Dear Mr. Carter:

Although I only met you once I feel that I have known you for years. I know that "faith" -- which word humanity as a whole has forgotten the meaning of -- I do know that you haven't. I, therefore, feel that it will help sustain you during this present crisis.

Have hope and patience. I feel that it all will come out right and that you will shortly hear that Amon is well -- so take care of yourself for Amon's sake. He will need you now more than ever after the ordeal he is going through.

Faith and hope will see all of us through and one of these days we will all celebrate the home coming of our boys as you planned it. Believe me, I think and pray for Amon's safety as much as for my boys. It is up to us to keep our part of the bargain and keep our chins up and back them with our moral.

Sincerely,

B. A. Wiedermann
