

June 19, 1953.

Dear Amon:

Sid Richardson came over to have lunch with me today, and quite naturally you became a subject of our conversation. I was delighted to hear that you continue steadily to improve.

Thank you for sending me the book on Malenkov. I had not seen it, and I hope to get a chance to get at it soon.

Incidentally, Sid remarked that you had not had a picture of me made since my inauguration. While I think you could easily survive such a calamity, I yielded to his insistence that you would like one of the things -- so he will be handing it to you in a day or two.

My love to Minnie, and of course all the best to you and the rest of the family.

Devotedly,
