Bouquets for Clubs. Proud of Dramatists. "Open-Shirted" School. Orchestra Appreciation

By Doris Perry

All year I have been wanting to give certain organizations on the campus a pat on the back.

A bouquet goes to the Dramatic Club for presenting plays well, by good authors.

The club has done the unusual thing of making a financial success of its productions.

A student in writing the preface for the poetry anthology called this an "open-shirted prairie school."

The Poetry Club is the aesthetic part of the University.

Another bouquet goes to the Poetry Club for fostering poetry on the campus.

The Frog Forensic Fraternity has set a high mark for activities for the last 10 years.

The team has had debates with some of the major schools of the United States, including the University of Pittsburgh, Redlands and Florida.

All of the debaters will be back next year. A bouquet to the members for being invited to the Pacific Coast Debate Tournament.

The orchestra practices twice each week just to be able to play a special selection for the students in chapel.

There are persons who would like to hear the music without the whispering accompaniment.

Being a journalism student, I find The Skiff my major interest.

Nine Are Initiated By "T" Association

Nine new members were initiated into the "T" Association Wednesday night.

The new rule passed this year, giving conditional letters to golfers and tennis players.

Saam Likes Job, But Finds Names Difficult to Say

The only difficulty Byrum Saam is having at his new job as sports announcer for radio station WCCO, Minneapolis, Minn., is learning how to pronounce the names.

"The people are not like the Southerners and the names are rather difficult to pronounce," Saam writes to the members of his former business law class.

But Saam, a junior here when he signed a contract April 1 and left KTAT for his new position, is already well established and well liked in the Northwestern city.

"My duties at present," the letter continues, "are to announce the baseball games each day, carry a golf show twice a week and take all special sports broadcasts."

Next fall Saam will announce all the University of Minnesota's football games. Minnesota opens the season with a tilt with Washington University in Seattle, Wash.

"I have watched the Minnesota football team in spring training, and I can see why they haven't been beaten in three years. They have been at it now for six weeks and they are big and tough. There are 80 out for training."

Future prospects for the sports announcer, whom Ted Husing rated one of the best in the country, are bright.

"At this station I have a golden opportunity to advance down to New York in another season or so—but I must work hard. I'm taking an audition this month for the World Series, which will be broadcast in September."

In Honor of 20 Years Service

On the night of May 29 a dinner is to be given in honor of President E. M. Waits, who has served the University for the past 20 years. Although this dinner will be next Friday night during examinations, the students have been invited to attend.

Not only the student leaders, but the entire student body should attend this dinner. President Waits has been a great asset to the University in the 20 years that he has served it faithfully. He has been responsible for much of its progress and has aided greatly in making the University what it is today. The students should attend this dinner in honor of our president and make it a success.

Reservations may be made in the business office at the University.

Students Protest Against Chiggers

When the Southwest Journalism Congress met at the University of Oklahoma last month, the president of that University told of an incident which recently occurred on his campus.

In an effort to stop women students from smoking, his administration passed a regulation which stated that women of the university would not be permitted to smoke "in any of the university buildings or dormitories." He and other members of the faculty were pleased with their regulation, for it was well received and immediately began to be enforced to the letter.

One chilly evening, however, the president and his wife were taking an after-dinner walk. When passing one of the girls' dormitories, they noticed, back under a clump of trees, what appeared to be the lights of some 40 or more fireflies.

On investigation, however, they found that the lights were not fireflies, but the lights of cigarettes. Girls in the dormitory, not wishing to break the administration's new ruling, had come outside in the chill evening air to have their evening smokes.

Not wishing to endanger the health and lives of his students by forcing them out into the cold, the president immediately began a movement to have the regulation removed so the girls could spend their evenings in the dormitories without danger to their health.

This editorial is not intended as an effort to have the T. C. U. administration permit girls to smoke on the campus. However, our administration did pass a regulation recently, which forbids boys and girls to sit on benches on the campus at night. As a matter of fact, the benches have recently been removed from the campus.

We are afraid that this regulation is presenting the same type of difficulties as those presented on the Oklahoma campus. Some of the boys and girls say that the grass in front of and behind Jarvis-Hall is infested with chiggers, which make it very uncomfortable for those sitting on the grass.

