Coach Schmidt Is Honored by Year Book Dedication

ANNUAL THEME SPORTS

Outstanding T. C. U. Athletes of Past Given Recognition in Horned Frog.

The 1932 Horned Frog, issued to the students on Tuesday of this week, is dedicated to Coach Francis A. Schmidt and to the sportsmanship of the major events. The theme of the entire book is the important part that T. C. U. has taken in the sport field in the past few years.

The binding of the book is made of red-tooled leather, with a carviture of the new stadium of T. C. U. The side of the cover, along with the leaf, carries forth the theme by picturing the bonfire that was staked over the T.C.U.-S.M.U. game. The word is a colored sketch of the stadium as seen from the air and the dedication pages are pictures of the trophies presented to T. C. U. for winning the conference championships in football in 1929, and in basketball in 1931.

Campus Scenes Shown.

The University is presented in the various sections of the annual. Pictures of the various buildings and of important spots on the campus are included with a sepia blue. This section is dedicated to Mike Brumbelow, the graduate section of the book is dedicated and dedicated to John McArmist, captain of the tennis team 1930.

The senior section is dedicated to Able Atkins, captain of the 1930 football team. The juniors dedicate their section to Jimmie Wilson, who was golf champion in 1927 and holds the distinction of having won the championship of the Southwest conference for T. C. U. The sophomore section is dedicated to Jake Williams, captain and all-conference member of the 1928 football team, and the freshman section is dedicated to George, captain of the 1926 football team.

Eight Beauties Named.

The honor of having the beauty dedication goes to Bernard "Blackie" Williams. Williams was star fullback of the Horned Frogs during the years of 1925, '26, '27. The beauties are: Seniors, Misses Jane Davis and Janet Largent; juniors, Misses Eloise Barksdale and Irene Conditias; sophomores, Misses Lollie Batts and Camille Moore, and the freshmen, Misses Natalie Collins and Lois Higgins.

Grubbs and Matthews Honored.

In the athletic section, the football players are in honor of Howard Grubbs, the greatest quarterback and punter in the annals of T. C. U. football players. The basketball honors are dedicated to Raymond "Rags" Matthews, all-American end in 1928, the first to represent T. C. U. in the famous East-West games. The baseball pages honor Pete Donohue, the greatest pitcher that T. C. U. ever had and the minor section is dedicated to Merlin Toler, all-conference fullback in 1928.

Mice Play While Cats Are Away With Pre-juniors

"We're being kind to dumb animals today," said Miss Eula Lee Carter to an amphitheater filled with foreign language students awaiting a pre-junior. And sure enough they weren't. But there was entertainment. At the persistent instigation of R. L. Trimble, Miss Katherine Cannon came down off the top row to play a piano, which fortunately or otherwise happened to be in the room. She was followed by Miss "Pug" Elkins who played dreamy selections with the air of a martyr for a worthy cause (As if she were the martyr).

Miss Marian Tyson, Margot Shaw and Helen Clark relaxed their facial muscles and warbled forth on "Harvest Moon." All the while Evelyn Boswell was cramming enough of the Spanish vocabulary in her brain to talk for 24 hours without stopping. Somebody said she could anyhow—in English. When Owen Lipscomb left to take (or to be taken by) the Latin test, some brilliant sympathizer shouted, "Et tu, Brute?" And that threw such a lot of cold water on the situation that ingenuity took a downward plunge until it was practically nil.

"Winchell" Sees "Miss Sunshine" Illuminating Campus Shadows

A wise sage once said, "A little bit of sunshine is good for every home." Another wise sage, "Winchell" by way of introduction, believes that every university should have its rays of sunshine. T. C. U. is no exception to the rule. We have in mind a particular lass of widespread campus popularity whom we reverently dub "Miss Sunshine."

This certain party possesses about 5 feet 2 inches of vivacious girl-hood topped with an abundance of dark hair. Brown eyes peered innocently at us as we conducted this infamous interview. She speaks with a dialect that has the twang of the Missouri Ozarks. As the interview was conducted in the skyscraper atmosphere of the Medical Arts Building the altitude may have produced the "Show Me State's" voice.

Almost constantly surrounded by books, book-lovers and professors, "Miss Sunshine" ranks high in the junior class. A certain member of the senior class has for some time in the past taken sudden interest in books whenever our little ray of de-

Fond Aunts and Bible Is Source Of Middle Names

"What's in a name?" some one asked. "Nothing," has been the reply. Yet there must be something in a name judging from the number of students who have perfectly good middle names but never use them.

