Dance on Campus Will Open Senior Activities May 26

Official Permission Is Granted by Administrative Group.

To Be in Cafeteria

Future Social-Function Policy Will Be Worked Out In Summer.

A dinner dance, the first such affair ever to be given as an official University function, will be held in the University Cafeteria Saturday, May 26, as the opening function of Senior Week.

The privilege of giving the dance was granted to the Student Council and the Senior class this week following a request made at a meeting of the University administrative committee by a committee of council members and the president of the senior class.

Four on Committee.

Members of the committee which made the request were Roy O'Brien, president of the student body; Miss Mary Jarvis, secretary-treasurer of the student body; Nat Wells, senior class president, and Bryant Collins, senior class president.

In a letter received by the council Wednesday, President E. M. Waits announced that the committee's request for the dance had been granted.

In the letter, addressed to "the members of the Student Council," President Waits, acting as spokesman for the administrative committee, said:

"At a meeting of the Administrative Committee of Texas Christian University May 10, a request was made by a joint committee of the Student Council and the senior class to allow the senior class the privilege of having a dance on the campus following a scheduled senior banquet.

"The request of the committee from the Student Council and the senior class is hereby granted by the administrative committee."

"The policy for the future social activities, including dancing on the campus, will be formulated by the administrative committee, the social committee and a representative from the Student Council during the summer and will be announced at the opening of the University in September."

O'Brien Makes Statement. In a statement to The Skiff concerning the granting of the privilege by the administration, Student President O'Brien said:

"Several times during the course of the year members of the Student Council have conferred with the administration relative to the social life on the campus. In every instance the administration has been most sympathetic and deeply concerned. The policy has been greatly liberalized this year, and whenever it has been possible to grant a concession without sacrificing the ideals and best interests of the University the concession has been granted.

"The administration has now extended a special privilege to the senior class. The Student Council is indeed grateful for this action and feels confident that the members of the senior class and the student body at large will manifest their appreciation by conducting themselves in response to it in such a way as shall assist the administration in dealing with the social policies of the campus in the future."

Birthday Greetings to:

- Sunday, May 20 James Bradshaw. Monday, May 21 Virginia Kingsberry, Mildred Kelly. Wednesday, May 23 Frances Hutchings. Thursday, May 24 Verna Berrong, Fred Cassidy. Friday, May 25 Leona McGill.

Graves Deposed Champ of Goode Checker Players

The residents of Goode Hall have a habit of changing game fads every time the moon changes. The great fad around the senior dorm nowadays is checkers. There is only one checker board in the hall, and what a time the men have scrambling for a seat at the board.

This time last spring a card game known as hearts was in full bloom. Following this game, came the old reliable, bridge. It seems that when a new game can't be found the men always resort to bridge. Somebody always has a deck of cards. Sometimes the cards are good and sometimes they are bad, but regardless of the shape they are in, they always serve the purpose.

Following the bridge fever, along came a baby game which was played with a small rubber ball and a wooden paddle. No definite name was ever given to this amusement but everybody went down to the drug store and purchased one of the games.

Came the fall and no new games, so the men pulled the cards from their hiding place and found a table and a bridge session was under way. Then somebody got a checker board for Christmas and everybody has the checker craze.

The game first came to life on this campus in the Clark Hall parlors, with Herman Pittman and Paul Hill serving in the roles of champions. Jack Graves tottered off to the younger building one night and decisively defeated Hill and Pittman and reigned as the champion until Wallace Myers, Flash Walker, Hoy Harrison, Jewell Wallace and several other Goode-Hallers found that they, too, could compete with the clever play of the mighty Graves.

Now Graves is a mere second-rater, due to the fact that every member of Goode Hall now is a chartered player of the game, looking for competition.

Journey to Moon Or Star; Forget Exams Are Near

Are you getting a bit restless after being tied down to the limits of a university campus for nearly nine months? If you are, the means of escape is just across the street from the campus.

The instrument of escape is the big 10-inch portable telescope which is set up on the vacant lot north of the library. You can make a visual journey to the moon, some 238,000 miles away. Or, if that isn't far enough, there is Jupiter, a mere 600,000,000 miles distant. And Jupiter has four moons that you can see through the telescope—how's that for romantic possibilities?