Then, too, students have found it inconvenient to leave the campus in order to find a place to sit. The University could help a great deal by replacing the benches on the campus and removing the nonsensical ruling.

New Council Members Must Be Alert

Members of the Student Council, elected for next year, met for the first time with the outgoing Council this week. This one session perhaps gave the new members some idea of what goes on in Council meetings and what they are going to have to do next year.

They are going to be faced with many new problems and with some which will overlap from this year. The questions of a co-operative bookstore, membership on the Council, and the student activity tax are sure-fire issues for next year which are going to have to be met with serious and profound thinking.

The new members are all representative students and capable of carrying on the work which this year's Council has endeavored to accomplish. But they must realize their new responsibilities.

Whenever new problems arise, they must weigh the facts, form their own opinions and act according to what they think is right. Above all, they should be and know what is happening on the campus.

T. C. U. Follows Right Road

Should schools teach the facts about all forms of government, including socialism, facism and communism? That question is becoming more and more important every day with the increasing interest that is being taken in international affairs and the strategic point that is being occupied by nations adopting the socialistic, fascistic and communistic forms of government.

In a poll conducted recently by Dr. George Gallup, director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, 62 per cent of the voters said that schools should teach all of the facts about all forms of government, and 38 per cent were opposed to this plan.

It amounts to freedom versus tradition. The former group will lead the way to a newer and better understanding of world affairs and a possible appreciation of the other person's viewpoint; the latter wants to cling to the uniformed past, believing that American children should be protected from the ravages of socialism, etc.

Those who would teach the facts do not necessarily want to see another form of government adopted in the United States. In some cases the facts might actually work against rather than for the new government. But the facts would give the student something upon which to base his decision. He would not be forced to depend upon biased opinions.

Schools today hope to make good world citizens out of their students. With facts for a basis, many disagreements and misunderstandings could be avoided and perhaps some of the causes of war.

T. C. U., by allowing the facts to be taught, by permitting freedom of expression, is following the trail to a better future for American students.

Bewildered Writer Roped In On Experiment With Light

By JONES BACUS.

It happened at 11 a. m. Tuesday in a dark store room in the chemistry laboratory.

Dr. J. L. Whitman told me he had a little experiment that he wanted to show me, and Tuesday was the day that I arrived to observe. Dr. Whitman took me into the store room and started telling me something of the experiment that he was going to perform. I watched his actions closely and this is what he did.

He took .05 grams of 3-aminophthalhydrazide and then mixed a little sodium hydroxide with it. Sodium hydroxide is what is commonly known as lye. He then took another container, put a little potassium ferrioxalate and hydrogen peroxide into it and mixed this combination up. Then is when the fun began.

Dr. Whitman pulled the shades down and put something heavy on them so that everything was in total darkness. By this time I had begun to wonder what it was all about. He told me that it was always more fun to experiment on the person he was showing the experiment to, and that was me in this case. Well, I didn't know quite what to think. I didn't know whether I would have to drink the solutions or not, but I was willing to take a chance, so I told him to proceed.

He then poured a little of one solution on my hands and told me to rub it all over my hands. I did this and then the real action took place. Dr. Whitman poured some of the other solution over my hands and purple light appeared in my hands. Some of it ran off my hand and splattered in the sink. Imagine light just flowing around. Well, that is what it was doing, and in a few minutes it turned green. Finally, the light disappeared and Dr. Whitman began to explain what had happened.

He told me that the chemical re-

Senior Chapel Is Success As Girl Calls Skit 'Just Darling'

This is the second to last column that your dirt editor has taken upon himself to write. Dirt is dirt and even if some people don't like it the action, and not the story in the paper, is usually the cause of the ripped reputation.

Goode Hall parlor presented a sad picture to its occupants Wednesday night. Nine men were lounging in the parlor awaiting the "T" initiation that was to befall them a little later in the evening. The members of the association were equipped with canes, baseball bats sliced in two, switches and what have you. . . the nine men who were to be taken in carried solemn faces while the members laughed and joked. As the dirt editor writes this, explosions can be heard expounding from the Gymnasium. . . the boys are taking it like "little gents," because not a squeal can be heard.