Among some of the middle names which are never used on the campus are those of Wren, which belongs to Miss Janet Largent, Beryl, which belongs to Wilfred Harmon, Dinee which is Jere Van Zandt's middle name, Samantha which is the middle name of Miss Sarah Stroud and Calcutt which gives to Ernest Reed the initials E. C.

A number of the middle names were of Biblical origin, among them being Harris Joseph Brewster, Jim Hosea Bailey, William Temple Anderson, Nathan Eli Frankel, Hubert Elijah Robison, and many Daniels and Johns. Other students apparently were named for a fond aunt or uncle or for some other relative desiring a name sake. Perhaps this accounts for such middle names as Harry Frizzell Burns, Louise Clough Burgess, Ernest Arle Brooks, Mary Ledyard Carter, Leona Leti McGill, Robert Beauchamp Miller, Charles Grinnell Donnelly and Dorothy Luticia Henderson.

Casper Sets New Hurdle Record

Timed at 23.2 in Lows And Is Frogs' High Point Man.

Led by Charlie Casper, who scored 10 1/4 points and set a new conference record in the low hurdles with the remarkable time of 23.2 seconds, Coach Mack Clark's thin clad took fifth place in the conference meet at Houston Saturday.

Casper's clocking is two-tenths of a second more than the standing world record.

He wrested the low-hurdle crown from Brown of S. M. U. who has held it since 1927.

With Red Oliver unable to compete, Casper was practically the whole show for the Christians. In addition to setting the new low hurdle record, he won the high hurdles with a 15-flat clocking and ran one heat of the sprint relay.

The other Horned Frog points were made in the following manner: Chappell, second in one mile and fourth in two-mile; Spearman, second in broadjump; Salkeld, third in discus throw; Wallace, fourth in the javelin, and the sprint relay teams composed of Phelps, Spearman, Casper and Houser, fourth.

A Bouquet for "Prexy"

President E. M. Waits is bringing to a close his seventeenth successful year as president of Texas Christian University. There is an old adage which states that "You don't appreciate a thing you have until you have lost it" and it certainly applies to college presidents.

We doubt seriously if the students and alumni of Baylor realized just how valuable President S. P. Brooks was to them until he had to vacate his chair and finally pass away. It is equally as dubious if those connected with Texas Tech realized how much they owed to President Paul W. Horn. Of course they realized in some vague sort of way that they had an outstanding man at the head of their school, but since they have passed on they probably realize it much more fully.

President Waits has won the heart of every college student and faculty member for the past two decades in T. C. U., and on the close of another successful year, it is altogether fitting to pass a verbal bouquet on to "Prexy" and let him know that we really appreciate him.

Memories

Now that the honeysuckle arbor is in bloom, we are beginning to realize some of the beauties of the T. C. U. campus. With the sun on the sycamores, and a thin moon above the bandstand, we awake to the obvious—to what we had failed to notice before. It is strange how we so often wait for the obvious to knock us down. We do not realize that beauty, slightly obscured, should be the more valuable for that very fact.

It is to be wondered if a great many seniors will not be sorry as the days go by that they did not realize back in the undergraduate days how lovely the long line of buildings and bare trees could be from the steps of the library on a misty day. Few of us will remember the stars above bare and wintry branches on the long walk from Brite to Jarvis. Then, too, there is the rather wistful little fruit tree on the path to Edmondson's. And going to a play in chapel through a pouring rain—a rain that blurred the campus lights to a misty glamor! If we had only known in time, these things might have made us just as good memories as the honeysuckle arbor on a May evening. And memories are among the best things that a senior can take with him.

The College Student's Religion

A favorite indoor sport of a number of our ministers is to weep and wail about the college student's attitude toward religion. The reason for the wailing is plain—they don't understand the collegians.

Sterling Brown, graduate ministerial student, has been making a study of the college man's religion all the year. His thesis dealt with this very subject and his observations and interviews revealed that the average college man is thinking much more about religion than the casual observer would think they are.

Dr. King Foster, who has been a regular campus-trotter for the past twelve years, has been on nearly every college campus in the United States—and he is optimistic about the college students' religion. He even goes so strong as to say that the college group is going to lead the world in one of the greatest religious Renaissances that it has ever known.

Mr. Public and Rev. Minister, give the college student time and he'll show you that religion is not as foreign to him as you might think.

Self-Sacrifice

This is the season of the year when seniors think in terms of caps and gowns and the price of a diploma, when freshmen who have remained a little homesick all these months begin to pack the year's souvenirs preparatory to the homeward trek, and fine arts students give their annual recitals. The public will turn out gratefully to see the seniors receive their diplomas; the home town probably will be waiting in a body to greet the victorious freshman as he disembarks from the train; but how pitifully few are those who come to do honor to the truly splendid work of the Fine Arts Department.

