Senator Tom Connally,
U. S. Senate
Washington, D.C.

Dear Tom: The public, the Postmaster General, the airlines and everyone I know of other than the railroad representatives are interested in reducing the airmail rate from eight to five cents PERIOD The bill having passed the House, it is difficult to understand why the Senate would not be interested in rendering an economical service of this nature to the public PERIOD We hear so much about reducing expenses that at times it seems like Mark Twain's statement about the weather - it was something everybod talked about and no one did anything about it PERIOD Seriously, I hope you will feel it consistent to support the measure. Best regards
