KATHERINE M. SPILLAR

Katherine M. Spillar is the executive director of the Feminist Majority Foundation and Feminist Majority, national organizations working for women's equality, empowerment and non-violence. One of the founders, Ms. Spillar has been a driving force in executing the organizations' diverse programs to secure women's rights both domestically and globally.

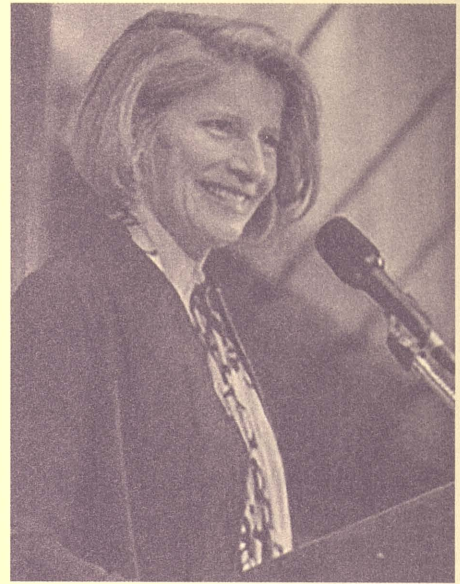

She has played a leading role in national and state level campaigns to win women's rights legislation and leads the organizations' efforts to counter the effects of extremist anti-abortion groups that target women's health clinics.

In the wake of the 1992 Rodney King beating by Los Angeles Police Department officers and subsequent riots, Ms. Spillar established the National Center for Women & Policing as a division of the Feminist Majority Foundation. The center champions the integration of women into police departments to curb police violence and improve response to violence against women.

In 1997, Ms. Spillar oversaw successful efforts to force Union Oil of California (UNOCAL) to withdraw from negotiations with the Taliban to construct an oil and gas pipeline across Afghanistan. This initiative resulted in the U.S. and United Nations' official decision not to recognize the Taliban.

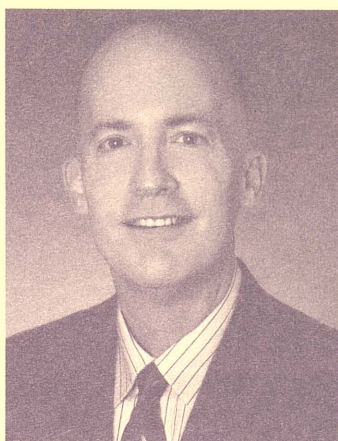

In 2001, the Feminist Majority Foundation became the sole publisher of Ms. magazine, and Ms. Spillar was named executive editor in 2005. Under her oversight, Ms. has increased its investigative reporting and today is one of the world's largest print and online feminist news sites.

Ms. Spillar graduated magna cum laude from Texas Christian University in 1975 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Urban Studies. She also holds a Master of Science interdisciplinary degree in Economics and Urban Studies from Trinity University.

VICTOR J. BOSCHINI, JR.

Victor J. Boschini, Jr., Texas Christian University's 10th chancellor, earned the bachelor's degree from Mount Union College, the master's degree from Bowling Green State University, and the doctorate in higher education administration from Indiana University. He holds the rank of professor of education and currently teaches one course per academic year for the TCU College of Education.

as on the boards of the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra, the Van Cliburn Foundation and the Moncrief Cancer Institute. In 2017 he joined the board of his alma mater, Mount Union College. His wife, Megan Boschini, also is involved in a variety of activities in the city of Fort Worth. Currently she serves on the board of directors of Gill Charity, Inc.

Dr. Boschini came to TCU after serving as president of Illinois State University, where he also previously served as vice president for student affairs and associate professor in the Department of Educational Administration and Foundations. He previously held administrative and teaching positions at Butler and Indiana universities.

Dr. Boschini serves as a representative of the Big 12 Conference on the NCAA Presidential Forum that involves presidential leadership of intercollegiate athletics and assists the NCAA Division 1 Board of Directors in accomplishing its strategic mission in the Division 1 governance structure.

