

ROSE BOWL SOLD OUT FOR NEW YEAR'S GAME

Bill Henry Says—

FUNNY, isn't it, how guys throw away their opportunities. Now there's the case of my old pal Jock Sutherland, the tall dour Scot who does the master-minding for the University of Pittsburgh's football team. He's a right smart feller, the doc, and back there in September when I stopped off in Pittsburgh on my way home from the Louis-Baer fight, he gave me the impression that he had in mind beating the Trojans on December 14 and thereby securing himself some small measure of revenge for past mistreatments.

PITT'S TEAM COMING RIGHT ALONG

We talked there in the Pitt athletic offices under the huge grand stand which is built over a burning coal mine, and then we went up to the practice field and had a look at the boys. They were a lot of piano-legged guys of great possibilities but very little varsity experience. "I think," said Doc after due hesitation, "that by the time we get out there to Los Angeles we ought to have a pretty good football team unless we have some bad luck." That's feverish optimism for a conservative Scot like Doc.

DOC SUTHERLAND AS AN AUTHOR

But now, having given the Trojans the first bite by the simple method of writing a piece for one of the big national weeklies, Dour Jock Sutherland rolls into Southern California on the morrow with his Pittsburgh football team. Any coach who contributes to contemporary literature on the subject of football is practically giving away a touchdown to the opposing team. Why? Don't ask me. It just seems to happen.

WRITING DOESN'T HELP GRID COACHES

Harry Kipke contributed a couple of articles a year ago and scarcely won a football game all year with his Michigan team. Since that time a long string of gridiron thinkers have written themselves into a lot of trouble. Other outstanding examples are Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago and Harry Stuhldreher of Villanova. About the only guy able to successfully combine literature activities with coaching is Fritz Crisler of Princeton who circumvented the jinx by writing almost entirely about the alumni and carefully avoiding discussion of football.

GREEN GRIDDERS HAVE GOOD RECORD

Despite the comparative inexperience of Doc's lads they have managed to come up with quite a record. They bowed to Notre Dame, 9 to 6, when the Ramblers were at their best and they were tied by Fordham and Carnegie Tech though they outplayed both. But they massacred Army, beat Nebraska, ended Penn State's unbroken winning streak and, barring Stanford, have the best defensive record of all the country's major teams, only 21 points having been scored against 'em. That's pretty fair country football.

SPEAKING OF NAMES, HOW'S THIS?

I am particularly interested in seeing the thick-legged young man who boasts the most unfootball name I know of. This is Pitt's Signor Dante Dalle Tezze. Can't you just picture some fond mamma hanging a name like that on her little darling, meantime picturing a rosy future as a sculptor or perhaps a grand opera tenor? And what does he turn out to be? A 190-pound running guard, of all things! And, what's more—a mighty good one. He's an earnest, underslung gentleman who has probably worked harder than anybody on the Pitt squad and when I saw him was wheeling out of the line and romping out in front of his halfbacks like a fire horse whooping out of the station for a three-alarm blaze.

PANTHERS ROLL UP LOTS OF YARDS

Doc's boys are certainly yardage makers. Even when they played a tie game on Thanksgiving Day they made twelve first downs to one for their opponents but an icy field made it tough to handle the ball and to keep on their feet. This time the conditions are likely to be just the opposite and Doc is coming out nearly a week early so as to be in the best of shape. Revenge! Doc wants it!

ST. MARY'S WINS, 18-0

Long Run Gives Gaels Victory

Hugh Sill Runs 67 Yards in Second Quarter to Chalk Up Winning Points

KEZAR STADIUM, San Francisco, Dec. 8. (AP)—St. Mary's Galloping Gaels mowed down the sturdy opposition of a game but outclassed University of Oregon eleven today to defeat the football team from the north by the unexpectedly large score of 18 to 0.

Timing their sharp breaking reverses to click with a precision that had been looked for all season, the Gaels looked like a championship team from the time they kicked off until the final gun saw them push over their third touchdown.

