

Truman Fires at Ike Over Pulling GIs Out of Korea

BY ERNEST B. VACCARO.
ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN IN NEW ENGLAND, Oct. 18 (AP).— President Truman said Saturday that Dwight D. Eisenhower has sunk so low as to hold out “a false hope to the mothers of America, in an effort to pick up a few votes.”

Truman called that “a cruel and deceitful” action and “a contemptible thing to do.”

“I honestly believed that he would refuse to play politics with our foreign policy—especially that part of it which involves the sacrifice our American boys are making in Korea,” the president asserted. “But I was wrong about that.”

He fired his newest blast at the GOP presidential nominee in an address prepared for delivery at Providence, R. I., in the course of a day of campaigning by train and automobile in New England. He will go into New York for three speeches Saturday night.

Truman predicted, as he did at Providence four years ago, a Democratic victory.

Head of Procession.
“As usual,” he said, “you Democrats of Rhode Island are going to be right up there at the head of the procession.”

He said that Adlai Stevenson is talking sensibly about the issues while Eisenhower “makes no secret of the fact that he is trying to play on our emotions.”

“And he has sunk pretty low in that emotional campaign, as I’m going to prove to you,” Truman declared.

Meantime, the president worked to complete one of the heaviest campaign schedules he has ever undertaken as his rousing New England reception neared a close.

He stirred storms of applause in Boston’s Symphony Hall Friday night with a charge that Eisenhower, by his support of GOP Senators McCarthy of Wisconsin and Jenner of Indiana, has endorsed a “reign of terror by slander.” The audience hissed and booed the names of the two senators whom he called “moral pigmies.”

He told Rhode Islanders in Saturday’s prepared address:

“I was bitterly disappointed a few days ago when the Republican candidate for president told the people of the United States a cruel and deceitful thing.

‘Remember What He Said.’

“You remember what he said. He said we ought to pull our soldiers out of the fighting in Korea and let the South Korean army fight the Red Chinese hordes alone.”

(In a speech at Champaign, Ill., Eisenhower said: “The South Korean battle line today should be manned primarily by South Koreans. We must intensify programs of training the 20,000,000 South Koreans or those that are necessary to hold their own front lines, and so far as the United Nations and America have to stay in that area, to get them back into reserves and at least eliminate the losses.”)

“That sounded like a promise, and he meant for it to sound that way. It sounded like something he would do right away. But it was just an empty campaign speech to get votes.

“I know what his words sounded like to the mothers and fathers of this country. They sounded like words of hope, of relief and comfort from worry and heart-ache.

“That’s what made them so cruel. The Republican candidate for president held out a false hope to the mothers of America, in an effort to pick up a few votes. That was a contemptible thing to do.

‘We Quit—You Win.’
“It was irresponsible, because the Republican candidate knows that we can not pull our American troops out of Korea now. We can’t do it unless we are willing to say to Stalin ‘We quit—you win.’”

Truman said that Eisenhower knows the South Koreans “can not stand up against the entire Red Chinese army.”

“He knows better—and when he talks about pulling out of Korea, he is deliberately playing partisan politics with something that ought to be above partisan politics,” the president continued.

Truman got in his best licks and received his biggest ovation Friday in Boston where he paraded through crowds estimated by Police Supt. Edward W. Fallon at 250,000 from the South Station to his hotel.

In his Boston Symphony Hall speech, he opened up on Eisenhower, saying the GOP leader has announced that “the model for his crusaders is to be Oliver Cromwell and his Roundheads.”

This was a sure point in Irish Boston and there were boos for the general there.

The crowd reacted with him again when he said that while Cromwell—the early English dictator—may have started his crusade as a matter of principle he finished it by destroying parliamentary government “and butchering women and children.”

Doctors Hit Subsidy Plan

The Texas Medical Association Friday announced opposition to a state constitutional amendment providing subsidies for educating doctors who agree to practice in rural areas after graduation.

Texans will vote on the amendment in the general election Nov. 4.

The association opposes the subsidy on these grounds:

1. It says the plan would set up a new government principle of letting the state determine where and how individuals should carry on their private business.
2. It contends the proposal does not place a limit on the amount of money to be expended on such

Vandenberg Gets Copy Of Lost Hat

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP).—That gold-braid-and-lightning hat “borrowed” from Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, at Detroit last August has not yet been returned—despite the general’s well-publicized assurance that no questions would be asked.

But the general’s staff disclosed Saturday that a brand new replacement has been received, from the Aero Club of Michigan.

The $50 hat—the only one of its kind, because of its distinctive insignia—turned up missing after Vandenberg addressed a luncheon meeting of Air Force officers and veterans at the Air Force Association convention.

Speaks Tonight at Eisenhower Request

Hoover, Irked at Democrat Blame for Depression, Other Charges, to Reply

BY PAUL R. LEACH.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (CDN). Herbert Hoover is going to talk back Saturday night.

In a CBS nationwide radio and TV speech, from New York (8:30 CST) he is to reply to President Truman and other Democrats who have been asking the voters if they want a return to “Hoover depression days,” and labeling the Republicans reactionary and isolationist.

The 78-year-old former president was asked earlier in the week by General Eisenhower to make a campaign speech. Saturday night’s talk is the result.

Hoover backed Senator Taft for the nomination. In his speech preceding the balloting at the Chicago Republican Convention, “the chief” thrice said that would be his last appearance at such a gathering.

He implied that might also be his last speech of the year.

But the former president has been growing more and more restive as the campaign progressed. Charges that the Republican Party has been the party of reaction, anti-labor, anti-farmer, and that it is the wing of big business, and reminders that it, too, was corrupt in the Harding era, have irritated Hoover.

He has been especially wrath over the reiteration of the old Democratic campaign catch word “Hoover depression.”

When Eisenhower personally asked him to speak, Hoover set to work compiling what is described as not only a reply to the Democrats but a record of Republican action and progressivism over the years.

In the third volume of his recently published memoirs Hoover in office a full year, originated abroad and was an aftermath of World War I, he wrote. His Saturday night speech is expected to amplify that.

One thing that has galled Hoover since the 1932 election was Franklin D. Roosevelt’s refusal on Hoover’s invitation to go to Washington after he had swamped Hoover in November, and co-operate in getting emergency legislation through Congress.

Roosevelt did not go to Washington until his inauguration, March 4, 1933. The bank closings closely coincided with the inauguration.

Hoover is expected to deal with that, too, in his speech.
