Neeley School changes signal future growth

BOB LUSCH, WHO ASSUMED DUTIES AS dean of the M.J. Neeley School of Business June 1, has announced appointments for new positions as senior and associate deans.

Bill Moncrief, who served last year as interim dean of the Neeley School, will become the senior associate dean. His duties, which also began June 1, include overseeing the Executive MBA (EMBA) at the TCU Global Center and the non degree granting courses at the Charles Tandy American Enterprise Center at the Neeley School; establishing relationships with Neeley alumni; and directing internal administration of the school.

Charles Greer and Charles Williams, both professors of management in the Neeley School, will serve as the associate dean of graduate programs and associate dean of undergraduate programs, respectively. Greer's role is to enhance the quality of the graduate curriculum, improve resources for students and find ways to utilize instructors and staff more effectively. Williams oversees the undergraduate curriculum and student club activities, and the renovation or addition of new physical structures at the Neeley School.

Bob Lusch will arrive on campus July 1. ♦

Dirt flies as crews work on summer construction

SCAFFOLDING, CHAIN LINK FENCING and barricades have made their traditional summer appearance on campus, signaling another round of improvements and new construction.

Edd Bivin, vice chancellor (administrative services), has provided a list of projects already under way or soon-to-be-started:

- Site preparation for the Tucker Technology Center begins July 1.
- Justin Athletic Center is due to be completed in August, with football and athletic offices relocated there and a subsequent relocation of offices within Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.
- The Brite housing construction at McCart and Sandage is on schedule and due for completion by early December.
- A renovated Foster Hall will open to students on the August move-in date.

Three major projects are in the planning stages:

- Designs for an improved and enlarged Student Center are under consideration.

■ Designs for an improved and enlarged recreational center are under consideration.

■ A master plan for academic facilities is being created with input from faculty, department chairs and deans to provide guidelines and a grid for accessing present facilities and needs for the future.

Infrastructure improvements include the following:

■ Installation of fire and disaster alarms in a number of buildings, as well as sprinkler systems in Ed Landreth, Reed and Winton-Scott Halls, is part of an ongoing program to improve safety in campus facilities.

■ Renovation of stage rigging in Ed Landreth Auditorium and University Theatre.

■ Improvements to electrical system on Worth Hills campus and East campus (Beasley, Moore, Moudy, Library).

■ Replacing heating system in Winton-Scott that supplies heat to much of East campus.

■ Enlarging water line that supplies Amon Carter Stadium and Daniel-Meyer Coliseum.

■ Structural repairs to Amon Carter Stadium.

■ Major roof replacement to Ed Landreth Hall, Moore, Beasley, Starpoint School, Ballet Bldg., Bailey Bldg., Dan Rogers Hall, Health Center.

■ Re-piping, new paint and carpet in Clark Hall.

■ Rework Sadler Hall offices of financial services and first-floor restrooms.

■ Classroom improvements ♦

Tucker Technology Center groundbreaking today

A GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONY FOR the William E. and Jean Jones Tucker Technology Center will be held today at 5:30 p.m. on the lawn between Sid W. Richardson Building and Anne Richardson Bass Building.

Chancellor Emeritus William E. Tucker and his wife, Jean, will be joined by current Chancellor Michael R. Ferrari, members of the TCU Board of Trustees and other invited guests in breaking first ground on the $25 million facility.

The 86,700-square-foot center will house the dean of the College of Science & Engineering and the technology-driven engineering, computer science and mathematics departments.