If you want to get still farther away from the thought of final examinations, there are any number of stars available, 30, 40, 50, or so light years away. If you want to translate a "light year" into miles you simply multiply the number of seconds in a year by the number of miles which light travels in a second—186,324 miles (and we hope, for the peace of mind of the science department, that this figure is right.)

Sidelights on Workings of Houston N. R. A. Compliance Division Told by Miss Lou Blumberg

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following article was written by Miss Lou Blumberg, who was a junior in the University this year and dropped out of school Easter to work as secretary to the Labor Compliance Officer of the N. R. A. in Houston.

By LOU BLUMBERG These two months which I have spent with the National Recovery Administration have been fascinating from many standpoints. The N. R. A. itself is a breath-taking project when studied at close range. It is thrilling to be making history instead of spending hours reading it. But the source of constant interest and stimulation which I find here is in the never-ending stream of people who pass through this office daily; and these people, from all walks of life, with their various problems, are at times as amusing as they are thought provoking.

Following my first week here I thought Houston's population must be made up entirely of underpaid waitresses and overworked truck drivers, so many alleged violations of these two codes did we receive. The first conference at which I was asked to be present involved a restaurant owner who was not observing the hour and wage provision of his code. I was instructed to note carefully all that he said so as to have a complete record of his statements for our files for future reference.

With a notebook before me and pencil in hand, I awaited, his each and every word. . . and he began to speak furiously fast, with many gestures of both hands, in Greek and broken, very broken, English, vehemently denying whatever charges we might have against him. At the end of ten minutes my notebook was boldly blank and my pencil was considerably chewed upon—and the Greek sounded as if he were good for many minutes more. When he was finally successfully interrupted, I gathered that the N. R. A. officials had understood very little more than I had and so I held up handing in my resignation for the time being. Negroes are rather frequent visitors to our headquarters, and a great deal of exploitation of the negro is revealed by the frequency with which they have to ask for aid from the N. R. A. I recall particularly one emaciated little black man who came in to see us. His thin face was almost obscured by heavy-lensed, tortoise-rimmed spectacles; and an immense gold tooth in his upper right jaw protruded ostentatiously. He was all energy and determination as he sat himself down in the office and started talking to the N. R. A. officer.

"Yassuh, I've wukkin sixty hours a week, and the boss don't pay me but $5 an' sometime he don't pay me that. . . But tha's better 'n nuthin' and I don't wanta lose my job, 'cause I've a family man. Don't tell him who done made this complaint. He won't never think it's me, and if he say anythin' I'll jus' let on like I don't no nuthin' 'bout it at all." And with many shufflings of his feet and wavings-of his hands he proceeded to tell the N. R. A. officer just how to go about collecting back wages for him and making adjustments in his present wage and hour provisions without incriminating him in any way. The N. R. A. officer listened respectfully until the darky had worn himself out. When the negro was ready to leave, fully assured that everything would be done to get his money for him without its costing him his job, he was a picture of happy expectancy.

"Is this your hat, August?" I asked him, pointing to an old felt that was on my desk. "Nosuh, miss. I don't wear no hat. I've a furriner and I don't never wear no hat." "Where were you born, August?" "I's from Haiti, miss. Yessuh, I've a furriner."

And the light shone on his heavily rimmed spectacles and his gold tooth as he bowed himself out of the office. Hardly had August got on the elevator when a big man, in his shirt sleeves, his stomach hanging over his sagging blue serge trousers, was ushered into the office. "Whose the boss of this here office? I'd like to see him," he said, looking at me with piercing black eyes under shaggy eyebrows, half covered by a black slouch hat.

"Yes, sir. Did you want to make a complaint?" I asked, meekly. "Wa-al, no. They got a complaint against me, and I'd like to see about it: I 'low as how I'll straighten it out all right just as soon as I can see somebody about it." And so I took him into the proper office. His hat stayed on his head as he shook hands with the N. R. A. officer. He sat down and leaned (Continued on Page 4)

Progress

The University administration this week granted to the Student Council and the senior class the privilege of holding an official dance on the campus during Senior Week.

