IKE CAN'T THROW IN HAT---
HE'S GOT BOTH HANDS FULL

By Ollie Crawford

Eisenhower declines to discuss politics. He believes in fighting one war at a time.

Ike can't throw his hat in the ring because he's got both hands full.

Eisenhower would do well on a quiz show because he's always asked the same question. People don't greet him with "How are you?" but just "Are you?"

Everybody keeps asking about his plans for 1952 as if he were Artie Shaw. He's been asked by everybody but Taft. And Taft really wants to know.

It's hard to make this boy run. As the Nazis found out.

Ike can't answer the $64 question because he's working on a $64,000,000,000 answer for Stalin. He isn't straddling the issue, but he's on defense. As a man in uniform, he gives a uniform answer. If the Reds are as mixed up about Ike's plans, we're all right.

Eisenhower's saying: "I refuse to answer on the grounds it might tend to nominate me."

All Ike really said was "Not now." So all he has to say in the future is "Now."
