

B-36 PERFORMANCE PRAISED BY KENNEY

American air power has in the B-36 a bomber that "can fly anywhere in the world," Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the Strategic Air Command, assured the nation's leading aviation writers Friday in a briefing session preceding their preview flights in the big plane.

Kenney pictured the Super-

bomber, largest land-based bomber in the world, as "more than living up to our expectations and the design of the manufacturers, a plane on which we'll have to depend heavily if we get into another conflict any time in the near future."

Maj. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, 8th Air Force commander, whose 7th Bombardment Wing has been equipped in the last few months with B-36s, outlined global training in which the big ship will be used.

Flight Characteristics.

The man who has been "checking out" pilots and crews in transition training in the B-36, Maj. John D. Bartlett, gave the aviation writers a practical insight into flight characteristics of the big craft, while Lt. Col. Howard F. Hugos, operations and training officer for the wing, gave a comparison of the operations of a B-36 wing with those of a B-29 wing.

Officer to Be Reuther Case

author- his evidence in advance, McNally large planned his request of the court of for Friday. He will ask a warrant charging attempt to kill, he united said.

McNally announced his intention Thursday, saying he will air

AVIATION WRITERS—Newspaper men here Friday for an inspection of the B-36 bomber included, left to right, Edgar Bauman, New York, Aviation News and Views; C. B. Allen, New York Herald-Tribune, and Robert Grey of the Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appeal. (Another Picture on Page 6).

—Star-Telegram Staff Photo.

BARGAIN BONDS

PAID UP

FOR

PA
Natio
Lie v
solut
crisis
He
eign
feren
surpr
temp
anoth
N. se
Th
plena
Norw
cil so
on J
It
none
powe
port