Mr. Amon G. Carter
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
Fort Worth, Texas

Dear Mr. Carter:

Under circumstances over which we had no control an error appeared in the biographical sketch we published about you in the April issue of the Flagship News.

Although our copy was correct in every detail, the printer set Fort Worth as Fort Wayne. This escaped the proof reader and did not come to our attention until copies had been mailed.

Our printing company insisted that the error be corrected by them as it was their mistake and their responsibility. Consequently, I am sending you the correct copies. I am quite sure you understand errors of this type happen from time to time in spite of everything the editor and his staff can do.

As our printer says in a letter of apology for the mistake: "It is very unfortunate that it had to appear in this particular important article, but of the few errors that occur in the printing business it is usually in places like this that they do happen."

Sincerely yours,

Frank L. Brunton