Each of the three years has seen a more liberal social program and more privileges granted to T. C. U. students.

President E. M. Waits, speaking for the University administrative committee, has announced that a definite social program, including dancing on the campus, will be worked out during the summer and presented to the students next September.

T. C. U. officials realize that social life is as important a phase of university life as is any other phase. The University is progressing.

There's Work to Be Done

Monday the 1933-34 Student Council will formally end its duties for the year and will turn the reins over to the councilmen who have been elected to serve next year.

This year's council has made accomplishments. It has reached an agreement with the administration for the holding of a dance on the campus. It has given the Students' Association a new constitution.

However, the retiring council has necessarily had to leave work undone. It has paved the way for the accomplishment of other things which, if finished by the new council, will benefit the student body still more.

All these jobs will have to be finished by next year's Student Council. Retiring Student-Body President Roy O'Brien will furnish the new council with a report of the work the council has accomplished this year and the work the council has had to leave unfinished.

It will be up to the Student Council of 1934-35 to finish the work that has been begun.

Public Service

A news release of the Associated Collegiate Press says that curricula in Public Service will be inaugurated at the University of Kentucky in 1934-35. In addition to regular curricula leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Public Service, for preparing students to enter the field of public service after graduation, the program, as outlined by officials of the university, will include institutes at intervals throughout the year for the training of persons already holding public positions.

If such movements spread generally to universities over the country, politics and government, which have come to be somewhat looked down upon as professions because of the type of persons who have controlled them in recent years, stand to rise to the high place they should hold in the category of careers.

Politicians—politicians in the lowest sense of the word—have controlled government too much. Young persons with new ideas have shunned politics, to enter other fields of endeavor. But with such courses as that offered at the University of Kentucky being opened, young people, well-trained, will enter public service. Injection of this new life should give politics and government a much-needed revival.

White Shoes

Comes spring, and with it the curse of the male populace—white shoes. To be in style in spring or summer, it is imperative that men and boys wear white or two-tone shoes. To wear solid black or tan shoes to a social function would be to bring on oneself stares and veiled whisperings throughout the function.

White shoes can be worn only once to a cleaning, and cleaning them is labor of the severest kind. They manage to become smudged and blackened by touching any object whatsoever, whether it is really dirty or is spotlessly clean. In his constant striving to keep from dirtying his precious shoes, the wearer works himself into an extreme state of self-conscious nervousness every time he wears the milk-colored curses.

But enough of this suffering-citing. The writer has to go clean his white shoes so he can wear them tonight.

Looking Toward Next Year

The school year is practically over now. There is neither a chance nor a need for the University administration's taking any action to provide a recreation, reading and social gathering room for boys and girls this year. However, it is time to be looking ahead toward next year.

That such a social gathering place would relieve the library of students who go there not to study but to talk to friend or friends, and that it would make for greater friendliness among students are obvious facts. With the present school year ending, the time for action in preparation for next year is here.

The summer months would be an excellent time to fit out and prepare such a social gathering place. Next year would be started right if such a place were ready when school opened.

Starts Friday GEORGE ARLISS -in- "THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD" Hollywood

Amusement ABOUT TOWN

By ROY BACUS

The Worth's offering for this weekend is the sophisticated screen play, "Glamor." Paul Lukas and Constance Cummings are starred but honors also go to Phillip Reed, who supplies the musical romance. Reed is one of the newest musical recruits to Hollywood. Along with the talkie is what is said to be one of the best stage shows of the year—"The Dancing Honeycomb."

Today George Arliss comes to the Hollywood in "The House of Rothschild." Critics consider this latest production to be even better than "Disraeli." The production is handsomely produced and is authentic in every detail. The elaborate costumes worn by the stars were hand-made, and the final scenes are in Technicolor. George Arliss' performances are always worth while.

The Majestic continues its policy of showing two pictures daily. Saturday's offering is "Bolero" and Zane Grey's "The Last Roundup." In "Bolero," George Raft is featured as a colorful dancer who rises from cheap music halls to the most lavish cafes on the continent, treading on feminine hearts to reach his goal. Also Sally Rand does her famous "fan dance."