During the school months, and especially in the spring, T. C. U. offers the student-body and the general public a variety of musical and dramatic entertainment that is of the very highest type. Moreover, it is offered, in these recitals, without charge. It is not the young artist the individual is harming by staying away from the recitals. It is the individual's own self. Culture and beauty are within his grasp, but because they lie so close to him, he refuses to close his hand upon them. We human beings have a passion for a peculiar sort of self-sacrifice.

A Measuring Stick?

Are grades to be used as a measuring stick for the intelligence of the students? Are grades to be considered an accurate iron-bound something whereby the student's ability is measured? Are they indisputable and decisive guides for estimations of the student's ability? Just how near right is a professor when he gives a student a grade?

These and many more questions arise when the subject of grades comes up for discussion. But who is to answer these questions?

It is evident that they are not for the layman to answer, nor the student. Such questions should be taken into consideration by educators and given their most devout attention. Numerical and alphabetical grades have clung to education through all of its progress and advance, and probably should not be brought up without a better solution to offer. We have none. All we ask is that it be taken into consideration and given the best thought of the educators to determine if such is an evil.

COULTER'S COLUMN

WELL, you won't be bored with my column very much longer (loud applause). Next week will mark the end of 33 columns of bulloney this year (more applause). But next week you'll have to put up with about twice as much as usual (razzberries), because I've got a lot on my mind that I'll just have to say.

Food is one of the principal subjects for discussion every day in the year. For the past week food has been the discussion at three banquets. Monday night Natalie Collins hung on to the right arm and we went to the Horned Frog staff banquet. Food was on Johnnie Hirstine—and my lap.

TUESDAY night the junior class had myself and the other seniors (modest me) as guests at the junior-senior banquet. Just my luck, I was on the side of the table that got served last and they ran out of chicken before they reached ten of us.

It took them about 15 minutes to go out and kill a couple of chickens and bring them in. Mine was still kicking—but I didn't get the neck—then or later.

COUNTING my peas so that I would be able to write a line in the column about them, I found that I had exactly 23. Being wasteful, I left four on the plate.

But all joking aside it was a good banquet. The program was excellent and (I hate to say this, because it might hurt my grade) Dr. Elliott made an excellent after dinner speech while I watched (and listened) the candles drop, drip by drip.

THERE was only one thing wrong with the whole banquet—we were all cheated—the waiters forgot to serve the salad. And the bad part about it is that it was already fixed and paid for.

Those who arranged the affair are to be complimented on making such a success of it and if the junior class of next year treats the seniors as royally as the seniors were treated this year—they'll really have a good time.

WEDNESDAY night the Dana Press Club had a banquet of chop suey and eggs for young. After waiting for the eggs to young to get a little riper, we started eating something or other. If anyone at the banquet table knew what he was eating, he must have gone back the next day and watched the cooks prepare the food.

We ate in an American restaurant, were served Chinese food and the food was served by a Mexican waiter. That will be a good place for the International Relations Club to have a banquet.

THE remainder of the column will be made up of excerpts from columns of the year: And you can always tell a good freshman by the rules he breaks. . . Poise is the ability to look nonchalant when you are copying the day's problems from a fellow classmate. . .

"Don't ever yell out 'Hey' to a woman driver," says Lon Evans. "She may be a grass widow." An example of the fellow who killed the goose that laid the golden egg is the modern industrial employer who lays off his men and then wonders why people don't buy. . .

THE most foolish thing in the world is to worry. . . Let the sun set upon a spirit that carries on and on and on. . . I am speaking the minds of some dozen or so of my friends when I say that honestly you have too much of your own gab in the paper.

There's a surprise in this week's Skiff. We have editorials in it. . . "I've got a Buick," said Billie Dickey. . . No, I haven't been in back of Jarvis now for about two weeks, so I can't tell you whether your girl got those pajamas you sent her or not. . . Your present column is just so much print. . . Do you prefer blonds or brunettes? . . .

By the time you get out of college you have become pretty well settled in your ideas as to what type girl you would like to have. . . Standard Lambert likes to write editorials on roaches. . .

Douglas Fairbank's Picture Takes Screen at Worth Over Week-End

Douglas Fairbanks, Wynne Gibson and a new Fanchon and Marco Stage Idea come to town over the week-end. Al Sky and his boys are still at the Casino.

It's Tough to Be Famous is the title of the latest Fairbank's picture which comes to the Worth for three days starting tomorrow.