LINE CRUMBLES

The famed left side of Oregon's powerful line, numbering two All-Coast members and flanked by Stanley Riordan, an outstanding end, crumbled time and again before the slashing thrusts of St. Mary's hard-hitting backs. The Gaels showed no respect for either Left Tackle Bjork or Ross Carter, the latter considered one of the outstanding guards in the Far West.

Held scoreless in the opening quarter, although piling up five first downs, the Gaels started rolling in the second quarter. A touchdown followed the most sensational run of the game. Hugh Sill, sub right half, was the hero of the dash. He took the ball on a reverse and scampered around the Oregon left end, running 67 yards to score, meanwhile being assisted by fine blocking.

GOALS MISSED

The Gaels missed two field goals in the third period, one from the 27-yard line and the other from the 37. Herman Meister, regular tackle, had been rushed in for the attempts but his usually accurate toe was off range each time.

Two touchdowns mounted the total as the Gaels swept the Oregonians off their feet with goalward rushes in the final quarter. The first resulted in an intercepted pass by Quarterback Perry, giving St. Mary's the ball on Oregon's 28. Herb Schreiber, first string left half, carried the oval over from the 5-yard line.

TRY FAILS

With seconds to play, the third touchdown was posted, with two substitute halfbacks, O'Laughlin and Hallman, on the pitching and receiving end, respectively, of a 15-yard pass. St. Mary's missed scoring another touchdown by a matter of 18 inches, after having blocked and recovered Riordan's punt on the Oregon 26-yard marker. The period also saw a third field goal try fail, with Kellogg, sub quarterback, booting a low placement from the 36-yard line.

It was the sixth victory for St. Mary's in seven annual games and the third time Oregon has been shut out.

It was the third defeat of the season for Oregon, which ended its schedule today. St. Mary's, which has lost only one contest but tied two this year, will finish up next Saturday here against the University of California at Los Angeles.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN GRID PARTY STOPS OFF HERE

Coach "Dutch" Meyer Says, "Santa Clara Has Best Line of Any Team We've Played"

BY JACK SINGER

Battered and bruised, team-weary Texas Christian's football squad pulled into Los Angeles last night at 8:20 p.m. for a twenty-four-hour stopover here on their way back to their native haunts of Fort Worth.

The team, led by Head Coach L. R. (Dutch) Meyer and R. B. Wolfe, athletic director and line coach, took up headquarters at the Hayward Hotel.

