EVENTS AND INFORMATION FOR THE TCU COMMUNITY

VOL. 5, NO. 5

SEPTEMBER 20, 1999

Green Chair nominations announced for this year

A NUMBER OF PROMINENT SCHOLARS will be on campus this year as visiting Green Honors Professors... a program established by Drs. Cecil H. and Ida Green of Dallas.

The economics department will host Dr. James K. Galbraith, professor of public affairs and government at the University of Texas at Austin, for lectures here Nov. 18-19. He holds degrees from Harvard and Yale and studied economics as a Marshall Scholar at King's College, Cambridge and served in several positions on the staff of the U.S. Congress, including executive director of the Joint Economic Committee. He is national chairman of the Economists' Committee for a Decent Minimum Wage.

Dr. Tom Blenkinsop will be the guest of the geology department in late spring.

The Englishman is a member of the geology faculty at the University of Zimbabwe and is widely recognized for his work in structural geology.

The political science department has invited Dr. Susan J. Carroll to participate in the annual TCU Women's Symposium March 29-30. She is a member of the Center for Women and Politics of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University.

The School of Education has invited Stuart L. Brown, M.D., as its Green Chair nominee. Dr. Brown has a distinguished career in psychiatric medicine and is a recognized authority on the role of play and creativity in the prevention of violence.

The College of Fine Arts and Communication will have renowned composer Marlos Nobre of Brazil as its Green Chair lecturer and keynote speaker for the Latin American Music Festival in mid-April. He is one of the top Latin American composers living today.

Dr. Linda L. Putnam has accepted the invitation from the speech communication department and will be here to lecture Oct. 18-21. She is a professor of speech communication at Texas A&M University.

The honors program will host Dr. Robert Pinsky, current poet laureate of the United States, as Green Honors Professor and Honors Week speaker April 11-15.

He is a professor of English at Boston University. ♦ companies anchored in the Alliance development. The facility, currently under construction, is scheduled to open in mid-October.

"TCUglobalcenter turns the traditional education model on its head. Instead of designing a traditional, prepared regimen of courses and faculty that we 'sell' to the community, we will design our programs in response to the demand of our constituents. We won't be limited to the traditional Monday through Friday, September through May academic year. Our constituents will shape our campus," said Kirk Downey, associate provost and executive director of TCUglobalcenter at Alliance.

TCUglobalcenter at Alliance will be located in 16,000 square feet of space on the ground floor at Heritage Commons, also the division offices of Hillwood, the developer of Alliance. The facility will feature a 72-person, state-of-the-art tiered classroom; two 30-person classrooms; two large conference rooms; and "teaming areas," flexible meeting/classroom spaces that can be configured at will to suit the individual needs of the group. A 2,000-square-foot reception area and marketing center will be occupied jointly by TCU and Hillwood to showcase their facilities and programs. Fort Worth-based architects GideonToal created the modernistic design.

TCUglobalcenter will staff five full-time employees, including Kirk, two professional staff and two clerical staff. All faculty will be contracted on an as-needed basis. TCU will be the primary source for faculty, according to Kirk, but faculty may be contracted from other universities in the area and around the country to meet specialized instructional needs.

"Building stronger partnerships with the community was one of the ten objectives I outlined when I arrived at TCU last summer. This announcement is one giant leap toward achieving that goal. TCU is committed to serving the needs of the broader population in Tarrant County, and will continue to explore opportunities for community partnerships that expand our reach in meaningful ways," said Chancellor Michael R. Ferrari.

Now celebrating its 10th anniversary, Alliance houses more than 70 companies, including 21 from the Fortune 500. The 9,600-acre development is anchored by the world's first industrial airport in north Fort Worth.

Art in the Metroplex at Moudy with 17th year of groundbreaking art

THE 17TH ANNUAL ART IN THE Metroplex exhibition opened on campus Saturday in conjunction with Fort Worth's popular "Gallery Night" activities. The show will be up in Moudy Bldg. exhibition hall through Oct. 17.

Juror Clint Willour, executive director/curator of the Galveston Art Center, selected 58 works by 51 regional artists to be included in the show.

Fort Worth artists represented include Carol Benson, Beth Lea Clardy, Matt Clark, Ann Ekstrom, Nancy Lamb, Jo Ann Mulroy and Jessica Neary. ♦

Luxembourg Wind Quintet will play free concert in PepsiCo Recital Hall

THE WIND QUINTET OF THE Luxembourg Conservatory will perform a free, public concert at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 28 in the PepsiCo Recital Hall.

The decade-old group is composed of professional musicians, all of whom are renowned soloists nationally and internationally. Their appearance here was arranged by the Luxembourg Embassy since Mary Coutts Burnett Library houses an extensive collection of Luxembourg materials founded by Dr. James Newcomer (vice chancellor emeritus). The Luxembourg ambassador was a visitor to campus last year.

The musical program will include works by Joseph Haydn, Franz Danzi, Norbert Hoffmann, Mozart, Denes Agay and Jacques Ibert. ♦

Faculty/staff golf tourney coming up Oct. 8

THE ANNUAL FALL BREAK GOLF Tournament for all TCU faculty and staff is set for 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 8 at Hidden Creek Golf Course. The format will be a four-person scramble with a $35 entry fee.

Allied Theatre Group offering discount package to TCU faculty, staff

STAGE WEST AND SHAKESPEARE IN THE Park have announced their first combined season under the name Allied Theatre Group. The two companies will officially merge Oct. 1, just before the season opening Oct. 8.

ATG is extending its teacher discount to all TCU faculty and staff, offering a nine admission season ticket for $90 or a six admission ticket for $76 (regular price is $144 and $96 respectively). To purchase tickets or to receive a season brochure, phone ATG at 784-9378.

This premiere season includes nine plays, seven at Stage West and two at Shakespeare in the Park.

The Stage West season opens next month with Thornton Wilder's brilliant vision of American life, Our Town. In November, Joe Orton's outrageous comedy Loot is scheduled. Anna Deavere Smith's Fires in the Mirror will follow in January, starring Be Boyd of the TCU theatre faculty. Shakespeare's Macbeth is on tap for February.

April at Stage West will bring the Alan Ayckbourn comedy Man of the Moment. The next production is the alternately comic and touching New York hit Visiting Mr. Green, starring Stage West founder Jerry Russell in the title role. The season closes with a celebration of the life of an extraordinary woman: Pride's Crossing by Tina Howe.

At Shakespeare in the Park, the summer festival season will present King Lear, followed by A Midsummer Night's Dream.

As with Stage West and SITP season tickets in the past, Allied Theatre Group season subscribers will have great flexibility in using their admissions. There will be no dates or seats to choose in advance, and season tickets may be used for up to two admissions for any play. ♦

Religion department group events this week

CHI DELTA MU, AN ORGANIZATION OF students and faculty sponsored by the religion department, is hosting two events this week.

A noon luncheon today in Student Center 205-206 will include a talk by the Rev. Dottie Cook, associate pastor of South Hills Christian Church. Her topic is "Women in Ordained Ministry: A Disciples Perspective."

The first movie in a free fall film series will be at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 21 in Beasley Hall, room 206. Darren Middleton will lead the discussion after a screening of The Trip to Bountiful, starring Geraldine Page who won an Oscar for her performance. ♦
