

February 12, 1942.

Senator Tom Connally,
U. S. Senate Building,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator:

This will introduce to you Mr. Porter King, 43 years of age, the son of John P. King, The King Candy Company, the largest and oldest institution of this kind in the state. Porter has been the dominating factor in operating this business in connection with his father for the last ten or fifteen years.

He is a high-classed genteel gentleman, well balanced, courteous, energetic and capable. As a matter of fact, there is no one in Fort Worth that is held in as high esteem by the business element than Porter King.

Mr. King has made up his mind he would like to render a service to our Government and is anxious to enter into the Marines, the Navy or tackle any job where he feels he could render his services to the Government, and we certainly need men of Mr. King's type in connection with the National Defense Program. Therefore, I trust you will make an effort to assist Mr. King in a connection where he can serve best.

Thanking you and with best wishes, I am

Sincerely,