The new stage show is titled Nursery Rhymes. Novel stage effects and the Sunkist beauties are starred in this feature. Maurice and his modern rhythm plus Ewen Hail will have two special numbers over the week-end. A good all-round bill is promised.

The Strange Case of Clara Deane will start at the Palace Sunday for four days. Clara Deane, the character portrayed by Wynne Gibson, serves fifteen years in prison as an accomplice in a robbery committed by her worthless husband.

In addition to Miss Gibson, the cast includes Pat O'Brien, Dudley Digges, Frances Dee, George Barbier, Russell Gleason, Clara Blandick and others. Tense drama is promised in this flicker.

Al Sky's orchestra continues to draw large crowds at the Casino on Lake Worth. Many high school and college classes and societies are holding their annual parties at the Casino grove where electric lights, benches, tables and a pavilion are furnished without cost.

The beach is open every day and night. Warmer weather is expected to crowd the beach. Under the new dancing schedule dancing is nightly and every Sunday afternoon.

By ELBERT HALING

Ted Husing is in the hospital recovering from an appendicitis operation. . . Dean Leftwich absolutely refuse to broadcast the story of his recent hospital experiences. . . Blushing CBS executives had Joe change his necktie instead. . . Kingsbury & Howell—a great television team.

Those Boswell Brats slipped off last week-end for a vacation down to Sulphur Springs, Va. . . Paul Tremaine doesn't want his wife visiting him at the Villa Richard, where he makes music nightly. She can spend her evenings in better company, he says. . . Russ Columbo has a smoother voice than Crosby and—who cares? . . . Prof. Ridings has a youthful radio dialer, Paul Overton by name. . . Heard last night: "Who Takes Care of the Care-Taker's Daughter?"—a song. . . Weber and Fields will go on the air soon. . . All CBS employes will undergo a 15 per cent salary cut June 1. . . Professors take heart. . . Lost about 6 hours sleep trying to hear the Akron's short wave radio. Result: heard static. . . Will The Skiff have a radio column next year, we are asked? "Our Pome"

RECOMPENSE Life has no secret, vivifying meaning. It is not spread to trap and bewilder us.

A vain struggle after futility. Love is a mockery—a mere re-dressing of our selfishness.

Friendship is a wharf rotten at its base That falls and throws us into destruction

At the slightest pressure. Happiness is a self-imposed delusion. Nothing is real but pride and indifference,

Stolidity in the face of all life offers, Realizing the trickery—

All this I believed until— I saw a dewdrop, jewelled by the sun, Hanging upon a web spun between two cloistered lilies.

And then, within me suddenly came into being, An ecstasy of understanding:

I am Reality. I am Life: the dynamic current within me is its secret.

I am Love: my giving is its glory. I am Friendship: my fidelity is its power.

I am the sun: before me hangs the web of life, lusterless. Within me is the power to jewel it— Love—friendship—vision! Exquisite loveliness.

Thus am I recomposed. —Vera Bell Stephenson. (Ex-Student)

ANN GORA'S CAT NIPS

Thelma Lavender tried to put her elbow in a coffee cup at the junior senior banquet, but the cup was too small. Hal Wright had an extra good time at the banquet. Someone told us, we'll bet. When the cat's away the mice will play — Louis Floyd — that typical freshman — visited Horris Diggie last Wednesday night. My, my, my Joseph Cowan has an extra way in his hair this week. . . and do you ever see Mary Louise Gillia without a smile on her face? And we'd like to know who Shunshine Glasgow rushed at the dance the other night? Irene McCommas didn't get in the way late after the junior-senior banquet. . . Margaret Reeder got in an hour ahead of her. Next year's Skiff should have plenty of co-operation. Ernestine and the business manager have a ready appeared quite interested in the office. Knock before entering please. Clyde Yarbrough and wife got two gowns the other day — caps and gowns, I beg your pardon.

SPORTORIALS

By STANDARD LAMBERT.

THE curtain dropped on two more athletic seasons, last week and considering the circumstances, both were terminated in a blaze of glory. First in importance was the Meyer-men's victory over the Texas Longhorns and second was Charlie Casper's feat in the conference track meet. The fact that the Christian's fought to the last breath, even when defeat seemed inevitable, is the highest compliment that can be paid them. It is even a higher compliment than their place in the percentage column.

Too much praise cannot be heaped on the shoulders of Charlie Casper for his feat of negotiating the low hurdles in 23.2 and establishing a new conference record. He has worked diligently for many years perfecting his form, he has trained conscientiously all the spring and has had a desire to win that predominated his personality in every race.

