morning when the doctors said that Lon Evans, 215-pound sophomore tackle, would be able to play again. It is doubtful if he will be allowed to take the field against Austin College, but it will be a relief to see the big fellow in there when T. C. U. starts the conference schedule.

The two other injured Frogs are not in such good shape. Clyde Roberson, veteran end of the two past seasons, has been working out all this week, but his trick knee might lay down on him at any time. He will not see action against Austin College or Simmons University, and if everything goes right he will be in the starting line-up against the Razorbacks when they help T. C. U. dedicate the new field on Oct. 11. Hal Wright, sub-halfback of last year, will probably be out all season due to a hip injury.

Weldon Mason, S. M. U. speed merchant, has been reinstated on the Pony football squad. It seems that Mason did not do so well last semester in his school work and had to take some special examinations in order to retain his eligibility. The Pony mentors will need the speedy half this year when they play Indiana, Notre Dame and Navy, not to mention their Southwest Conference rivals.

With Mason again in the line-up Coach Morrison can place a complete backfield of last year's regulars on the field. Bruce Kattman is the other halfback. Ira Hopper will be at full and Bob Gilbert will be calling signals.

In order to speed up the Horned Frog team, Coach Schmidt has switched Johnny Vaught and Ben Boswell. The big North Side High product will now flank Noble Atkins on the left side and the lighter but faster Vaught will be on the right side. The Schmidt coaching system requires a faster man on the right side of the line and Vaught is the boy who can furnish the speed and who has plenty of power.

Dutch Meyer, freshman mentor, is steadily uncovering good material in the 60-odd ex-high school stars who reported to him last week. None of the players is standing out head and shoulders above the rest, but in a few days Coach Meyer can point at ten or twelve, or maybe more, and say there is a man who will be battling for a position on the varsity next year.

SIDELIGHTS ON DENTON GAME
By John Hammond
T. C. U. was penalized more than 125 yards.

Every man on the T. C. U. squad was given a chance to show his ability, and the coaches were somewhat surprised at the showing some of the players made.

University Christian Church

"Is Life Worth Living?" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. A. Preston Gray, pastor of the University Christian Church, at the 11 o'clock worship and communion hour in the auditorium Sunday morning. The choir will render special music, under the direction of S. W. Hutton.

Frogs Will Play Final Game on Old Clark Field

Austin College Match Will Let Curtain Down on Plot.

GAME IS CALLED FOR 3:30 Strong Kangaroo Team Will Be Here to Match Prowess With Champions.

BY JAY WILLIAMS

The historic turf of old Clark Field will be trampled and torn by the cleated shoes of T. C. U.'s mighty Frogs for the last time tomorrow afternoon. Coach Schmidt will throw the Christians into their third test of the year against Cecil Griggs' Austin College Kangaroos at 3:30 o'clock, and all Fort Worth games thereafter will be moved to the magnificent new grid palace that will be dedicated Oct. 11 with the Arkansas Razorbacks as first conference foes.

The Sherman aggregation, invading the Christian lair for the first time since 1928, boasts of one of the heaviest strong Texas Conference. With a backfield that will average around 180 pounds, the Kangaroos will offer the toughest of early season competition.

In 1928 the Frogs defeated the Sherman eleven 21 to 0, but only after a stiff battle. The year before, only the amazing play of "Rags" Matthews enabled the Purple to sneak in a 20-13 verdict, and previous encounters with the Kangaroos have taught the Southwest entry not to take their play too lightly.

No major injuries appeared in either of the two games over last week-end, when the Christians displayed a powerful scoring punch by defeating the North Texas Teachers in Denton on Friday, 47 to 0, and then downing the strong East Texas Teachers on Clark Field Saturday afternoon by a 40-to-0 score. Schmidt and Wolf will be able to shove the entire roster into service tomorrow afternoon, with the exception of Clyde Roberson, end, who will be kept out until the Arkansas tilt; and Hal Wright, half, who may not be able to play any more this season.

All of the 1929 veterans came through in the week-end games and displayed the fight and ability that helped carry the Purple to the crown last year. However, the vets did not hog all the glory of the two victories.

A number of the sophomores and members of the squad last year uncovered surprising play, relieving the Frogs' mentor of two or three major worries, especially in the line. Spearman, Sumbier, Hammond, Oliver, Dennis, and Tiner, backs; Pruitt, Dietzel, and Salkeld, ends; Hirstine, Townsend, centers; Howell, Evans, Boswell, Vaught, Boyd, and Shackelford, all came through with some showy performances during the two tilts. The appearance of many of these youngsters bolstered Frog hopes considerably. Tomorrow's tilt with the Kangaroos will give them additional opportunity for valuable seasoning.

T. C. U.
Ends: Salkeld and Martin.
Tackles: Boswell and Howell.
Guards: Butler and Lambert.
Center: Captain Atkins.
Quarter: Leland.
Halves: Hinton and Spearman.
Full: Green.

Austin College.
Ends: Elliott and Kelihar.
Tackles: Aston and Davis.
Guards: Swartz and Woodson.
Center: Richardson.
Quarter: Brice.
Halves: Henderson and Lillis.
Full: Flewhardy.

Horned Frogs to Meet Kangaroos For 20th Time

Rivalry Covers a Period of Over a Quarter of a Century.

FROGS WON MAJORITY

The T. C. U. Horned Frogs and the Austin College Kangaroos will meet on the T. C. U. gridiron Saturday afternoon for the 20th time in the history of the two schools, according to available records at T. C. U.

This rivalry on the football field, covering a period of a quarter of a century, beginning in 1905, has resulted decidedly in the Frogs' favor. The Christians have won 14 of the 19 games that have been played, Austin College 5, and no games have been tied. On the total score for the 19 games played, T. C. U. has rolled up 319 points to Austin's 135.

Ten of the Frogs' victories have been shutouts, while the Kangaroos have succeeded in keeping their goal line intact on three occasions. The most one-sided victory for T. C. U. was back in 1917, when the Purple scored 59 points to none for the Sherman school. The greatest margin of victory for Austin came in 1911, when it carried off the honors by a score of 39 to 0. The closest game ever played between the two schools was in 1920, when the Frogs won by a scant two points, the score being 9 to 7 in their favor.

In the first game ever played by the Frogs and the Kangaroos—in 1905—the former won by the score of 21 to 0, and in the last game played (1928) T. C. U. was victorious by the same score.

In 1911 two games were played, Austin winning both, the first by a score of 39 to 0, the second by the count of 18 to 8.
