Dear Mr. Carter:

I sincerely wish I had your skill to help me write my words of appreciation and gratitude for your thoughtful message to me. When your secretary long distanced it to me I can assure you I took a new lease on life and my joy knew no bounds. I had received a letter from my brother, here and

John W. Logan, now stationed in London with Air Technical Service, telling me not to worry if letters did not reach me on time. That Dwight was well a week or more later. Course of that of Dwight sailing for Africa. Their assignment now looks as if they were destined for another field of battle. I am confident of their success apart of my husband's part in it.

Some time ago Dwight had written of your visit to the Division of your fine son there too. I have searched the papers for your stories because I know of your excellent record.
How your kindness has reached me a joy to the children a me great happiness.

I thank you again
and wish you every success in the New Year, Love

most sincerely
Bertha L. Aultman