In addition, Dr. Boschini sits on the board of the State Farm Company Mutual Funds, as well

Dr. and Mrs. Boschini are members of the Addison & Randolph Clark Society at the Centurion level and members of the Chancellor's Council. Both can be found at a variety of events across campus on any given day. They also spend a considerable amount of time traveling across the state and country, advocating for Texas Christian University. The twenty-two flags displayed on the arena floor represent the countries of our thirty-four international students who are receiving their diplomas today. The following countries are represented: Bangladesh, Canada, China, Colombia, Guatemala, Honduras, India, Italy, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Senegal, Spain, Sweden, Uganda, Ukraine, United Kingdom, Uzbekistan and Vietnam.

THE UNIVERSITY MACE

The mace is a symbol of the strength of a university. In medieval times, the mace was a weapon designed to protect the dignitary in a procession. Academia borrowed that tradition from royalty designating it as a symbol of the power of a university and of its leader – power shared with the faculty. Maces, similar in appearance to ancestral weaponry, usually are constructed of wood or metal and may have symbols of the institution worked into the design. Texas Christian University's mace was created to commemorate the inauguration of Chancellor Michael R. Ferrari in 1999. TCU staff member, Robert Kramer, a master carver, made the shaft of the mace. It is fashioned from a wooden beam from the first building constructed at AddRan Male and Female College in Thorp Spring, Texas. The head of the mace was created by international sculptor and TCU parent, Seppo Aarnos, and proudly bears the horned frog, adopted in 1897 as the University's mascot. An amethyst at the center of the head glows with the colors purple for royalty and white for purity.

TRADITION OF ACADEMIC DRESS

The history of academic dress dates from at least the twelfth century, when long gowns were needed for warmth in the unheated buildings used by medieval scholars. In England, both Oxford and Cambridge made academic dress a matter of university surveillance, and both institutions regulated which colors and trim could be used by faculty and students. In May 1895, representatives from American institutions of higher learning met at Columbia University and formulated a "code of academic dress" which has generally been followed since that time, although some revisions were initiated in 1932 and in 1960.

The dress code recommended that gowns for the bachelor's degree should be worn closed and should have pointed sleeves. Gowns for the master's degree can be worn open or closed, but their sleeves are oblong in shape with open wrists. Gowns worn by those holding the doctoral degree also can be worn open or closed and feature bell shaped sleeves.

Gowns from different institutions vary in color, but most are black. Neither the bachelors' nor the masters' gowns feature trim, but doctoral gowns are faced down the front with black velvet and hold three bars of the same fabric across the sleeves. Sometimes these facings and sleeve-bars are velvet of the color distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains, thus agreeing in color with the binding or edging of the hood appropriate to the particular doctoral degree of the wearer.

Hoods are to be of the same color and material as the gowns and are lined with the official color(s) of the college or university conferring the degree. Bindings or edgings for the hoods display the color distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. Bachelors' hoods are three feet in length; masters' hoods are three and one-half feet in length; doctoral hoods measure four feet in length.

For all academic purposes, including the trimmings of gowns, hoods, and tassels, the colors associated with the different academic fields are as follows:

Arts, Letters, Humanities	White
Commerce, Accountancy, Business	Drab
Economics	Copper
Education	Light Blue
Fine Arts, including Architecture	Brown
Journalism	Crimson
Kinesiology	Sage Green
Medicine	Kelly Green
Music	Pink
Nursing	Apricot
Oratory (Speech)	Silver Gray
Philosophy	Dark Blue
Science	Golden Yellow
Social Work	Citron
Theology	Scarlet

THE FOUNDERS AND THEIR COLLEGE

One of the oldest institutions of higher learning in the southwest, Texas Christian University traces its origin to the chaotic decade immediately following the Civil War. If longevity is a mark of distinction in our time, the beneficiaries include TCU.

