Dear Bill:

Sometime ago there was some commotion regarding the fact that Mrs. Carter had recognized what appeared to her to be Amon Junior in a picture of a group of boys landing in Northern Ireland and you carried a story in the Journal-American. Of course it was not Amon Junior and just for the purpose of giving you a real likeness, I am sending you, herewith, a photograph recently taken of a portrait done by Seymour Stone. If I had the young man's good looks and age and my acquaintanceship, I would probably have a hell of a good time. (Naturally, the picture is sent with no thought of its publication)

Enclosed, herewith, is an editorial which we carried on your Dad, October 1, 1942. I am also sending copies to him, Bill Curley and all of your organization in New York. I think and feel everything in the editorial. If Congress had had the courage to follow the things he fought for the country would have been 100% better off.

With best wishes, I remain

Sincerely,

AGC.KD