One of the most unusual pictures of the year is coming to the Palace Saturday. It is "Eskimo." It took 100 men two years in the Arctic to make it. Mala, the Eskimo lover, fights in a combat, without weapons, with a savage Siberian wolf. In another scene he has a struggle with a ferocious Polar bear in the icy seas. The picture is packed with thrills from beginning to end.

Two Bandmen Thrown in Jug For Indecent Exposure on Trip

By RAYMOND MICHERO If nothing else was gained from the Horned Frog Band's trip to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention at San Angelo this week, bandmen at least learned that it doesn't pay to be late for band formations.

A lesson in promptness was given Wednesday morning when two bandmen, Ed Fleming and Charles Braselton, were late to a parade. Nothing was said until after the parade, but the fun (for the rest of the band) came on the return to convention headquarters.

On reaching the "hangout" somebody suggested that the offenders' trousers be taken off. Most of the band went for the idea and immediately "piled on" the two. In a few minutes the trousers were removed, and their former wearers were dragged out into the street. There a policeman, who had been summoned by other bandmen, was waiting to arrest them for appearing on the street indecently clad.

The patrol wagon was called, and the two law-breakers were taken to the rest of the "thugs." Two hours later Prof. Sammis persuaded the chief of police to release them on promise of good behaviour.

Bandmen have all agreed that this was the best trip they have made in several years. They were received with more enthusiasm than any other band attending the convention.

Some evidence of the success of the trip may be seen in the size of two large signs brought back as souvenirs of the trip. If enough space can be found these will be hung on the walls of the band-house.

Scandalous B. B. A. Picnic, Ampersand in Today's Ramble

By LOUISE CAUKER

Our Campus Ramble is going to ramble off the campus a bit right now to tell you about how the B. B. A. picnic Wednesday afternoon would have scandalized the neighborhood had there been a neighborhood around. Prof. Ballard knows his students when he schedules that affair way out in the country at Vera Connell's ranch.

Why, "Knees" Trimble threw Fred Cassidy's shoes into the swimming pool; Bud Taylor spent the afternoon practicing trick riding stunts on the back of a pretty horse; while Trimble was in the pool in a borrowed bathing suit (it was the property of Bill Anderson) someone did a good job of hiding Knees' trousers. His Honor Bear Wolf in one of his lighter moments dived into the pool in his street clothes, shoes, hat and all; and later His Honor showed that he couldn't do on horseback. "W. W." Truelson impersonated King Kong in the pool, on the baseball diamond and at the refreshments table.

Vera Connell was a gracious hostess; La Verne Brunson was dressed in red; Mary Jarvis had a headache, and Eddie Jo Simmons almost got hit by a baseball.

A good time was had by all.

Back to the campus for an item or two about Ampersand. You never heard of it? Here's its definition: the honor society for senior women that is coming from the dim background of formation into the active life of complete organization.

Back in 1932, 16 senior co-eds petitioned the faculty to let them organize an honor society for senior women, with a view to petitioning for membership in Mortar Board. And so we have today Ampersand, meaning "and other things."

The active membership this year has been composed of Miss Janelle Bush, president; Miss Lollie Botts, treasurer; Miss Mary Anderson Bowden, project chairman; Miss Irene Cassidy, secretary, and Miss Virginia Oliver, publicity chairman.

At a buffet supper Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Sadie Beckham on Princeton Street, 14 new members were initiated. The supper was given by the sponsors of the society, Miss Lide Spragins, Mrs. Gayle Scott, Mrs. Beckham, Miss Eula Lee Carter and Mrs. Colby D. Hall.

Senior women initiated were Misses Anniel Phares, Louise Briscoe, Elizabeth Henry, Corinne Lewis, Elna Winton, Evelyn Green, Mary Louise Witherspoon and Louise Cauker. Juniors were Misses Eddie Jo Simmons, Helen Veatch, Margaret Combest, Nina Whittington and Florence Fallis and Mrs. Jane Schroeder. Miss Natalie Gorin, senior, has also been extended a membership invitation.