He is a victim of cruel circumstances that prevented his being the greatest hurdler in the nation today. In the highs, it's a physical defect in the form of comparatively short legs; and in the lows, his comparative slow speed hurts him when in real competition. The ideal low hurdler would be a combination of Casper's perfect form with Oliver's natural speed.

IT WAS altogether fitting and proper for the 1932 Horned Frog to be dedicated to Coach Francis Schmidt. Schmidt works harder at his business than any man that I ever saw in any business. He does not work eight hours like the working man; nor as the farmer, is his work from sun to sun. When he's trying to win a championship, he does not take the clock nor the sunset into consideration. One would have but to see his bloodshot eyes the day of a football game to be convinced of this. While the athletes are sleeping, he is figuring out every possible avenue through which victory might be attained. Next year, with the great material that he has, he should and probably will win a championship. Those "old heads" on that team really want a "football with a 'rock' in it" and will train and fight for it.

It is not uncommon to find protest, both verbal and printed, against the college athletes. They are attacked on the ground that they are paid; some charge the athletes with passing their work without effort; others look unfavorably on the newspaper publicity given them, while some even begrudge them the popularity that they enjoy on the campus.

THERE'S no doubt about a degree of truth in all the charges, but don't forget that they pay dearly for every inch of publicity, for every smile from the co-eds and for every penny that they may receive from their jobs. If the athletic director could order new parts to replace the ones injured in athletics, his 1932 order would look something like this:

- Ben Boswell—1 left leg and 1 right elbow.
- Foster Howell—1 set of cartilidges for right knee.
- Lon Evans—1 pair of good shoulders.
- Dan Salkeld—1 right ankle.
- Pap Pruitt—New skin—sizes 6 in. 25 in to graft on burned leg.
- Red Oliver—1 set of hip ligaments to fit left hip.
- Doc Sumner—Enough skin to cover entire palm of left hand.
- Ad Dietzel—1 year of schooling (His marriage would have never been revealed if he hadn't been a "big shot" in athletics.)
- Dick Houser and Red Oliver—1 set of muscles to fit right leg.
- Bob Preston—1 right ankle.
- Track team—2 doz. assorted shins for shin splints.
- Football team—1 square of skin 2x12 feet for use after games and practice; 10 gallons of red blood.

They get some rewards, but don't ever forget that the dancers still pay the fiddlers.

Meyermen Make Clean Sweep of Longhorn Series

End 1932 Season With 8-to-7 Victory Over Steers.

GAME IS WON IN NINTH

Heavy Hitting by Walker, Graves and Dennis Fatal to Steers' Hopes.

By STANDARD LAMBERT

The Texas Christian Horned Frogs ended the 1932 baseball season in a blaze of glory in Austin Friday when they rallied in the ninth inning to defeat the conference leading University of Texas Longhorns 8 to 7. The victory gave the Frogs a clean sweep of the Longhorn series and will force the Steers to win one of their two remaining games with Texas A. & M. today and tomorrow in order to regain the crown that they lost to the Aggies last year.

Kinzy allowed the Dischman an even dozen hits, but his mates' eight hits off the delivery of Taylor and Winton were bunched in the third, fifth and ninth innings to put over a scant one-run victory.

When the Frogs came to the plate in the final frame, they were one run behind. After Donovan and Snow had tried fruitlessly to get on base the fans began to leave the park conceding the Steers a victory and championship. By the time Flash Walker had a "three-two" count on him, they were sure that the ball game was over, but the flashy sophomore decided to get a double on the next ball pitched, Jack Graves followed with a single and Hubert Dennis pulled out another double, scoring both of them and making the score 8 to 7. The Texas fans decided to stay and see the rest of the ball game, but Kinzy got rid of the Steer batters in quick succession and the Meyermen left the park with the knowledge that the probable champions fell before them in both contests.

Curry Extends Library Time to Return Books

Although the student response to the library's offer, made last week, to receive long due books without charging the usual fine has been slight, Arthur Curry, librarian, said Wednesday that the box placed in the lobby of the library to receive the delinquent volumes will be left there through next week.

Frogs Are Out on First Golf Round

Lawrence Floyd, expected to carry T. C. U. in the Southwest Conference golf fight in Austin last week, upset the dope bucket by missing a short putt for an 84. He was one over the qualifying score.

Jim Bailey, not conceded much of a chance, came through with flying colors and shot an 80. This put him in the fight, but he had the misfortune of drawing O'Hara Watts, the defending champion, in his first round pairing. Bailey was defeated 3-2.

A. D. Weatherly, captain, turned in the other qualifying score for the Frogs but he also drew a champion in Dennis Lavender. Lavender defeated Weatherly 8-6. Ray McCulloch failed to qualify and Mack Jenkins did not make the trip.
