Dear Amon:

That was a darned nice editorial you wrote about Mr. Hearst. It is regrettable that more people don't know him as you and I do. Still, he "ain't done so bad."

I like your piece about Rickenbacker. I had an hour's session with him just before he left New York a week or ten days ago. My eldest son had just returned from an eight months stretch in the Solomons. He said the boys there just idolized Eddie. We could use a few more like him.

Sorry I didn't get a chance to hear all about your trip to England.

I gave a dinner last week in honor of Col. Llewelin, Member of the British Cabinet, now British Minister Resident in Washington and Chairman of the British Supply Council in America. Believe it or not, I got your friend, Col. McCormick, Mayor Kelly and about a dozen others to sit down and discuss matters pertaining to our respective countries.

Hope you have had further good news about your son.

My kindest regards.

Sincerely,

M. C. Meigs