CARTER HEADS PARTY

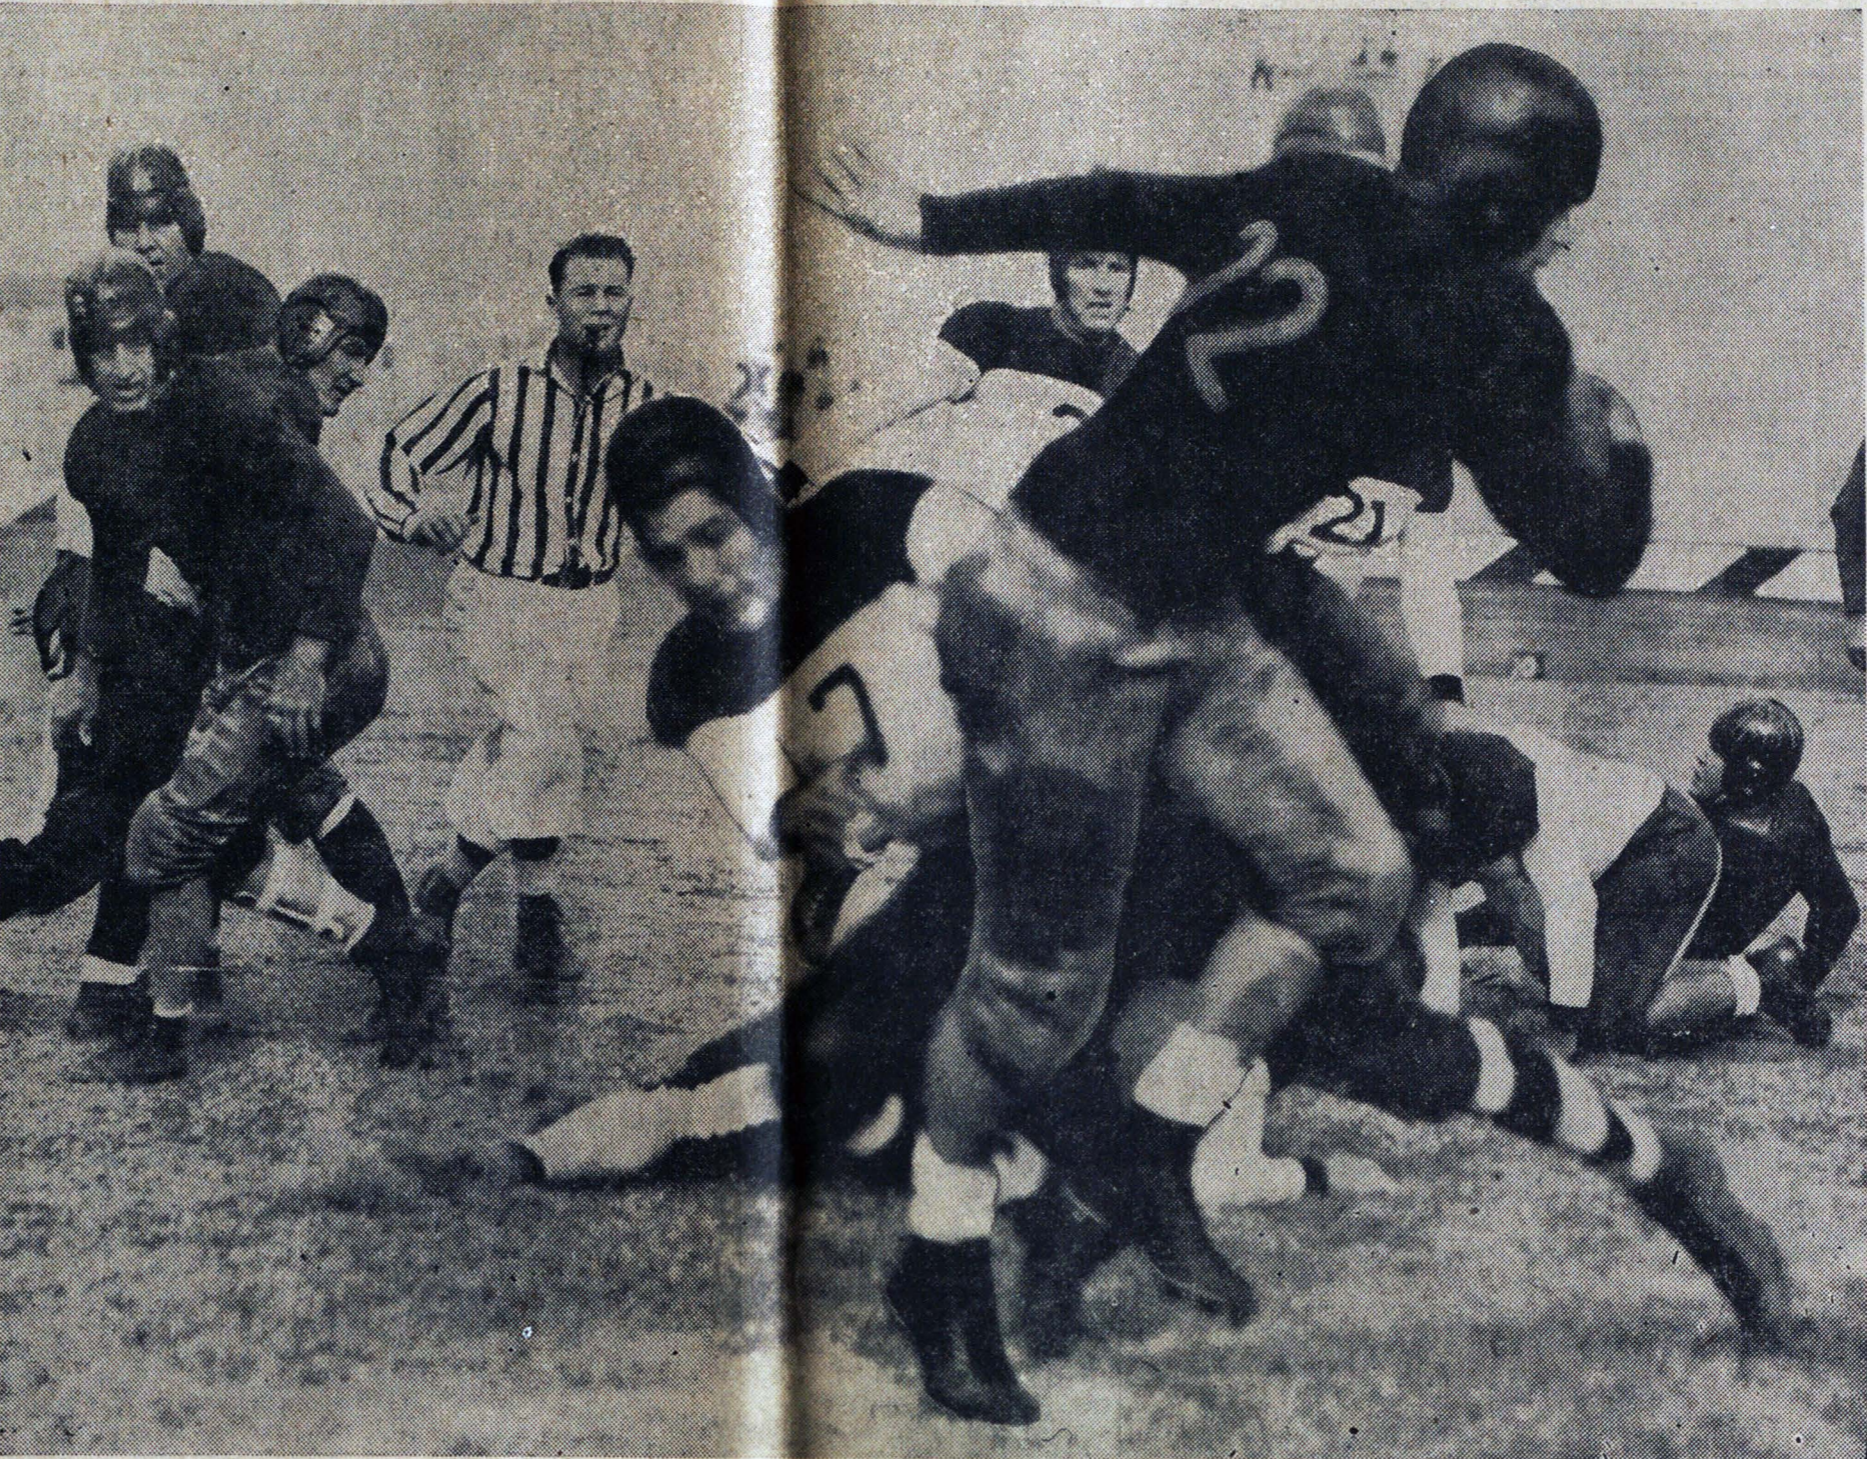

Amon Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, headed a huge and hilariously happy delegation of Fort Worth rooters and well-wishers who accompanied the team to San Francisco, where the Horned Frogs polished off Santa Clara by a 10-to-6 score Saturday. It was the first intersectional football jaunt to the Pacific Coast for Texas Christian.

The team, adjudged on a par with Southern Methodist, which plays Stanford in the Rose Bowl, will arrive home Wednesday morning and start work immediately for their Sugar Bowl date with Louisiana State New Year's Day at New Orleans.

Cal Used to Block for Glory, but Packs Ball for Gold Now

Cal Clemens, who was a great blocking back at Southern California, has blossomed out into a great ball carrier as a member of the Maroons, local pro team. Here's Clemens ripping off a short gain against the Braves yesterday. Bud Pozzo (7), Braves back, is making the tackle.