The birthplace of the University, Thorp Spring (near Granbury in Hood County) now lies still and quiet save for the doings of nature. Then it was a community of a few families and served as both health resort and stagecoach stop. To grow the settlement bearing his name, Pleasant Thorp erected a “commodious building” with the hope of persuading some educator to turn it into a schoolhouse.

Forty miles away in Fort Worth, the Brothers Clark – Addison and Randolph – had launched an academy in 1869. Notwithstanding modest success, they concluded that their property, close to what came to be known as “Hell’s Half Acre,” was no place for a character-building school. The firm expectation that the Texas and Pacific Railroad with its attendant vices soon would reach the town only added to their unease. As a consequence, they decided to start again and accepted Mr. Thorp’s proposal.

Randolph moved to Thorp Spring in time to open the doors of their new school on the first Monday in September 1873. Honoring his commitment to Fort Worth patrons, Addison did not relocate until the next summer. Their father, Joseph Addison, followed a year later. A restless lawyer-surveyor and preacher in the Christian Church, he ably assisted his sons especially in business affairs.

The co-founders, Addison and Randolph, proved to be an exceptional twosome. Veterans of the Confederate Army but hardly firebrands, they dedicated themselves to rebuilding their homeland after the Civil War left it in a shambles. The level of trust and affection between them was remarkable. Different from each other, to be sure, Randolph was outgoing and venturesome; Addison, reserved and erudite. A student of Addison’s, Colby D. Hall, offered telling testimony. Referring to his teacher, he wrote: “You taught me homiletics and second-year Latin. Latin was not in your department. You taught it because there was no other teacher available.” Addison was a scholar. Indeed, the strengths of the brothers were complementary. No wonder their professional relationship with Addison as president and Randolph as vice president was long-lived.

The Clarks named their school AddRan Male and Female College in honor of Addison’s firstborn, AddRan, who died of diphtheria at the age of three. Beginning with thirteen pupils, enrollment increased to seventy-five by the close of the first session and passed two hundred in the fourth year. The co-founders and their father had good reason for encouragement.

But trouble surfaced. The business arrangement between the Clarks and Pleasant Thorp soured, and misunderstanding led to rupture. “Old Man Thorp” repossessed his building, and the Clarks proceeded to build their own. A three-story structure of forty by sixty feet, it was ready for use in the 1878 spring term.

To cover a portion of the construction costs, Addison and Randolph sold their houses in Fort Worth, and Randolph’s wife, Emma, parted with two of her treasured properties. AddRan was a family venture in every respect.

Thereafter enrollment turned up but peaked around four hundred fifty. The struggle to match income and expenditures intensified. The College had no endowment and faced gloomy tomorrows. What to do? Preacher-teachers in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the brothers turned their school over to the Church in 1889 and placed in control a self-perpetuating board of trustees. This transfer of assets and authority made sense because the Christian Churches in Texas had “endorsed” and “adopted” the private school at the outset.

A Christian college, AddRan bore no resemblance to today’s Bible colleges. The stated purpose of the institution, according to the Charter, was to support and promote “literary and scientific education.” The Clarks organized the curriculum into six areas of study: English, ancient languages, mathematics, physical sciences, mental and moral sciences, and social and civic history. The co-founders intended to educate the laity – women and men – as well as preachers. And they did.

To open the way for progress, trustees moved the school to Waco in 1895 and then to Fort Worth in 1910. There AddRan, having been renamed Texas Christian University, claimed a significant place in American higher education. Addison and Randolph Clark stepped aside more than a century ago, but their work continues to unfold.

—William E. Tucker
Chancellor, 1979-1998

Praise Be to God the Almighty

Joachim Neander, 1680..... From Everflowing Streams, Pilgrim Press, 1981
New words and some adaptations by Ruth Duck, 1980. Used by permission.

Praise be to God, the Almighty, who rules all creation.
O my soul, worship the well-spring of health and salvation.
Let all who hear, Now to God's temple draw near,
Joining in glad adoration!

Bringing new life, in great mercy redeeming, sustaining.
Ponder anew, What the Almighty can do.
Ponder God's gracious ordaining.