Seniors Await Week Filled With Nine Pleasant Events

BY ROSEMARY COLLYER

Students on the campus who are not seniors are just out of luck. During the senior week which begins Tuesday evening, the rest of the campus will still be shrouded in dead week while the glorified seniors will be through with their last exams.

As I have said before, senior activities will begin Tuesday evening with a program in front of the Library, at which time Johnny Knowles will present the class gift and Elmer Seybold will read the class prophecy.

Class officers and student body officers for '36-'37 will be formally installed, and Jones Bacus, editor of the Greater Horned Frog, will dedicate the annual. Immediately following, the annuals will be given out.

Wednesday night is the night of President Wait's annual garden party for the graduates. Seniors and their dates always look forward to this garden party throughout their entire four years in the university. The garden party will be followed with a theater party at the Parkway.

So far the seniors will have been entertained befitting visiting royalty, but Thursday night will come a further pleasure for them when they will be the honorees at a dinner dance at the Lake Worth Casino. Ace Brigode and his orchestra will furnish music for the occasion.

There will be a bridge party in Jarvis Hall Friday afternoon for the girls who are graduating. Refreshments will be served after the bridge party. Friday night will be the night of the annual senior picnic.

There will be a breakfast for the graduates Saturday morning in the University Cafeteria; the Baccalaureate services will be Sunday morning in the University Christian Church; and a tea in Jarvis Hall Sunday afternoon. The last round-up will be Monday night, when the seniors assemble to receive their long-awaited sheepskins.

In mentioning the activities for senior week, I omitted mentioning the fact that after the dedication of the annual in the library Tuesday night the members of the Horned Frog staff will have their annual banquet at the Texas Hotel.

Art Appreciation Group Gives Fund to Class

Next year's art appreciation class will have more to work with and more to appreciate as a result of the efforts of the class this year.

The members of the class presented Dr. Merrell Clubb with a fund with which to purchase material for future class use at the last meeting of the class Thursday night.

Pres. Waits to Be Host At Garden Party

President E. M. Waits will be host to the seniors at a garden party from 7:30 to 9 o'clock Wednesday night at his home 2929 Princeton Street.

Miss Katherine Moore will give a greeting to the seniors, a string quartet composed of Miss Doris Commander, Miss Margaret Sanders, George Graham and J. C. Neel will play, with Miss Lucile Snyder as piano accompanist.

Earl Nichols Elected Parabola President

Earl Nichols will no longer arrange Parabola programs. He will direct them, as he was elected as next year's president at a called meeting Monday night.

Other officers elected were Miss Lillian Young, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Marjorie Volkel, program chairman. Professors C. R. Sherer and Elizabeth Shelbourne were re-elected sponsors.

This was the last meeting of the club until after school is out. Miss Helen Stubbs, retiring president, however, has announced that there will be a Parabola social immediately after exams.

Miss Candlin Elected Ampersand Head

Miss Dorothy Candlin was elected president of Ampersand at a meeting of the club Tuesday afternoon in the history seminar room of the Administration Building.

Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Miss Helen Stubbs; secretary, Miss Dorothy Coffman; treasurer, Miss Anne Cauker; project chairman, Miss Marjorie Sewalt and publicity chairman, Miss Genevieve Papineau.

Miss Lide Spragins is sponsor of the club.

Home Economics Club Has Luncheon

Miss Bonne Enlow was given a nightgown at the Home Economics Club luncheon Friday at the home of Miss Eugenia Chappell.

Miss Enlow will take a trip to Hawaii this summer, and the gift was a "going away" present from the club members.

Those who attended the luncheon were: Misses Naomi Davis, Eda Mae Tedford, Graca Nichols, Helen Ruth Braselton, Minnie C. Griffin, Elizabeth Moore, Helen Giese, Enlow and Chappell, and Meses. Louise Robbins, M. E. Chappell and Jean Fallis Stow.

Los Hidalgos Elect Miss Adams Head

Miss Helen Adams was elected president of Los Hidalgos last week when the club had a picnic at Inspiration Point, Lake Worth. Miss Eula Lee Carter, club sponsor, presented the seniors with gifts.