Discovery, Cavalcade Renew Rivalry Here

Stall Reservations Received for Vanderbilt Horse; Brookmeade Ace Heads West December 20

BY PAUL LOWRY

The Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt horses will soon be on their way to Santa Anita from Maryland. This was indicated yesterday by receipt of a wire at offices of the Los Angeles Turf Club requesting twenty stall reservations, one of which will be for the wonder horse Discovery.

With the departure of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable, headed by Cavalcade, set for December 20, from Charleston, S. C., the renewal of the Discovery-Cavalcade feud of 1934, seems assured.

DISCOVERY NOW TOPS

Cavalcade beat Discovery every time they faced the barrier together last year. With Cavalcade on the side lines from injuries this season Discovery has regained supreme, winning eleven out of eighteen races, eight of them in a row and one in new world's record time. Vanderbilt has nominated three horses for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap to be run next February 22—Discovery, Good Harvest and Scotch Bun.

Good Harvest is a 3-year-old son of Epinard-Blossom which Vanderbilt acquired by purchase from the B. E. stable early in the season, right after he had won the Rome Memorial Handicap at Bowie.

He is a speedy trick and has two other important stakes victories to his credit—the mile Jerome Handicap at Belmont, where he beat Whopper by a head and ran the distance in 1:36 1-5, and the one and one-eighth mile Yorktown Handicap at Empire last in October.

You gain the best line on his ability by recalling that it was Whopper which split Top Row and Discovery in the Massachusetts Handicap.

Scotch Bun, the other Vanderbilt eligible, is a 3-year-old Colicolt which broke his maiden at Laurel on October 9 and has not won since. Stable connections, however, must be high on him because after running the colt in one $3000 claiming race they have sent him postward thereafter only in allowance events.

TROY GRIDS GET LAY-OFF

Resume Practice Tomorrow for Pittsburgh Game; Jones in North

BY BRAVEN DYER

Not because of what they did against Washington but more on account of what they didn't do, the Trojans will take the day off today. Tomorrow practice will be resumed for the final local game of the season which brings Pittsburgh to the Coliseum.

Jock Sutherland and his Panthers arrive in Southern California tomorrow morning and will spend their time at the Norcorian Club, near Corona.

JONES IN NORTH

While his players are resting, Howard Harding Jones will be in San Francisco, attending the annual winter meeting of the Pacific Coast Conference. Jones left last night and will return tomorrow morning.

It was perfectly obvious Saturday that the Trojans were not up to the form they displayed against Stanford, Washington State and Notre Dame. Washington was clearly the better team and deserved to win, but the Trojans made a mess of their three big scoring opportunities and with more fire and better direction would have scored at least twice.

TROJANS WERE STALE

Last week I wrote that the boys looked a bit stale and this proved to be correct. In commenting on the game Saturday, Bob Zupke, 11-

Braves Trip Maroons in Wild 21-14 Game

Shipkey's Eleven Capitalizes on Breaks to Upset Favored Pro Grid Rivals Before 6000

BY FRANK FINCH

Breaking out in a rash with a 15-point splurge in the final quarter, Ted Shipkey's Hollywood Braves won a thrilling battle from the Los Angeles Maroons, 21-14, yesterday in an American Legion pro football game at Gilmore Stadium.

Approximately 6000 fans were in the stands to witness the first big defeat suffered this season by Harry Edelson's supposedly invincible Maroon and Gold machine, made up largely of former Trojan stars.

CUBS NEXT

By virtue of their stunning win the Braves will play the Westwood Cubs next Sunday, the winner of that game meeting the Maroons a week from Sunday to determine which paid-to-play local outfit will engage an imported eastern pro team here on January 12.

Only by exhuming the drop kick, an almost forgotten offensive weapon, from football's graveyard, were the Braves able to upset the highly touted Maroons. Trailing, 12-14, with only a few minutes to go, the Braves drove deep into Maroon territory on a 58-yard pass gain, Fred Canrinus taking Johnny Arrambide's heave and running to the Maroon 26 before Cal Clemens spilled him. Several running plays failed to gain, so little Gil Lefebvre, 140-pound Brave halfback, was rushed into the game and proceeded to boot a perfect drop kick from the 26-yard line to give the Braves a 15-14 edge.