Assisting in the initiation service were Misses Clotilda Houle, Dorothy Conkling, Bita Mae Hall, Lamoyne Lawrence, Virginia Bryson, Botts, Cassidy, Bush and Anderson. Miss Elizabeth Shelburne was present at the ceremony as a guest.

Scholarship and participation in collegiate activities are the fields in which co-eds must qualify before receiving an invitation to join the society.

Arle Brooks Made B. C. B. President

Arle Brooks was installed as president of B. C. B. for 1934-35 by Dean Colby D. Hall at the annual banquet last night at the University Club. About fifty were present. This was the last meeting of the season.

The Rev. Perry Grasham spoke on "Together We Stand."

Granville Walker was toastmaster. The annual surprise feature for the seniors, held secret until the night of the dinner, was prophesying the future for the 19 seniors in verse form by Otto Nielsen and the presentation to the seniors of cartoons drawn by Dan Morgan.

At noon the first annual issue of the Yellow Peril was distributed and at 5 o'clock a tea was given in Jarvis Hall honoring faculty members, presidents of student organizations and members of the Journalism classes in Fort Worth high schools.

Dr. W. C. Morro spoke on "Friendship." George Cherryhomes, retiring president, outlined the "Purposes and Goals of the Club." Elton Beene played trumpet solos. Prof. F. E. Billington gave the consecration prayer and Fred Miller pronounced the benediction.

WHEREVER the finest tobaccos grow — in our own Southland, in Turkey, in Greece — all over the world, we gather the very Cream of the tobacco Crops for Lucky Strike. And that means only the clean center leaves. The center leaves are the mildest leaves — they taste better and farmers are paid higher prices for them. These clean center leaves are the only ones used in making Luckies. Then "It's toasted" — for throat protection. And every Lucky is fully packed with these choice tobaccos — made round and firm, free from loose ends — that's why Luckies "keep in condition" — why you'll find that Luckies do not dry out — an important point to every smoker. ### Burr-Head's SPORT GOSSIP

By CHARLIE CASPER

WELL, that's all and there ain't any more. The Froge athletic season for this school year is over. One championship and a lot of "moral victories." Our season wasn't so bad. We won the pennant in basketball, finished well up in the race on the gridiron and on the diamond, but failed to fare so well on the clay courts, the cinder oval and the fairways.

Some of the losses which we suffered still linger as a bitter taste on the sweet buds of a tender tongue, while the memories of those slashing victories remain as a climax to a college career for several senior athletes.

The fourteen senior athletes who will bid ole Froge land farewell have many pleasant memories to cherish during the years of life which they have yet to cover. They can proudly boast of the school's first baseball championship last season. They can tout their horns about the grid title won in '32. They can crow about the cage crown won this year. It's true that there have been many downright heart-breaking defeats, but those defeats can easily be erased with the memories of victories over S. M. U., Baylor, Texas and the rest of 'em in the league. Those were sweet and can't be forgotten overnight.

These four years have all been grand and glorious but this time next year the boys who carried the Purple and White colors this season will be mere heroes in the past. Occasionally one will call back and say, "Oh, yeah, I remember that guy; he went to school here... let's see was it last year or the year before." It seems impossible that such could actually happen but it will. Ask some old timer about such men as Howard Grubbs, Mike Brumelow, Cy Lealand or Red Oliver and see how long it takes them to tell you when they were here. I'll tell you, it takes 'em quite a spell.

I've been thinking, as have the other 13, that I'd be glad when the four years roll by, but sure enough, I ain't. I'm just wondering what I'm gonna do during the coming four stanzas.

I suppose that some of you are still wondering who the young baseball prospect is that I was talking about last week. Well, I'll tell you. It's none other than Slimzy Kinzy. The way I understand matters, Slim will report to the Chisox sometime this summer. The Sox will then farm him out to the Galveston Bucs and season him there for a year or so. Then he'll be called in for heavy duty. Congrats, Slim, and may the old arm stick to you, cause it'll come in handy from now on out.

