"There are just two things to this government as I see it. The first is to safeguard the lives and properties of our people. The second is to insure that each of us has a chance to work out his destiny according to his talents. This involves protecting him from being injured or oppressed by those of superior acquisitiveness and perhaps less conscience."—From speech of Hon. John N. Garner, accepting the nomination for Vice-President in 1932.

ASTUTE political observers in the nation's Capital agree that Vice President Garner is the Democratic Party's best bet for 1940.

Garner's strength is being attributed to four factors:

1. He is more experienced in governmental affairs than any other man. He is the only living man to have presided over both Houses of Congress. He has been a conscientious public servant in Washington for more than 35 years.

2. He is a lifelong liberal of the practical variety. Most of the liberal measures enacted during the past few years were urged by Garner long before the New Deal came into power. He has opposed the New Deal only on questions of extravagant spending and its conciliatory attitude toward sit-down strikes.

3. His sturdy log-cabin Americanism is the people's best safeguard against involvement in war. He is a genuine patriot, a believer in George Washington's advice against meddling in foreign disputes.

4. He is a vigorous and rugged personality that inspires confidence. His outdoor life and clean living have kept him virile and alert. Moreover, he is a plain American—a homebody, who has been happily married to a charming and gracious wife for more than 40 years.

These attributes of John Garner's appeal to the best elements in American life, leading political observers to believe that he is the strongest nominee the Party could select.

A Message from ... JOHN N. GARNER

announcing his candidacy for President in California primary:

Zach Lamar Cobb and William R. Wallace, Jr., Co-Chairmen of California Garner for President Committee:

Please express my grateful appreciation to the group of fine men and women who are filing as delegates in support of my candidacy in the California Presidential primary.

I am sure they are actuated by the same thought and purpose which caused me to announce my willingness to accept the nomination, namely a desire to be of service to our beloved country subject only to the expressed will of the people.

Free government in America is safe so long as the people have the right and opportunity to choose their public servants.

My candidacy is in the hands of the people for their verdict at the Democratic convention at Chicago July 15th, or at the general election next November.

John N. Garner.