SETTLES ISSUE

This boot clinched the victory, but two plays after the ensuing kick-off, Arrambide intercepted a pass thrown by Clemens from behind his own goal line, returning the ball 5 yards to the Maroon 5. Tuffy Reed, ex-Oxy star, crashed over for a touchdown in two plays, giving the Braves a 21-14 victory. The try for extra point was nullified because of an offside penalty.

The Braves' first two touchdowns were of the fluke variety, coming when incompleting Maroon passes were ruled as fumbles and alert Brave defenders scooped up the ball and galloped across the last white marker.

MOSES BOBBLES

The first score bobbed up halfway in the opening stanza when "Red" Hand, Brave tackle, smeared Don Moses on the Maroon 45 as he was attempting to pass. Canrinus, the lanky Brave end, dashed in to gather

SPEEDY SALE SETS RECORD

All of 84,600 Seats Gone

No More Applications for Stanford-S.M.U. Football Tilt Received

If you have been weighing the advisability of buying $4.40 seats for the New Year's Day game between Stanford and Southern Methodist, you need worry no longer. All seats have been sold. There isn't a one left in the Rose Bowl, which has a capacity of 84,600 persons.

At ten minutes to midnight last night Don Liebendorfer, head of the Stanford publicity department, telephoned from Pasadena that the authorities in charge of the ticket sale had just discovered they were without further pasteboards to fill applications.

The speedy sellout, over three weeks in advance of the playing of the game, creates a new all-time record.

A few years ago, when Alabama and Stanford first met, the Bowl was sold out about the middle of December, but at that time the seating capacity was limited to 65,000 persons.

That year Stanford was forced to return $80,000 in checks, and it was to halt this procedure that the announcement was made last night of this year's sellout.

All tickets were handled by application. There was no public sale. "This is the sixth time Stanford has played in the Rose Bowl," said Liebendorfer last night, "but there has never been anything like it in our history to compare with the way in which the tickets have been gobbled up for this game."

It was just a week ago last night that Stanford announced the colorful Methodist Mustangs had been selected to face the western representatives in the New Year's Day test.

Thus, the game has sold out in a week. The receipts will approximate $300,000, dividend in thirds between the two competing universities and the Tournament of Roses committee.

BRUINS TO WORK TODAY

Westwooders Prepare for Final Game of Season Against St. Mary's

Buckling down to heavy practice for their wind-up game of the season against St. Mary's Saturday at San Francisco, U.C.L.A.'s Bruins will indulge in a two-hour football workout this afternoon at Westwood.

With Head Coach Bill Spaulding in San Francisco to attend the Pacific Coast Conference meeting today and tomorrow, the task of taking charge of the Bruin battalion has been assigned A. J. (Sturzy) Sturzenegger, veteran assistant coach.

TEAM SCRIMMAGES

Spaulding will not return until Wednesday. Sturzenegger will send the varsity against Cliff Simpson's ineligibles in scrimmage sessions. Simpson scouted St. Mary's yesterday in her game with Oregon.

This week's U.C.L.A.-St. Mary's engagement marks the eighth game between the two schools. The Gaels have won five times, while the Bruins have been forced to content with but two victories in the series.

After playing such teams as La Verne, Caltech, Occidental, Redlands and Pomona prior to Spaulding's regime, which started in 1925, the Bruins met St. Mary's in their first big-time battle. The Gaels won, 28 to 0. It was the first of two big games for U.C.L.A. in 1925. Stanford was the other.

RENEW RIVALRY

Renewing their rivalry in 1929, St. Mary's again downed the Bruins, 24-0, and repeated, 21 to 6, in 1930. That game marked the end of the Gaels' complete domination over

Revolta Loses to Cruickshank in Play-off

ORLANDO (Fla.) Dec. 8. (AP) Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., won an eighteen-hole play-off in the $2000 Orlando Open golf tournament today to snatch first prize money from Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, the P.G.A. champion, with whom he was tied after the regular seventy-two holes.