Slim well deserves what he received. He's got the stuff and can produce it. His roommate, Wallace Myers, was accorded a similar welcome this week when he was given a position with a prominent oil company, which will allow him to play baseball and at the same time bring home the bacon.

Christians Finish In Third Position

Aggies Win Championship—11 Baseballers Letter.

The Horned Frog baseballers ended their season last Thursday and Friday afternoon by splitting a two-game series with Baylor University.

In the first game of the series Darrell Lester pitched the Frogs to a 6-to-4 victory over the Bruins. In the season's closing fray, the Christians were handed an 8-to-3 drubbing at the hands of the Bears.

The Texas Aggies won the Southwest Conference championship with a percentage of .750. The Longhorns finished in second place and T. C. U. finished in third place with the record of six games won and six lost. Baylor occupied the cellar berth throughout the season.

Coach Dutch Meyer has announced the following players as lettermen: Capt. Flash Walker, Boaz Hoskins, Jimmy Lawrence, Taldon Manton, Slim Kinzy, Dan Harston, Jimmy Jacks, Wallace Myers, Warren Logan, Lester and Paul Donovan.

7 Intramural Golfers Remain in Tournament

Second-Round Matches Must Be Completed Today, According to Knox.

With the completion of the first-round matches Tuesday, seven students were left in the intramural golf tournament, which is being played at Worth Hills Golf Course.

The second-round matches must be played by today. The winners in these matches will enter the semifinals, according to Walter S. Knox.

Final matches must be played by Monday, Knox said.

The freshman class won the intramural swimming meet, held last Monday in T. C. U. pool, with 23 points. The seniors were second with 17 points. The sophomores and juniors failed to score.

Bruce Scrafford carried off the honors for the first-year men by winning the 100-yard free style, 40-yard free style and the 40-yard back stroke events. Roland Balch, senior, won the fancy diving contest.

The senior team, composed of Jack Langdon, Bud Taylor, Keith Pickett and Balch, won the relay event.

Sidelights on N. R. A.

back, balancing himself on the back legs of the chair, his right hand fingering a heavy gold chain that looped from one of his shirt pockets to the other.

"I come to find out 'bout that letter you wrote me. I'm runnin' a little garage down here. Don't do much business and haven't got many men workin' for me, but thought as how they wuz all satisfied. Who done this complainin'?"

When the labor compliance officer explained that he was not authorized to give the name of the complainant, but that it was alleged that he was violating the code of fair competition for his industry by not paying code wages and observing code hours, he pompously informed the officer that he had never signed the code and didn't know a thing about it. Nor could he understand that he was subject to the code anyway, regardless.

"Wa-al, I reckon I'll have to see my attorney about this here matter." And so he stalked out of the office, hat still on his head.

In marked contrast to these two interviews was a conference held later in the day. An elderly man came into the office to keep an appointment which he had made with the N. R. A. official. His gray business suit was entirely in keeping with his silvered hair and his pleasant voice and congenial manner.

"We want to do everything in our power to abide by the President's plan for recovery, sir, and if we have violated the code for our industry there has been a mistake through ignorance on our part. Either we have misinterpreted the code, or our interpretation does not coincide with yours, and we are happy to have this called to our attention. If our men had come to us," he said, "We would have corrected this situation just as surely as we are correcting it through your agency. We would like for our men to know this."

This man was head of a large establishment; and while the amount of money due his employees in back wages was proportionately small, he knew how much it would mean to each man on his payroll to get that extra bit. This man's office manager was with him, as was another of his employees and the respect they had for him and his opinions was a real tribute to his integrity. When he left the office, I felt that he had caught the vision behind the President's Recovery Plan.

These three men represent three of the many types who contact us daily. It seems that there is always a bit of laughter, even where there is exploitation resulting in hunger and want; and the black August not only made me laugh, but he laughed at himself a little, when he thought of "putting one over on the boss."

Up to the present time, there has always been the "chisler" who wants to see his attorney and buy his way out, rather than face the issue squarely. Some say there have always been men of vision, and perhaps so—but they have been sparingly scattered through the centuries. Perhaps this National Recovery program means vision for all men.