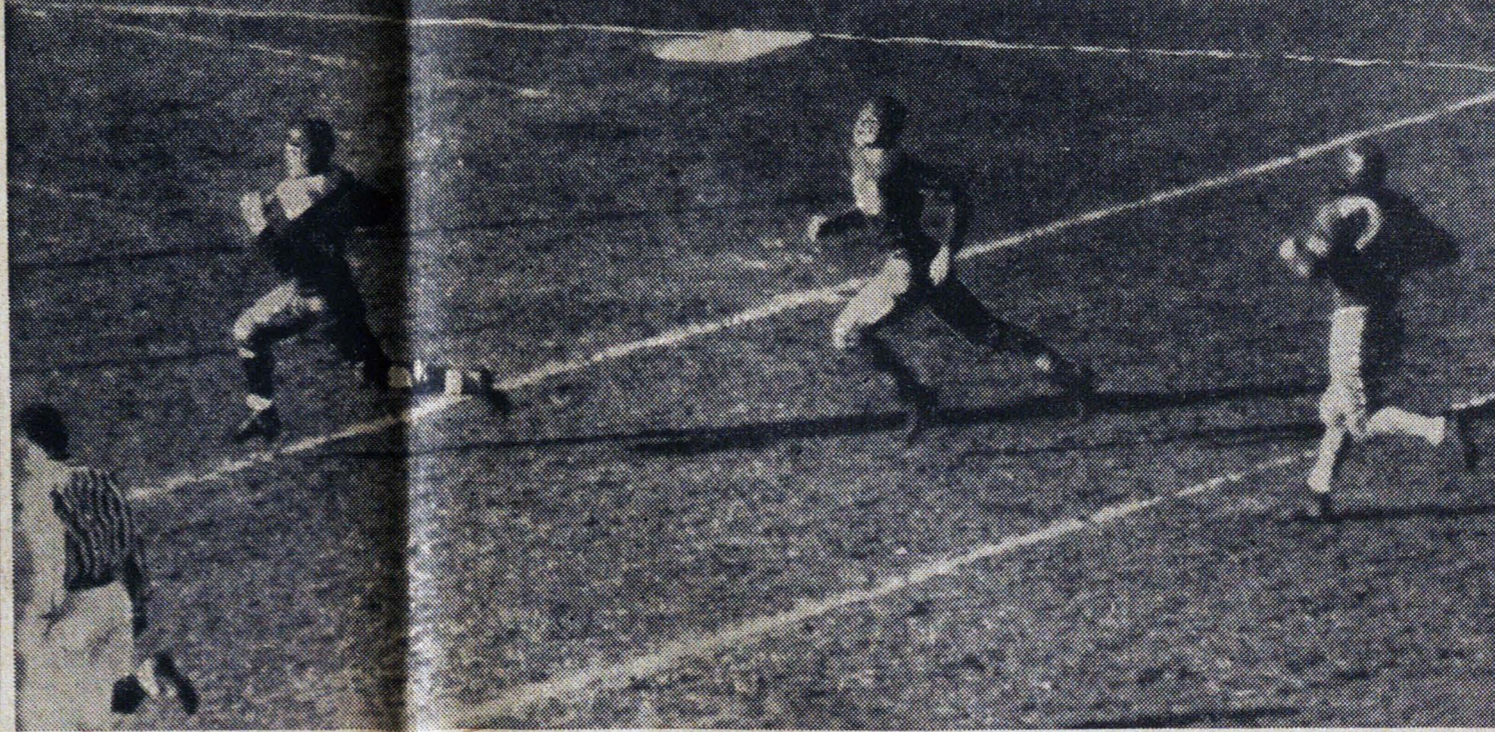

A par 71 gave Cruickshank a two-stroke edge in the extra round, played on a medal score basis.

Gaining the lead on the fourth, the stocky Virginia pro never was headed.

Cruickshank put on a brilliant drive in the final eighteen holes of the tournament yesterday to finish with a 280. Revolta later posted the same score after missing a putt on the sixteenth and shooting into a trap on the eighteenth.
